To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer to-day.—Adv.

RENWAR RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood; and in order to effect a complete cure, it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve or your money is refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50c bottle has done me more good than all sanitarium treatment, and what it did for me, why should it not do the same for others. Should anyone doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." For sale by druggists, price 50c; or by mail on receipt of price from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

The distinctive flavor of

Coca-Cola

The flavor of Coca-Cola is a composite of natural fruits so delicately blended that the palate is unable to distinguish any one of the component parts—the result is a distinctive flavor.

The art of compounding flavors has become a science which requires a lifetime to master. That is why it is so difficult to imitate the distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola.

The slightest deviation from the delicate balance of flavors reveals the imitation. When you ask for Coca-Cola demand the genuine by full name — nicknames encourage substitution.

BENOIT REVIVAL CLOSES.

The great revival meeting which was in progress here for 10 days, recently came to a close, with untold good accomplished. The good work, however, is still going on and the influence of the meeting is being fully felt and is yet spreading, so much so that one of the influential citizens who never before professed Christianity stepped out boldly since the close of the meeting and manifested faith in Christ as his Savior and identified himself with the church.

Another proof of the great good accomplished in this meeting, besides the church being revived and sinners redeemed, was that the good ladies, regardless of church affiliation, made up a purse and presented it to the pastor's wife, Mrs. W. V. Shearer, to take a trip to the great Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, this month.

The Rev. J. H. Beil, the North Mississippi Conference Evangelist, did the preaching, and it was indeed spiritual and helpful.

The co-workers in the meeting were Dr. J. W. Price, a superannuate member of the North Mississippi Conference, and Mrs. Mary E. Ervin, a devout Christian worker of Columbus, Miss., and also the pastor of the church, the Rev. W. V. Shearer.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Uric Acid in Meat Clogs the Kidneys

Take a Glass of Salts if your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers you—Drink More Water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritate, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

A HAPPY PREACHER.

Dear Brother Cariey: The happiest preacher that I know anything about at this time is the pastor of the Methodist Church in Haziehurst, Miss.

It came about in this way: Last Sunday morning, just before the beginning of the morning service, the pastor was called aside by that bighearted, whole-souied, princely layman, Hon. J. S. Sexton, who said: "When you make your church announcements to-day, I want to have a chance to say a few words." Since he is the lay leader of the church, of course, we were only too glad to have him say anything that might be on his heart to say.

In a few well-chosen words he depicted to the congregation something of the immensity and the marvelous greatness of the Centenary Celebration that is to begin in Columbus, Ohio, on the 20th, saying that it was not only to be the greatest celebration ever enterprised by any religious body in the history of the world, but would not be repeated within the next one hundred years, and that it was too great in its magnitude, and too rare in its occurrence, for his pastor to miss it. So he proposed to the congregation that they vote the pastor a vacation of sufficient time to attend the Centenary Celebration, which was unanimously adopted.

Not satisfied with this act of generosity on the part of the congregation, he then proposed that the church finance the pastor's visit to Columbus, which was also adopted. The preacher sat back in breathless anxiety, wondering what was going to happen next.

And sure enough, the next thing did happen. A telegram came from the Stereopticon Department of the General Board of Missions asking that I assist that Department at Columbus in presenting the use of the stereopticon as an educational force and factor in church work. This I gladly consented to do. So it seems now that I am really to be an active part and parcel of the great Centenary Celebration, the biggest thing of its kind in the world. So mote it be. W. W. GRAVES.

HAND GRENADES AS SAVINGS BANKS.

Souvenir savings banks designed to draw the lesson of thrift from America's victory in the great war have been made available through the Savings Division of the Treasury Department for distribution to the school children of the country. These banks are to be manufactured from hand grenades designed for use by the American troops in Europe, which were ready for service when the armistice was signed. There are fifteen millions of these grenades available for transformation into banks to hold the pennies and dimes which the school children of the country are saving to buy Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps.

The souvenir banks have been offered to the Savings Directors of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts who will have complete charge of the distribution to the school children. The District Directors will work out their own plans for placing the banks where they will best accomplish the purpose of aiding the movement by means of which the American people are seeking to perpetuate the habit of thrift acquired under the stress of war-time sacrifice.

Each grenade will be provided with a slot to accommodate the pennies and dimes which go to make up the savings of the school children, and each will bear the words "BUY W. S. S." The War Department proposed to dispose of these grenades for junk, but the Savings Division decided that the souvenir value and the object lessons which the grenades might teach should not be lost.

Under a plan approved by the Treasury Department for the distribution of the souvenir banks, each child under ten years old who, during the coming summer vacation, earns enough money to buy one War Savings Stamp and submits to his teacher an account of how the money was earned would be entitled to receive a bank. Children of more than ten years would be required to purchase two War Savings Stamps.

PONCHATOULA CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: We observed Sunday School Day at Ponchatoula with our program at 11 o'clock. May 11 put us on the Centenary Drive in the afternoon and opened our revival services at 8 p. m. in the same day. Our Centenary allotment was $4751. Divided and subscribed as follows: Ponchatoula $1750, subscribed $1900; Wesley, $1250, subscribed $1300; Lee's Landing, $751, subscribed $801 giving a total of $4001. As a general thing our people were deeply interested in the Centenary Movement and it proved a blessing to them.

Rev. E. A. Bowman did the preaching in the revival and did it well, and Brother Thos. A. Spinks led the singing in a splendid manner. Both of these young men know and love the Master. We had a hard battle here for victory came, and we closed the services on June 1. The spiritual life of some people was deepened, a good many professed conversion at the altar; twelve names were added to our church roll and two gave their names for membership in the Baptist Church. Several offered themselves for service whenever God wants them. Since the revival, we have organized an Epworth League and are planning to organize a Junior League.

Since our Annual Conference twenty-eight names have been added to our roll at Ponchatoula, and seventeen infants have been baptized. It is our purpose to have revivals at Wesley and Lee's Landing and press the battle for the Lord as the days pass. You are furnishing us a good paper and we appreciate it.

Brother H. W. May, our efficient presiding elder, was with us June 8, and preached two splendid sermons at Wesley and Lee's Landing and held our third quarterly conference.

Yours fraternally,
T. D. LIPSCOMB.

A NOTE FROM REV. W. M. YOUNG.

The Aberdeen District Conference has just been held in Pontotoc. Bishop Kilgo was with us and gave us a great sermon on Thursday, the 30th of May. The evening before, his address before the graduating class of Pontotoc High School, on "The South and the High Ideals of the South," was a great utterance. We had a great conference.

Pontotoc, for the Centenary, was assessed $6000 and subscribed more than $8000; and last Sunday morning the congregation voted the pastor a vacation and presented him with a purse of $50 to pay expenses to the Celebration at Columbus, Ohio.

The Secretary will report the district conference.

W. M. YOUNG.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

YOUNG ENOUGH TO START OVER.

A recent news item is to the effect that a distinguished inventor, once a millionaire, has started to work at a factory work bench, at the age of 87, for $4 a day, with full faith that he will be able to recoup his fortunes. He may not realize his hopes, but he has given the world a lesson that will mean much to those that learn it—the lesson that faith and hope are not conditioned by time or adverse circumstances. The slogan of the Salvation Army in its recent campaign for funds teaches the same lesson—"A man may be down, but he is never out." Barnaby Rudge's crow, with his monotonous "Never say die," emphasized the same truth. Misfortune and disappointment have embittered many a life that should have kept up the fight with the invincible conviction that all would be well in the end. We all grow old in body, but it is the privilege of our spirits to stay young forever.

BEARING FRUIT.

The opposition to the objectionable dances that have outraged decency in these latter days is gaining strength. The Morning Star, an influential Roman Catholic paper published in New Orleans, in a recent issue, expressed itself in most vigorous terms in condemnation of such forms of social immorality, and called upon Roman Catholic social leaders to put an end to them at once. Various social organizations in New Orleans and other places have issued orders specifically prohibiting certain kinds of dancing at their gatherings, and professional teachers of dancing have declared that they will not allow their pupils to practice the objectionable steps at their schools. The good seed sown by those who are concerned for the social welfare of our people are beginning to spring up and bear fruit.

A SERIOUS MATTER.

Senator Sherman, of Illinois, has called the attention of the Senate to the fact that it is within the range of possibility that the League of Nations may end the separation of Church and State, and bring the civilized world under the domination of the Vatican. We quote his words, in part, as given in a dispatch from Washington on June 20: "From an early age, the occupants of the Vatican believed in the inherent right of papal authority to administer civil government. It is with the utmost regret I fail to find recorded in the course of papal claims of later days any renunciation or disavowal of the doctrine. So far as a layman can discover, the Vatican still believes it ought, and would if the power was permitted, to assume to administer ecclesiastical and civil government as its joint, exclusive and paramount power. Of the original 32 member nations signatories to the proposed League, 28 are Christian nations and four are of other faiths. Of these 28 Christian nations, 17 are Catholic nations, either a majority or an overwhelming preponderance of the population being of that religious faith, and 11 are Protestant. * * * The 17 nations will be represented in the League, in all human probability, by Catholic delegates. * * * The sway over those people and their implicit faith in the infallibility of the head of this great religious organization is supreme. * * * It is a power for good. I cheerfully bear witness to its support of stable government, and, above all, to its steady opposition to a socialistic State, disorder, and Bolshevism in its various forms and manifestations. But the head of the Church proclaims and teaches his infallibility. The separation of Church and State might continue. The peril lies in the claim of papal power never abjured, never disavowed. The temptation to enforce that belief might break down every barrier built up by centuries of struggle and sacrifice. * * * Twenty-four of the forty equal votes of the Christian nations, members of the League, are spiritually dominated by the Vatican." We have heard it stated that the first Secretary of the League, nominated by President Wilson, is a member of the Roman Catholic Church. We are not alarmists, but we think it is worth while to call attention to the matter that Senator Sherman has placed before the Senate in such detail. The old saying, "Forewarned is forearmed," applies here.

WHAT OF IT?

According to press reports, astronomers have succeeded in measuring the spotted area of the sun. They find it to be 45,000 miles in diameter, while the great central spot is 28,000 miles long and 5,000 miles across. Sixteen smaller spots have been discovered in the same area with the big one, and five other groups of 42 spots have been distinguished. This is interesting, to be sure—but what of it?

STRANGERS.

We were greatly surprised a few weeks ago when we read that the "Allied Medical Association of America" had vigorously endorsed the use of wines and beer by workingmen, and had declared that beer is absolutely necessary in the treatment of certain kinds of diseases. Our feeling at the time was that this pronouncement was merely one of the many tricks used by the brewers to promote anti-prohibition sentiment. We are not very well informed as to the organizations of the medical profession, but a careful ransacking of the files of memory failed to produce any recollection of public mention of the "Allied Medical Association of America"—a fact remarkable, not because of the completeness of our mental files of medical data, but because an organization with such a high-sounding name ought to be more or less familiar to every layman in the land. We were not surprised, therefore, when we read under a Washington, D. C., date line, that Dr. Clarence True Wilson, the general secretary of the Board of Temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, had charged before the Senate judiciary sub-committee that the aforesaid "Allied Medical Association of America" is not a medical organization in good standing, but one formed by "quack" doctors especially for the purpose of influencing public sentiment in favor of the use of wines and beer. We do not know—but we are inclined to believe that Dr. Wilson has "sized up" the organization properly. It is a stranger in the medical world.

TRUE TO FORM.

The German crews of the interned war vessels at Scapa Flow, a landlocked harbor in the Orkney Islands, sank the entire fleet of surrendered dreadnaughts, cruisers, and destroyers, with one exception, last week. By the terms of the armistice, British guards were not permitted aboard the vessels, and although all explosives had been removed, the only guarantee that the vessels would not be damaged was the honor of the conquered foe. We are expected to believe that the German people are sincere in their protestations concerning the hardships that will be inflicted upon them by the terms of the treaty of peace; we are forced to the conviction that they are not to be trusted in any sense. They were "running true to form" when they violated the most sacred obligations of the armistice terms.

LET THE PUBLIC DO IT.

Mr. William Howard Taft says that his experience as a member of the War Labor Board has taught him that the street car lines throughout the country are in a precarious condition because of lack of funds, and that some remedy must be found to avoid chaos and the possible loss of the $5,000,000,000 invested in traction securities. His suggestion is that fares be raised to a point that will enable the companies to operate at a profit. He is opposed to public ownership on account of its extravagance. We have never made any elaborate study of the management of street railways, and any opinion that we may express is that of an interested observer, only. We recognize the right of capital to a fair return for its investment; but we are not in sympathy with the assumption that the public is under obligation to guarantee that profit to the promoters of public utilities unless the public has some voice in the management of those enterprises. We have had our attention called more than once to cases where, in the face of doubtful financial methods, municipal authorities have authorized higher charges in order that the owners might be guaranteed a "reasonable" profit of five, six, or seven per cent on the amount of outstanding stock — which is sometimes a very different thing from the amount of capital actually invested. "Let the public do it" is getting to be a rather monotonous suggestion for the relief of corporations that are unwilling to run the risks that attend all kinds of business. We do not recall that these corporations have shown any disposition to divide profits with the public—they can take care of the profits, themselves; but it is a pitiful story when losses are incurred.

LETTERS TO THE PREACHERS AND METHODIST PEOPLE IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE AND THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCES.

By Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo

I

My Dear Brethren: First of all I wish to unite with you in giving thanks for all that has been accomplished by your labors in the Centenary Celebration. Our people have accumulated large wealth; and while this is an evidence of their industry and economic wisdom, yet the power to use wealth rightly is far higher and nobler than the power to accumulate wealth. Our American people have not learned this important lesson and vast amounts of material resources are far worse than wasted even wickedly expended. I earnestly trust that the Centenary efforts will leave on the minds and the consciences of our people a deep and abiding sense of the true meaning and holy use of riches. There is no more seductive and ruinous sin than covetousness, and it is the bounden duty of all who have the spiritual oversight of our people to warn, admonish, and urge them against it.

Now for a full year the thought and the energies of our Church have been devoted to this one cause. Having brought it to a happy conclusion so far as the material phase of it is concerned, I wish to call your attention and secure your labors in the work of calling sinners to repentance and our people to holier living. This is the first work of the Church, the foremost purpose of the ministry. Our zeal in these things is the measure of all success. There should be not the slightest reserve in the complete devotion of ourselves to this supreme aim of the gospel, the one purpose that fills the heart of God in His redeeming grace.

I am not ignorant of the general impression that a revival of religion is needed, and even that it is about to break upon the world. However, if this is no more than an impression, it does not mean anything vital. Revivals do not come out of general impressions, and these impressions may be so general that they evaporate like a morning mist. Personal conviction of the need of a revival among us, a burden for souls, a heart-hunger after God, a deep sense of personal unworthiness, a humble and contrite spirit, a determination to put away every hindrance to the work of God in the heart, a fixed purpose to seek God with the whole heart, and a faith that will not let Him go except He bless us—these are the things that mean revival. Revival is not primarily a church affair, a matter of organization or ecclesiastical machinery, but it is a personal matter of the most intimate character, dealing with the individual heart and soul. No person must look to the ministry or to the church for revival. It is not primarily a church affair, a matter of organization or ecclesiastical machinery, but it is a personal matter of the most intimate character, dealing with the individual heart and soul. No person must look to the ministry or to the church for revival. It is not primarily a community

An exeeutive eommittee was ereated by this first meeting, composed of Revs. W. S. Lagrone, J. R. Jones, W. C. Hetley, Messrs. J. H. Sherard, J. F. Smith, T. K. Riddick, and L. M. Stratton. Rev. H. B. Johnston, of the Memphis Conference, was selected to present an invitation from the Board of Trustees of the four Annual Conferences to the Little Rock and North Arkansas Annual Conferences, inviting them to join in the covenant to build the hospital in Memphis. The invitation was presented at the next session of these Annual Conferences and for geographical reasons the Conferences refused to join the others in building the hospital.

In the summer of 1911, Rev. H. M. Ellis, of the Mississippi Conference, was elected Field Secretary and placed in charge of the detail operations of securing funds with which to build and equip.

In 1912 a Committee, composed of T. K. Riddick, J. R. Pepper and L. M. Stratton, was appointed to select a location upon which to build the new hospital, and to obtain the price of same and report back to the Executive Committee. The first report of the Committee in selecting the site was made in May of 1912 as follows: "We, your committee appointed at your last annual meeting to select a site on which to build our hospital, beg to report that we have agreed on a location and suggest that you authorize the purchase of two lots on Union Avenue. These two lots can be purchased for $17,500." The report of the committee was approved and authority given to purchase the two lots, which was done that year, and the deed for same was given to the Trustees of the Methodist Hospital.

In February of 1914, a eommittee of five was appointed by the Board of Trustees to consider the advisability of selling the two lots purchased on Union Avenue as above described, and reinvesting the money received therefrom in another lot, the said committee to have full power and authority to act in the premises. The commiltee was composed of T. K. Riddick, J. R. Pepper, L. M. Stratton, J. H. Sherard, and H. M. Ellis.

On July 20, 1914, this Committee agreed to purchase what is known as the W. B. Mallory Home at 1025 Lamar Avenue, consisting of a frontage of 535½ feet, with a depth of 672 feet, at a cost of about $100,000, a part of the purehase money being paid by the transfer of the two lots owned by the hospital on Union Avenue. The agreement to purchase the Mallory Home and the deeds of conveyance for same were ratified and approved by the Board of Trustees of the hospital. Each year the Annual Conferences in their regular sessions appointed Trustees who met regularly either in January or February of the following months and retained Rev. H. M. Ellis as Field Secretary until, in the summer of 1917, he offered his resignation to the Executive Committee to take effect at the expiration of the next session of the Mississippi Annual Conference. The resignation was accepted and at that meeting Thos B. King was elected Financial Agent, but did not take active charge until the 1st of November, 1917.

In December, 1916, the Executive Committee, and subsequently approved by the Board of Trustees, unanimously adopted the following as the policy governing the hospital when the same shall have been built and is in operation:

First—The administration of the hospital to be solely without reference to religious belief or preference.

Second—It is to be operated on the most improved scientific hospital plan.

Third—It is to conduct an up-to-date laboratory of researeh for the discovery of disease germs and the cure and prevention of their spread.

Fourth—At least one-third of its beds shall be available for charity.

Fifth—There shall be no diserimination between the pay patients and the ones receiving charity, to the end that charity patients shall not he subjected to the embarrassment or humiliation incident to being treated as sueh.

Sixth—Any doctor in good standing will be welcome to practice within its walls.

Seventh—It is not to make money. All receipts above expenses shall go to charity services, and research work for the betterment and extension of the enterprise.

In January, 1917, a whirlwind campaign was inaugurated for the purpose of raising $150,000 for the new hospital building, with J. R. Pepper as General Chairman and Mr. F. C. Barber of New York in charge of the detail arrangement. The campaign resulted in a total subscription of $175,000.

On Mareh 14, 1918, a charter was granted by the State of Mississippi to the Methodist Hospital, Memphis, Tennessee, which charter was applied for by the following members of the Board of Trustees: T. W. Lewis, H. B. Johnston, Jno. R. Pepper, L. M. Stratton, T. K. Riddick, Mrs. St. John Waddell, J. T. Leggett, J. R. James, E. H. Enochs, L. N. Dantzler, Mrs. C. R. McQueen, W. S. Lagrone, J. C. Park, Jno. H. Sherard, W. T. Reeves, J. K. Farris, J. R. Nelson, T. J. Boston and Mrs. Ada L. Roussan. These incorporators met at Lake View, Miss., the home base of the charter, on June 11, 1918, and approved the charter and elected Jno. H. Sherard, President; Jno. R. Pepper, Vice President; L. M. Stratton, Treasurer, and Thos. B. King, Secretary. At this meeting, by-laws governing the Board of Trustees were adopted.

The charter provides that the Methodist Hospital is authorized to construct, equip and operate a hospital in the City of Memphis under the auspices and control of the Memphis, Mississippi, North Mississippi and North Arkansas Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The Board of Trustees of the hospital shall consist of twenty-four members to be elected annually by the four Conferenees above named, eaeh of said Conferences to elect annually six of said trustees, three of which shall be laymen, two ministers of the gospel and one woman. The corporation is vested with the power to purchase real estate for hospital purposes, and to accept deeds of gift, devises or bequests of real or personal property of any character or kind for any of the purposes of said institution, either by way of permanent endowment fund or endowing particular rooms for the use of said hospital building.

At the first meeting of the incorporators of the hospital, the Board of Managers was elected, consisting of Jno. H. Sherard, T. J. Boston, J. T. Leggett, J. R. Pepper, L. M. Stratton, T. W. Lewis, G. T. Fitzhugh, R. W. Bailey, R. R. Ellis, F. N. Fisher and Joe Newberger. At the same time a Building Committee was created, composed of L. M. Stratton, R. W. Bailey, R. R. Ellis, G. T. Fitzhugh, and F. N. Fisher.

At this meeting a proposition was presented from the Board of Trustees of the Lucy Brinkley Hospital to the Methodist Hospital for the purpose of turning over the hospital with its good will and all of its property holdings, provided that the Methodist Hospital Board would preserve the name of the Lucy Brinkley as a memorial in some wing of the new hospital when the same was erected. The Trustees of the Methodist Hospital accepted the proposition, and on June 21, 1918, a deed was made, signed and recorded, transferring the Lucy Brinkley Hospital; its good will and all property belongs to the Memphis Hospital. The Lucy Brinkley Hospital has been under the control of the Methodist Hospital for nearly twelve months, and it is self-sustaining as to its finances, and is rendering good hospital services as far as its capacity goes.

Following is a list of the present members of the Board of Trustees of the Methodist Hospital:

Memphis Conference—Rev. T. W. Lewis, Memphis, Tenn.; Rev. H. B. Johnston, Paris, Tenn.; Mr. John R. Pepper, Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. L. M. Stratton, Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. T. K. Riddick, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. St. John Waddell, Memphis, Tenn.

Mississippi Conferenee — Rev. J. T. Leggett, Brookhaven, Miss.; Rev. G. H. Thompson, Meridian, Miss.; Mr. P. H. Enochs, Fernwood, Miss.; Mr. L. N. Dantzler, Gulfport, Miss.; Mr. W. N. Lampton, Magnolia, Miss.; Mrs. C. R. McQueen, Meridian, Miss.

North Mississippi Conference—Rev. R. A. Meek, Sardis, Miss.; Rev. R. A. Tucker, Grenada, Miss.; Mr. John H. Sherard, Sherard, Miss.; Mr. M. C. Smith, Moorehead, Miss.; Mr. W. T. Reeves, Tupelo, Miss.; Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, Shelby, Miss.

North Arkansas Conference—Rev. J. K. Farris, Fort Smith, Ark.; Rev. J. R. Nelson, McCrory, Ark.; Mr. T. J. Boston, Earle, Ark.; Mr. W. E. Jelks, McCrory, Ark.; Mr. J. P. Lee, Clarendon, Ark., Mrs. Adah L. Roussan, Memphis, Tenn.

The first of the series of contracts for the new hospital building was awarded by the Building Committee under the authority of the Board of Managers on March 19, 1919, which provides for the excavation, draining and the completed reinforced concrete frame structure, including the roofing, at a cost of $95,000. The architects who designed the building and the supervising engineer estimate the entire cost of the new building now under construction to be $350,000, not including the furniture and other necessary equipment.

The splendid business qualifications, as well as the high character of the Building Committee, afford a strong guarantee to the four Annual Conferenees that the cost of the structure will be brought to the minimum consistent with safety, perpetuity and the rendering of the best service to humanity when the hospital is in operation.

The contractors began the work the 5th of April, 1919, and are advancing as rapidly as the weather and labor conditions will permit.

The corner-stone was laid June 12, 1919, in the presence of a good number of Methodists and their friends. Bishops W. B. Murrah and James Atkins delivered addresses of a high nature. The laying of the corner-stone and the exercises pertaining thereto were under the direction of Bishop Atkins.

The total valuation of the property belonging to the Methodist Hospital is estimated at $250,000, which consists of a lot at 1025 Lamar Avenue of eight and one-half acres, the Lucy Brinkley Annex, and good and collectible unpaid subscriptions.

THOMAS B. KING,
Financial Agent.

CONFERENCE, SOCIAL SERVICE WORKERS.

The Commission on Temperance and Social Service will hold its annual meeting at Lake Junaluska, North Carolina, on August 19 and 20. There will be held in connection with the meeting of the Commission a Conference for Social Workers, beginning on Sunday, the 17th, and extending through Sunday, the 24th. There will be addresses in the auditorium morning and evening each day of the conference and lectures and conferences every morning.

Dr. Worth M. Tippey, Secretary of the Social Service Commission of the Federal Council of Churches, will be present the entire week and will lecture every morning. Mr. Raymond Robbins of Chicago will give four platform addresses and hold four conferences. Dr. Edgar H. Johnson of Emory University, Dr. Comer Woodard of Southern Methodist University, Dr. A. M. Trawick of Scarritt Bible and Training School, and Bishop James Cannon, Jr., will also take part in the conference, delivering addresses and lectures. The work will be so systematized and divided as to cover as much ground as possible during the week of the conference.

Special rates have been granted by the Railroad Administration. Tickets will be sold on the certificate plan, full fare being paid going to Lake Junaluska, a certificate of that fact being obtained from the agent, which certificate will entitle the holder to purchase a return ticket at one-third the regular rate. No fee will be charged for attendance upon the conference other than the regular gate fee for entranco to the Assembly Grounds.

For further information apply to the Southern Assembly, Lake Junaluska, N. C.

Let us rather be thankful that our sorrow lives in us as an indestructible force, only changing its form, as forces do, and passing from pain into sympathy—the one poor word which includes all our best insight and our best love.—George Eliot.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE LAUREL EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

By H. P. Lewis, Jr.

For the first time in 19 years, I had the pleasure of attending the Epworth League Conference, which this year was held in Laurel, Miss., June 10-13. I was able to take in only two days of the session, and cannot report on all the proceedings. In fact, this article does not pass as a report of the Conference, but rather some impressions gained by attendance on it.

I count the two days spent with those choice young people from over our Conference as two of the brightest days of my life. The inspiration received will remain with me the rest of my days.

Brother Hawkins, President of the League Board, had arranged a strong program of speakers; but of the four selected from outside the State, only one, Rev. H. T. Carley, Editor of the New Orleans Advocate, was on hand to fill his place. But in spite of this handicap, and the failure of others who accepted a place on the program and failed to fill it, the Conference will go down in the history of the E. L. Conferences in Mississippi as one of the best and most inspirational ever held. Brother L. L. Roberts, pastor of First Church, Laurel, was called away for two days from home during the Conference, but got back before the close, and was so impressed with the spiritual atmosphere that had developed since his leaving, that out of the fullness of his heart he had to tell it. He said that he felt the presence of God on walking into the Conference room.

W. D. Hawkins is the right man in the right place. By his faithful devotion to this arm of the Church in our Conference, he has gradually built up a spiritual fellowship among our young people that has become a large asset towards preparing their lives for definite Christian service. And, while there is a feature of pleasure and recreation in connection with the Conference, the most important feature is the spiritual benefit the young people receive. There is a positive force of spiritual power manifest in the Conference that is exerting a tremendous influence over the lives of the young people who attend.

The Centenary Movement demands many consecrated lives of our young people to carry on the work it has inaugurated. I have been concerned about where they are coming from. But I find in the Epworth League Conference that God has laid His hand on that gathering as one worthy to furnish the volunteers. Almost every Leaguer in attendance on the Laurel Conference joined the Volunteer Band for Christian service, and many of them will find their field for service in foreign lands.

I can safely say that the pastors who encouraged their young people to attend the Laurel Conference will bear testimony to a rich inspiration to better and more loyal service for Christ that these young people received at this Conference.

God bless the work of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League.

Madison, Miss., June 19, 1919.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Lafayette District Conference convened in Lake Charles, May 27. The conference was royally entertained. Rev. W. W. Holmes and wife extended every courtesy to preachers, delegates and visitors.

It was rather a unique conference. The Woman's Missionary Society of the district held its annual meeting in the same church. On Tuesday afternoon, the presiding elder turned the conference over to them and they presented their work in a most interesting manner. Mrs. C. E. Fike, the District Secretary, was assisted by the State President, Mrs. Niebergall, and several others. Our Conference Sunday School Field Secretary, Rev. Alonzo Early, held a Sunday school institute on Wednesday morning that was worth while. The conference expressed itself as highly appreciative of the splendid work done by Brother Early.

Rev. H. W. Bowman, P. E., presided over the conference in a commendable way. The devotional exercises were led by Rev. Briscoe Carter, J. W. Baker and Rev. S. L. Riggs. The preaching was done by Revs. R. W. Tucker and Martin Hebert.

The visitors to the conference were Rev. Briscoe Carter, P. E., of the Alexandria District; Rev. R. W. Vaughan, Superintendent of the Methodist Orphanage, at Ruston, and Rev. Ellis Smith, from Amite City.

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: Mrs. A. P. Holt, A. M. Mayo, A. G. Murry, H. N. Pharr, Miss Janie Watkins, Mrs. H. N. Brown, J. E. Ney and R. P. Howell.

A committee was appointed to plan for a forward movement in French Mission work. A general survey of the field will be made and needs and opportunities ascertained. A Ford car, the best of all cars, was given by the Bayou La Chute church to do French mission work with.

The district conference for 1920 will be held at Lake Arthur.

The Centenary spirit was much in evidence at the conference. The district director reported that every charge in the district had met its quota. Rayne Church got the banner for being the first to put it over with an over-subscription of 119 per cent.

Reports from the preachers showed progress. All went to their works with courage and hopefulness for the future. C. E. FIKE, Secretary.

RESOLUTIONS,

(Adopted on the death of Rev. Linton L. Harger, by the Hattiesburg District Conference.)

The following resolution on the death of Rev. Linton L. Harger was adopted, with the instruction that a copy be furnished by the Secretary to the parents, and also one to the Editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, with request that same be published.

Whereas, The Rev. Linton L. Harger, who was a local preacher in this district, supplying the Purvis Mission, although placed in deferred classification, waived all exemptions, asking to be allowed to go to the front in the recent world struggle for righteousness and liberty, and in March of last year enlisted in the service of his country, spending a while at Camp Pike, then later being sent across to take his place at the front by the side of those gallant heroes who were facing death in a foreign land;

And whereas, After a few months of valiant service, he was called upon to make the supreme sacrifice for God and his country; therefore be it

Resolved by this District Conference, in session at Petal, Miss., May 7, 1919:

1. That, while we deeply deplore the untimely death of one who gave promise of great usefulness to the Church, yet we commend his brave and patriotic spirit, and trust that it may inspire us to nobler and more unselfish living.

2. That we hereby extend our sympathy to his bereaved loved ones, praying that God's grace may be their comfort and support.

H. MELLARD,
PAUL D. HARDIN.

THE NEW DORMITORY AT MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

Dear Mr. Editor: In your excellent "write-up" of the Millsaps College Commencement, published in the Advocate of June 19th, you made appropriate mention of the interesting exercises connected with breaking the ground for our new dormitory. You were in error, however, in saying that only one of the three units of which the dormitory is to consist will be erected at the present time. The contract was let three weeks ago for the erection of two units of the new building, and it is expected that the dormitory will be ready for occupancy by the middle of November. The two units, including the furnishing, will cost upwards of $75,000, and will provide first-class accommodations for eighty-four students. It is now realized that it will be impossible to complete the dormitory for less than $100,000.00, exclusive of furnishing. The announcement that the long-talked-of dormitory is now in actual process of construction will be gratifying news to the alumni, patrons, and friends of Millsaps College throughout the State.

I am glad to say that our dormitory fund continues to grow encouragingly. Several weeks ago a big-hearted Mississippi layman, who refuses to let his name be published, made a pledge of $2500. A much-appreciated subscription of $500 was recently made by Rev. D. W. Babb, of the North Mississippi Conference. These brethren have our hearty thanks. Notwithstanding these and other liberal pledges, we still lack several thousand dollars of having enough to complete two units of our dormitory, even if all outstanding subscriptions were paid in full. It would be a shame for work on the new building to be halted because of a lack of funds to complete it. May we not count on the prompt and hearty co-operation of our Mississippi laymen and pastors in this worthy enterprise which means so much to the success of the College? Will not the friends of the College who have not helped hitherto send in cash contributions or pledges during the next sixty days? Liberty bonds of any size will be gladly accepted. Yours fraternally,

M. M. BLACK,
Commissioner.

Jackson, Miss., June 20, 1919.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

Some Announcements.

Centenary College recently closed what was, in some respects, the most successful session for some years past. War conditions operated to cut down the attendance in the college classes lower than usual, but, in spite of that fact, the total enrollment was more than fifty per cent larger than the previous session. As a result, the college ended its session for the first time in several years without a deficit in running expenses, which was quite gratifying and encouraging.

As has been generally known, Dr. Wynn has planned for several years to return to the pastorate, but continued in the presidency during the uncertain war conditions until the future of the college was more settled, and it is quite gratifying to him, as well as to the Board, to have his last session so satisfactory in attendance and financial status. The Board of Trustees adopted, with very hearty unanimity, strong resolutions of commendation of his unselfish and faithful service for six years of continued crisis in the life of the college.

For many months a committee has been carefully searching for a suitable man for the presidency of the college. Careful consideration has been given to every man regarded as possibly available. At the meeting of the Board on May 27, Mr. W. R. Bourne, who has been in charge of the Department of Education at Birmingham-Southern College, at Birmingham, Ala., was elected to the presidency. He has accepted, and is now in Shreveport, taking hold with vision and energy of the task of organizing the faculty and resources for the next session. Mr. Bourne comes to us highly recommended by leading educators of our church, and with varied educational experience and equipment. He is an A. M. of Peabody University, and has taken the B. D. degree at Vanderbilt. He has prepared himself for educational work, with special reference to the institutions of the church. In addition to his work in Birmingham-Southern and other colleges, he served the State of Tennessee for four years as Inspector of High Schools.

There has never been a time when the people of Shreveport were more interested in Centenary, and the local members of the Board of Trustees are generally optimistic about the prospects of the college. Definite plans are being formulated for the enlargement and expansion of the institution, and President Bourne is planning an aggressive campaign for patronage, and a full attendance is confidently expected during the coming session.

W. WINANS DRAKE,
Secretary of the Board of Trustees.

Shreveport, La., June 21, 1919.

STATE EPWORTH LEAGUE ASSEMBLY IN MANSFIELD.

The first Louisana State Epworth League Assembly convened in Mansfield June 10, and lasted seven days. It was a spleudid success from start to finish, from every standpoint, and laid the foundation for large increase throughout the borders of the State.

So pleased were all concerned with the excellent facilities of Mansfield College, the great courtesy and helpfulness of President and Mrs. Bobbitt and their associates, that it was decided to return to said delightful institutlon for their annual convocatlon.

Fifty-seven delegates were registered, and thorough work was done in every department, eight units being given in recognition. Dr. F. S. Parker conducted the class in Old Testament, while Rev. Alonzo Early, whose services were kindly loaned the League by the Sunday School Board of the Conference, led in an inspiring study of the Life of Christ. Dr. Parker held an institute daily, considering the Senior Plans and Problems. He delivered a splendid lecture on "How to Educate a Man or Woman," in which his careful discrimination, lofty ideals and sane methods were set forth. He conducted the Vesper Service Sunday afternoon at beautiful Bellewood, perhaps the most impressive and meaningful moments of the Assembly in the lives of many.

Miss Helen K. Boulware, Superintendent of Junior and Intermediate League activities from the Central Office, charmed every one with her winsome grace and youthful enthusiasm. She conducted daily an institute, outlining the various courses that are so well adapted to the development of the girl and boy. She had a valuable collection of finished work to use in demonstration which made the theories very practical. At other hours she showed her understanding of the need of young life for diversion, conducting out-of-door sports at Bellewood and on the campus, teaching novel in-door games, narrating wonderful storles, or conducting a Biblical drama, "The Song of Solomon." Nothing in recent years has occurred, if in the history of the Louisiana Epworth League gatherings, that has contributed more definitely to the progress and understanding of Junlor and Intermediate methods than the visit of this rare young woman. She entered lnto the life of every delegate and helped them in making thoir decisions for definite service.

The Mansfield League demonstrated the work of the Third Department the opening evening in a soclal hour calculated to acquaint all Leaguers with each other, following a well rendered program.

Dr. S. A. Steel, the first General Secretary, was most attentive and cordial. His lecture on "My Experlences as a Lecturer" was bristling with anecdotes that could be related only by one who had a natlonal acqualntance. By special request, he entertained the Leaguers informally in the lobby with other life stories of engrossing interest.

The afternoons were given to recreatlon. A trip to the large steel foundry, on the invitation of Messrs. Law and Cleary, was most instructive, as every step in the intricate process was explained.

A picnic at Bellewood was a pleasant feature of the program of sports. After the singing of a medley of popular sacred songs led by Rev. J. B. Grambling, the League President, an opportunity was afforded the visltors of hearing a typical "befo' de wah" Negro sing several of the unique melodies of her race.

Rev. N. E. Joyner presented two stereopticon lectures, "Mexico," and the "Missionary Centenary" scenes in many lands. These were valuable to the Misslon Study Class, as they dealt with the identical material being used daily. He gave, also, a lecture on "Africa" and was lmportuned to tell of his wonderful dellverance after thrilling experiences in the penitentiary at Monterey while serving as a mlssionary in that neglected country.

Mrs. R. H. Wynn, of Ruston, was chaperone for the girls and taught the Mission Study Class.

An elegant banquet closed the session, guests from town partlcipating. Thanks were heartily expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Sharp for their "labors of love" in taking care of the Assembly providing ample and delicious meals and making Mansfield "the homiest school on earth," to President and Mrs. Bobbitt for many kind attentions; to Mrs. Eugene Nabors and others who were always ready with automobiles to serve the Leaguers; to the faithful cooks and maids who gave their best service during the hot summer days, and to any others who had contributed to the success of the Assembly. A number of young ladies in attendance who were looking for a school to attend next session lost their hearts to Mansfield and will return for the fall term.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Rev. J. B. Grambling, Shreveport, President; Mr. Edgar Cayard, New Orleans, Vice-President; Miss Iva Hawthorne, Shreveport, Secretary; Miss Grace Cook, Monroe, Treasurer; Miss Monita Goldsby, Amite, Superintendent Juniors and Intermediates; President R. E. Bobbitt, Superintendent Life Work; Rev. W. W. Drake, Dean; Miss Julia Reid, Lake Charles, Era Agent. District Secretaries were appointed as follows: Alexandria—Miss Inez Manchester, Jena; Baton Rouge—Miss Myrtle Pipes, Amite; Lafayette—Miss Mabel Dobbertine, Lake Charles; Monroe—Homer Foster, Gilbert; New Orleans—Miss Robina Vaught, New Orleans; Ruston—Moreland Lewis, Ruston; Shreveport, Miss Edith Pierce, Marthaville.

Rev. C. D. Atkinson was in attendance several days, taking deep interest in all proceedings and delivering a lecture of power and inspiration on "Life's Problems."

There were a number of decisions as to life work, including the ministry, foreign and home mission service, or any other task to which God might call.

Chapters receiving Certificates of Efficiency were Carrollton Avenue, Senior and Junior (the former with 100 per cent); Amite, Lake Charles, Algiers, Felicity, Senior and Junior; Pelican, Parker Memorial, Rayne Memorial, Second (New Orleans), Mary Werlein, First (Baton Rouge), Franklinton, Mansfield, Ringgold. There were several Leagues who failed to fill out the required Standard of Efficiency blank. Next year no League can score full mark without having a Senior or Junior League organized.

Much credit is due Mr. Grambling, the State President, who has by his deep faith and earnest devotion brought about this happy fulfillment of his purpose to extend the influence of the Epworth League, and it is expected that more than double the number will attend next year. Plans are already launched for the building of a large swimming pool on the campus and for a number of very attractive features for next year. It is particularly desired that the pastors come to the Assembly, and to this end suggestion was made that measures be adopted at once to provide a fund for their expenses as well as for those of the delegates. There is no work of more vital importance to our great church than that with the young people in whose hands lies its future.

The Districts pledged $1600 for the "Africa Special."

Mrs. R. H. WYNN.

THE RAINBOW BRIDGE.

By Jas. F. Dorroh.

The praying hearts, the pleading faces,
  Of father's, mother's, sister's care,
Across the ocean's wind-swept spaces
  Have reared a Rainbow Bridge of prayer;
And o'er its bright, prismatic arches
  The love-thoughts hasten in their flight,
To guard the host that westward marches
  From fields where God has crowned the right.

By day, by night the mother's pleading,
  By night, by day, the father's prayer
For far-off loved ones interceding
  Have reared a shining causeway there:
And up to Heaven's gleaming portals,
  Along its rungs of airy light,
The swift-winged thoughts of anxious mortals
  Toward Mercy's altar take their flight.

And Love has heard, and Love has given
  To many all they asked in prayer
And wings that bore the plea to Heaven
  To far-off France the blessing bear.
And now the souls that fain would falter
  Look up, and they are satisfied,
For lo, the lilies on His altar!
  Peace! Peace had come at Eastertide.

. . . . . .

To-day as anxious, earnest faces
  Are turned towards the eastern skies
Across the ocean's wind-swept spaces
  They see the Bow of Promise rise
Oh, eyes of love, oh, spirits yearning,
  Oh, eyes of faith, by tears made dim
Is it a Seraph's pinions burning
  Upon the blue horizon's rim?

Is it Aurora's radiance streaming
  From Heaven's gate that stands ajar?
No, through the mists of morning gleaming
  Bright flames the Flag of Stripe and Star.
It comes; above the waste of water
  That Rainbow pledge whose bearers swore
The seas of blood and fire and slaughter
  Should overwhelm the earth no more.

It comes; the Soul of Freedom flaming
  In light above a ransomed world.
Old Glory comes, its colors shaming
  The sun-kist clouds about it curled.
Lowly the foe who scorned it first
  Now shall the strife and tumult cease;
To Him be glory in the highest,
  Who giveth earth the gifts of peace.

Oh, you who heard the old flag calling
  And promptly answered, "Here am I,"
Who faced the field where friends were falling
  With fearless heart and spirit high,
We prayed the day with ceaseless yearning,
  When that dear Flag again would come
In triumph from the war returning,
  And bring our soldiers safely home.

And angel ministers, attending,
  Have heard and caught the earnest prayer,
And o'er that Rainbow Bridge ascending,
  To God our hearts' petitions bear;
And mother's eyes have lost their sadness,
  And father's face grows bright once more,
To see, thro' mists of joy and gladness,
  The answer, smiling at the door.

Peace, peace to those who sit repining,
  Who weep for those who will not come,
Whose star of God's own gold is shining
  Within the window of the home;
For He, who suffered in the garden,
  On Calvary bore the cruel ban,
Is still the Keeper and the Warden
  Of man who gives himself for man.

Men are convinced more quickly and certainly by what they see than by what they hear. It is not, "Let your lips speak," but "Let your light shine." The living Spirit is not known and heard of all men, but known and read.—Selected.

MILLSAPS COMMENCEMENT.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

When we parted, Tuesday noon, at the close of the final exercises, the Editor said, "Give us a write-up of the commencement," adding, "I'll have a general statement—you give more details." It is probable that the readers of the Advocate will get more from the general statement than from the details, as there was such a continuous sitting of the Board of Trustees as to forbid attendance upon any service in the chapel; consequently we know but little outside of that circle.

The membership of the Board, while not full, was well represented, with Bishop Murrah presiding. The annual report of the president of the college was inspiring and emphasized the continuous growth of the institution, the attendance this session being the largest in the history of the college. While the close of hostilities in Europe made the S. A. T. C. no longer a necessity, and many of the pupils in that department returned to their homes, the attendance was normal as compared with previous years, despite the conditions which grew out of the unsettled state of our country.

Fitting notice was taken by the Board of the death of Professor Burton, who died in France, having resigned his chair in the faculty to respond to the call of his country. The report of Rev. M. M. Black, commissioner for the college, evidenced great energy and corresponding success in collecting funds for the new dormitory, there being in bank sufficient funds to that credit to justify the contracting for the erecting of two wings of the building; this report was hailed with delight by the Board, as there has been no need of the college life which has been so greatly felt. The formal breaking of ground for this building was participated in by the Board of Trustes, Bishop Murrah turning up the first sod, followed by the Board in a body.

The faculty as a whole will be substantially as for the past years, though it became necessary to leave it to the Executive Committee to fill one or two vacancies. While some changes were suggested in the matter of college fees, growing out of the necessities of the Institution to meet the demands of the day, nothing radical in character was enacted. Not recalling, so as to state accurately, I would advise those contemplating sending their boys to Millsaps to read carefully the recommendations concerning physical examinations of young men with reference to athletic work.

No question that came before the Board was more thoroughly discussed than the increase of salaries of the professors, in view of the enormous increase in the expense of living. The question was discussed not only from the standpoint of better living for the professors, but also the necessity of better salaries, if we meet the demands of a first-class Institution. Knowing the oft expressed wish of the founder of the college, Major Millsaps, that no debt should ever be incurred, and after a report from a special committee on the financial state of the college, the Board decided that, without jeopardizing the institution, an inerease of $400 to all of the full professors, including the president of the college, could be made, and such was ordered.

The matter of conferring honorary degrees, which was referred a year ago to a special committee, was reported upon and adopted; not having the text of the recommendations before me I would suggest that those who contemplate seeking for their friends such degrees write the president of the college in ample time for full consideration, as the process is something akin to adopting an amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Medals were awarded as follows: The Founder's Medal for highest average scholarship throughout the four years in college was won by Mr. D. S. Dearman, of New Augusta, Miss. This is equivalent to the first honor of the graduating class. The medal for highest average scholarship for the current year was won by Mr. F. J. Lotterhos, of McComb, Miss. This is known as the Bourgeois Medal, and is open to all members of the college except the seniors. Mr. Lotterhos was a member of the Freshman Class. The Gieger Medal for excellence in Chemistry was won by Miss Ruth Alford, of Pocahontas, Miss. Miss Alford also won the Clark Essay Medal for the best essay of the year. The John C. Carter Medal for best senior oration was won by Mr. H. M. Johnson, of Fondren, Miss. The Buie Medal for excellence in declamation, open to Freshmen and Sophomores, was won by Mr. L. C. Corban, of Fayette, Miss. The Debaters' Medal was won by Mr. F. J. Lotterhos, of McComb.

Memory fails to recall other matters of interest to the general reader, so I close.

MONROE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

This body convened in the prosperous and progressive town of Winnsboro, Monday, June 2, at 8:30 p. m., with a sermon on the "Infernal Regions," by Rev. E. K. Means, which was followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper. A sermon on this subject might have been more appropriate for opening the district conference on the 18th of June, 1918, when the thermometer registered about 105 degfees above zero.

The conference opened for business at 9 a. m., Tuesday, presided over by the presiding elder, Rev. Albert S. Lutz. The attendance of pastors was fine, there being twenty, and only two absent, both of whom are local preachers serving as supplies. It is significant that out of a list of seventeen local preachers in the district, only five attended the district conference. Two of the five who did attend are serving as pastors, one of the three remaining was an applicant for recommendation for admission on trial; another of the five lives in Winnsboro. Another fact is that from the twenty-five charges there was only one charge lay leader. However, there were twenty-three delegates, including seven women, besides the District Lay Leader, Rob't O. Randle, who is also now Conference Lay Leader.

A goodly part of the first day was given to Rev. Alonzo Early for a Sunday school institute, and Brother Early preached a sermon from manuscript (I don't know where he got it) on "The Significance of Jesus Christ." You can tell from the subject that he had to get it somewhere. Those taking part on the program were: Rev. Alonzo Early, Rev. W. H. Hatfield, Mrs. C. W. Scates, Mrs. Harry J. Norris, Rev. I. T. Reames, Rev. A. S. J. Neill and Mrs. M. E. Gilbert. There was a good deal of interest shown in the program and some good may have been done by it.

Mrs. J. C. Calhoun, district secretary of the Woman's Missionary Society, spoke in the interest of the Society's work.

Visiting ministers were: Rev. W. C. Parrish, of the Baltimore Conference, M. E. Church, now District Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for Northeast Louisiana; Revs. N. E. Joyner, Alonzo Early, and, of course, Briscoe Carter. The latter represented the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage in place of Rev. R. W. Vaughan, but he couldn't put the "tears in his voice," as "Bob" can; notwithstanding, he made a good speech. One of the brethren said: "It is the best speech of any kind I have ever heard Briscoe make." Now, Bob, don't worry any more because you didn't get there.

There were sermons, in addition to those mentioned above, by W. R. Harvell and Briscoe Carter. N. E. Joyner was to have preached but he can't preach any more. He took all of his time talking on the Centenary. I seriously fear "Nick" never can preach again, especially if he continues in his present position.

The pastors' reports showed that nearly every charge has raised its quota in the Centenary Drive, and Brother Joyner said some complimentary things to us and promised not to say them in the other districts. The reports also indicate some progress. At Oak Grove they are getting material on the ground for their brick church. They have spent $400 in improvements on the parsonage at Gilbert, and expect to build a brick church this year. Bonita has made some parsonage improvements, while West Monroe has over $40,000 in cash and subscriptions, and were expecting the completed plans for the building any day when the report was made. All the others are plodding along, nearly every one reporting a little progress.

E. T. McKee, of the Gilbert charge, was licensed to preach, and Porter M. Caraway, of the Oak Grove charge, was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The election of delegates to the Annual Conference was an interesting feature. With twenty-five voting, on the first ballot there were forty-one names and five elected. The delegates elected are Rob't O. Randle, W. M. Hunt, C. W. Scates, A. B. Clark, W. T. Hunt, Mrs. J. C. Calhoun, Mrs. M. E. Gilbert and Mrs. L. E. Fleming. Alternates: E. B. Farmer, J. B. Coburn, Rev. M. H. Honeycutt and Mrs. J. W. Summerlin.

The following district Sunday school officers were elected: District Secretary, C. E. Beard, Lake Providence; Elementary Superintondent: Miss Margaret Murphy, West Monroe; Intermediate and Senior, Mrs. J. B. Rawlinson, Gallion; Young People and Adult, Mrs. M. E. Gilbert, Gilbert; Missionary Education, Mrs. Harry J. Norris, Oak Ridge; Teacher-training, Jno. P. Campbell, Oak Grove. Robert O. Randle was re-elected District Lay Leader.

The Licensing Committee, elected on nomination of the presiding elder, are: E. K. Means, J. R. Roy, W. R. Harvell, and A. S. J. Neill.

The next district conference is to be held at West Monroe.

This being the last year of a quadrennium for the presiding elder, Rev. A. S. Lutz, on the district, resolutions of appreciation were unanimously adopted, after a number of preachers and laymen had spoken appreciatively of his valuable services. We sincerely regret to have to lose him.

A. S. J. NEILL, Secretary.

Resolutions of Appreciation.

This being the fourth year of official labors of the Rev. Albert S. Lutz as presiding elder of the Monroe District, and it being understood that, according to the law of our Church, his dutles as such will terminate with the close of the present Conference year, and

Whereas, the Rev. A. S. Lutz has, without measure, put his life into the important work of supervising the affairs of the district, and has, at all times, proved himself to be a safe leader, a wise counsellor, and a worthy example of the ideal Christian life, and,

Whereas, the Monroe District, during the time of his incumbency as presiding elder, has had unprecedented success, due largely to his zeal, fidelity, and recognized qualities of leadership; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the preachers and lay delegates of this district conference do hereby express our hearty appreciation of the valued services of Brother Lutz, and extend to him our grateful thanks for the high degree of efficiency and deep consecration, which have characterized his administration.

Resolved, further, That we shall regret his removal from the district, and will greatly miss his presence among us, and assuro him of our lasting devotion and brotherly love.

Resolved, further, That we shall be pleased to know that our esteemed co-laborer in our Master's cause shall have the kindly consideration of the appointing powers of our Church as to his future field of labor, and that we will, with prayers and best wishes, note with pleasure his success in the years to come.

Signed: C. W. Scates, W. M. Hunt, J. M. Alford, S. D. Howard, O. L. Tucker, J. D. Nesom, A. D. George, W. R. Harvell.

THE BOY THAT LAUGHS.

I know a funny little boy—
The happiest ever born;
His face is like a beam of joy,
Although his clothes are torn.

I saw him tumble on his nose,
And waited for a groan—
But how he laughed! Do you suppose
He struck his funny bone?

There's sunshine in each word he speaks,
His laugh is something grand;
Its ripples overrun his cheeks,
Like waves on snowy sand.

He laughs the moment he awakes,
And till the day is done;
The schoolroom for a joke he takes;
His lessons are but fun.

No matter how the day may go,
You cannot make him cry;
He's worth a dozen boys I know
Who pout and mope and sigh.

WHY BRER POSSUM'S TAIL IS NAKED.

Ole Brer Possum uster be de bes' lookin' feller in all er Gum Holler. No, sir, he ain't uster be ugly an' droopy at de mouf jack he is now. No, sir, an' he hole up his haid an' look de worl' in de face jack er own all er Gum Holler. An' his tail—you jus orter see it. It had long gray hairs es fine es silk. An' he kep' it brushed twell it jes' shined. He don't wear nuthin' but new close an' he keep de bes' comp'ny.

Now, de purties' gal in Gum Holler wuz Ole Brer Bear's gal, Miss Betty. Her hair so black twell it jes' shined. An' her eyes sparkled like de stars. She could jes' beat all de yudder gals er daincin'. An' she could play de peanner twell de stars go to bed in de mornin'. She jes' look sweet ernuff ter eat to all de fellers in dat country. But dey ain't nobody got no chance at her but Brer Possum an' Mister Coon.

Mister Coon was a mighty fine lookin' feller hissef, but he ain't nigh up wid Brer Possum. 'Cause his tail got rings eroun' it an' Brer Possum's wus gray. 'Sides he don' take es good kere uv hissef es Brer Possum do.

Now, Brer Possum an' Mister Coon have done lose dey heads over Miss Betty, but Brer Possum way in de lead. Mister Coon try every way he can jes' ter get in a word edgways, but it don't do no good. Brer Possum is a settin' right up by Miss Betty's side ever time he come.

It ain't long fore Ole Brer Bear make he nounc'ment dat Miss Betty an' Brer Possum gwine ter git married. When Mister Coon hear about it he jack ter faint, he did. He drap his jaw an' drag his tail in de dirt all de way home. On de way home he met Brer Rabbit.

Brer Rabbit say, "Mister Coon, what got de matter wid you? You look jack you done lost yo' mammy."

Mister Coon say it's worsen dat if anything. Den he tell him 'bout Ole Brer Bear's 'nouncement. He say he love Miss Betty ter death hissef, but it don't do no good.

Brer Rabbit scratch his haid an' say, "Mister Coon, don' you know its Brer Possum's tail what makes him de bes' lookin?"

Mister Coon say he know it but how kin he hep it, Kin he move de rings fum eroun' his tail?

Brer Rabbit say, "Mister Coon, you jes' ain't got no san' in yo' craw er tall. Now, ef I had yo' chanch at Miss Betty, would I let dat saphead Brer Possum cut me out? Well not much, I wouldn't."

Mister Coon say he'll do anything ter git Miss Betty, but he don' know nuthin' ter do. Brer Rabbit say he er good er-min' not ter hep 'im, but jes' fer pity sake he will.

Now, when Brer Possum go ter see Miss Betty he hafter paiss right by Brer Rabbit's house. De nex night when he paiss Brer Rabbit's he see Brer Rabbit an' Mister Coon out in de front yard. Brer Rabbit got a bottle er ile in one han' an' a brush in de udder. He pour some ile on Mister Coon's hair an' den brush it twell it jes' shine. Brer Possum stop an' ax 'em what dey doin'. Brer Rabbit say he ilin' Mister Coon's hair. He tell 'im de ile make de hair grow long an' look silky.

Brer Possum say, "How much you charge fur one shine?"

Brer Rabbit say two dollars. Brer Possum say he ain't got dat much. He ain't got but fo' bits. Brer Rabbit say he'll shine his tail fur dat much. Soon Brer Possum got his tail shined an' at Miss Betty's house.

He ain't dare long fore Brer Rabbit an' Mister Coon come, too. Miss Betty ax 'em in de parlor an' give 'em a seat. Den Brer Rabbit ax Miss Betty ter play de peanner an' let Brer Possum dance.

Now, Brer Possum mighty proud er his daincin'. Dey ain't nobody but Miss Betty an' Ole Brer Bear dat can beat 'im. When Miss Betty start de peanner Brer Possum throw his haid back an' cut de pigeon wing.

Brer Rabbit say he clair ter goodness he ain't never seen no daincin' like dat. Mister Coon say Brer Possum kin jes' nachly beat anybody er daincin' what he ever saw. Brer Possum so pleased he smile plum behin' his years.

Tereckly Brer Rabbit say, "Brer Possum, git eroun' in front er de fire so we kin see you better." Brer Possum side step eroun' in front er de fire, all de time er keepin' time wid de music. He ain't noticin' nuthin' but Miss Betty.

Tereckly de ile on his tail ketch a fire an' fore you kin bat yo' eye it done burnt all de hair off an' blister de hide clean up ter de seat er his pants.

Brer Possum stop dancing' right now. He so ershamed er his tail he try ter set down on it, but dat hurt him so he hafter hang it off behind er cheer. Den dat look so scan'lous bad he jus' ax Miss Betty ter 'scuse him an' go home.

Brer Possum want ter go back an' see Miss Betty, but he too ershamed er his tail. It ain't long twell he hear dat Mister Coon and Miss Betty gwinter git married. It jes' clean break his heart. He gets droopy at de mouf an' he ain't brush his hair no more. He jes' clean thow hissef away.

An' dat's de reason Mister Coon kin ter de Bear fambly. He marry inter de fambly.

"But that was mean in Brer Rabbit to treat Brer Possum that way," said little Bessie.

Yes, honey, but it wuz all fur de bes'. It never would do fur Brer Possum ter be kin to de Bear fambly. 'Sides he orter know better'n ter fool wid hair medisun.—Uncle Mose, in Alabama Christian Advocate.

THE STORY OF JUMBO.

The elephant was too heavy for Eleanor to play with, so her mother put it upon the wide window-sill in the nursery between two potted red geraniums.

Earle, Eleanor's little next-door neighbor, seeing the pretty plaything in the window, squeezed through a hole in the fence where some pickets were missing and hurried over to Eleanor's house.

"I have come to see the elephant," he said as Eleanor opened the door. "Whose is it?"

"My very own," answered Eleanor. "Uncle Paul brought it to me from Africa."

"Did your Uncle Paul see real live elephants?" asked Earle.

"Oh, yes," said Eleanor, "and he told me a funny story about one of them. It's a true story, 'cause Uncle Paul saw it himself."

"What was it?" asked Earle.

"One day," began Eleanor, "a new keeper came to take care of the pet elephant that belonged to the man where Uncle Paul was visiting. This keeper wasn't a nice man at all, because he began to tease Jumbo (that was the elephant's name) right away by pricking him with a pointed stick. Jumbo stood it for a long, long time, then he picked that bad man up with his trunk and ran straight down to the river with him."

"Did he throw him in?" asked Earle, excitedly.

"No, he didn't throw him in, he just ducked him up and down in the water a few times, then he put him back on the ground all trembling."

"Wasn't he a smart elephant!" exclaimed Earle.

"I think so," said Eleanor.

"P'r'aps," said Earle, "he was saying to himself while he was ducking the man, 'There now, if you don't behave yourself and treat me like a gentleman, I'll give you a worse one next time.'"

"P'r'aps he was," agreed Eleanor.

"Say, Eleanor," went on Earle, "the next time your Uncle Paul goes to Africa, ask him to bring you a live elephant. You could keep him in the garage."

How Eleanor laughed! "I'd rather have my little ivory Jumbo than a big live Jumbo," she said. —The Child's Hour.

A CHURCH-WIDE REVIVAL.

No subject is attracting more attention now, among both preachers and laymen, than that of a church-wide revival. The Centenary campaign has, necessarily, laid great emphasis upon the material resources of the church and the obligation resting upon us to meet the material needs of our work as it faces new conditions which demand enlargement and expansion. The spiritual element in our activities was not overlooked during the campaign, of course, but the financial goal of $35,000,000 had to be kept steadily in view for the successful carrying out of our plans. But now that the goal has been reached, there is a widespread feeling that the very next step in our plans ought to be a revival that will touch the hearts of our people as the Centenary touched their pocketbooks.

What Do We Mean By a Revival?

In the beginning of any effort looking to the bringing about of such a desirable end, we ought to have definitely in mind what is meant by a revival. We certainly do not mean merely a mechanical movement by means of which a great many names may be added to our church rolls. It is altogether possible, by careful organization and the application of certain well known psychological principles, to enlist the interest of a great many people in a way that will result in their making application for church membership. For example, there are certain social and business advantges to be derived from belonging to the church that appeal very strongly to certain classes of people if they are skillfully presented. We venture to say that in every community a well organized committee, by using modern business methods, could bring a considerable number of outsiders into the church. Such accomplishment might be desirable from some points of view; but it would not be a revival.

By a revival, we do not mean merely an emotional upheaval in the community. We do not question the validity of the emotional appeal in urging people to accept Christ; and we do not discount the value of religious work because it is accompanied by more or less emotional excitement. But a practical psychologist can so play upon certain emotional instincts as to produce remarkable results in the space of only a few days, and the impression may go out that a lasting work has been done, when, as a matter of fact, the results disappear with the excitement that produced them. The emotions must be aroused; but an emotional outburst is not a revival.

By a revival, we do not mean merely the holding of a series of meetings each day in the week, at which appeals are made for consecration of the life to high purposes, and altruistic ideals are held up as the end of individual endeavor. Such meetings may help to maintain a fine moral sentiment in a community; but they do not constitute a revival.

By a revival, we mean a work of grace in the hearts of church members and non-church members which brings them face to face with the eternal verities and makes them realize afresh that every properly lived life must be brought into accord with the laws of God; that makes them realize that sin persisted in inevitably results in eternal damnation; that makes them realize that God's love for man is ceaselessly operative in the universe, and that it has left nothing undone to bring about man's salvation; that makes them realize that the only way to escape damnation is to repent of past sins, and, by faith in Christ, to receive the power that will enable them to abstain from sin in the future; that arouses their emotions, convinces their intellects, and enlists their wills in the determination to comply with the requirements of the gospel and to live godly lives in this present world. Such a work of grace goes to the very bottom of our natures. It brings us under conviction and delivers us from our bondage. It stirs our wills, and refreshes our souls with the bread of heaven. It cheers and brightens and blesses us as we struggle onward and upward toward our heavenly home. It makes us happy ourselves, and gives us an abiding interest in the welfare and happiness of all other men. A true revival does all these things and more. It makes religion a reality and sets up heaven in the heart.

Do We Need a Revival?

There may be some who hold that the world is progressively growing better, and that the success of the Centenary movement is, of itself, sufficient proof that our church is in no special need of a revival. But such opinion is based upon a superficial view of conditions as they exist to-day. We do believe that the world to-day is a better world than it has ever been before; but it will not remain so unless we bring anew into its life the propulsive power of the gospel of Christ. It must go either forward or backward; and it will go backward unless some power gets hold of it that is stronger than the tendencies of unregenerated human nature. A recent writer has said that there are probably fifty million unsaved adult men and women in the United States alone. This estimate must have been based upon the figures of church membership—and we know that church membership does not mean salvation. If the world ever needed anything, it needs a revival.

Do We Desire a Revival?

We need a revival; but do we desire one? This is the crucial question in this hour of the world's need. If we really desire a revival, we will have one; if we do not desire it, there is no power on earth that can produce it. We are masters of our wills, and God himself is not going to save us whether or no. A revival costs something. No individual, no church, can say, "Go to, now—we shall have a revival," and forthwith behold the thing accomplished. It is an easy matter to pass resolutions and form committees and fix dates; but to pray without ceasing and to labor day and night and to search the deepest recesses of our own hearts are not so easy. If we really desire a revival, we shall have to pay the price of one—and it will not be light.

A Call To The Ministry.

No other challenge has ever come so peremptorily to the ministry as falls upon our ears today. "Like priest, like people," is a bitter indictment of our preachers, or a glorious commendation of their faithfulness. We are, by appointment, in places of leadership, and our people are ready to follow us if we show ourselves worthy of their trust. We have had many things to keep us busy—some of them merely a serving of the tables, too—but now the call is for us to give ourselves unreservedly to the work of bringing to pass, with the help of God, a great revival of religion. We must do it—or fail of our mission.

GO TO COLUMBUS.

The following telegram was received by the Advocate on Monday of this week:

"We have attended all great expositions in the United States since 1876. We have never seen one combining entertainment, instruction, and inspiration more successfully than our own Joint Methodist Centenary Celebration, which began here in Columbus, Ohio, on Friday, the 20th.

"This Exposition far surpasses our most sanguine expectations. We are exceedingly desirous that all our people shall realize the greatness of their opportunity to see these accurate, vivid life-representations of conditions in every country, and the self-sacrificing service which is being rendered by the missionaries to brighten the dark places of the world. The Exposition gives the very information which all our people need, and which will certainly delight and inspire those who attend.

"The daily program rendered in the great auditorium and in the buildings set apart for the exhibit of the different nations includes addresses by great leaders, music by great soloists, quartettes, a splendidly trained choir accompanied by the great organ and large orchestra, and spectacular features showing customs of the native people in our mission fields.

"May we not urge all our preachers and people to join to make this the greatest and most helpful Christian exposition the world has yet known?

"Methodism has shown her courage and faith by calling for the greatest offering ever made by any Christian denomination, and the 'people called Methodists' have made a glorious response to the call. Now the directors, with extraordinary constructive ability, have developed this remarkable exposition, and we are so impressed by its value that we want our people to participate fully in this pleasure and profit which will come to all who attend. Come to Columbus; the Exposition closes July 13.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, our pastor at Lake Charles, La., recently assisted Rev. C. E. Fike in a splendid meeting at Rayne, La.

The Fernwood charge, of the Mississippi Conference, raised $20,169 on a Centenary allotment of $15,000. Rev. A. M. Broadfoot is pastor.

Rev. J. D. Nesom, of Oak Grove, La., reports the organization of a new church at Kilbourne and the enrollment of 51 in the Sunday school.

Rev. R. I. Collins, of Shannon, Miss., pays high tribute to the laymen of his charge, who made the raising of the Centenary quota an easy thing.

"These good people are sending the parsonage family to Columbus, Ohio," writes Rev. C. E. Fike, of Rayne, La. Good for both people and family!

Dr. D. C. Hull spent Sunday, June 15, with Rev. B. H. Williams at Florence, Miss., and delivered two fine addresses, to the great pleasure and profit of the people.

Rev. T. J. Holladay, of Plain Dealing, La., preached the commencement sermon for the school at Spring Hill, La., on June 15. He is busy with his work and happy in it.

Mrs. C. C. Anderson, of Natchez, Miss., though 83 years of age, and afflicted, is happy in her religious life. We appreciate very greatly her kind words concerning the Advocate.

Rev. C. T. Floyd, of Byhalia, Miss., reports that his charge is in good shape, and that satisfactory progress is being made in the work of the church. He praises highly the good people whom he serves.

Dr. R. H. Wynn, our pastor at Ruston, La., passed through the city on Tuesday of this week en route to the Seashore Divinity School, at Biloxi, Miss. He made the Advocate office a greatly appreciated call.

Rev. L. N. Hoffpauir, of Zachary, La., and Rev.

J. W. Booth, of Keener Memorial, Baton Rouge, La., have been given trips to the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, by their appreciative congregations.

Rev. Briscoe Carter, the presiding elder of the Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference, honored the Advocate office with a call on Saturday of last week. He preached at Parker Memorial Church on Sunday evening.

Rev. Jasper L. Smith, our pastor at Mendenhall, Miss., is attending the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, through the kindness of the splendid people to whom he ministers. He left for Columbus last Friday.

Rev. A. H. Williams, well known in the North Mississippi Conference, but now serving the church at Coaling, Ala., writes that the outlook is encouraging on his charge. Of course he went "over the top" in the Centenary drive.

Rev. A. L. Davenport is in his fourth year as pastor of the Corinth circuit, North Mississippi Conference, and, according to his report, this is the best year of the four. Everything will be reported in full at the Annual Conference.

Brother James Hand, of Purvis, Miss., in renewing his own subscription, made a generous contribution to the fund by means of which the Advocate is sent to some devout people who, otherwise, would be unable to receive it.

Rev. H. W. May, the popular presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, was a pleasant caller at the Advocate office on Thursday of last week. He was passing through the city on his way to Columbus, Ohio, to attend the Centenary Celebration.

Rev. P. H. Fontaine, our pastor at Eunice, La., called at the Advocate office on Monday of this week. He was on his way to the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, where he was going through the courtesy of the good people of his charge.

We regret to learn that the home of Rev. J. A. McCormack, our pastor at Merryville, La., has been bereaved by the death of his twelve-year-old daughter. She had been an invalid for a long time. The Advocate extends sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

The Courtland charge, of the North Mississippi Conference, exceeded its Centenary quota by more than fifty per cent. One or two churches on the charge raised almost 200 per cent. Rev. W. D. Bennett, the pastor, is now planning for some great revival meetings in the near future.

Rev. W. W. Lantrip, of Eros, La., has just closed a successful meeting at that place. The attendance at the services was large and the interest in the meeting was good. There were 17 additions to the church, and two infants were baptized. Rev. W. M. Lantrip, of Nashville, Tenn., did the preaching.

The new Central Church building, at Meridian, Miss., is practically completed. It has been erected at a cost of $85,000. We doubt if there is a church in the State that excels it in beauty, or in adaptation to the needs of the congregation. It is a source of pride to the entire community. Rev. H. B. Watkins is the pastor.

Rev. Robt. W. Vaughan, Superintendent of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, located at Ruston, La., has recently returned from a trip through the North and East, where he went to secure ideas to be embodied in the plans for the new buildings to be erected for the Orphanage at Ruston. He was accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Henry.

Chaplain A. F. Vaughan, who recently returned from France, will aid in the campaign to raise $250,000 for the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage until the meeting of the Annual Conference next fall. Our information is to the effect that $75,000 of the amount is already in sight. Chaplain Vaughan expects his discharge from the Government within ten days.

Rev. C. A. Schultz, our pastor at Gallman, Miss., is in New Orleans in attendance upon the Home Service Institute of the American Red Cross. Brother Schultz has been appointed Home Service Chairman for Copiah County, the responsible duties of which appointment he will discharge along with his pastorate. The Red Cross was anxious to have him give his full time to the work, but he preferred to remain in charge of his church work.

The good ladies of that delightful little Delta city, Benoit, Miss., presented Mrs. W. V. Shearer, the wife of the pastor, with a purse, recently, of sufficient amount to enable her to visit the Centenary Celebration in company with Brother Shearer. The gift was accompanied by some verses that were expressive of sincere appreciation and affection. We hope that many preachers' wives will have the privilege of visiting this great exposition of missionary work throughout the world.

Rev. A. J. Boyles of the Rocky Springs charge, Mississippi Conference, is giving full proof of his ministry. He has seven regular preaching places now, and another one is in prospect. He has ten Sunday schools on his charge. His presiding elder, Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, preached some fine sermons on the occasion of his recent quarterly conference, held at Rocky Springs. The financial reports for the quarter were good. Brother Boyles has placed the Advocate in about sixty homes this year, and he is kind enough to say that the paper is helping his work.

Rev. F. J. McCoy, our pastor at Houma, La., which is the center of our French mission work in Louisiana, was in New Orleans last week, and honored the Advocate office with a call. He was enthusiastic over the prospects for the early building of a greatly needed new church at Houma. A building committee has been appointed, and plans are being prepared for a thoroughly modern structure. The General Board of Church Extension will assist by a loan of $5000 and a donation of an equal amount; the congregation has subscribed liberally to the building fund, and it is hoped that other friends of the French Mission work throughout the State will help with generous gifts.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate states that Judge Joseph E. Cockrell, of Dallas, has been elected chairman of the Board of Trustees of Southern Methodist University, in place of Bishop E. D. Mouzon, resigned.

Dr. Marvin T. Haw, presiding elder of the Charleston District, has been made presiding elder of the St. Louis District, to succeed Dr. C. W. Tadlock, who has been appointed pastor of Centenary, the great downtown church of St. Louis.

We have seen the announcement that Bishop John M. Moore will sail for Brazil on July 20.

Southern Methodist University conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. W. A. Smart, of the Candler School of Theology of Emory University, at its recent commencement.

Meridian College, at its recent commencement, conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. R. S. Stewart, one of our missionaries to Japan, who did very effective work in Louisiana and Mississippi during the Centenary campaign.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate and the North Carolina Christian Advocate have been consolidated under the name of the North Carolina Christian Advocate. Greensboro, N. C., is the place of publication. Dr. L. S. Massey is the editor, and Dr. H. M. Blair is associate editor and general manager. The first issue under the new arrangement was that of June 19—a splendid promise of what we may expect later.

According to the latest figures we have seen, the Methodist Episcopal Church has raised $109,086,208 in its Centenary campaign.

Mr. B. H. Branscomb, a son of the editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate, a graduate of Oxford University, England, has accepted the chair of Philosophy in Southern Methodist University. He will spend the summer at Columbia University, doing work in his chosen field.

The American Bible Society turned out more than 6,000,000 volumes during 1918, a record-breaking number. The Society, which has just celebrated its one hundred and third anniversary, has published more than 134,000,000 volumes of the Scriptures in 150 languages.

Dr. C. W. Tadlock, pastor of Centenary Church, St. Louis, has been appointed by the College of Bishops as fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which meets in Des Moines, Iowa, next May.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., has announced that his address until September 1 will be Lake Junaluska, N. C.

THE CHRISTIAN CHILD.

You will say often with fear and apprehension, "I am only a child, and cannot do much." You are apt to compare yourselves with some bright and shining grown-up Christians, and say, "I wish I were like them." But if you have Christ's life in you, you will grow more and more to that likeness, and your very failures will have in them the seeds of success, if you use them as you should. I saw one day two large snow-white swans sailing on a pond. They were accompanied by their young ones, whose plumage was of quite a different color, namely, a dingy brown. I thought of Hans Christian Andersen's beautiful story of the ugly duckling, which was in reality one of those cygnets, or young swans. The young swans, you know, have feathers of a different color from those of grown-up swans. But they are swans still; and as they become older they grow more like their parents, and assume pure white plumage. And there is a kind of swan called the Polish swan, whose young plumage is white, the same as the adult plumage. And so; though the religion of children may differ in some respects from that of grown-up persons, it is the same in kind. And children pass through several stages before they take their final hue and form; although some, like the Polish swan, are pure and white from their very childhood. But all Christ's children shall grow into the family likeness, and become fairer as they mature in the Christian life, more like Christ, and more like one another.—Hugh MacMillan.

An easy victory brings no strength to the soul. It is the effort which tries every nerve that reacts in new power.—Selected.

Mrs. ELIZABETH GIBBS SMITH, wife of Dr. J. Mell Smlth, was born on January 28, 1846, and departed this life on March 16, 1919. She was the daughter of Capt. J. G. and Mary T. Gibbs, of Grenada, Miss. She was married to Dr. J. Mell Smlth, of Coffeeville, Miss., on April 27, 1871; and to this happy union were born five sons and two daughters, all of whom, with their father, Dr. J. Mell Smith, are living. Sister Smith joined the Methodist Church, South, in the blush and bloom of glrlhood; and lived a gentle, refined, loving, consecrated Christian, wife, mother. She loved her church wlth a devotion that was beautiful. She was happy in her Master's service, filling her home with joy and gladness, leading her children in the path of life, and helping her devoted husband to bear life's responsibilities. She never forgot her neighbors. They were her companions and frlends; she had nothing too good to share with them. The home, church and community wlll mlss her. She has gone to make her home with God. To the dear husband and children, may we say, you know where to meet her. May God bless your hearts.

ROBERT PINKNEY HOUSTON, son of A. P. and E. B. Houston, was born in Panola County, Miss., on August 7, 1854. He was married on June 28, 1882, to Miss Maggie E. Hendrix. To them was born one child, Robert Hugh Houston. Mrs. Maggie Houston died on July 15, 1888. On June 7, 1893, he married Miss Willie Patton Brahan. To this union was born one son, Rivers Brahan Houston. Mr. Houston dled at his home, in Batesville, Miss., on October 24, 1918. He is survlved by his wife and two sons. He joined the Methodist Church in early childhood; and, whether as Sunday school superintendent or as Church steward, he labored for the interests of his Church with unwavering fidellty. He fixed hls falth on Christ. He talked often of Christianlty as giving a meaning and purpose to life. He was clear in his convictions, yet he was not intolerant; he was attached to his Church, yet his loyalty was not the loyalty of blindness; he was cognizant of the terrible effects of evil in the world about him, yet he kept untarnlshed hls faith in the ultimate triumph of Christianity. Robert Houston did his work so quietly and so faithfully that only death could bring to his fellow-workers a full realization of the fact that there had lived among them a remarkable man, a representative of the best type of chivalrous Christian manhood.

R. N. PRICE, JR.

ROY MAURICE HALL, a son of Brother and Slster P. H. Hall, of Florence, Miss., was born on December 19, 1891. At the age of seven years he joined the Church and gave his heart to God. Roy grew up in Florence and nearby vicinity and attended the High School at that place. It was here that he made many friends and was loved by those with whom he associated. On September 22, 1918, he volunteered his services to his country, which he loved so well. He had not been in the navy very long when the Armistice was signed. But since he was in the service, he concluded that it would be an education to him to visit the war-ruined countries of Europe. He had not been in France long when the order came to return to the States. He had not been traveling long when he had to stop off at Eastleigh, England, to fight the tragic disease of pneumonla, which made lnroads upon his vitality. On April 7, 1919, the Death Angel came and bore his spirit away. It was a sad day in Florence when the message came that Roy was dead. The family was for many days in suspense awaiting the arrival of his body. The corpse came Monday afternoon, May 19, and was buried from the Methodist Church, Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock, the writer officlating. Roy leaves three brothers and four sisters, a father and mother, to mourn his death. Earl is still in the service. May God bless him while away from home. God bless the sad family.

B. H. WILLIAMS, P. C.
Florence, Miss., June 16, 1919.

On the morning of the 8th inst., the Death Angel called for the spirit of Prof. C. C. DOTY. Prof. Doty was a young man of 27 years, with a promise of a most wonderful future for doing good. He was born and reared at Lexington, Miss., educated at the A. & M. College, and entered upon his life's work as a teacher. When I moved to Lambert, in December of 1918, I met him, as principal of the Lambert High School, and as superintendent of the Sunday school in the Methodist Church. He had tact, was gifted in executive ability, and had that splendid gift of imparting to others, whlch fitted him for his place at the head of the school, and made him a most splendid leader for the Sunday school. His interest ln his church and the growth of the Sunday school, and ln splritual development, won for him the love of the church and of his pastor. As a citizen, he stood for right, equity, and justice, in all moral questlons.

The Methodist Church of Lambert, the Lambert High School, and the town and community have suffered a great loss in his death. His body was interred in the cemetery at Lexington, Miss., on Monday, the 9th inst., and as a token of friendship and love, hls grave was well covered with beautlful flowers. Rev. W. D. Wendel, pastor of the Methodist Church of Lexington, held the funeral services. Brother Doty leaves a young wife, many loved ones and devoted friends to mourn their loss; but we weep not as those who have no hope, but rather look to the meeting again in heavenly realms.

His pastor, H. N. McKIBBEN.
Lambert, Miss., June 11, 1919.

MARY JAMES LeSASSIER was born on November 5, 1885. She joined the M. E. Church, South, at Bethel when ten years of age and married Mr. Louis LeSassier of Weyanoke, La., on April 22, 1908. She died on April 15, 1919, leaving a husband, five chlldren, a loving mother, four sisters, three brothers, and a good many relatives to mourn her departure. In her death the church sustains a great loss, the community loses a rare character, the husband mourns a congenial companion and the dear little children are bereft of a patient and loving mother, which to them is an irreparable loss. Her precious father, a loyal Methodist who was the life and soul of Bethel Church, preceded her to the Mansions of Glory several years ago, and left his sweet-spirited wife, Mrs. L. D. James, to care for the children and rear them religiously. The writer committed her body to the grave ln Evergreen Cemetery, Woodvllle, Miss., in the presence of a goodly number of her loving friends and relatives, who showed their appreciation of her good life by literally coverlng the mound with floral wreaths. May our Heavenly Father comfort all the bereaved ones that survive her, and help them to meet their daughter, sister, wife and loving mother on the shining shores of the Heavenly Canaan, where parting shall be no more, death having lost its sting and the grave being swallowed up in victory.

Freckles

The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effectivo way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.

Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap, as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

Weekly Health Talks

A WORD ABOUT THE KIDNEYS

BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anuric Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anuric Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.

A Treat for the Skin

Freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema, all can be easily and delightfully vanished with the use of Palmer's Skin Success Ointment. Used for over 80 years. Rev. A. E. Ballard, D. D., President Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, Ocean Grove, N. J., writes: "Your Skin Success Ointment completely cured me of an irritative itching eczema and I cheerfully recommend it to all who may be similarly afflicted." It is not only delightfully antiseptic and cleansing, soothing and softening to the skin, but also immediately effective in bleaching the complexion and in vanishing blackheads, freckles and all skin eruptions. Ask your druggist or send for free sample to The Morgan Drug Co., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Ambition

TIRED MEN and WOMEN who "feel old before their time," who are languid, have no energy and lack ambition—these are often sufferers from kidney trouble.

Weak, overworked or diseased kidneys are indicated by ambitionless, always tired, nervous condition, by sallowness of skin and puffiness under eyes, backache, stiff joints, sore muscles, or rheumatic pains.

get right at the cause of suffering and misery, regulate the kidneys and bladder and restore to sound and healthy condition.

N. R. Reese, Dublin, Ga., writes: "I want to say I am better. Before I started to take Foley Kidney Pills I could not turn over in the bed I had such severe pain in my back and hips. I was so stiff I could not bend over and I had to get up at night five to six times. By taking Foley Kidney Pills I am up and able to go to work."

Economy and Extra Value in Motor Cars

ECONOMY and LUXURY meet in the BOUR-DAVIS MOTOR CAR.

We invite your closest scrutiny and comparison to the claims we make for the BOUR-DAVIS.

Light in weight, constructed with a view to strength and endurance, it is priced within the average man's pocketbook.

The BOUR-DAVIS is as easy to operate as to buy. The streamline body is a masterpiece of the body builders' art, and is mounted on an amply powered, thoroughly reliable, standard six-cylinder chassis.

The BOUR-DAVIS motor car commands the admiration of the critical car enthusiast everywhere. The luxurious appointments and distinctive appearance single out the BOUR-DAVIS as an EXCEPTIONAL motor car at the price at which it is sold.

In every section of the country, and under every road test, and under all conceivable weather conditions the BOUR-DAVIS has proved every claim that has ever been made for it and has delighted the owner.

Examine this car at your dealer's, or write for catalogue, and know more about the BOUR-DAVIS before you buy any motor car.

Now Is a Good Time To Drive Out Catarrh

The Trouble Is In the Blood.

Summer catarrh, with its nauseous discharge, stuffed up glands, difficult breathing, and summer colds, is bad enough, but the worst of it is yet to come if you neglect to check the growth that is forming to attack you with ten-fold greater power during the winter.

That's why it is so important to treat catarrhs and other blood disorders with S. S. S. during warm weather, and thus free the system from all impurities.

It is now an established fact that catarrh is in the blood and that lotions and salves do not give relief. The experience of others has proven that S. S. S. strikes at the very root of the trouble and eliminates it. Waste no time in this matter, for it is of the utmost importance. Write to our Medical Advisor about your case. Obituaries

When, on March 14, 1919, Mrs. M. B. WRIGHT closed her eyes in death at the home of her son, Dr. Edwin Wright, in Sardis, Miss., the Methodist Church in this city lost one of its brightest adornments, and there was deep sorrow throughout the community. She was the widow of the late Dr. John Wright, who many years ago moved to Sardis from the Davis Chapel neighborhood (in Panola County), and who was long one of the most loved physicians of this section, and a loyal and active member of the M. E. Church, South. Her father, Mr. Ben Burry Walton, who also was a prominent Methodist, came to Mississippi from Lagrange, Tenn., where the deceased was born in 1838.

Sister Wright united with the Methodist Church, South, at twelve years of age, and continned to be an exemplary member of it until she was called to the heavenly home. For a long time she served as organist, and it was her delight to work for the Master among the young people. She maintained for a number of years a society known as "The Little Workers," many members of which, now grown up, are living consistent and useful lives, acknowledging their indebtedness to her for the religious influence that she exerted upon them. She was a woman of deep piety and consecration, having been soundly converted and possessing the sweet consciousness that she had been saved through faith in Christ. As a wife and mother, she measured up to the highest standard. She had the spirit of the Master, and her winsome gentleness attested that she lived in communion with him. Her more than fourscore years found her rich in Christian fruitage and ripe and ready for promotion to the Church Trinmphant. Her illness was brief, and her death was peaceful and victorious. After a fitting tribute by her faithful pastor, Rev. E. G. Mohler, and a few words by the writer, her body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Sardis, amid a large concourse of relatives and friends. The entire inside of the grave was wreathed with flowers, and the heaped-up mound was hidden from view by the beautiful floral offerings, which seemed to speak of immortality.

The deceased is survived by one son (two children preceded her to the eternal world), Dr. Edwin Wright, one of the foremost physicians of North Mississippi, and a beloved sister, Mrs. D. G. Pepper of Sardis, who has long been pressing up the shining way to the Golden City. May the Heavenly Father comfort these bereaved ones, and may their lives be such that they can look confidently forward to a glorious reunion with the departed, where death and heartaches are unknown! R. A. MEEK.

Mrs. JOE F. HARVEY, nee Clara Mercier, was born near Beauregard, Miss., May 5, 1886, and died on Jan. 16, 1919. She was happily married to Mr. Joe Harvey of Amona, Texas, where she was living when the angel of death came. The writer was her pastor for three years at Beauregard, Miss., and many were the happy hours spent in her father's home, where she was the favorite, if such could have existed in that Christian home. She was possessed of a most refined nature, had cultured it with the noblest acquirements, was kind and gentle. She had learned the secret of Isaiah's admonition, that "in quietness and confidence shall be thy strength."

Clara united with the M. E. Church, South, while young, and her devotion to it was unmeasured. Her father's home was one of the John Wesley type, so no surprise at her consecrated life. No family ever had a truer or more devoted father and mother, who, by precept and example, led the way to the highest excellency of the Christian life, and who are now in the glory land with her, waiting for the others of the family to come. She had a most lovely disposition, always greeting her friends, which were many, with a smile; and she was always ready to lend a helping hand to the needy. She leaves a husband, a baby girl of three years, and six brothers and two sisters to mourn their great loss: Mr. W. B. Mercier, of Washington, D. C.; R. M. Mercier, of McComb City, Miss.; L. T., L. L. and C. L. Mercier, of Beauregard, Miss.; Dewitt Mercier, of Culliman, Ala.; Mrs. M. C. Stewart, of Georgetown, Miss.; Mrs. W. H. Cato, of Hazlehurst, Miss. May the grace of God comfort each one in this great sorrow, is the prayer of their former pastor.

"One less at home!
The charmed circle broken;
A dear face missed day by day from its accustomed place;
Bnt cleansed and saved and perfected by grace—
One more in heaven!"

FROM BERNICE, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: We have just closed our special revival services here. Rev. F. M. Freeman, of New Orleans, did the preaching, and Rev. J. L. Evans, of Haughton, led the singing. These brethren have been a real blessing to Bernice. This has been a real spiritual revival. I am told by some of the people here that this has been the best meeting held in Bernice in several years.

Brother Freeman is one of the strongest Gospel preachers I have ever heard. He believes the Gospel himself, and preaches in a way that his hearers cannot help but believe his messages. He grips and holds his hearers as none but the true Gospel preacher can. I saw strong men break down and weep as he preached the simple Gospel truth of the awful blighting effects of sin, and the saving power of Christ. His messages are full of love, but strong in denouncing sin and the evil one. Both Methodists and Baptists join in saying, Freeman is the best that we have had in a long time. Brother Freeman helps both church and pastor. He has won a large place in the heart of the church and town, but while here, he won for the pastor a still larger place. He exalted Christ, and won for the church a stronger hold on God. It makes the pastor feel exceedingly happy for a man to take hold of his hand and hold on while we walk two or three blocks and all the time telling him how much good has been done in Bernice as a result of the meeting, and a man is caused to rejoice when one of the best and biggest men in the church and town says to his pastor, "We have just begun to appreciate you," when he has been receiving all the year showers of blessing from the Lord through the church. It would have been hard to get two preachers who would have rendered more faithful service than Brothers Freeman and Evans did while here.

Brother Evans did much good by his Gospel singing, his prayers and his sermons to the young people and the children. He is one of our most progressive young preachers. I haven't space to tell you all about the meeting, but will just say, we are having a good time up here among some of the best and most loyal people in the State. Some time make it convenient to come and spend a few days with us in Bernice. W. A. MANGUM, P. C.

THE WINNFIELD-HOMER SUNDAY SCHOOL CONTEST.

Dear Brother Carley: The contest between the Sunday schools of Homer and Winnfield closed Sunday, June 15, with a victory for Winnfield by 37. The contest has lasted for eight weeks, and during the time each of the Sunday schools has more than doubled its previous attendance.

The Winnfield church, as reported last year, had a membership of 200 members. For the last four weeks of the contest, the Sunday school has had an average attendance of 250. For the past six weeks, the average has been 230, and for the entire period of the contest, the average has been 206, which is six above the membership of the church as reported last year.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness. GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

THE TRUTH.

Over the triple doorway of the Cathedral of Milan there are three inscriptions spanning the splendid arches. Over one is carved a beautiful wreath of roses, and underneath is the legend, "All that pleases is but for a moment." Over the other is sculptured a cross, and these are the words beneath, "All that troubles us is but for a moment." But underneath the great central entrance, in the main aisle, is the inscription. "That only is important which is eternal."—From the Christian World Pulpit.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

There are two things that we ask the readers of the Advocate to do:

First—Be good.

Second—Buy a bottle of Mentho-Squillo for coughs, colds, hoarseness, sore throat and chest, the "Flu" and its sequels.

Life is, it must be owned, full of disappointments; but it is so, in order that we may learn gradually that we have nothing we may safely hope for but the fulfilment of that blessed will of God which has no false hopes or disappointments. We cling to all sorts of things and they snap in our hands, in order that we may learn that God alone is firm and His commandment exceeding sure.—Rev. H. H. Jeaffreson.

Overworked Women

It is the never ceasing treadmill of household duties — washing, ironing, cleaning, mending, cooking; the house to keep tidy, children cared for and well dressed, church and social duties to perform — that so often overtax a woman's strength, and she falls a prey to those dreaded female ills.

NOTICE.

We wish very much to have the women of the three Conferences which this column seeks to serve send to us items of interest from their auxiliaries. You have a new plan, perhaps, which has helped your work; send it to us that it may be passed on to others. Your Program Committee has put new features into your programs; these warm summer days, suggestions of this nature would help the tired women who are staying at home carrying on the work.

Take time to sit down, won't you, and send to the Woman's Page the very best you have of plan, of happenings, or of program.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The Lafayette District meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held at Lake Charles, in the Methodist Church parlors, May 27, 1919, Mrs. C. E. Pike presiding.

Several auxiliaries were represented, and good progress was reported.

As the district went beyond the 10 per cent increase asked for last year, we are urged to reach a 15 per cent goal this year.

The pledge for 1919 is $1111.

Mrs. Niebergall, our Conference President, was present and gave some interesting accounts of the late Council meeting held at Memphis. A number of topics were discussed and proved helpful. All enjoyed the hospitality of the Lake Charles auxiliary.

For the next meeting we are invited to go to Lake Arthur.

Mrs. H. N. BROWN.

THE CRYSTAL VASE.

There was once a little golden-haired girl who had the sweetest of fairy godmothers. On her seventh birthday the good fairy gave her a present. It was a very, very tiny glass vase, clear as crystal. It had a tiny glass stopple, and was fastened on a chain of purest gold. "Wear it," she whispered, "every day; it is a magic vase. Sometimes it will say very softly to you, 'No, no.' Always obey it, and it will remain crystal clear."

The little girl wore it and listened, and obeyed for many days and weeks, and it stayed crystal clear and very beautiful. Then one day, when she was talking about something with a girl at school, it whispered, "No, no," and she did not obey, would not listen. Three times it spoke and then was still, and the glass and the water changed a little, ever so little, but she did not know. After that she did not listen so carefully. Once when she was reading a book instead of doing her work, once when she chose a companion her mother did not approve, and again and ever so many times it spoke, and she would not listen or obey.

Little by little the vase grew clouded, and the water, crystal clear, turned gray and she was ashamed to wear it, so she put it away.

One day, long afterward, the godmother came. "Where is the vase with the water, crystal clear?" she asked. The little girl blushed with shame, but she could not hide the vase from the godmother, so she laid it in her hand. The godmother never said a word; just looked and looked, covered her face and went away. The little girl held the vase in her hand and thought and thought of the look on her godmother's face. She remembered how beautiful the vase had been, and cried out, "Ah, I want it back; so clear, so crystal clear! I will obey. I want it back." And the vase whispered, "Put me on." So she did. "Listen and obey," it said. "Be patient; all shall be well."

So the little girl wore it again, and listened carefully and obeyed promptly, and one by one the sparkles came back, until one morning, when the little girl looked at it, lo! it was crystal clear again and very beautiful.—Selected.

IN THE GOLDEN BOOK.

Within the courts of Paradise, at the gate of the palace of the King, stood a little child watching the faces of those who passed in. "May I go in, too?" she asked of the angel who kept watch at the gate.

"I do not know, dear child," said the angel. "Our great King is giving audience to-day to those whose names are written in the golden book of his remembrance."

"But whose names are written in the book?" asked the child.

"They are the names of those whose good deeds the King likes best to remember," the angel said. "Shall I see if your name is there?"

"Please do," exclaimed the child, "and, oh, I do hope it will be there! I have done many kind and good things in my life. My teachers all praised me and said I was the best girl in my class."

Then the angel opened the great golden book of remembrance and searched it carefully. "Dear child," he said, "there is nothing of all that in the book."

"Well," said the child somewhat crestfallen, "please look into the book again. I once gave half the money from my savings box to a missionary for the education of a little Negro boy."

Again the angel turned over the pages of the great golden book. "No, dear child," he said "there is nothing about that here."

Then the child began to be afraid, but she tried hard to think, and she said: "Do you know that at Christmas time I used to give half of my playthings to the poor children? Surely that must be in the book."

Once more the angel sought in the golden book, and once more he shook his head. "It is not written here."

Then the child's face fell, and the tears came into her eyes. "I can remember nothing more," she said. "I am so sorry. Oh, how I wish that I could have done something to make the King glad!"

Then the beautiful angel looked lovingly down at the little child and said: "My little one, there is no deed of kindness but gladdens the heart of our King. But in the golden book are written the deeds that are done with no thought of praise, but just for love's sake; and it is written in the book that once a little girl found a poor, hungry boy in the street and gave him the cake which had just been given to her. You were that child."

And the child looked up doubtfully and said: "Oh, I know nothing about it! If it was really I who gave the cake, I must have forgotten it the next moment."

But the angel smiled sweetly and said: "Dear child, the things we forget are often the things the King likes best to remember."

And he took her by the hand and led her up the shining steps and into the throne-room of the King, and a voice in which was the music of all sweet sounds said to her: "I was hungry, and ye gave me to eat. * * * Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me. Dear child, I thank you for your gift."—Everyland.

JEFFERSON STREET, NATCHEZ.

Dear Brother Carley: We closed our fifteen days' meeting here last night, and many pronounced it one of the very best meetings the church has had for quite a time. Seven joined during the meeting, but that was not the most accomplished, as the life of the church was much strengthened, and the spirit of the social and religious life raised. We did not need, as Bishop Candler says, "a religious revival," but we did need a revival of real religion. We did not have that as much as we needed, but we did get a great blessing out of the preaching and singing. Brother J. A. Smith, of Meridian, is a young man, and it would be hard to find a man of his age his equal in the pulpit. His preaching is sane, strong, and direct and reaches the hearts of the people. Our people are delighted with him and pronounced him one of the best that has been this way in many years. He has a future full of usefulness, and will be one of our very best men in the Church. The second Sunday evening of the meeting, the auditorium of the church was full, chairs being placed in aisles, and the evening congregations were good throughout the week-days. We are working and striving to make this the best year in the life of the church, and the outlook is hopeful.

It has been suggested by some of the kind-hearted stewards that it might be a good idea for the pastor to go to Columbus, Ohio, to the Centenary Celebration, and if that is made possible it will be very much appreciated, for he feels as if he needs a rest for several days. The trying times through the winter keeping up with the "flu" situation in the parish, and then having it in our own family, the Centenary drive, and then, last, the meeting, have drawn very heavily on the power of our endurance, and we need to relax for awhile.

Another very important factor in the meeting we had was Brother Hamp Sewell, of Atlanta, Ga., our singer and choir leader. Brother Hamp is a real, big-hearted Georgia Cracker, full of faith and love to God and man, and he loves the work. He is equal to any task he may undertake and will give great satisfaction in the work. If any of the brethren in these parts need a singer, get in touch with this fine man and he will do the work.

Mr. Editor, hope I shall see you at the Divinity School in the near future

Yours very truly,

W. H. SAUNDERS.

Natchez, Miss.

Lemons Whiten and Beautify the Skin! Make Cheap Lotion

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen, and bring out the hidden roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful for rough, red hands.

Your druggist will sell three ounces of orchard white at little cost, and any grocer will supply the lemons.

Poultry Expert Gives Away Chick Food

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer to-day.—Adv.

REVIVAL AT ROBINSONVILLE, MISS.

A very successful revival has just closed. Brother H. E. Carter made no mistake in choosing to help him Brother C. A. Schultz, of Galiman, Miss., who drew the hearts of the congregation to himself at the opening service. In spite of rain, he preached powerful sermons every day. There were four accessions to the Church and we already see signs of the greatest spiritual awakening the community has ever experienced. Brother Schultz will always find a splendid welcome here. A MEMBER.

FROM ACKERMAN CHARGE.

Haif the year is gone and we have not yet given any account of our stewardship. We have not turned the world over, nor "put the big pot in the little one," but just steadiiy marched on. We give you some of the things that have been accomplished to assure you that we have our "working ciothes" on. We have received ten into the Church, baptized three infants, made over one hundred visits, sent $60 to the orphans, raised $655 to pay off notes, most of which was borrowed to pay our church at Ackerman out of debt (and we iearned a long time ago that it is much easier to borrow money than it is to pay it back). We feel very proud over the fact that our Conference collections for the entire year have been paid and the check is in the hands of the treasurer. The Centenary drive was a success. Our quota, and nearly $2000 over, has been pledged. The assessment for the support of the ministry has been raised to $1500 and is aimost in full up to date. We are to begin our revivals the 22d of this month, and hope and pray to have revivals of truly the old-time power. Pray for us.

REPORT OF THE EPWORTH LEAGUE OF BROAD STREET, HATTiESBURG, CHAPTER No. 7456, TO THE MISSISSiPPI EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE IN SESSION JUNE 10-13, 1919.

(Published by request of the Miss. Conf. Epworth League).

Although our League has just passed through the most trying year in its history, and we probably have had to face more difficulties in our work than ever before, God has wonderfuliy biessed us in our work, and by his help we have been abie to accomplish much in his name. And our work at this time is moving along nicely.

A contest which we have just closed brought into our League something like 30 new members and was a great benefit to us in other ways.

We reported at Conference last year: 55 active members, 14 honorary members, totai 69. At present we have an enroliment of 68 active members, 25 honorary members, a total of 93.

We have held eight business meetings during the year and fourteen counci meetings.

One of the aims of our officers for this year is to have a written report at every business meeting.

Forty Epworth Eras come to our League each month—one club of thirty and ten individuai subscribers. And now that our membership has increased, we plan to increase our club of Era subscribers.

Department of Spiritual Work.

We have for our superintendent of this department a very consecrated Christian young lady, and the department is doing fine work. An average of four devotional meetings has been held each month and the attendance has been good. The present average is 75. We observe the quiet hour and stewardship covenants. No Leaguer refuses to take part in the devotional services when called on; 95 per cent of those attending League service stay for church service, and almost any Leaguer is wiliing to take part in church services.

Department of Social Service.

Our new superintendent of this department, too, is a very earnest worker and she is getting her department in fine shape. She is aiways ready to go and send, wherever her department can be of any service, carrying flowers to the sick room, visiting and cheering those who need this service most. Services have been held in the jaiis and other means of help are being used; 150 standard hymnals have been purchased for our church, costing $53.

Department of Recreation and Culture.

This department has for its head Truman Lewis, known to the Wiggins Conference as "one of the twins," and he is providing some reai jolly times for our League. Every sociai seems to be better than the last. Mr. Lewis and his committee are planning many good things for us during the year and we know we shaii not want for good, wholesome recreation, with some culture mixed in.

Department of Missions.

One missionary meeting is held each month. One mission study class is held, with a good attendance, with Mrs. King as teacher. Our African special pledge of $75 has been paid in full; 74 Leaguers have subscribed to the Missionary Centenary, this being over and above our pledge for African special for the coming year; 90 per cent of the team workers who put our church "over the top" in this great work came from the League.

Our former superintendent of this department, Miss Jordan, is a volunteer. The department is now under the leadership of Mrs. King, of whom we expect a good year's work.

Financial.

Our budget for the year was $100. Raised on this budget: Coiiection for song books, $53; coiiections on reguiar budget, $129.81; total collected, $182.81.

Paid out: For song books, $53; African special, $75; Publishing House for supplies, $30.81; miscelianeous (including flowers for sick, expense for social, etc), $24; total paid out, $182.81.

We covet your prayers that we may be led of God's Spirit in our feeble efforts to do his work this year with a greater zeal than ever before.

Respectfully submitted,
J. H. WEEMS, President.
CARRIE GUNN, Secretary.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Calomel Dynamites A Sluggish Liver

Crashes into sour biie, making you sick and you iose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Caiomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour biie it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

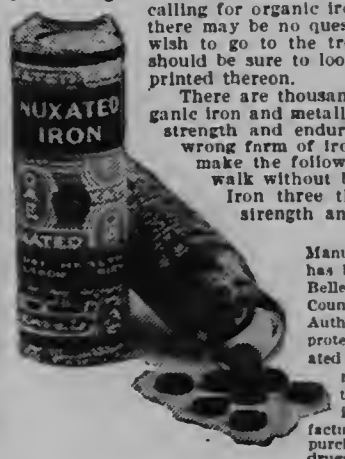
Public Should Demand Original Nuxated Iron

Physician Warns Against Danger Of Accepting Substitutes—Says That Ordinary Metallic Iron Preparations Cannot Possibly Give The Same

Strength, Power and Endurance

As Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron

The remarkable results produced by Nuxated Iron and its widespread sale (it being estimated that over three million people annually are loday using it) has led lo the offering of numerous substitutes, and these physicians mentioned below say that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting subsiitutes for Nuxated Iron, as these substitutes instead of being organic iron may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in some cases produce more harm than good. Those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder, should go to their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then they should be sure to look on the label and see that the words NUXATED IRON are printed thereon.



There are thousands of people taking iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron and such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note: The widespread publication of the above information has been suggested by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Department) New York and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author and others so that the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the delusion that it is Nuxated Iron or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older, inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

PEACE.

On Saturday, June 28, at 3:49 o'clock, p. m., Paris time, the signing of the peace treaty in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles was completed. Dr. Hermann Mueller and Dr. Johannes Bell signed the document for the Germans. Thus, formally, the greatest war in the history of mankind has been brought to a close. The treaty still has to be ratified by the contracting parties, in the proper legislative assembles, but this ratification will, without doubt, follow in due time. The great adventure in world domination has failed. Unprincipled aggression for the sake of unholy aggrandizement has been overwhelmingly defeated and sternly rebuked. Much ruin has been wrought of material things, and millions of lives have been sacrificed in the successful effort to stem the flood of recrudescent barbarism that threatened to overflow the world. Once more, right has triumphed over might, and the eternal law of justice has been vindicated. Again we may follow the pursuits of peace, haltingly it may be, for awhile, but none the less surely and happily. A great ideal has been set up before the nations of earth, and it is now possible to dream, even in our waking hours, of that federation of the world that only poets have imagined hitherto. We do not suppose that our difficulties are at an end; but we face the future with an unperturbed faith that the God who has brought us to this good hour will be with us all along the way if we quit us like men. Let us pray that we may do so. It were a tragedy to win in war and perish in peace.

POSTAL RATES AND NEWSPAPERS.

On July 1, the country will go back to two-cent letter postage. We believe this reduction in the expense of doing business will be welcomed by everybody. But at the same time a most complicated and onerous method of collecting increased revenue from newspapers will be put into effect. Certain classes of publications, including religious newspapers, are exempted from the operation of the law, but all others will be put to a great deal of trouble and expense in figuring the amount of advertising they carry in proportion to their reading matter, and in certifying weights in relation to different postal zones established by the law. We are perfectly sure that newspaper publishers generally have done their full part in every effort to conserve the resources of the country and to help win the war. We do not understand, therefore, why their business should be penalized by the imposition of largely increased taxes. Several publishers have already announced material increases in their subscription rates, and others will be forced to do so in the near future. In a sense, a penalty has been placed upon the reading public. If the claim is made that the new law is intended to make advertisers pay more for the privileges they enjoy, it should be remembered that advertising is one of the surest ways of developing and maintaining prosperity in the business world. If Congress is not too busy with other important matters, we hope it will give some attention to this most unsatisfactory situation.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

A strange thing in connection with the annual celebration of July 4, is the expectation that numerous serious casualties will be reported from all over the country. We have come to believe that injury and death are inseparably connected with a nation-wide demonstration of joy. Every year, there is a plea for a "sane Fourth," based upon past experience with fireworks and liquor. We presume we shall have the usual pyrotechnic displays, in spite of the warnings of the past; and, perhaps, we shall have more than the usual amount of drunkenness, though the country will be under the war-time prohibition law. We base our opinion upon the supposition that a good many people who have laid in a supply of liquor will take advantage of the celebration to show that they still have something to drink and upon the further supposition that anti-prohibitionists will report as many cases of drunkenness as possible in order to say, "Prohibition does not prohibit." Would that we could devote the day to appropriate ceremonies in commemoration of the founding of our great nation, and in thanking God for the providence that has been over us thus far!

ARE OUR CHILDREN WORTH IT?

The question of better salaries for teachers will not down. A quiescent public seems to be pretty well satisfied to let things remain as they are; but the teachers themselves, who are face to face with an acute issue, are doing all in their power to bring about an adjustment that will be in keeping with the principles of simple justice. In Mississippi, an aggressive campaign is being waged to secure the adoption of an educational policy that will raise the teachers above the ranks of the "hired servant," and in Louisiana the matter is being agitated in various ways. We prefer to look at it more from the standpoint of the child than of the teacher, though we yield to no one in point of respect for the heroic services of those who have felt themselves called to be instructors of youth. Our children are our most precious possession; they bear our names and they fall heir to all that we have and are; the future is in their hands—we love them for what they are and for what they will be. And yet we presume to think that those who have the responsibility of training them for their future work are worth not more than $65 a month. A good many of them receive less than that pitifully small sum. A speaker at a recent meeting in New Orleans declared that a woman could easily earn more than that by scrubbing floors. If our children are not worth more than that to us, we may very well be content to let things remain as they are; if we love them as we profess we do, we will pay salaries that will insure their having competent teachers. After all, it is a question of the worth of a child.

THE MAN WHO WOULD.

We were greatly interested in reading in the July number of the Review of Reviews a sketch of Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip, one of the most distinguished financiers of this country. His father was a blacksmith by trade. He died when Frank was fourteen years of age. The family was living on a farm; for a summer's work in attending to a bunch of forty calves, the boy was given one of the calves, which he sold for $12. This money he spent for a five-years' subscription to the New York Tribune, with which was included a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary—he wanted to learn something. When he was fifteen years old, he went to work as an apprentice in a machine shop. He wanted a college education, but the family income was too slender to finance it; he studied by night, however, and saved his wages—75 cents a day—until he had $225. He then entered the freshman class of the University of Illinois, and by working in a machine shop on Saturdays for $1.25 a day, he was able to carry on his studies for a year and a half. The rest of his career has been in keeping with the traits of his early life—a determination to succeed and a willingness to work hard. The man who would, did. Those who will, may.

NOTHING BUT A TRICK.

The anti-prohibitionists, facing the inevitable destruction of their nefarious business, are resorting to all sorts of schemes to bring about a reaction in public sentiment that will work to their advantage. One of their tricks is to assure the people that the prohibitionists, not content with outlawing the liquor traffic, will endeavor to have laws passed against all kinds of harmless pleasures and amusements. Such tactics are too puerile to deserve serious attention. Only unthinking people can possibly be led astray by them. We sometimes wonder if the brewers and their friends really expect anybody to be deceived by their transparent fallacies; if they do, they are simple-minded indeed.

PUNISH THE PROFITEERS.

We are not surprised that numerous cases of graft and profiteering have been reported in connection with army contracts, and in connection with the new level of prices upon which business is being conducted to-day. Some people are always ready to take advantage of any situation that may develop to increase their personal fortunes. But we are surprised that such slow progress is being made in dealing with these despicable by-products of war as they ought to be dealt with. Various investigations have been made, but very little seems to have been found out. What everybody knows, nobody seems to be able to prove. We hope the measure recently introduced into Congress to hasten results in such matters will accomplish the desired end.

LETTERS TO THE PREACHERS AND METHODIST PEOPLE IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE AND THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCES.

By Bishop Jno. C. Hillgo.

II.

My Dear Brethren: A revival of religion must begin with the preacher—yea, it must begin in the preacher. He can not delegate His responsibilities to a committee or an evangelist or an assisting fellow-pastor. He is the shepherd of the flock and must lead. He must be faith for his people, hope for them, courage for them, and guide for them. It takes an extra degree of all these to conduct a revival meeting, and many men fail simply because they haven't the courage to face the world and call men to the altar. I say a revival must begin in the preacher. Then, first of all, let us go apart and examine our own souls in the searching presence of God. Keep nothing back, excuse nothing, and protest against none of the revelations of the Holy Spirit. What is evil or sinful, repent of it and confess it, although it be pride, ambition, jealousy, unforgiven wrongs, real or imaginary. Allow nothing, not a single thing, to remain in us that chills or embarrasses or breaks off our fellowship with God. Stay aside until our own souls have intimate communion with the Lord. Then the revival has begun when we and God are communing, and without it any attempt at a revival is mockery. I know what it is to try to hold a meeting with a pastor whose heart is cold and not in fellowship with God. It is no use.

Next are the officials, stewards, trustees, Sunday school superintendents and teachers. Call them together and talk with them about their own faith and devotion. Do not talk with them about the condition of the church. We have had far too much of this sort of abstract talk about the religion of an organization. Some of us are going down to hell complaining about the low state of piety in the church, when we ourselves are the lowest point in the church. Bring each man face to face with his own religious experience and rejoice with him in all his triumphs, and exhort him in the matter of all his sins and errors. The time has come for us to quit talking so much about personal work, especially that about which we talk entertainingly and never do, and return to the Scriptural plan of talking often one to another. Hold such a meeting with the stewards and mark the result.

If I had a church as a pastor, and I have very many as a chief pastor, I think I would hold a meeting with my folks only, and have a straight talk with them about their own religious experiences. I would thank God for the faith that is in many of them, and then I would faithfully tell them of all the perils and lacks in those who had faults. Some have never been converted, and they should be told of it, not brutally, but fully and with grief. Some have backslidden, and they should be told of it. Some think they love God, but they are full of evil tempers, jealousies and prides, and they should be rid of these sins. Some love and patronize the world and they should come out from among those who do not love the Lord. Let it be a family affair, full of love and sincerity.

When my church got on its knees repenting of its sins which my people committed then I would begin on the folks out in the world. My good father told me this was the way to start a revival, and my senior preacher followed this method, and they were mighty in bringing men to repentance and to the Lord Jesus Christ. A holy church will always be a mighty church. Our weakness is in our own pews. If the preacher will start, his people will follow. I am confirmed in this faith. We can not have too much religion—that is, know too much of God and have too intimate fellowship with Him.

AFTER THE CENTENARY "DRIVE."

By the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The Methodists of America, by the success of the Centenary Movement, have demonstrated anew their vigor, their capability, and their efficiency. Their own self-respect has been increased. The esteem of their fellow-Christians has been enlarged. And the admiration and applause of the people generally, to a degree hitherto unknown, has been won.

This movement has called into action the unused powers of many strong men and women in our churches, and has quickened their consciousness of personal responsibility for the effectiveness of the church. This new sense of personal obligation, this new consciousness of matters religious, is a tremendous asset which makes possible a greatly enlarged service in the interest of a lost world.

America was never more conscious than to-day of the need of a nation-wide revival of genuine Christianity and personal religion. With our immense wealth has come luxury, softness and selfish worldliness, which can result only in pitiable weakness and woeful wickedness. This is now glaringly evident in our great centers, and is becoming so in all sections. Our national bigness, our vast resources, and the recent exhibition of our mightiness as a world power will develop a sense of superiority and a spirit of haughtiness that will make us despised of men and nations, unless these powers be directed to some high, moral, human purpose. There is danger here which only devotion to noble and holy aims can avert. Nations come to greatness by their virtues; they enter upon their decline by their vices. Religion is essential to keeping pure the current of our national life.

The condition of the world mind to-day seems to make the present time especially propitious for a great religious awakening. Old systems of thought, worship and life have been shattered. Old beliefs have been subjected to profound questionings. The sense of human deficiency has become depressing. There is a heart-cry for spiritual realities. New alignments are being formed. New powers are being sought. New expectations have been awakened. The world seems ready for the great outstanding truths of religion, and the heart of mankind yearns for a new sense of personal relationship to a Heavenly Father and a redeeming Savior.

To whom should the world look at this time of its spiritual need more than to the sons and daughters of Wesley? Their message is, and has been, that of the New Testament—God in Christ reconciling the world to himself. The spring of their evangelistic effort and fervor is a sense of an indefinite debt to Jesus Christ, which has characterized them through all their history. And wherever modern Methodism retains, to any degree, its primal impulse, it is seeking the lost. The life and vigor of Methodism is bound up with the spirit of evangelism. For her to become unfaithful to this task, is for her to perish. The Methodist Church has no foe so deadly as self-satisfaction. Its chief concern to-day, therefore, should not be doctrinal system, or an ecclesiastical polity—these have stood their test—but with the one task of rescuing the lost sinners of this broken and bleeding world with the gospel of power and salvation. This is the primary task of the Christian church in every age, and the spiritual vigor of every congregation of Christians depends upon the fidelity with which the task is pursued. Every congregation should be an evangelistic center and force and every saved man a seeker after his brother's good.

A revival of religion, church-wide, nation-wide, and world-wide has already begun with the Methodists of America. The nine months, and more, given to a campaign in which the emphasis was placed constantly upon intercession, stewardship of property, stewardship of life and service and the claims of the unsaved world, created a new sense of personal responsibility in religious matters in the entire membership of the church. Many are the testimonies of the spiritual uplift which has come to individuals and congregations in the development of the Centenary program. There is, in a word, abundant evidence of the divine approval of this movement, and from every quarter comes the suggestions and appeals that this is "the accepted time" for an intense evangelism, in which the whole world shall be enlisted.

What is now needed is not so much the revival effort as the revival attitude and state. The genuine revival is not something to be had and done with. Time is an essential element in a great awakening—and a half-year, or a whole year, is not too much to devote, all but exclusively, to this one thing in each church. The Wesleyan revival, which brought Methodism into being, was a movement, and it penetrated into the depths of the moral life of the people, purged human hearts of vileness, healed social disorders, and restored national life to the ways of virtue and integrity. A profound revival of religion in America can come only from the honest, vital interpretative preaching of the New Testament gospel of Jesus Christ and the serious call to holy living and to the profound experience of salvation in Him. The pulpit must be marked by sanity, seriousness and competency, and be the herald of consuming passion for the salvation of the people. The pew must awaken to its evangelistic mission and responsibility in every community.

A genuine religious awakening is of God. God is the source, the strength and support of such a holy work. A church may be ever so well equipped, and its organization may be well nigh perfect, and yet all but dead spiritually. It is wanting in the life that God alone can give. The fathers had poor facilities for church work, but they knew the way of God, were able to interpret the leadings of the Holy Spirit, and gracious revivals followed their labors. By its evangelistic activities Methodism has come to its great strength.

We, therefore, call upon our people, who have made such a noble offering of their material wealth for the evangelization of the world, to make a genuine revival of religion the subject of constant prayer at the family altar and in their private devotions. Let all their powers be consecrated to the supreme work of soul winning.

Great prayer and devout and diligent reading and study of the Holy Scriptures in search for the will of God and the communion of the Holy Spirit have characterized every great religious awakening. Deepening of the spiritual life in the ministry and membership of the church cannot be less than primary and essential. Means for the accomplishment of this end should be diligently employed. Enduements with power follow the baptisms of the Holy Spirit. The mind of the church must be set and held upon these things. The great and essential doctrines of Christianity should be faithfully unfolded anew and proclaimed with power. When the gospel in its sweep and fullness is faithfully and powerfully presented and the people are really made to see Jesus the Savior, then worldliness will be abhorred and be straightway put off. The sins of modern life, personal and social, economic and political, will come to judgment before the uplifted Christ. The one thing needed to-day is that Christ be preached.

The church has created a Commission on Evangelism and charged it with the responsibility of promoting revivals throughout the churches, inspiring the ministry to earnest pastoral and personal evangelism, and developing the evangelistic spirit and method among church members. This Commission is now, we are informed, giving serious thought to this vital work. In each Annual Conference there is a Commission on Evangelism that is auxiliary to the General Commission. The day upon which we are entering furnishes the opportunity for these agencies to justify their existence in providing a leadership in this campaign for souls. The superb organization which brought such generous success to the Centenary might well be put at the command of the Commission on Evangelism, for such service as a church-wide revival movement may require and this organization may be able to render.

We strongly recommend that the Annual Conferences, at their coming sessions, set apart a season for self-examination, reconsecration, special prayer, and earnest consideration of this supreme subject of winning souls, with the end in view that the members of the Annual Conferences, preachers and laymen, may go forth from the annual gatherings with the revival fires burning in their souls. All the exercises of the Annual Conference, including the preaching, addresses, social intercourse, work of Committees and Boards, and reports of preachers, should be so directed as to emphasize the importance of making the ensuing Conference a time of great revival power. Here is an opportunity for the Conference Commission on Evangelism, the committee on public worship, the president of the Conference, the presiding elders and others to lead in the return to the spirit and method of New Testament evangelism, which preaches to the changeless need of the world, with a conviction too deep for hysteria, too holy and reverent for sensationalism, Jesus Christ and Him crucified. No other message is the power of God unto salvation.

Let the evangelistic note be made prominent in all assemblies, institutes, conventions, summer conferences and district conferences. The problem of a popular and profitable program will be solved if the revival fires from heaven begin to fall on these gatherings. The Sunday schools, Epworth Leagues, missionary societies, and other organized agencies among our people should be made the occasion for the study of God's Word and for prayer, looking to a great religious awakening. Let the main feature of one round of quarterly conferences—6504 of them—be the necessary preparation on the part of the official members of the church to meet their obligation to God and to their community in this greatest business of winning men to Christ. These should be occasions of heart-searching and honest dealing in the presence of God.

Our Methodism is a mighty force, with great numbers and large wealth. It has recently shown commendable liberality and a genuine effectiveness in its organized activities. Its supreme need at this hour is a baptism of divine power, a Pentecost of heavenly love, and enduement with the Holy Spirit for bringing salvation to a lost world. For this let all the people make humble, earnest and continued supplication. Tarry, tarry until you be endued with power from on high.

A GOOD BOOK ON REVIVALS.

Enquiries are coming in my office concerning helpful books on revivals. The most helpful one I have read recently is, "Revivals: Their Laws and Leaders," by James Burns. This is a larger book than some people like to read in these strenuous times, but it is the best discussion of the causes and origin of revivals that I have found. The author seems to have made a careful study of the great historic revivals. That we are on the verge of another great revival seems to be generally assumed by Christian people. The only safe way to interpret any movement is in the light of history. Political, commercial, educational, literary or religious movements can only be understood in the light of their history. He who would interpret the present inarticulate moanings and groanings for a revival had better give himself to a study of how other great revivals came about, and, in the light of these, try to interpret this coming one. Dr. Burns has gone over this in a most interesting and helpful way. Unfortunately, I do not know the price of the book. It has been in my library for some years and I do not recall the price. It is published in London, England, but can be ordered from Smith & Lamar. I would advise every man who wants to have an intelligent opinion as to the coming revival to get this book. It says nothing about the coming revival, but will give you a historic background from which you may interpret this one.

THE ANNUAL BOARD MEETING AND THE CAMPAIGN FOR EDUCATION.

It will be remembered that the General Conference provided for two great church-wide, intensive campaigns, one for the purposes of the Centenary, the other for education. In making provision for these campaigns, the General Conference directed: "That the right of way be given to the Centenary during the first two years and to the educational campaign during the second two years of the quadrennium, and that during these two periods, as far as possible, the full power of the Church be delivered in these respective campaigns."

The intensive campaign for the Centenary has just closed, and was a glorious success.

At its recent session the Board of Education provided for a campaign committee and laid out certain definite lines of work in preparation for the campaign to begin actively in 1920. The Board's actions in this matter are contained in the following resolutions:

1. That the Board of Education hereby endorse the spirit and purpose of the Interchurch World Movement and authorize the Campaign Committee on education provided for in Section 2 of this report to co-operate with the movement and to relate our campaign to it as closely as possible under the action of the General Conference.

2. That an Educational Campaign Committee is hereby created to have direction and control of the general church-wide Educational Campaign provided for by the last General Conference. Said committee shall consist of eleven members, five of whom shall be selected by this Board from its own members upon the nomination of the Nominating Committee of the Board, five of whom shall be selected by the Executive Committee of the Methodist Educational Association from the Committee of Ten provided for by said Association at its recent meeting in Memphis, and the Corresponding Secretary of this Board. The Committee may add to its membership if circumstances arise making it advisable.

3. The Educational Campaign Committee is hereby clothed with authority to select a Director General, to decide all questions connected with the campaign, and to adopt such means as may be deemed necessary to make the campaign effective. As Southern Methodist University, through the president of its Board of Trustees, has asked that said University be included in the general intensive church-wide educational campaign, the Committee herein created is instructed to include the university in the campaign on such terms as the Committee and the authorities of the university may agree, and if the trustees of Emory University should apply for inclusion in the campaign, the Committee is hereby instructed to admit such institution on such terms as the Committee and the authorities of the university may agree.

4. The Corresponding Secretary of this Board is hereby instructed to enter at once upon a comprehensive and detailed survey of the educational conditions and needs of all parts of the church, including a complete study of each educational institution of the church, its field of service and usefulness to the church, its elements of strength and weakness, the title of the church to its property, and its financial condition and needs. In making this survey the Secretary is authorized to employ such expert service as he may deem necessary. He shall submit his findings, properly classified and organized, to the Educational Campaign Committee created in Section 2 of this report. After a careful study of the reports of the Secretary and of Exhibit G, published in Vol. VIII, No. 1, May Bulletin of the Board of Education, said Committee shall make up a revised budget of the financial needs of the educational institutions and interests of the church to be submitted to our people in the campaign.

5. That the Corresponding Secretary of this Board is hereby directed to take the necessary steps to have prepared an adequate body of literature covering the whole field of Christian education and to distribute the same throughout the church, as a part of a campaign designed to awaken in the church a full realization of the tremendous issues involved in the cause of Christian education and to develop an informed public opinion on the question that will insure adequate provision for our educational institutions.

6. That the Corresponding Secretary is hereby instructed to have presented to the College of Bishops the desire of this Board that they make such a deliverance to the whole church on the subject of the Educational Campaign as its importance suggests, and that he likewise take the necessary steps to have the cause ably presented to the next session of the Annual Conferences of the church and to secure appropriate actions therefrom.

7. That it is the judgment of this Board that the time is ripe for the establishment of a strong Liberal Arts College of our church in the State of Oklahoma, and our Secretary is directed to present the matter to the two Annual Conferences in Oklahoma this fall with a view to their enterprising and providing through this campaign for such a college as will serve adequately the educational needs of the two Conferences in that State. The Board pledges its hearty approval and support of such a movement.

8. That this body hereby requests through its Corresponding Secretary that the management of the Centenary Campaign, upon the completion of their drive, give appropriate endorsement of the Educational Campaign; that they commend same to the church and that they request the members of their organization throughout the church to give to the Educational Campaign all possible assistance, as the most effective means of developing the trained personnel absolutely necessary in order to deliver the full power of the church in both the home and foreign field.

9. That the Educational Campaign Committee is hereby authorized to represent the Board of Education in considering and collaborating plans for co-operation between the Educational Campaign on the one hand, and the campaign that may be enterprised by the Board of Finance for the Superannuate Endowment Fund on the other hand, in the event that future developments should suggest such co-operation.

From the Board of Education: Bishop E. D. Mouzon, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Dr. H. N. Snyder, Dr. Paul H. Linn, Dr. J. H. Reynolds, Dr. Stonewall Anderson, ex officio.

From the Methodist Educational Association: Dr. A. F. Watkins, Dr. S. C. Hatcher, Dr. W. P. Few, Dr. C. C Weaver, Dr. C. M. Bishop.

MONROE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Notes and Observations.

Mr. Editor: In closing my report of the proceedings of the district conference, of June 2-4, I promised that "Notes and Obeservations" would follow. In these notes I am indulging in some criticisms, but they are not intended to be other than friendly.

Winnsboro, the seat of the district conference, is the parish site of Franklin Parish and is a progressive, thriving town of considerable dimensions. The Methodist church there was built fifty years or more ago, and for many years was the only church building in the town, and the Methodist ministers were the only preachers of righteousness. Now there is a Baptist organization with a splendid new brick church and a regular pastor. The Methodist church was remodeled about twelve years ago, but now there is need of a new, modern building in keeping with the needs of the day; and, doubtless, our people there will not be long in launching the enterprise. They have a big preacher for pastor, Brother S. D. Howard; he measures fifty-two inches around the waist. (It takes some cloth to make him a pair of trousers!) He has a big head (in circumference) and a big heart.

Our district conferences are not conducted in these days, as your correspondent believes they ought to be because we are in too much of a hurry. This isn't the presiding elder's fault, but the fault of the preachers and delegates. If the pastors, local preachers and delegates would all get aside the necessary time if possible; be present at the opening and stay until the close and all the varied interests were duly considered, with prayer meetings, love feasts, preaching and sacramental services held at the proper hours for such, the district conferences would easily fulfill their mission and be a source of great good to all who attend. It has been so in the past, why not now? But we just haven't time now, so it is difficult to give sufficient time to the most important matters, to say nothing of the less important. It ought not so to be.

The sermons preached during the conference were all good, but in my opinion it would have been better if the order of those at night could have been changed. The opening sermon was doctrinal—on the subject of hell, the old, orthodox Biblical view being forcibly and strikingly presented—strange for this day and time, isn't it? The second night, the sermon was evangelistic, and the third night humorous. My change in the order would be to have the humorist first, to draw the people, the doctrinal preacher second, to alarm the sinners, and the revivalist last, to "put on the ornaments."

I have thought a good deal about Brother Early's Sunday school institute. Early says he is "always Early and never late;" but I think he is sometimes late; yet he is Early even when he is late. He is late with some of those topics. They are hoary with age, but on that account I suppose should be revered. I have been hearing "The Relation of the Pastor to the Sunday School," and "The Duties of a Superintendent" discussed ever since I can remember; and I am no "spring chicken." Think of calling up a superintendent, teacher, or pupil to tell the preachers their "relation!" That is the way it is generally done. That seems about as much in order as it would be for the departmental superintendents, and other employees of a big business to have meetings and lecture the general manager on his relation to their departments. The preacher knows his relation if he has read his Discipline. As to the duties of superintendents, they are so well understood it is quite difficult to get people to assume the responsibility because they consider themselves not qualified for it; and most of them are right—very few are really qualified. The worst, however, is that very few are willing to qualify. My friend Hatfield, in discussing that topic, said, "The superintendent should have his heart in it as he has his heart in his business."

Speaking of Hatfield, he was eleven years an itinerant and now nine years a local preacher and successful business man, residing in Winnsboro. While a member of the Annual Conference, he enjoyed the distinction of being the homeliest member of the Conference, and now, when the opportunity is presented, he enjoys the privilege of meeting and congratulating his successor to that distinction; and he had that privilege at this district conference. He said he has learned some things since he located (that's strange, isn't it?) and told us that if he were pastor again, he would be on the job sixteen hours every day. Maybe so! But isn't a pastor on the job more than sixteen hours every day? Isn't he on twenty-four? When he works, he works on the job; when he plays, he plays on the job; when he sleeps, he sleeps on the job; when he eats, he eats on the job; when he courts, he courts on the job, and when he "rats," he "rats" on the job.

After all, Mr. Editor, isn't it strange that preachers know so little about their jobs and other people know so much? Everybody knows how to preach and run a church except the preacher. He doesn't know what to preach about, how long to preach or, rather, how long not to preach, what to say and what not to say, or when to stop, or how to do anything just right. And yet everything seems to depend on the pastors. We are told that when it comes down to the final analysis. If any big movement in the church, such as the Centenary, succeeds, the pastors must "put it over." And it is true!

Speaking of the Centenary reminds me of my friend "Nick" Joyner, our Centenary Secretary. He told us at the district conference that now, since we have raised our quota in the Centenary Drive, the plan is for us to raise every other claim in full this year, and if we do not he will be after us. I am sure we will all get busy and bring everything up, for fear "old Nick" will not only "get after us," but get us.

Mr. Editor, you know this is the last year of a successful quadrennium of Rev. A. S. Lutz as presiding elder of this district. There was a good deal of talk among the preachers, as there always is at such times, about a successor. It was not finally decided and settled as to who it should be but on the train some one said, "Here are three candidates, Alford, Harvell and Neill, together." Well, you should have seen the trio! Alford was standing, but could not be steady. He swayed to and fro and had to catch the back of a seat for support. When he opened his mouth to speak, his eyes sparkled and flashed and his lips smacked like a little pickaninny when devouring watermelon. And Harvell! He was sitting, but wriggled and sputtered and made so many gleeful exclamations so loud he could be heard all over the coach above the rumble of the train. Neill didn't know what to do, either. He isn't quite as nervous and impulsive as the other two, so he just looked out of the window, down at his feet, up at the ceiling and kept mum. Oh, joy to each at the suggestion of the possibility of such honors coming his way! If it was really a case of a contest by ballot in the churches, doubtless each one would carry his home precinct. The constituents might see prospects of a change for the better.

One of the pastors, in making his report, said, "My charge is a good place to let a presiding elder down on." He meant, we presume, that it would be a good remedy for a Methodist ecclesiastical infection called "elderites." If that conclusion is true, we all think he had better continue taking the remedy himself, as he does not seem to have thoroughly recovered from the infection.

Mr. Editor, there are other things I might comment on, but these notes have lengthened out too long already; I might say, however, that a visit to our district conference by "ye Editor" or a representative of the Advocate, sometime, might result in mutual benefit.

A. S. J. NEILL, Secretary.

KEEP THE CENTENARY ORGANIZATION INTACT FOR THE GREAT REVIVAL

One of the lines of conservation agreed upon by the Ad Interim Committee of the Centenary is a revival campaign. The Centenary organization and the disciplinary evangelistic agencies have been merged as follows: The Evangelistic Commission shall consist of three members from the Ad Interim Committee, three from the Committee on Evangelism and three who hold membership in both the Committee on Evangelism and the Ad Interim Committee. This Evangelistic Commission shall be the steering committee to carry out the policy of the Centenary Commission and the Board of Missions for a church-wide revival. The Annual Conference Commission on Evangelism shall consist of the Conference committee on Evangelism, the Conference missionary secretary, the Conference campaign director, the Conference lay leader, the chairman of the Annual Conference Centenary Commission, and any others that this Annual Conference commission may choose to add thereto. It shall be its duty to carry out the policy handed down to it from the General Commission mentioned above, and to do all else in its power to promote revivals in the bounds of that Conference.

There shall be a district commission in each presiding elder's district, composed of the presiding elder, the district lay leader, district campaign director, district chairman of the minute men, and one pastor elected by the other members. This commission shall function as hitherto, with such additional work as the revival plan may entail as it unfolds.

There shall be in each church an evangelistic commission composed of the pastor, the evangelistic committee of the local church, the local church Centenary director, the chairman of the minute men, and such others as these may desire to add. The commission shall, in addition to doing all in its power to promote revivals in the local church, carry out the standard plan for a revival, which will come down to it later from the General Commission on Evangelism.

It will be seen at once that it is the desire of the evangelistic agencies of the church to use all the power, momentum and organization that now exists in the Centenary for a great church-wide revival.

Some time in the early spring of 1920 a great simultaneous revival campaign will be put on throughout the whole church. Details of the plan will be given later. Let this much be understood now. No one will be asked to delay his revival campaign until this time. Many are going into revivals at once. The time seems auspicious for it. The Centenary and the Department of Home Missions will lend all help possible for revivals from this day forward. It shall be our steadfast purpose to promote revivals, co-operating with the pastors and presiding elders in their plans. We shall supplement their efforts in every possible way. But after all the local plans now being made shall have been carried out, there will still be need of the big simultaneous movement some time about Easter, next year. There are more than four millions of people within our territory who, if ever converted, will likely be converted in a Methodist revival. If they ever unite with a church it will likely be a Methodist church. If all this constituency should be worked up and brought into the church before the Lenten season, we should not need the proposed simultaneous revival, but the probabilities are that there will still be unsaved people within our reach after all these local revivals shall have been held. It is hoped that such an intensive and extensive campaign can be put on about the Lenten season, that on Easter morning we can look up into the face of our risen Christ and say that every man, woman and child for whom we feel responsible has been invited, urged to accept Christ and be saved. This is the kind of campaign we are planning for. This is the kind of campaign that ought to reach many thousands not hitherto reached.

"IN LUCK."

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D. D.

Artemus Ward, Dan Rice, or some other fellow looking more for fun than business, I suppose, was author of "Better to be born lucky than rich," and for the once I realize that as a truth. Big, fat envelopes, full of leaflets, and special editions of the Advocates, had aroused my desire to see the great "Centenary Celebration" at Columbus, Ohio, only to disappoint my hopes and try my nerves. In appreciation of service rendered, or to secure for themselves a much-merited rest, the churches were giving their pastors "trips;" but who ever heard of so happy a hit for the superannuate, though he would appreciate the outing, as well as the opportunity to see the greatness of the thing for which he had labored—the fruition of his hopes as well as result of his sacrifices. Neither by dream nor vision, but from a thoughtful friend came the check with message, "Go to Columbus, see the big men, hear the great speeches, enjoy the outing, and renew your youth."

So here I am at West Point, on the Mobile & Ohio, waiting for train which, with fellow-travelers, will put us into St. Louis to-morrow morning and thence to seat of the great convention. While the iron horse has been hurrying us across the State to this point, my thoughts have been running up and down the "honor roll," wondering if I shall see other lucky ones of that number whom Dr. Ivey calls "our forgotten men."

I am certain it is only necessary to remind some of our big-hearted, full-pursed laymen to secure this pleasure of a life-time to those who linger with them. This may serve as reminder, and appeal, if it finds place in your columns of July 3, for there will still remain 10 days before the close, and much can be seen in a week.

Our starting point was Greenwood, on the Southern, 9:15 a. m., from which place, all along the way, we have had showers (no sunshine). Crops are small, cotton grassy and corn yellowed. From Winona, east, the topography, soil and growth remind one of Madison county's "Magenta hills," with short-leaf pine, scrubby gum, sage grass and black-eyed Susans. Judging from the signboards, I am convinced that West Point is in (or thinks she is) the alfalfa belt. West Point appears to be a busy, up-to-date town, but the traveling public asks the why of two small, crowded station rooms, instead of one commodious, comfortable union depot. Greenwood, Winona and West Point are all alike in that particular. Why do we have R. R. Commissioners, anyhow? I'll try more after Columbus.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE DURANT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Whereas this session of the Durant District Conference will conclude the work of four district conferences of the Durant District over which our capable and much beloved presiding elder, the Rev. W. W. Mitchell, has presided, and whereas Brother Mitchell will have served a full quadrennium on the Durant District with the closing of this Conference year;

Be it, therefore, resolved by the Durant District Conference, assembled at Louisville, Miss., June 11, That we do hereby express by rising vote our sincere appreciation of Brother Mitchell for his unceasing activities, wise planning, for his faithful and consecrated leadership in the interest of our great church and of the Kingdom of God.

Since he has, by his ability as an able administrator and as a beloved brother, endeared himself to all the people of the district, we desire to have a copy of these resolutions adopted and spread on the Minutes of the proceedings of this body, assuring Brother Mitchell of our love and prayers, as we thank him for his faithfulness and efforts that mark with success every department of the Kingdom's interest during his administration.

IN MEMORIAM—I. C. ENOCHS.

A giant tree stood upon a lonely hill. It had felt the shock of many a storm. The eagle rested in its branches. It saw the last of the sun. All the stars that shined, shined the more brightly to it, because it stood upon the hill. When the night was the darkest it always first saw the breaking of the dawn. So stood Isaac Columbus Enochs.

He sprang from a race of men. His forbears were pioneers. They battled with adversity. He early learned to be himself. From his youth up he was possessed with a sublime faith in the Triune God. To him all riches of earth, body, mind and soul were his. God fashioned them for men. He was in his Father's house. He read the Books. He put his trust in God and knew that his faith was well founded.

He felt the blast of many storms. While willing to stand alone, when right, he was a diligent searcher after truth. Many a time he labored through the night, gathering information, assimilating data, studying to know. He was endowed with a wonderful memory. When sure he had the facts, his judgments were instant, fortified by reason. Then with and from him there was no appeal.

When prohibition was on trial, he personally made affidavits and, through the courts, helped to enforce the law, and to banish an age-old curse. He pleaded for honesty in municipal administration. He fought the growing disregard for the Sabbath day, and there are some who, if they will hearken, can yet hear him, as his spirit pleads.

He believed in the common school system as a trainer in Democracy. He believed that education not only trained the mind but helped to wing the soul. For more than twenty-five years as superintendent of our Sunday school, he taught religion applied. No journey was too long, no night was too dark for any mission of love or mercy. The orphans were his wards. Year in and out he helped to find and raise the tree; to ring the Christmas Bells, expressing his love and Christian joy as innocent childhood with him sang carols to the new-born King.

In God's own time and way may his life, deeds, prayers and faith yield their full fruition!

Be it resolved, That this memorial be spread upon the minutes of the third quarterly conference of the Capitol Street Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and that a copy be furnished the family and the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

"WILL I BE REMEMBERED WHEN I'M GONE?"

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D. D.

Having just read the 49th Psalm—so full of suggestion to a busy, self-seeking world—these words, reported to have been used by the lamented and justly popular President Jas. A. Garfield to his friend, came to my memory. Is this not a laudable ambition? Can any man rightly appreciate his place in this universe and not have such a longing? "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the fowl of the air and over the cattle and over all the earth." Who has ever read that inspiring sermon of Bishop Marvin based upon the 8th Psalm without feeling that he would thwart the very purpose of his being did he not wish, yea, long to leave behind something more vital than a mere block of marble by which to be remembered? The Psalmist, as though he lived to-day, said that men in their desire to be remembered called their estates by their names—but "this their way is their folly," says the writer. These are they of whom the Master spake when he said, "They love the praise of men more than the praise of God."

Dining with a friend, just yesterday, the subject turned upon the changes that had come within our experiences, and he, being the better versed, called attention to the fact that of the large estates and holdings of which we knew in our youth, only two could go back three generations; and I said, "Truly, man that is in honor and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish." By what false standards do men measure life! Passing with the rapidity of the weaver's shuttle, yet one thread at a time, we weave a fabric which may last but a season or may prove a wedding garment for all eternity:

"For the structure which we raise,
Time is with material filled;
Our to-days and yesterdays,
Are the blocks with which we build."

If the foundation be of sand, great will be the fall, though the superstructure be attractive; but if built upon the rocks, it will stand through the storms, the winds, the rains, and the floods, to the admiration of the passer-by. The dying president doubtless had in mind those great leaders in state affairs who had preceded him. Amid the many vexing questions which disturb society and the nation, by many he has long since been forgotten, but is there not some sire, or some son who has heard from sire, the story of the boy who rode the tow path, or who recalls the affectionate incident at his inaugural when he turned from the great mass, charmed by his eloquence, to print a kiss upon the furrowed cheek of his aged mother?

Ever and anon, there come to me in these latter days letters bearing names almost forgotten that say, "you still live around our fireside, though you may be retired." Or, best of all, reference is made to some incident, some word of cheer, yea, and to some sermon which still lingers (the text and all are forgotten) that assure us that in the circle in which we move in this life we need only a reminder to call forth pleasant memories. And though by the masses and the great ones we may be forgotten, yet there are those who love us still and possibly through whom, though dead, we may continue to live.

But to what purpose these lines? Well, only that they were set going by the reading of that great Psalm of warning, that man, being in honor and considering not his place in God's plan, is no better than the beasts that perish; yea, and might we not ask if he fills as well the place of his purpose as the ox that draws the cart or the horse that pulls the plow?

Phoenix, Miss.

THE RECONSTRUCTION.

By Rev. U. G. Foote.

Ere long the battle and the shrieking dies!
War's stern commands will be of yesterday.
Where armies met, the child will build at play
The house of toys; and roses blush where lies
Immortal corps at rest; where mothers pray.
And smile their grief, unwilling to display
The deeper wounds that flow beneath the eyes.

The fields will green again! The popples bloom!
Grim ruins grow to form; and windows flame.
Sweet Nature's children free, renew the game.
The touch of trade will whir the mended loom;
And fires of hate will fade to thinner flame:
For tyrant hands will lose their daring game,
And men their saner ways once more resume.

The world, anon, is born anew through blood.
The cross doth vindicate its ancient right
To fling to distant years its beacon light.
Our race must know and feel its brotherhood—
Must grip the hand of fellowship with might,
And see the neighbor's soul with clearer sight,
Till none dare smite a man e'en tho' he would.

Thus through our sacrificial tears we'll see
And learn the ways of God as ne'er before.
For age on age still wider swings the door,
To where Love's lifted wings will come to be
The trysting place of Peace. With wars no more,
The lark may sing on Mar's old threshing floor;
And men may have the things that prophets see.

THE NEW EDUCATION AND THE FOREIGNER.

By Lane W. Lancaster.

Of all the aspects of America's reconstruction program there is none which presents more phases or is open to more varied interpretations than what we have come to call Americanization. The problem of imbuing millions of foreign-born citizens with the foundation principles of American life, of assimilating them to our own population, is by no means as easy of solution as doctrinaires would have us believe. It calls into play almost as many active and powerful prejudices as there are intelligent thinkers on the subject. Each American who is in any way connected with industrial, political or educational affairs has his personal or class bias, evolved from his own experience and expressed with a sincerity and an emphasis which we may not doubt. And yet it is not to prejudice that we must turn; it is not by clumsy rule of thumb that we must attempt to solve the matter; nor is it to be a thoughtless policy of laissez-faire which shall bring results. It is to be by none of these nor by all. The matter is far from being so simple. But upon wise Americanization, whatever that may come to mean, depends not only the future of the foreigner but the future of our republic.

While it required the war to impress upon us the urgent nature of the problem, this mixture of peoples is no new thing in America. Before the separation of the original thirteen colonies from Great Britain, we find an infusion of foreign elements as varied, if not so numerous, as confronts us to-day. While New England and Virginia were long predominantly English, we find in the other colonies settlers from most European nations. The Carolinas, for instance, attracted immigrants from Huguenot parts of France, from Germany, Moravia and Switzerland, and from those small districts in Scotland and north Ireland which sent to our shores thousands of hardy Scotch-Irish. In the middle colonies, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey, we find, besides the prevailing Dutch and English, French, Germans, Swedes, Finns, Welsh, Scotch-Irish, Flemings and Jews. The polyglot population of modern New York is nothing new when we read that in 1643 there were so many French there that public documents were often printed in both Dutch and French and that eighteen languages were spoken in New Amsterdam. The preponderant English population of New England was due to the religious exclusiveness of the northern colonies, while the agricultural system of Virginia, requiring large capital and cheap labor, made that colony undesirable for newcomers.

The fact that a problem similar to Americanization did not arise in colonial days is to be attributed to two reasons. In the first place, the original English was everywhere in the majority and ruled with characteristic British energy over a varied population which was much more interested in economic progress than in political power. To-day this has changed and we find that in the large industrial centers of the East and Northeast the native American stock has been largely replaced by foreign-born population elements, who are numerically in the majority, and who very naturally look forward to gaining a share in colonial management. In the second place, only a small portion of even the English elements had any share in colonial management. In all the colonies there was restriction of the suffrage by means of either a property qualification or religious conformity. In Dutch New York land was held in vast estates by proprietors who let it out on such terms as made it impossible for tenants to aspire to any station in life higher than their fathers; while in Virginia class lines were so closely drawn that much the same effect was produced. With the removal of restrictions on the suffrage following the Revolution and extending into the middle period of our history, the whole aspect of American life changed. When the flood of immigrants began to arrive shortly after the middle of the last century they found a country where citizenship meant participation in government. Naturalization depended upon the ability to read the Constitution and once attained carried with it the right to vote.

It is from this absorption of a large foreign element unused to political freedom that our present problem arises. It is only within the last century that anything like political freedom has come to the people of European nations. Universal suffrage came to Englishmen only two years ago; Germany before the war had an electoral system which placed wealth and birth ahead of natural equality; while southern and southeastern Europe—whence come most of our immigrants to-day—has, in practice, equally harsh restrictions, and much greater lack of educational agencies. The first English colonists, after quarrels with kings and aristocracies, were trained in self-government, and experienced few fundamental changes in the evolution of a political system on a new continent. We of to-day are taking into the heart of our national life many and strange races to whom free institutions are but names and who are unable to take the first steps in self-government.

The presence of the foreigner among us has given rise to all sorts of plans for our treatment of him, ranging all the way from exclusion of immigrants to restriction of immigration. The latter plan has had as many variations as it has had proponents. The literacy test, the physical test, property qualifications, contract labor exclusion and moral degeneracy tests have all their adherents and have all much to be said in their favor. But restriction and regulation, while they are important, do not strike at the root of the matter. The development of the abilities for self-government among the foreigners with us now will go far towards settling the character of future immigrants. The problem is with us now in the shape of millions of hyphenated citizens and is not an affair of the next generation. If the foreigner with us now lowers the standard of American living, then it is our problem to raise him to our established standard; if the foreigner is not an intelligent voter it is our immediate duty to see that he is so instructed as to become one. His ability to rise in the scale of living and to become an intelligent and patriotic member of the commonwealth can not be doubted if we will but look around us. The burden upon us of providing for 33,000 foreign-born paupers is certainly no greater than that implied in the care of 44,000 native white; it is not more expensive to take care of 54,000 foreign-born insane than 120,000 native white; we have no more cause to be ashamed of 19,000 foreign-born criminals than 53,000 native-born. From the other standpoint—the political—Professor Steiner, himself an immigrant, has some suggestive things to say: "Delaware is not controlled by foreigners, yet the peaches in its political basket are rotten both at the top and at the bottom. * * * New Hampshire and Vermont are not model States in spite of the fact that the foreign vote is almost 'nil;' while the city of Philadelphia can not claim to be better governed than the city of New York where the foreign population predominates and dominates. * * * The immigrant, it is true, will sell his vote, but the American buys it, and sells it, too, and he is the greater traitor, because he is betraying his native country."

These facts, which can be substantiated by observation in any community with a large foreign population, ought to dispose effectually of the argument that the immigrant is of inferior stock and inherently incapable of orderly political growth. A glance at foreigners' contributions to the material, artistic and political progress of our country ought to make it plain that, man for man, the alien transplanted to the soil of the New World has produced, proportionately, as many leaders as the native stock, although such leadership may not always have taken the same fields in which to display itself. Jackson, Clay, Calhoun, Andrew Johnson, Edison, and William McKinley were Scotch-Irish in their ancestry; in the Civil War, Schurz, Sigel, Turchin, and many others rose to the rank of general officers in the Union Army, while foreigners thought enough of the Union to fill whole regiments in which no man spoke English; on the Confederate side, to mention but one, Beauregard was of French descent; in later days we see Minnesota with a Swedish governor, Johnson, and Seattle with a Norwegian mayor; while finance has its Baruch, and the ranks of our most famous artists, musicians and actors have been recruited from England, Poland, Spain, Italy, Ireland, Wales, Germany, Austria, Russia, Rumania and Scandinavia.

If we grant the truth of this argument, we are driven to one conclusion. If we have thrown open our country to the oppressed of the earth as a haven where opportunity is, as Emerson said, synonymous with our name, then it is clearly incumbent upon us to supply those opportunities denied by illiberal governments in the Old World. And when we think of it in this way, we are led back to the same method which lies at the root of the solution of so many of our social ills—education. We may plan as we will for social justice, adequate housing, industrial organization, civic reform, welfare service and the host of other programs which bloom about us in bewildering variety, but at the bottom, fundamentally necessary for a real appreciation and right use of all the others, lies the need of an informed, mentally alert electorate. Before we attain social justice we must arouse not only the determination to have it, but we must make intelligent effort possible; before we provide better housing conditions we must create a real demand for such conditions; before we attempt widespread industrial organization we must train intelligent leaders and a healthy, well-informed public opinion among their followers; before we achieve civic reform we must obliterate the indifference which permits corruption to creep in. Before we rear the superstructure we must lay the foundation.

The responsibility for affording the type of education of which we stand so much in need rests mainly upon our public school system—one of the most truly democratic of our institutions. Where it is not adapted to the new education, there it must be amended, for this is a matter which admits of no clinging to old methods. Fortunately there is a changed attitude toward training for citizenship—at least in the schools dealing with native-born students—and we may look forward with some degree of confidence to a better trained class of political leaders. But this sort of work must be carried to the foreigner. The majority of our immigrants, as is pointed out by Professor Commons, are males between the ages of fifteen and forty-five; in other words, men old enough to enter at once into the labor market. Some way must be found to reach these productive classes, who are barred by their age from the schools, if we are to plant seed where it will bear most abundantly in our national life. A liberal extension of our present school system to include trade and night schools would reach many now beyond the reach of the day school and the technical schools. Public libraries with a more direct appeal to the interests of the foreign-born would have a wide influence. In making it possible for the foreigner to be a real American citizen, we are not only rendering him a service, but we are making the greatest contribution possible in these latter days to guarantee the permanence of our institutions.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

WHY THE MOON LOOKS SAD.

I saw the Moon Mother, big and bright,
Bring out her baby stars one night
To play about the fields of sky;
She watched them with a careful eye.

And then, as plainly as could be,
One star looked down and winked at me!
It was a naughty star, I think,
Because it gave a wicked wink.

Just then a cloudy bit of lace
Was blown across Moon Mother's face;
And while her eyes could not see through,
What did the bad star-baby do?

It passed its little brothers by,
And ran away across the sky!
Then with a merry little spark
Jumped out of the sky, right into the dark!

What happened to that baby star
Who ran so fast and jumped so far?
Perhaps he tumbled in the sea,
And now is sorry as can be.

The other stars come out to play,
But poor Moon Mother pines away,
And I can see her grow each night
More thin and faded, sad and white.

THE PARTY DRESS THAT STAYED AT HOME.

"Oh! mother, isn't it a beauty?"

Lucile held up her new party dress that had just been finished and sent in. The light from the chandelier fell across the soft folds of dainty blue silk, and Lucile's eyes rested eagerly on it as she spoke.

"It is lovely, indeed, dear," said Mrs. Morton, admiring it as much as even Lucile could desire. "And when is the party to be?"

"On Thursday afternoon; and there are fourteen children invited, and we are to play games out on the lawn."

Lucile ran happily out of the room then to put away her blue dress until the day of the party arrived.

The day came at last, and with it Lucile's small friend, who lived five miles out of the city.

"Isn't it nice that you can go to the party, too?" exclaimed Lucile, as she ran down to the gate to meet her, and then they went in to get ready.

"I only have to fix my hair over," said Lucile's little friend. "You see, I didn't know about the party until too late to get a new dress."

Lucile looked at her simple white dress for a moment before she spoke.

"My mother says that white on little girls is always in taste," she said, "and I think you look very nice, indeed."

Then Luelle turned away and stood looking at her own lovely new dress that was all ready for her to wear. Mrs. Morton saw a wistful look flash across her face for a moment, and then as quickly pass away as she chose a white one that hung beside the lovely party dress and hurriedly slipped it on.

"Now you both look very sweet and party like," Lucile's mother said, as she kissed them both good-by. "And the little girl who chose an old white dress instead of her lovely new one has made her mother very glad," she whispered into Lucile's ear; and then the two little girls ran happily away, while the new party dress stayed quietly at home.

APPLES OF GOLD.

"What is my little girl dreaming about?"

Uncle Jack's cheery voice broke the silence in the room where Evelyn had been sitting before a cosy fire reading Hawthorne's "Wonder Book." She had closed the book, though, and was watching the fire leap upon the little black coals and turn them to glowing gold. So Uncle Jack found her, just as twilight was stealing in.

"Oh, Uncle Jack, I've just been reading the most wonderful story about a beautiful tree away off in a garden on the other side of the world. It was always covered with golden apples, and a big dragon, with a hundred heads, watched it all the time, so that nobody could touch it. A wicked king sent his cousin, Hercules, who was a giant, to get three of the apples. On his way to the garden Hercules met another giant, Atlas, who was high as a mountain, and who said he would do the errand, because he was so large he could laugh at the dragon. Atlas walked right through the ocean and picked off three of the golden apples before the dragon could touch them, and took them back to Hercules."

Uncle Jack thought that was a fine story, and Evelyn continued:

"Yes, but it is only a fairy story. There aren't any golden apples nowadays."

"I'm not so sure of that, Evelyn. I was reading in a good book the other day about some."

"Golden apples, Uncle Jack? Please tell me about them."

"Go and get the Book you promised me to read every day."

Evelyn went to her room and brought back the little Bible Uncle Jack had given her for Christmas.

"Now turn to Proverbs 25:11, and read me what you see there."

After some difficulty in finding the place, Evelyn read slowly, by the light of the fire:

"A word, fitly spoken, is like apples of gold in baskets of silver."

"That's the verse. Now what do you suppose 'a word fitly spoken' means?"

"I suppose," said Evelyn, after a little thought, "it means saying something nice to somebody."

"You have the right idea, dear. King Solomon, the wisest man that ever lived, wrote that. He had found that kind words, words spoken at the right time for help and comfort, are valuable as golden apples.

"So, little girl, in God's garden of love there is a beautiful tree, filled with apples of golden words. Night and day a hundred-headed dragon of Evil Thoughts guards the tree, but he can be overcome by the giant of Sympathy, who helps the giant of Good Thoughts. Remember, then, that every time you speak a kind word you are picking an apple from God's tree and storing it up in a silver basket to give back to Him when he calls for His own."

"Oh, what a lovely idea, Uncle Jack; I think I shall always remember to be kind after this."

"I'm sure you will," said Uncle Jack, and as he stooped to kiss her good-night he added, "I wonder how many apples the little basket will have by to-morrow evening."

The next night Evelyn rushed into the library, where Uncle Jack was sitting, and cried:

"Oh, Uncle Jack, I think I have three apples, though I'm afraid they're not very big ones. This morning, when I was going to school, I met a little boy who was crying as though his heart would break. He had fallen in the mud, and his clean white suit was all splashed and dirty. I told him not to cry, that he couldn't help falling, and if he told his mother he was sorry, I was sure she wouldn't scold. The sun would soon dry him off, anyway. The little fellow stopped crying, smiled at me through his tears, and went on playing again. Do you think that was one little apple?"

"I think so," said Uncle Jack, smiling; "and what about the other two?"

"Well, at school this afternoon everybody in our class seemed stupid and noisy, and teacher looked so tired. After four I waited till everybody had gone home, and then I went up and told her I loved her. You should have seen how pleased she was. She just took me in her arms and hugged and kissed me."

Uncle Jack, who remembered the pale, tired, little teacher whom Evelyn had once brought home to tea, thought his niece had picked a big apple this time, and Evelyn, much delighted, continued:

"Then, just now, when auntie was washing the dishes, she broke the cup I gave father for Christmas. She felt badly, but I said, 'Never mind, auntie; his birthday is coming soon again, and I'll get him another.'"

"Well," said Uncle Jack, "this is a new story of 'The Three Golden Apples,' and to my mind it is just as pretty as the first one."—Exchange.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 611 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

CONCERNING RENEWALS.

One of our Conference organs stated recently that it had been losing about $800 a year for several years on account of having to drop subscriptions that were in arrears. We have had occasion more than once to say that a renewal is as important as a new subscription. When a subscription is carried for several months beyond the time it has been paid for, and then has to be dropped because the subscriber fails to renew, there is an actual loss of the amount of arrearage. Of course a subscriber has a perfect right at any time to order his paper to be discontinued, but in such cases, the fair thing to do is to send the request for discontinuance to the Advocate office and at the same time to pay up all back dues.

We do not like to lose a single subscriber, and we never remove names from our subscription files until every opportunity has been given the subscriber to have the paper continued. We send out statements regularly to our subscribers who are in arrears. These are in no sense what are usually spoken of as "duns," but simply business reminders that specified amounts are due the Advocate. We receive such statements every month from the concerns with which we do business. We look for them in the regular course of things; in fact, we look for them as an indication of successful and up-to-date business methods.

We are now engaged in revising our mailing list. There are hundreds of names that will have to be stricken from the list unless their renewals are received within a short time. We earnestly request our subscribers to look at the labels on their papers, and if they find that their time has expired, to send us their renewals without delay. Our preachers can help us very greatly in this matter by calling attention to it, and by doing all they can to secure these renewals. The summer is a dull season with the Advocate so far as receiving new subscriptions is concerned. We would that it were otherwise. But a renewal of the subscriptions that fell due in the spring will enable us to make a satisfactory showing for these dull summer months. The amount of one subscription is small; but when multiplied by hundreds, it becomes a large amount. We hope that every reader of the Advocate whose subscription is now due will send us the amount at his earliest possible convenience. We shall be glad to send to pastors lists of all subscribers within the bounds of their charges if they will give us the names of the post offices served by them.

"ARE THE METHODISTS CIVILIZED?"

Under the above caption, Life, a well-known and widely-read humorous publication, undertakes in its issue of June 19 to discuss a serious subject—the Methodist Centenary movement. We are perfectly willing for Life to try to maintain its peculiar point of view in dealing with any subject whatsoever; and we are prepared to find that some of its attempts at humor are without pith or point at all. In fact, some attempts at humor fall pitifully short, and the less said about them, the better. But when the attempt to be humorous necessitates a crass misinterpretation of facts, we feel at liberty to make a few remarks.

The article in question has the following to say about Methodists in general: "They strike the contemplative mind as a fairly wild and rampageous lot of people, with contracted ideas of human life, and an urgent disposition to pare down their fellow creatures to the dimensions of that restricted model. Most of them would regard as a joke the intimation that Methodists are laggers rather than leaders in civilization, but a lot of strong, enthusiastic support can be had for the suggestion that these centenary millions could not be better spent for civilization than to finance a great movement to civilize the Methodists. Methodism is too puritan, too much given to salvation by legislation, too narrow in its notion of what is wrong, too inventive of new sins and too brash about providing legal penalties to punish them. So long as Methodists provide, and submit to, a discipline for themselves, there is no quarrel with them, but when, grown strong, they seek to impose their discipline on other and unwilling people, they loom up at once as a formidable and tyrannous force, of which account must be taken."

We cannot keep from wondering where the writer of this article has lived all these years, what food he has fed upon, what books he has read, and what people he has associated with, that he should have missed so completely the spirit, character, and aims of one of the greatest constructive movements of modern history. There may be some Methodists who are described by the terms this writer uses—we do not know any such—but we are perfectly willing to have any competent jury of non-Methodists in the world sit upon the question of the sanity, progressiveness, liberality, lack of sectarianism, and freedom from puritanical higotry of "the people called Methodist."

Life is a very good paper in its field; it is not to be taken too seriously as an interpreter of the deeper movements in the world's activities.

A DAY AT THE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

It was our privilege to spend Thursday of last week at the Seashore Divinity School. Dr. Cobern and Dr. Gunsaulus, who had been expected to have places on the program, were unavoidably kept away. Dr. Cobern is, it is understood, in France in connection with the work of the Red Cross, and Dr. Gunsaulus has been compelled to cancel all his engagements for a year on account of ill health. It was a great disappointment that these distinguished gentlemen were not able to be present.

The School was fortunate, however, in being able to secure, on short notice, Rev. Thornton Whaling, D.D., LL.D., President of the Columbia Theological Seminary, of the Presbyterian Church, located at Columbia, S. C. Dr. Whaling is a charming Christian gentleman, with a most engaging personality. His lecture on Tuesday evening was devoted largely to President Wilson, whom he knows intimately, his acquaintance with him dating back to the time when they were schoolmates. We did not have the pleasure of hearing this address, but those who did hear it were given a "close-up" view of our great President. The general theme for Dr. Whaling's lectures had to do with the preacher and his work. We douht if a more suggestive and helpful series of addresses has been given at any session of the Divinity School.

The attendance this year was smaller than usual, due probably to the fact that a great many preachers, who, otherwise, would have been present, were at the Centenary Celebration in Columbus, Ohio, or were planning to make the trip. It is possible, also, that more undergraduates than usual are taking their courses of study this year through the Correspondence School.

The Camp Ground is the same delightful place it has always been, but there is serious need of improved accommodations for the convenience of visitors if it is to maintain its standing as a suitable place to spend the summer. We do not know what the resources of the trustees are, or what their plans for the future are, but we are convinced that this is too valuable a piece of property to pass out of the hands of the church, or to be allowed to fall into disuse. We presume that there is a lack of money enough to do what ought to be done immediately. It is our opinion that the situation should be looked into carefully and some plan devised by which the grounds could be put into proper condition and maintained creditably. We have heard it intimated that there is another organization, not of our church, looking with wistful eyes at this magnificent property and hiding its time to take advantage of whatever circumstances may arise that will enable it to come into possession. We hope a way can be found that will make it possible to restore the Seashore Camp Ground to its former attractiveness and usefulness.

We had to leave on Thursday afternoon, hence are unable to give any personal account of the later features of the program. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo and Dr. Stonewall Anderson were expected to be present later in the session. Rev. C. W. Crisler, the chancellor, and Dr. H. H. McNeill, the dean, were at their posts of duty, looking carefully after all the interests of the School.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

"Things are going nicely here," writes Rev. J. W. Faulk, of Boyce, La.

Bishop W. R. Lambuth has been appointed fraternal delegate from our church to the Methodist Church of Japan.

Chaplain J. Cude Rousseaux, a member of the Louisiana Conference, is now stationed at Headquarters Air Service Depot, Morrison, Va.

Dr. John T. Sawyer reports having preached last Sunday at the Second Methodist Church, of this city, at 11 a. m., and 8 p. m., to appreciative congregations.

Rev. Thurston B. Price, one of our general evangelists who has conducted several meetings in our territory, has recently moved from Siloam Springs, Ark., to Asheville, N. C.

The Central Methodist, the official organ of the Louisville and the Kentucky Conferences, regularly omits the issues during the Christmas holidays and the week of July 4.

District Director Bobbitt, of the Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference, reports that the subscriptions for the Centenary fund, including credits, will reach $200,000.

A note from Rev. H. M. Johnson, pastor of the Millsaps Memorial and Raymond charge, Mississippi Conference, informs us that everything is moving along well on his work.

Rev. C. B. Powell, our pastor at Indian Bayou, La., is meeting with success in his work. On Sunday, June 22, he received eleven girls into the church, and baptized six infants.

"Sunday School Night" was observed at the Representative Church, Washington, D. C., on Tuesday, June 17. Addresses were delivered by Mr. A. L. Dietrich, Rev. J. L. Neill, and Dr. Charles D. Bulla.

Rev. C. H. Ellis, pastor of the Harrisville charge Mississippi Conference, requests us to state that his post office is now Braxton, Miss., instead of Harrisville, as heretofore. Correspondents will govern themselves accordingly.

We are indebted to the pastor, Rev. S. J. Davies, for a copy of the directory of the Queensborough Methodist Church, at Shreveport, La. In addition to the list of members, it contains various items of information useful to the membership.

Dr. W. F. Tillett, for thirty-three years dean of the Theological Department of Vanderbilt University, has been relieved of the deanship at his request, and Dr. O. E. Brown has been appointed to succeed him. Dr. Tillett will continue his work as a professor.

A recent issue of the progressive daily newspaper of Lake Charles, La., contained in full the sermon preached by Rev. W. W. Holmes, the pastor of the local Methodist Church, at the commencement of the Lake Charles High School. It was a good sermon, too.

We learn from a personal letter that Mr. W. R. Bourne, the newly-elected president of Centenary College, at Shreveport, La., has taken up his work and is actively engaged in forwarding the interests committed to his hands. He has made a fine impression upon the friends of the college at Shreveport.

Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Atkinson, with their little daughter, Frances Ruth, are attending the Seashore Divinity School at the Camp Grounds. Mrs. Atkinson and Frances Ruth will soon visit relatives in La Grange and Atlanta, Ga., and Brother Atkinson will go from the Divinity School to the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Kosclusko, Miss., was offered a place on the editorial staff of the great daily newspaper to be published in Columbus, Ohio, during the Centenary Celebration, but was compelled to decline because he was engaged in a revival meeting in his church at the time. Brother Cunningham is one of the most accomplished newspaper men in the church.

Mr. Homer E. Turner, a son of Rev. A. W. Turner, of Shreveport, La., has entered the competition for the prize offered by the Government for the best discussion of the problems of the overseas men after returning home. Mr. Turner's essay was published in full in one of the Shreveport papers. We predict that it will take high rank with those submitted in the contest.

Professor L. A. Sims, principal of the High School at Cheneyville, La., accompanied by his fine young son, Joe Arthur, honored the Advocate office with a call last Monday. He was passing through New Orleans, with his family, en route to Birmingham, Ala., to visit his old home. Professor Sims is a graduate of Centenary College, who has achieved success in the public school work of the State.

Brother E. E. Williamson, of Crew Lake, La., has been a reader of the Advocate for thirty-five years. He is a loyal layman, greatly interested in all the work of the church. A Sunday school has been organized at Crew Lake, of which Brother Williamson is superintendent, and Earl McIntosh, secretary. The attendance on June 15 was one hundred. Rev. Robert Randle is serving as pastor at that point.

We were glad to shake hands with Rev. W. H. Lane, pastor of Rankin Street Church, Jackson, Miss., on last Monday. He was passing through the city on his way home from Biloxi, Miss., where he had been in attendance at the Divinity School. He spoke very highly of Bishop Kilgo's sermons on Sunday, as did others who were privileged to hear them. Brother Lane gave an encouraging report of the work at Rankin Street.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, our popular and efficient pastor at Kosciusko, Miss., has recently been engaged in a revival campaign in his charge. The meeting was begun with the help of Rev. L. W. Cain; he was called away, however, by the illness of one of his daughters, and Rev. A. C. McCorkle took his place. The indications were, at the time we received our information, that the meeting would accomplish much good.

We clip the following from the Alabama Christian Advocate of June 26: "Prof. W. R. Bourne, of the Birmingham-Southern College, has accepted the presidency of Centenary College, Shreveport, La. Prof. Bourne made a most favorable impression on the city of Birmingham. He was exceedingly popular with the students of the college. He won many friends throughout Alabama. He is a strong character, and the Alabama Christian Advocate wishes him a great administration in his new field."

Rev. J. H. Foreman, our pastor at Bolton, Miss., paid the Advocate office an appreciated call on Monday of this week. He was passing through the city on his way home, after having spent several days at the Seashore Divinity School. He gave a glowing account of the work at Bolton. The charge, which is now a station, has made extensive repairs on the church and the parsonage, has raised the pastor's salary above what it was when it was part of a circuit, has paid the first year's installment of the Centenary fund, of which it raised $400 more than its quota, and is making progress along all lines. Brother Foreman is evidently a good foreman.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Mrs. W. W. Hall, Gunnison, Miss., 5; Rev. W. C. Beasley, New Albany, Miss., 4; Rev. W. E. Dickens, Pachuta, Miss., 3; Rev. W. A. Wilson, Myrtle, Miss., 2; Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., Madison, Miss., 2; Rev. H. M. Young, Eupora, Miss., 4; Rev. J. D. Nesom, Oak Grove, La., 3; Rev. R. I. Collins, Shannon, Miss., 2; Rev. W. D. Bennett, Courtland, Miss., 3; Rev. A. L. Davenport, Corinth, Miss., 2; Rev. C. F. Emery, Hattiesburg, Miss., 9; Rev. B. L. Sutherland, Meridian, Miss., 2; Rev. W. I. White, Crawford, Miss., 2; Mrs. W. T. Hegman, Holly Bluff, Miss, 3; J. E. Miller, Blue Springs, Miss., 2; Rev. C. A. Schultz, Gallman, Miss., 2; J. A. Price, Corinth, Miss., 2; Rev. R. G. A. "I Believe Alkavis Saved My Life!"

Green Forest, Ark., April 25, 1909.
The Alkavis Co.

Gentlemen:—I was bothered with Kidney and Bladder Trouble for about twelve years, and finally got so I could not walk without a cane and had to be careful how I stepped. I tried everything I could get that was recommended for it, but nothing did me any good until I tried Alkavis. I sent for a bottle, which did me more good than anything I had tried. I then sent for six bottles of it, and it cured me. I advise all sufferers from Kidney or Bladder Trouble to try Alkavis, for I believe that it saved my life.

Yours truly,
(REV.) JAMES BINKLEY.

ANN CATHRYN OWINGS died at her sister's home in Hot Springs, Ark., May 21, 1919, of septicemia, four weeks after an apparently successful operation. She was born on June 21, 1893; she seemed too young to go. She joined the Methodist Church when 13 years of age, when Brother Brown was pastor here. She was baptized when an infant by Brother Lowe. She "made good" in her chosen line of work while away from home, gaining friends among her co-workers by her social, loving and kind disposition. Her beautifully written, home-loving letters, are our sweetest treasures. Her body was shipped to Byhalia, for interment, near father, sister and brother. Three sisters and families, two brothers and mother are left to mourn her untimely end.

SALLIE OWINGS.

Byhalia, Miss., June 21, 1919.

MRS. MATTIE COLEMAN, aged 77 years, answered God's call to come home, April 13, 1919. Her body was laid to rest in White Oak Cemetery, April 14, her pastor officiating. She leaves one sister, two brothers and many relatives and friends who feel a great loss, especially her brother-in-law, J. H. Coleman, and family, with whom she had lived for several years. Since Sister Coleman was one of the oldest members of the Carpenter M. E. Church, South, we feel that her place cannot be filled. She joined the church quite young and lived so as to touch many lives for her Master. For several months she had been deprived the privilege of attending church because of ill health, but in all her suffering she never failed to mention her pastor, the working of the church and the interest of the young. We rejoice to sing "The old time religion," hut when we have to say good-hye to the sainted who have lived it so long, we are sad and often get homesick and want to go with them. May we say, "God's ways are best," and live and trust him. Then may His spirit comfort and bless us even in our sorrow.

ANDREW J. BOYLES,
Pastor.

Rocky Springs, Miss.

Mrs. FLORENCE McKOY JORDAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Z. McKoy, of Hervey, Miss., was born on February 17, 1878, and passed into her heavenly reward on March 11, 1919. Mrs. Jordan united with the Methodist Church at an early age and her whole life was given to beautiful, loving service to others. She seemed called of God and dowered hy nature for the work of a nurse. Coming to Greenville, Miss., some years ago, she entered the King's Daughters Hospital that she might be prepared for her life work. By her charm of manner and her gracious, thoughtful treatment of the sick she won her way to the heart of the community. The sorrow of her death was as genuine and the regret as sincere as that which marked the going of Dorcas of old.

She went with a patient to Colorado, and upon her return she was taken with pneumonia and never recovered. Her funeral service was beautiful, if a funeral can ever he said to be beautiful. Six of her fellow nurses acted as pallbearers while practically all of the other nurses in town, some twenty or more, dressed in immaculate white, constituted a guard of honor. Beautiful sympathy, hut a more beautiful life. She leaves a mother and father, a son, two sisters and six brothers. Her memory is blessed and her works will follow her.

IN MEMORIAM.

"Say, when thy gentle spirit fled
To realms beyond the azure dome,
With outstretched arms God's angels said,
'Welcome to heaven, home, sweet home.'"

Surely no purer, gentler spirit ever received welcome into the larger, better life than did Willie Eason when her unselfish young life on earth came to its untimely end.

Willie Glynn, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Evans, of the North Mississippi Conference, was born on July 21, 1891. On December 8, 1908, she was married to Dr. J. S. Eason.

She was the mother of three children, Eugenia, J. S., Jr., and an unnamed infant dying at its birth. On Feh. 8, 1919, she passed from the earth she had blessed into the home prepared for as she was. She was born of Christian parents, trained in a Chrsitian atmosphere, and grew up into pure, unselfish Christian character. With the religious home training she received, it was to be expected that she would give herself to God in the very first years of her life. Continuous, uninterrupted growth is ever the condition for development. Her soul, schooled from its earliest years to obedience, and unmarred with disobedience, grew into the heauty of a well-nigh perfect life.

As her early life was given to God, so her early womanhood was given in loving devotion to hushand, home, and children. Gentle, loving, tender, self-sacrificing, she gave herself where duty called, and in the full self-surrender, she fully met the ohligation of daughter, wife, mother, and friend. With such early surroundings, she was, of course, a member of the church and a devoted, consistent member. Her friends were as numerous as her acquaintanceship. All who knew her, loved her. The very delicacy, refinement, and sweetness of her character combine to render impossible its portrayal. Only those who knew her well can appreciate the unselfish purity and loveliness of her life and character.

N. G. AUGUSTUS.

Coldwater, Miss., June 24, 1919.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas Our Heavenly Father has, in His infinite mercy, called unto himself the sweet spirit of one of our beloved members, Mrs. Pattie Moore Sharkey, the Woman's Missionary Society of Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss., which she loved and served so faithfully desires to express its appreciation of her beautiful life; therefore, he it resolved:

First—That in the death of Sister Sharkey we have lost a true friend, a Christlan, and a leader. Her life was an inspiration and henediction. There was about her an irresistible charm of truth, gentleness, and refinement that endeared her to every one. While her tender, gentle voicé is hushed, the husy hands folded over the peaceful hreast, and the earthly mission of our faithful friend is accomplished, yet the influence of such a life cannot end, but live on forever.

Second—That to her noble husband and devoted children and all others within the tender intimacy of the inner circle, we extend our loving sympathy and commend them to the love and care of the Heavenly Father, whom she loved and served so heautifully.

Third—That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Missionary Society, a copy sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication, and a copy forwarded the family of our late loved friend.

Signed: Mrs. J. W. Marley, Chairman; Mrs. W. C. Fryant, Mrs. J. C. Wilkerson.

Freckles

The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.

Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful

FROM COAHOMA AND LYON.

Will you admit a short report of the work of Coahoma and Lyon charge, Greenville District, North Mississippi Conference? Our meetings were gracious revivals.

In Coahoma we had Brother W. C. Galceran, of Jonestown, to do the preaching. Brother Galceran is a true consecrated Christian, a fine preacher and a social charm. How our hearts burned within us as he talked to us of the deep things of God.

Our meeting in Lyon was good for instruction and edification, a real time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord, in spite of the continued rain and the deep sorrow that shadowed the community. Brother W. N. Duncan, of Drew, did the preaching as only Duncan can. He so won all hearts that sometimes the people would get to church before the ringing of the bell. Indeed, we sat together in heavenly places, as the consecrated man of God would unfold the Scriptures and heaven and earth seemed almost to touch as he led us along the way of life.

The Centenary campaign was a success and an inspiration to us. We raised over our quota—all told we footed up 175 per cent.

Our Conference assessments are all paid in cash, and our preacher's salary is paid to date, and by the kindness of Brother E. M. Fant, I am off today to Columbus, Ohio, to the Centenary Celebration. I rejoice that it is my fortune to serve so good and loyal a people. J. H. SMITH, Pastor.

Sunday School

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The Epworth League Assembly meeting was well attended. Mansfield College is an ideal place for such a gathering. To those who know the College, such words are unnecessary, but some of us learned the value of that great institution. We are expecting the students at the Assembly to prove its real value.

The Baton Rouge District Conference, with its Sunday school institute, will be held on Tuesday, the 8th. A good program is provided. The Sunday school program will begin at 10 a. m., and close with a talk by the presiding elder, Brother H. W. May. This is the meeting at which we elect our district Sunday school officers. The leading officer for a district is district secretary. Who will it be?

Summer time is an easy time to rest. The number of schools in the Louisiana Conference which have not been visited by the Field Secretary will not be reached unless pastors, superintendents and workers assist him in making his dates. If there is any question in your mind about the date given you, write to the office, which is at my residence at Alexandria, 306-15th Street. Give street number, as it will expedite the mail in being delivered.

The Lake Junaluska Training School for Sunday school leaders will be held July 23-August 6. Your Sunday School Field Secretary will attend. He will leave about the 21st and will return in time to conduct a teacher-training course at Bluff Creek Camp Grounds, which continues from August 8-17. The Sunday school hour will be at 9 o'clock a. m., every day. Students who will attend the lectures and do the class work will receive credit in our Teacher-training Department. The text book will be Rall's "The Life of Jesus," 85c, Smith & Lamar, Dallas, Texas.

ALONZO EARLY,
Sunday School Field Secretary.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Are you going to attend the great Training School for Leaders at Lake Junaluska? There is not a church that is fully supplied with the leaders needed to do the work.

Six of the teachers of the Holly Springs Church expect to attend this school from July 23 to August 3. These teachers will help do the work in this historic church.

How can money be spent that will bring larger returns than when invested in young lives to be trained for Christian leadership? Had I a thousand dollars to give, I would select a hundred fine young people and have them take the course in Leadership and have them return to their homes and train a hundred classes. The Kingdom does not come by the wholesale, so we must be content to wait and let it come slowly and in small spots.

Lake Junaluska offers courses for preachers, superintendents, and the teachers of teacher-training classes. At least ten schools ought to send teachers to take this last mentioned course. A real live preacher might have this important work done.

The Centenary Drive is in the past, but the work for the next century has just begun. More than one man has asked the question, "Will all the money subscribed be paid?" Most of it will be paid; there are a few people who consider their obligations no more than a "scrap of German paper." They need to be taught common honor. This is one reason why it is more important to give missionary instruction than it is to give missionary money. Some do not believe this.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The Newton District Conference was a fine conference. The Sunday school has a fine set of officers: W. D. Cook, Forest, Secretary and Treasurer; Mrs. J. E. Okey, Forest, Elementary Superintendent; Rev. M. L. White, Homewood, Teacher-training Superintendent; O. C. Hull, Lawrence, W. B. C.; Mrs. J. T. Brown, Laurel, Missions; Mrs. W. A. McMahon, Union, Home Department.

Brother White's address on Teacher-training was well worth while, and I believe will do much good. Mrs. Okey confined herself to pleading for answers to her letters from the different charges.

I wish to make this request, that each local Sunday school worker please report any advance along Sunday school lines to the different district officers. Please make the yearly reports, at least. Let each director of teacher-training report to the district superintendent; elementary superintendents the same. In this way we can get the information that we so much need to carry on our work.

Sunday and Monday were spent on the Saucler charge. It was well spent. We had two people for prayer and one young girl confessed Christ. Brother Grice is happy in his work. His Centenary pledge is about double and there are many other evidences of progress and advancement.

The Sunday School Board of the Mississippi Conference is trying to serve the Conference to the very best of its ability. We would appreciate the holding of Sunday School Day by the various Sunday schools and the sending of the collection to Mr. D. S. Harmon, Poplarville, Miss.

I am anxious to find some effort for the Banners. Pray for the work and the workers.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness. GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

IMMANUEL, GOD WITH US.

The steps of the way we know not,
But our Leader we know full well;
Our hands are in his, we fear not,
In the depths of his peace we dwell.
He knows where he leads us, we know not,
But we trust in his love each day;
Our hearts are his own, we fear not,
For the way is the Lord's highway.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Scientific Treatment For Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a salt combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis of the Nashville Railway and Light Company says: "I must say that Renwar far surpassed my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief; too much can not be spoken in behalf of 'Renwar' for rheumatism." Economy and Extra Value in Motor Cars

ECONOMY and LUXURY meet in the BOUR-DAVIS MOTOR CAR.

We invite your closest scrutiny and comparison to the claims we make for the BOUR-DAVIS.

Light in weight, constructed with a view to strength and endurance, it is priced within the average man's pocketbook.

The BOUR-DAVIS is as easy to operate as to buy. The stream-line body is a masterpiece of the body builders' art, and is mounted on an amply powered, thoroughly reliable, standard six-cylinder chassis.

The BOUR-DAVIS motor car commands the admiration of the critical car enthusiast everywhere. The luxurious appointments and distinctive appearance single out the BOUR-DAVIS as an EXCEPTIONAL motor car at the price at which it is sold.

In every section of the country, and under every road test, and under all conceivable weather conditions the BOUR-DAVIS has proved every claim that has ever been made for it and has delighted the owner.

Examine this car at your dealer's, or write for catalogue, and know more about the BOUR-DAVIS before you buy any motor car.

A GENEROUS PROPOSITION.

Dear Brother Carley: I am sending you this note for publication. I think it is, perhaps, about the fifth or sixth in the past twenty-five years; so if this should be tossed aside, it can't be because of my continual coming.

This is a great day in which we are living; great things are taking place in both church and State. The press is filled with matter that is of much interest to every one, and to the publishing of books there seems to be no end, some of which, of course, are unworthy of our reading, while others bring to us much needed information and should have a place on our mental festal board.

Most of us, if not from choice, were required to form the habit of reading, and this fondness for books has played no little part in what little we may have accomplished in life; and not only so, but it has furnished mental recreation so necessary for a tired body and mind. As I was recently enjoying a good book, Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus' "Paths to the City of God," I thought of our dear old fathers who in early life acquired a fondness for books, who are now retired on the shameful pittance of two or three hundred dollars a year, which makes a new book entirely out of the question. I should think to bind the old coat, darn the old trousers, or to wear the light suit far into the autumn or the heavy suit far into the summer, is a task far easier than to be forced to do without an occasional good book. As I thought thus in my heart, I asked the Lord to open a way by which this could be, in a measure at least, relieved. The result of this prayer is that a good layman of my church 'phoned me to come to his office for a little conference, in which he said to me, "I have some money that belongs to the Lord and I want you to direct the using of it." In my heart I said, "Thank God for answered prayer!" Brethren, do you know of a better way to place a bit of the Lord's money? I can think of no better way than to buy a good book occasionally for these dear brethren who, by their unselfish labor of love, laid the foundation upon which we are building.

So, my dear brethren, whom we love and honor for the great work you have done, if at any time you should see a good book listed, that you would enjoy, send me the list and the book will be mailed to you.

We have just closed a splendid revival here, with twenty-five accessions to the church and the entire church-life quickened. This, perhaps, is one of the best revivals Philadelphia has known for many years. Rev. L. J. Miller, of Nashville, did the preaching. Brother Miller is safe, sensible and religious. I know of no better revivalist anywhere. Brother Carlton Coleman, of Memphis, had charge of the choir. Brother Coleman is a young man of splendid ability, and will, ere long, take his place among our best song evangelists.

We are trying to do some constructive work to take care of the young life of the church.

Your brother in Christ,
C. M. CROSSLEY.
Philadelphia, Miss., June 24, 1919.

SICILY ISLAND CHARGE.

The following is the report of the Centenary Drive for the Sicily Island charge:

Sleeping Sickness Fly of Africa

How Method of Fighting This Pest Inspired Manufacture of Sweet Dreams Mosquito Remedy.

A traveler in relating his various experiences in Africa, casually mentioned how the natives protected themselves against the ravages of the Tsetse fly. As is generally known, the bite of this fly results in "sleeping sickness," a malady from which no unfortunate ever recovers.

It was reasoned that a remedy capable of keeping off these flies would also keep mosquitoes off. So, in America this remedy was reproduced as nearly as possible. Having been found exceptionally satisfactory as a mosquito remedy, this mixture has since been offered in commerce under the trade name of Sweet Dreams. The efficiency of the preparation has caused its immediate acceptance everywhere. And the traveler doesn't yet know that his entertaining story resulted in the birth of an industry. When mosquitoes are troublesome, try Sweet Dreams.—Adv.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The literature for this quarter has largely been sent out, where proper addresses are available. Beginning with October, the first month of the last quarter of our fiscal year, all leaflets, except social service leaflets, will be sent to auxiliary presidents by the Conference officer in charge of literature, who is Mrs. Williams, of Oakdale, La. Mrs. W. W. Holmes, of Lake Charles, will send the social service literature.

Upon the presidents of auxiliaries rests a fine responsibility—by her constant oversight and diligent care she will see to the important details of the auxiliary. She must know that her corresponding secretary keeps the district secretary supplied with proper lists of officers, and should any change take place, that the district secretary is notified at once.

FAILURE OF AUXILIARIES TO RECEIVE "INFORMATION FOR LEADERS."

I regret exceedingly that so many complaints come to me about not receiving the necessary material to prepare for the program. As there is occasion for complaint, of course, I welcome them, as that is the only way to remedy the trouble. The literature for May did not reach me until the 9th of that month and I sent it out before twenty-four hours had elapsed. The delay on the part of the Central Office is occasioned by labor troubles that are beyond their control. These matters are now adjusted, however, and I have in hand the leaflets for July and August, one copy of which has been sent to every auxiliary that I can get in touch with. I have been away for ten days, conducting the Mission Study at the Epworth League Assembly at Mansfield, but left the addressed envelopes with a friend, to mail with the June leaflets when they should arrive. I was not then aware that Mrs. W. W. Holmes, Supt. of Social Service, had charge of this work. Evidently, she has not been furnished with a list of the Superintendents of Social Service, as the complaints have reached me in large numbers that they have not gotten this material. It is clearly not her fault and demonstrates the great necessity of Corresponding Secretaries' keeping their District Secretaries posted as to the changes in their offices. I have a letter stating that the name I have listed is that of a lady who held the office several years ago; another stating that the person has moved away and the literature consequently lost entirely.

I am mailing a Bulletin to-day bearing date of June 12, which states: "If your society has not received the leaflets, notify the Conference officer in charge of literature. All of these are attractive and helpful and your society cannot afford to be without them in preparing the programmes. Information for Leaders for September—the Social Service Study—'Making America Safe Industrially.' (In most of the Conferences, this leaflet is sent out by the Conference Social Service Superintendent.) If an Auxiliary has no Social Service Superintendent, or has failed to send the name of this officer to the Conference Superintendent, no leaflet will be received. Attend to this in time to get the literature for the September meeting."

I shall mail with the Bulletin leaving to-day one additional copy of "Information for Leaders" for July and August to every society.

I trust that the faithful women in charge of this important work in the auxiliaries—Study and Publicity—will continue to advise me if they have any trouble in receiving the helps to which they are entitled and must have. If there is anything that I can do to facilitate matters, I shall appreciate greatly being informed of it.

Mrs. R. H. WYNN,
Supt. Study & Publicity, La. Conference.

THE WORK AT BATON ROUGE, LA.

The Missionary Society at Baton Rouge has been busy doing things, and this is one of the things they have recently done: It was on the heart of Mrs. Fred Sheppes to hold a co-operative meeting; she called upon leaders in other churches and found them interested. The subject chosen for the afternoon program was, "The Missionary Work Being Done in Brazil and Cuba." A representative woman from each church told with interest of the work her church is doing in these Latin countries. Before the meeting closed, Mrs. Coats, of the Episcopal Church, made an appeal to the women for a union of their strength to work among the Negroes. As a result of their discussion, a co-operative board has been formed, with representatives from all of the Protestant churches to begin definite activites among the Negroes for their social and religious betterment.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, It has been the wisdom of the Great and All-Wise to take from us our beloved Sunday school superintendent, Prof. C. C. Doty, whose call came to him on the 8th inst., and as evidence of the high esteem in which he was held by the Methodist Sunday school, of Lambert, Miss.

Resolved, first, That in his death we not only lose a faithful, efficient, and devoted, business-like official, but a loving, zealous, and influential Christian as well.

Resolved, second, That we, as a body, shall ever hold in fond remembrance his faithful services, his loving companionship, and his generous aid in promoting the success of our Christian workers.

Resolved, third, That we feel deeply grateful for the sincere interest that he always manifested in our soul's welfare and in the teaching of God's Word with a kindly smile of encouragement that urged us on to achieve greater Christian knowledge.

Resolved, fourth, That we extend our prayerful sympathy to and pray God's blessings upon his bereaved loved ones.

Resolved, fifth, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the Lexington Advertiser and one to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Mrs. E. J. LOGAN,

A MAN'S LIBRARY.

A little library growing larger every year is an honorable part of a man's history. It is a man's duty to have books. A library is not a luxury, but one of the necessaries of life. Books are the windows through which the soul looks out. A home without books is like a room without windows. No man has a right to bring up his children without surrounding them with books, if he has the means to pay for them.—Henry Ward Beecher.

One Million Five Hundred Thousand Pounds of Powder for the Feet.

That is what the government sent last year to make the soldiers' and sailors' feet comfortable and fit for the kind of war they fought and finished.

In peace and war for over 25 years, Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic, Healing Powder for the Feet, to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath, has been the standard remedy for all aching, swollen, hot, tired feet, blisters and sore spots and for the instant relief of corns, bunions and callouses.

Thousands of people sent packages of Allen's Foot-Ease to their sons, brothers or sweethearts in the army and navy because they knew from experience that it would freshen and rest their feet, make their shoes comfortable and walking easy. Those who use Allen's Foot-Ease have solved their foot troubles.—Adv.

Poultry Expert Gives Away Chick Food

To introduce to the poultry raisers of this section a Chick Food that is nationally known, E. J. Reefer, the Poultry Expert, 3rd Floor Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., is giving away free a one dollar package of Chick Food absolutely free to every poultry raiser who agrees to tell his neighbor about it. This medicated Baby Chick Food is sold on an absolute guarantee to raise chicks for six weeks and it is backed by the National Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Send Mr. Reefer one dollar and he will not only send you one regular dollar size package of Chick Food, but he will include in the same shipment an extra package absolutely free, which means he will send you two regular full size dollar packages of this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food for only one dollar. And he will prepay all the charges on the first order. Considering that this product is guaranteed by the National Reserve Bank and that it keeps baby chicks for six weeks, every poultry raiser should certainly try this scientific medicated Baby Chick Food without further delay. It will pay you to write Mr. Reefer to-day.—Adv.

The distinctive flavor of

Coca-Cola

The flavor of Coca-Cola is a composite of natural fruits so delicately blended that the palate is unable to distinguish any one of the component parts—the result is a distinctive flavor.

The art of compounding flavors has become a science which requires a lifetime to master. That is why it is so difficult to imitate the distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola.

The slightest deviation from the delicate balance of flavors reveals the imitation. When you ask for Coca-Cola demand the genuine by full name — nicknames encourage substitution.

MRS. T. W. DYE—A MEMOIR.

A great loss came to many hearts when Mrs. Emma Busby Dye passed away at Clarksdale, Miss., April 3, 1919. She was born near Shreveport, La., October 17, 1856, where her parents, William H. and Elizabeth Busby, then lived. She leaves four brothers and four sisters to mourn a great loss. Sister Dye's parents belonged to that great and now extinct class, the old plantation owner of the South. Born of such blood and reared in such an atmosphere, she inherited and illustrated in her noble life the highest virtues and charm of that great and peculiar race. Reared in such an atmosphere of hospitality, she was a gracious hostess, and her hospitable board was a place of delight to the host of friends who loved to resort to her attractive home. Inheriting and practicing the many-sided virtues of her noble ancestry, she was a most practical home-maker and a delightful housekeeper.

She was a lady, a Southern lady, with all that this full and suggestive phrase implies. Her genial and loving nature, attractive temperament and gracious manner drew all hearts to her, and the genial freshness and abounding sympathy made her especially attractive to the young.

She was married, June 15, 1895, to Rev. T. W. Dye, and was with him in the traveling connection until his retirement. She was a most loving and loyal wife, and met to the fullest measure all the demands made upon a preacher's wife, sympathizing with the cares and sharing the duties of this exacting life. How kind and sympathetic she was towards the ministry and how delightful her bearing towards them! She had no children, but she met successfully a situation even more difficult to meet than that of a mother. To her husband's children she became a true and devoted mother, winning and keeping to the end their confidence, respect, and deepest love. She was born and reared in a Christian home and was, about all of her life, a true, devoted, and consistent member of the Methodist Church. She loved her church and its ministry and to both she was a helpful, loyal, devoted friend.

After some months of patient suffering, she fell on sleep, resigned, submissive to the higher will, and in full hope of a glorious awakening into the greater life which is to come. In her death the writer feels bereaved of a true, faithful friend. But what a loss in his latter years to the devoted husband! Would that I could express to him the love and sympathy I feel for him in this time of lonely separation from one who has meant so much to him. Surely, theirs was a noble union of noble souls. Shall we not thank God for such a life and for its glorious ending of patient, yet triumphant, faith? N. G. AUGUSTUS.

Coldwater, Miss., June 24, 1919.

FROM SOUTH SIDE, CORINTH, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Please give me a little space in your valuable paper. We have a small membership of mostly all laboring people, working by the day, and I thought, and I still think, ours was the heaviest assessment for the Centenary of any church, considering our ability. Our quota was $1925, and, counting our credits, we ran up to $2187.50. I think this a good record for South Side Church, Corinth, Miss. Only 52 of our members subscribed this amount, my own subscription being included.

THE TEST OF TIME

When an article is without merit public sentiment condemns it. It immediately dies a natural death. When an article has merit, it will be everlastingly in demand. Gray's Ointment has now been used for a full round century. No greater proof can be offered of its effectiveness. One hundred years of honest, good old-fashioned value for money received has made it a family word in every household. Effective for sores, boils, burns, cuts, bruises, stings, eczema and the many forms of skin eruption. Ask your druggist. If he can't supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you free.—Adv.

AN AFTER-CENTENARY REVIVAL.

I have been very much interested by the articles as to a great revival to follow the successful Centenary Drive, and am happy to state that God has granted us just such a blessing.

In our preparation for the Centenary Drive, we constantly emphasized prayer, and organized a prayer meeting that has grown in numbers and power. Out of this prayer meeting were developed our Centenary workers, and it is not surprising that we raised more than our assessment.

Rev. A. J. Townsley was with us for more than a week and rendered efficient service. He is not only an attractive preacher, but he is full of zeal and energy in personal work. He carries a Greek Testament with him, and we enjoyed several pleasant occasions searching for and finding the gems of thought that only the original tongues reveal. Every department of our work is prospering and the outlook is bright.

I leave Monday for Columbus, Ohio, to attend the Centenary Celebration.

With a heart full of thanksgiving and a desire to be used solely for the glory of God, I am, Sincerely, restores vitality and energy by purifying and enriching the blood. You can soon feel its Strengthening, Invigorating Effect. Price 60c.

P. H. FONTAINE.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

GIVING ENTIRE SATISFACTION.

There is a remarkably effective combination of blood-purifying, nerve-strengthening, liver-stimulating remedies. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla for the blood, taken before eating, Peptiron for the nerves, taken after eating, and Hood's Pills for the liver, taken as needed.

It is giving entire satisfaction. Persons suffering from a combination of ailments such as cause eruptions on the face or body, paleness, pallid lips, cheeks and ears, and constipation, especially find it beneficial.

The treatment accomplishes so much that, although there are three medicines, it is the most economical. Each of these medicines is of superlative merit for the troubles for which it is especially recommended. Each is good alone; all are good together. Your Greatest Problem— That Boy of Yours.

What kind of a man will he be ten, twenty, thirty years from now? You know, every parent knows, that it depends entirely upon the training he is getting right now, his associations, his ideals, his inspirations.

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, Principal of the Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., has been training boys for twenty-five years. He wants your boy. He recognizes in him one of the men who may some day manage big affairs and he wants to train him for that end. His school has been built and equipped, and his instructors chosen with the first and only consideration of giving the boy the mental and physical training, the associations, with clean, high-minded men, the ideals of character, the inspirations to ambition, which the world expects. Robert K. Morgan is a Christian gentleman of strong, wholesome, inspiring personality, and his school is the material projection of that character. Write Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tennessee, to-day, and let him send you a catalogue and tell you what this school can do for your boy.

WAR-TIME PROHIBITION.

The war-time probibition law has gone into effect, but it is almost impossible to tell very much about its operation at this time. When Congress refused to act upon President Wilson's recommendation to exempt light wines and beer from the operation of the law, it was believed that its enforcement would proceed along tbe lines of a strict interpretation of the act. But almost at the last minute, the attorney general of the United States, reversing a previous ruling of the Department of Justice, announced that the law would not be enforced against those selling beer and wine of less tban 2.75 alcoholic content, although he did say that future action might be taken against such. The result of this ruling was tbat the dealors themselves hardly knew what course to pursue, and the public generally had the feeling that the brewers had been given such consolation as tbe Government was able to extend. The presumption is that only light wines and beers are being sold—but it is only a presumption. It would take a careful and exhaustive analysis to determine the amount of alcohol in a given bottle or glass of beer, and it would be practically impossible to make such a test in tbe thousands of saloons which are still doing business. However, there is every reason to believe that Congress will soon take action that will leave no doubt as to what constitutes an intoxicating beverage, and we may tben bope to reap the full benefit of the law. In tbe meantime, gratifying results bave become evident. The New Orleans newspapers on July 4 stated tbat only two arrests for drunkenness had been made up to that time since the law went into effect, as compared with an average of about twelve each night under former conditions. This is a fact that cannot be overlooked by those who have decried the economic value of prohibition. According to newspaper accounts, not a single arrest for drunkenness was made in New Orleans on July 4. That is something of a record.

WHAT ARE THE OTHERS PAYING?

One of tbe leading department stores of New Orleans bas announced that hereafter no employee will receive less tban $12 a week, except tbose who, having been newly employed, are still in a probationary class. In addition to the weekly salary, a commission on sales will be paid when the sales exceed a specified minimum. The president of the company adopting this plan has made the following statement: "We are simply going to buy the services of the highest class of people in this whole community and we are willing to pay well for those services." It all depends upon the point of view as to whether or not $12 a week is a liberal wage. Assuming that it is liberal, we wonder what other business concerns in this city are paying tbeir employees. It must not be very much, else some boast of it would be made in the newspapers. We cannot conceive of a just wage very much lower than $12.

"CONSCIENCE MAKES COWARDS."

A man was walking quietly along tbe street. He saw several policemen ahead of him and immediately turned and walked rapidly in the opposite direction. The suspicions of the policemen were aroused, tbey arrested tbe man, and found a lottery outfit and a considerable sum of money in bis possession. He is now awaiting trial on a criminal charge. We do not know whether he will be found guilty or not, but tbe presumption is that he knew that he was a violator of the law. He could not look its guardians straight in tbe eye. He was evidently lacking in the self-consciousness of rectitude. Whether his conscience smote bim or not, his actions showed tbat he was afraid. The man wbo has done wrong cannot conceal his guilt forever. Only tbe man wbo knows he is right can always keep straight ahead. Self-condemnation is tbe severest of all punisbments.

FINERY AND A FALL.

A young man was recently arrested in a local hotel for having in bis possession ten silk shirts, valued at more than $100, wbich be was charged witb having stolen from a fellow-guest. Many a tragedy lies bebind fine clotbes. The desire for tbings beyond one's means has ruined many lives and wrecked many souls. St. Paul was speaking to us all when be said, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content."

ANOTHER PRODUCT OF THE LOG CABIN.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, honorary president of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, died at her home in Moylan, Pa., on July 2. She was one of the most distinguished women of her age, and exercised a remarkable influence in the movement tbat has culminated in the submission of the suffrage amendment to the Constitution of the United States. But the thing that struck us most forcibly in reading a brief sketcb of her life was the fact that she rose from poverty and obscurity to a position of commanding influence. She came to tbis country from England when four years old, and lived witb her parents in a log cabin in a Michigan wilderness, forty miles from a post office and a hundred miles from a railroad. She began her career as a school teacher, walking eight miles a day to her work and receiving four dollars a week for her services. She worked her way tbrough college, finally being graduated from the Boston Scbool of Tbeology in 1878. She desired to enter tbe ministry, but was refused ordination by the Methodist Episcopal Churcb. Sbe was ordained, however, by the Methodist Protestant Church, being tbe first woman to receive such recognition. We do not commend her public activities as an altogether safe example for our girls to-day, but we do admiringly call attention to wbat she was able to accomplish by her determination to succeed and ber willingness to work for wbat sbe believed to be rigbt. America is a great country in which to make tbe most of opportunities.

THE PROFITS OF PUGILISM.

The recent prize fight at Toledo, Ohio, for the heavyweight championship of the world, lasted nine minutes. One of the participants received $100,000 and the other received $27,500. The promoters of the contest made profits that are expressed by six figures, the city of Toledo received a good many thousands of dollars for its charitable institutions, and the Government received a large sum through tbe tax on admissions. We have taken these figures from newspaper reports, wbicb, we presume, are correct. It was a successful undertaking, financially. But there were losses that must be taken into consideration. The brutal instincts of thousands of men and—sad to say—women were further coarsened by a bloody exhibition; other multiplied thousands of people, many of tbem mere boys, had flaunted before their eyes in the newspaper accounts of the fight what amounts to a kind of deification of brute force—a dangerous tbing at any time, and especially dangerous in this age; public attention was focused for several days upon an event that could not possibly be thought of as elevating; an insidious influence bas been generated that will probably make itself felt for years to come. Money was made—yes; but money is one of the cheapest things in the world. We cannot but feel that the finer treasures of mind and heart of the American people have been sadly depleted. We do not envy Toledo the notoriety she bas gained by permitting this debasing exhibition. We hope public sentiment will make it impossible to have a repetition of it anywhere on the American continent.

NOW THE WOMEN MAY SMILE.

We read the otber day that the Government has just placed an order for 105,000 yards of ribbon—sixty miles of it—to be used in making service stripes for the men who served in the war against Germany. These men deserve the ribbon—we have not the slightest doubt of that—but the women will probably smile "up their sleeves" when they see the men wearing so much ribbon upon theirs.

A LITTLE TOO SEVERE.

Press dispatches announce tbat the Mexican State of Sonora has adopted a very effective means of enforcing its prohibition law: any one convicted of dealing in intoxicating liquor will be summarily executed. We are inclined to think that such penalty is a little too severe, though we admire the determination of the Mexican officials to have the law respected. We have an idea that sucb a regulation in this country would remove the desire of the most hardened saloon keeper to sell a beverage containing as much as one-half of one per cent of alcohol. We understand tbat a penalty of deatb for tbe president of a bank tbat fails has prevented a bank failure in China for a thousand years.

LETTERS TO THE PREACHERS AND METHODIST PEOPLE IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE AND THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCES.

By Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo.

III.

My Dear Brethren: Preaching is the divinely appointed human agency for the promulgation of the gospel. Nothing else can take its place. Singing is a mighty agency in expressing the truths of the gospel and confessing the faith of the saints, but it can not substitute preaching the Word. Neither can banquets and programs and social fellowships take the place of the preacher in God's plan of redeeming grace. So I exhort us all to preach the Word, preach it with fire from on high, preach it with all the powers of soul and spirit, preach it as the last promise of God to dying men. There has never been a religious awakening in the world in which preaching was not the outstanding feature of it.

And the preaching must be doctrinal preaching. Don't run from this statement. Jesus gave the world doctrines just as well as he gave it life. He was as truly a teacher as He was a benefactor. "These sayings of mine" constitute the sure foundation of the indestructible house. All the Apostles put tremendous emphasis on the soundness of doctrines, while St. Paul showed intolerance toward every disposition to belittle the doctrines of the gospel. We need no clearer proof of the vital place which doctrinal preaching fills in revivals than the history of our own church. Mr. Wesley was the greatest doctrinal preacher since the days of the Apostles. His sermons are all on some fundamental doctrine of the gospel. They are, for the larger part, definitions and explanations of the doctrines. Read them, and note their character and the results that followed from them. We take for granted that the world knows what we mean by repentance, but one man out of ten could scarcely give a correct statement of gospel repentance. So it is with justification, regeneration, sanctification, faith, or any of the other cardinal doctrines that lie at the foundation of all Christian life. We have spent too much time in our preaching on the smaller phases of ethics and the simpler tasks of the church, society, and the state. About these things there is not much ignorance or misapprehension. But there is monumental, fatal ignorance about those truths which mean salvation through Christ Jesus. We can not take for granted that the degree of general intelligence carries with it a knowledge of the doctrines of the gospel as well as a knowledge of geography, arithmetic, literature, chemistry, and physics. Scholars in these fields of study are often ignoramuses in gospel truths. My observation has been that there is more startling ignorance of saving knowledge among the so-called learned than there is among the so-called unlearned. Even some educated preachers, those who have had special training, as often quote some poet or essayist or statesman as they quote the Bible, and their utterances about the fundamental truths of redemption are very muddled, to say the least of them. The world needs re-educating in the doctrines of the gospel, and this should be one of the outstanding aims of a revival of religion.

It will be well for us all, preachers, Sunday school teachers, stewards, and Sunday school superintendents, to read Mr. Wesley's sermons on the Fall of Man, Justification by Faith, Repentance, Regeneration, Perfection, Eternity, and others. They will do us great good and fit us to direct others more clearly in the way of truth and salvation. Asbury's Journal is worth prayerful reading at this particular time. Knowledge of his labors and of his faith will give us stirring knowledge of what it is to have a holy passion for the salvation of sinners. I pray that all of us may become filled with a sense of God and devote ourselves through His Spirit to the one supreme work of His eternal Son.

EASTER-TIME IN FRANCE.

It is Reveille for the Church—Not Taps.

By Rev. Elmer C. Gunn.

I.

As a church, we have come to what the leading Germans used to speak of as "Der Tag." With fear and trembling we should realize that "the ground whereon we stand is holy," because it has been bought with the blood of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, and with the added sacrifice of the martyrs of all the years since Jesus paved the way on Golgotha for the higher life to have expression in sacrifice supreme. The dawn is reflected on the hill-tops of our day and generation. It is the dawn of a new day, and to us all a strange day, in that it is bringing to us the glory of a new start as a church and as a world. "Watchman, what of the night? Watchman, what of the night? Behold the morning cometh," is the music of the message that is ringing in our souls like a reveille calling us to tasks such as never before faced a people, and opportunities for which Christ deemed His crucifixion but a little thing if, working as a leaven through the years, it might bring this to pass.

In the city of Jerusalem two thousand years ago there was gathered a little band of workers upon whose prayers and efforts the hope of all the world was to depend. One watching them would have been impressed with one thing only, and that the zeal of their offered prayers. The task before them was impossible. With less than two hundred men; without a college; without visible means of support; without political prestige, this little band was called upon to change the course of history, open up the long-checked channels of the spirit of mankind so that the Spirit of God could flow, and in the end bring to pass the long-desired, the angel-heralded, the Messiah-proclaimed Kingdom of Heaven on earth. These disciples were not to be in haste about beginning the work assigned to them; they were to "wait" until the fire of the Holy Ghost of Heaven, falling into their souls, equipped them for their task.

Your task and mine is, in a way, as great as was theirs. Two thousand years have brought the church a blessed testimony of experience, but they have not changed our problem. The world is largely the same as when this faithful band faced it at Pentecost with fearless, Spirit-filled hearts. Only the unseen, leaven-worked results have made for us a better chance to succeed. The way of beginning cannot be improved! The situation demands immediate attention. Never in history could it be said more truthfully that "The King's business requireth haste," but, in God's name, let us not be so impulsive, so impatient, as to plunge ourselves into the maelstrom save only in God's good time and at His direction. Let us "wait in prayer" until the "sound of the gentle stillness" of God's voice speaks to us and orders us forward under his leadership.

II.

As a church, how shall we meet the needs of this great day of opportunity? How shall we face the future this solemn Easter-Time? It is a new world we are facing—"old things are passed away, behold all things are become new"—a new world from which many, many things have been taken, but in which sin with its slimy folds still lurks. In this new world, shall we as a church remain unchanged? "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it." was spoken of principles on which the church should be founded and not of methods by which she should do her work. Was it given to your denomination or mine to form the shibboleth of the soul? Will the years that act as a sieve for all the forces of the universe, leave us untouched simply because our fathers lived and wrought and "fell on sleep" in the faith of the church of yesteryear? It is not so much the fact that our faith needs changing as that it needs liberating. No longer is the criterion of Bildad—whose only comfort to Job consists in the advice to consult the creed and "If the fathers said it, it must be true"—to be the "Balm of Gilead" for the hearts of the world which are torn by doubt and shaken because they cannot quite square their creeds with their experiences. We are launched upon a far journey as a church, but the individual must have a chance to express himself in the matter of what he may or may not believe. "What is that to thee? Follow thou me," spoken first to a wayward individual in the dawn of what proved for him to be the best day of his life, is spoken to a wayward world through the medium of the individual. Heretofore the church has been more than a little afraid to trust the individual. It has been prone always to forget that the great Master worked only through individuals, and, though it is written that "He needed not that any man should tell Him for He Himself knew what was in the man," he yet died on Calvary's Cross that the individual might have his chance. The new age is dawning with its opportunities scattered like diamonds at our feet, but the men who see these diamonds have bought the right to choose their way of gathering them. No longer can the church speak "ex cathedra" to the souls of men save only in the matter of fundamentals left in her hands by Jesus. Too much method, too much "thou shalt," too much power in non-essentials, have been used by the church heretofore. To-day men demand a right to "dig deep" and on their personal findings found the faith to save their souls. It is not that we are facing a breaking up of the fundamentals and a time when we shall have to compromise principles in order to hold prestige, not at all that; there has not been a time in the history of Christianity when there was a better opportunity to spread the great and entirely essential doctrine of the divinity of Christ. The experience through which the world has passed has taught us conclusively that we must have a "Force outside ourselves which makes for Righteousness." Many things must be done away, but in the new system of teaching, two things at least must remain unshaken, the divinity of Christ, expressed both by His life and the teachings of the Holy Ghost—the Triune God—and the blessed experience of new birth through the power of the Holy Spirit, based on personal faith.

III.

Then we must have a broader basis of fellowship. Say what we may of the experience of the past, the church must acknowledge that she has not always and consistently acted as though "the rich and the poor meet together, and the Lord is the Maker of them all." To be just with the world we must confess that sometimes the glitter of gold has been mistaken for the gleam of opportunity; and that sometimes we have followed the glitter rather than the gleam, and because of this we have found ourselves in need of repentance. Conditions face us rather than theories. The future Europe, if not the world, will be either Christian or Bolshevik. Not in the wildest flight of his imagination, has any thinker entertained the idea that these utterly opposed forces will ever walk hand in hand. In the wonderful war picture in Paris, Russian section, Civilization is shown with her back to the onlooker, her right hand reaching upward, writing on the tablet of history words that are concealed by her hand. Slouching against the tablet on which she writes, a miserable, unkempt wretch of a Bolshevist stands, his eyes turned upward, directing a vacant stare into the face of Civilization, while from his negligent hand has dropped a lighted torch, smoke from which is already curling across the flowing robe of Civilization. It is a prophesy as to the possibilities of the future Europe. If the fires of Bolshevism catch the garment, Civilization is doomed. Bolshevism has shown itself to be Individualism run riot, Socialism gone mad, barbaric man unshackled, entirely controlled by his baser impulses.

Now we of the church may curse Bolshevism, but need we not pause and ask ourselves whether we are in some sense responsible for it? The church of the future must meet the social demands of the working man and millionaire. It must provide a basis for fellowship along the lines of Christian character rather than money values. Those who have been scorched by the fires of the world conflagration of the four years past have learned the uselessness of money in the things worth while. They have learned it, but if the church cannot, or will not, step in now, and, making use of this lession, found a fellowship on other than monetary lines, the lesson will be lost on mankind, and the church will have to answer to a just and angry God for the sin of negligence caused by wilful blindness.

It must be a fellowship of individuals and, through these, of the churches. The time is now when one who is only national in his spirit is provincial. Ours must be a world brotherhood. It is a world task, with an international scope and a universal ideal. As a recent writer has so well said, "All other internationals have broken down, international commerce, international labor, and it is left for the churches to work out an international program based on the sound principles of the fellowship and friendship preached by Jesus Christ." This will mean a "League of Churches," consisting of all the creeds of Christendom, who accept the fundamentals, being left to work out their individual destiny while, at the same time, working hand in hand with each other. Cross-fences in the field of creeds, while probably allowed to remain, must be so lowered that each may see at least the other's virtues. Too long has the mightiest energy of the churches been wasted in quibblings about denominational differences which had practically nothing to do with fundamentals. Shall the nations of the world form themselves into a League to guarantee us against war, while the churches of the world remain in arms against each other? Shall God and the angels be forced to look down upon a world politically at peace and religiously in combat? If so, God help the church's future, for it will be beyond the help of mankind. But can the doctrine of world brotherhood, world-leaguing of the forces of righteousness, be made to square with the gospel of individualism? Why shouldn't it? History shows us that the more freedom of State and individuals a Government has, the broader is its world conception. Unshackle an individual and the scales drop from his eyes; bind his faith and you bind his vision. Yes, freedom of individuals and world brotherhood may go hand in hand down the pathway of the future.

IV.

The church of to-day must take over education. Something has been radically wrong at the roots of the old-time system of education. Has it been because God was made an outsider, and onlooker, as it were? Is it that man's mind took over the vast problems without clearance papers from the Lord of Hosts? Or did the "little learning" of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries crop out in the fruits of the worst of ignorances which is the half-truth, and that fruit result in the world on fire from Nineteen-fourteen to Nineteen-eighteen? Who knows! Anyone may see that the church had lost control of education, and that it was running amuck, playing havoc with faith and the fundamentals. Now in the New Order we must take over the educational system and give God a chance with the mind of youth. It is not for one man to say how this may be done, but is it not enough to suggest that all great movements have had their beginning in prayer, and that while we "wait" for the voice of the Holy Ghost, let us listen for direction in the things pertaining to this vast question.

Missions will come into their own in this period. Suppose the line had broken and the savage German hordes had swept into Paris in the spring of Nineteen-eighteen! Doubtless the war would have been lost for the Allies, Europe's civilization would have been wiped out, and Idealism would be a thing of the past, and the cloud of world domination by the power-crazed leader of the Germans would have shut out the sunlight of peace and hope for the next hundred pears of Western history. The Far East would have once more had the burden of world salvation. The work of missionaries would have been found not to have been in vain. This is a far-fetched idea, but it is well within the range of possibilities. Christianity may already have roots in the East that make her future safe; but can we afford to risk that? We have put on a program of mission propaganda that would have staggered any three churches five years ago. No possible criticism may be offered against it, save that we are very likely to outgrow it with the time alloted to us for its completion. The East with its teeming millions must be the repository of the large part of the church's future. Any time another menace may arise in the West; we have no guarantee that such is in the realm of things impossible. Let the church be ready to continue its large work there if it is allowed to fall here.

Only the highest ideals must have a place in the soul of the church of to-day. Mr. Wilson rejoices that he has lived to see the world bow at the feet of Idealism. It is enough to make him rejoice; it is worth shouting over; it is worth the Gethsemane through which the world has had to pass in order to obtain it; but let us not forget that the One who preached the Sermon on the Mount, the Magna Charta of Idealism, told the world that the church must be the preservative power, which should keep the good impulses from rotting in our souls. It is a magnificient spirit that dominates the souls of the signers of the Treaty of Peace and the League of Nations, but that spirit can only be kept magnificent by the purifying leadership of the purified church of God. The long run is what counts. If the church allows the souls of men to shrivel during the years that are to come, sooner or later we may look for the Covenant of Nations to become a "Scrap of Paper." God must sign the treaties to make them valid, but God can sign them only through the fingers of mankind. The church must keep the good impulses throbbing in the hearts of the high and lowly men of the world. The standard must not be lowered; it must be kept floating always in the breezes of Golgotha and Olivet. To raise it higher is impossible; to lower it is disgraceful.

The Lord of Hosts has been thundering at the gates of the church these last five years. Literally He has "come on the clouds of Heaven, but too many of us have seen only the clouds." These are the sign and seal of His coming. Shall we lose heart because he fulfills His prophecy? Yes, we have seen the clouds, but now let us raise our eyes and look for the radiance of His face. The earthquake has struck the rocks of indifference asunder; the winds have torn away the devil-mask of pride; the fires have burned away the world's dross of selfishness. It is time for the church to listen for the voice which speaks its wonderful message in "the sound of a gentle stillness," and having heard, to go forth with the Lord of Hosts conquering and to conquer.

REMINISCENT—AN ECHO OF YESTERDAY.

By Payton A. Sowell.

IV.

The Conference received and readmitted its ministerial supply. The door was open to transfers, and R. J. Harp and Joseph Cross came in. The door was open for exit, and Wm. G. Gould transferred. Thus the circulation goes on, but it is important to take in more than goes out.

Education was not forgotten—D. O. Shattuck was appointed President of Centenary College

The second session of the Conference was held in Minden, January, 1848. At this session, four were admitted, five were received into full connection and five located. We often wonder, in turning the pages of the history of the church, "Why did these men, at this crucial date, retire?" Seventy years ago, it may be, the difficulties were insuperable. There was no real, living Conference Board of Missions, the country was roadless, and the streams bridgeless. Indian ponies compared unfavorably with the autos of the present day. And with all the modern facilities for riding circuits, many men are slow now to choose them instead of towns and cities.

This year there were six districts—and in 1919 there are seven. Shreveport was a separate charge, with R. J. Harp, P. C. Among the districts the name of Shreveport appears, and with no way of knowing otherwise, I suppose it has always remained. Wm. E. Dotey was P. E. of this district. He was admitted in the Tennessee Conference. From every glimpse I have been able to catch of him, I am impressed he was a cultured Christian gentleman. I have no way to learn what character of district it was seventy years ago, but if it at all compared with the Shreveport District my friend Atkinson serves, then Brother Dotey had a good time. I am sure Brother Dotey did not bring to its service a greater resourcefulness than does Brother Atkinson.

Richmond Randle seemed to have had P. E. material in him—not once but often he served. He, also, was received in the Tennessee Conference, and was a brother of T. W. Randle, long a member of the Tennessee Conference. Seeing how well Tennesseeans have fared in Louisiana, I have wished I was young again to try myself.

In 1849, Wellborn Mooney was admitted into the Tennessee Conference. He was once my P. E., and assigned me to my first appointment after Almyra McFerrin had become my wife. I think of him because Rev. A. I. Townsley told me a few days since that he was converted under his ministry, and studied English under Mrs. Sue F. Mooney.

The third year, four were admitted into the Louisiana Conference. It was a great year because that year Linus Parker was admitted. With him came in Henderson A. Morse, Elisha Waller, and John Paule; 1849 was a great year for gold discovery—but the Louisiana Conference found a richer mine in the life and ministry of Linus Parker. This year the New Orleans District had 590 members and had to support four pastors and the P. E.

In 1848, John C. Keener was transferred from the Alabama Conference to Louisiana, after the Conference session, and made P. C. of Poydras Street. In 1849, he was P. E. of New Orleans District, and P. C. of one of the churches. Bishop Keener was reared in Maryland, perhaps Baltimore. When a young man he saw A. L. Green, Fountain E. Pitts, John B. McFerrin and other preachers from the West, and their dress and personnel attracted him; and when he pitched his life-plans, he came far South, and entered the Alabama Conference.

At the end of the year, Holland N. McTyeire who was also a member of the Alabama Conference, followed Keener to Louisiana.

Thus, virtually the same year, Keener, Parker and McTyeire became members of the Louisiana Conference. And in a year they all were set to service in New Orleans.

No one can doubt the people heard constructive truth on Sundays when these three men rose up to speak. There were no sermons on "The shadow of Peter"—and kindred themes. When these men met in consultation, there was brain volume enough to plan for an empire—at least they did so for a great denomination.

"IN LUCK."

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

Leaving West Point we ran into Booneville "just as the sun went down." Here we took on Brother J. W. Ward, our pastor at that place, who was good company until we ran into the Union Station, St. Louis, next morning at 9 o'clock, where we separated; he was routed over the M. & O., I over the Pennsylvania. Nothing was to be seen in Tennessee or Kentucky, as we passed through those States in the night. The weather man was faithful to forecast with his "local showers"—not a puff of dust on all the way. Leaving St. Louis at 12:15 p. m., we are due in Columbus at 12:55 a. m., passing through Illinois, Indiana and over half of Ohio in little over 12 hours. Wheat, wheat, uncut or in the shock, wheat everywhere seems to defy Mr. Hoover's appeal for conservation and speedy return to the five-cent loaf. And at the prevailing price it is no wonder that we see the auto everywhere. As seen from the car window, the apple crop seems abundant, but prices for a cut at the pie counter would suggest a heavy shortage—just double that at Stevens Bros., in West Point, Miss. Recent heavy rains have flooded all the lowlands, the streams having overflowed their banks.

As I make these notes, just opposite me sits a "brother in black" (ebony), with his chocolate wife, in shirt sleeves with feet upon seat, for they have pre-empted two seats with satchels and bundles, enjoying all the privileges—but then I'm in Illinois, the State of Mr. Lincoln.

Grain, machinery and horse labor is the order—have seen but one mule in the day's travel, a colt beside its mother, which will doubtless be sold to a delta planter and not live out half its days. These folks talk so funny and broad through the heart of the "Northwest Territory," worth all the sacrifice at Tippecanoe, with its rich grain fields, busy factories, great railroad systems, and millions of moving, hustling people, a living monument to the bravery and daring of Harrison and Clark. 12:55 a. m., and all for Columbus and more for your columns if—

Impressions of the Great Centenary.

Well, it's a big thing, reminding one of the St. Louis Exposition in extent, only not so well or systematically arranged. All the peoples of the world are represented, emphasizing, more especially, their social and religious customs; but there is a close bordering in some of the exhibits on the usual displays at national and international expositions.

Of course, all speeches and deliverances must partake of the moral and religious character, but there is often a close approach to the political and sectional, especially by those north of the line. The Negro is a hero whenever alluded to, even though to the disparagement of the South. And the matter of union, in my opinion, is farther removed to-day than it was on June 20. Reference is seldom made to any Methodism in statistics or work accomplished, other than the Methodist Episcopal Church and they seem to have run away with the wagon, tongue and all.

As was to be expected, there are Methodist preachers here from all sections, but it has been my fortune to meet more from the South than elsewhere.

The place of meeting is the Ohio State Fair Ground which is already advertised on large placards to hold its 69th session next October. One can readily imagine the immensity of the buildings for such exhibitions as are held. These have been turned over to the management of the Centenary Celebration.

One is deeply impressed with the great brass bands, playing the church hymns almost altogether—"Onward, Christian Soldiers," "I love to tell the Story," and such, go deep into the heart and stir profoundly when played by a great band. One hears almost constantly from different buildings strains of our old missionary hymns.

On the grounds, within enclosure and under lock and key, is the "Grant Cabin"—the very two-roomed house in which the great hero of the war between the States was born in the State of Ohio in 1822. If history does not err, then the two great heroes of the struggle, Grant and Lincoln, were born among the lowly. "Grant Cabin" finds its duplicate on many a cotton plantation and among the mountain people.

Columbus is evidently a Methodist city; of the church notices for Sunday services there were 25 Methodist, and 24 of all other denominations.

Columbus is also a dry city, made so by the vote of the people in a straight prohibition contest. Evidently it is not a dead city, either, judged by the street railway system, palatial stores, magnificent hotels and like evidences. There are ten Methodist churches in the city with membership exceeding one thousand.

To give the personnel of all whom I have met from Mississippi would be tedious to your readers. It was a delightful surprise to meet Mrs. B. M. Keith, formerly Miss Fannie Lou Ellison, with little one. She is now mistress of the parsonage at New Martinsville, W. Va., helping Rev. B. M. Keith take care of that flock. Her many questions were evidence of her continued interest in old Mississippi.

Bishops Atkins, McMurry and Cannon, reinforced by Sam Steel, are looking well to interests of our branch. So much to see, so much to hear, and so much to talk about suggests another communication in conclusion of this.

July 1.

A DAY FOR PRAYER AND FASTING.

The Centenary Commission and the Home Department of the Board of Missions have agreed upon Friday, August 29, as a day for prayer and fasting for a great church-wide revival. The additions on professions of faith to our church have not been what we should expect. Though we succeed in raising great sums of money, though we put over mighty programs, though we do many wonderful things, and do not bring trembling sinners home to God, our work is a failure. The Methodist Church was born in a revival. If was the distinctively revival church in its incipiency. It made revivals respected. It gained thousands of recruits by fervent revivals. To be true to our history we must now be the most distinctively revival church on the continent. To fulfill our unfulfilled mission we must be a revival church. The time for revival campaigns for adult conversions has not passed. There are perhaps fifty millions of unsaved adult people on the American continent at this hour. More than four millions of these, if they are ever reached, will likely be reached in a Methodist revival. The Spirit of God is moving upon our church to put on an aggressive revival campaign. On Friday, August 29, let every Southern Methodist go down upon his or her knees in humble supplication for the greatest revival in our history. The Minute Men of the Centenary will call attention to this for some Sundays before the date. Wherever practicable, let the congregation assemble for a sunrise prayer meeting. Suggestive Scripture lessons will be given later. Wherever it is impracticable for the congregation to assemble in the church, let it be done by families. Instead of assembling at the table for breakfast, let the family assemble at the table and read God's Word, and all the family who will, join in this prayer for a great revival. The old custom of fasting on Friday before quarterly conference is almost obsolete, certainly obsolescent, but once more let all our people have a day of fasting and prayer. Some reasons for fasting will appear in later articles concerning this very matter. Fix the date on the calendar now, August 29.

"TO HONOR AND TO DISHONOR."

By Rev. A. H. Williams.

Any place in God's church is exceedingly important, and this same is true of any service rendered "in His name." The smallest star at the far away distance has its place and purpose, just as does the great sun which flames through the heavens, attended by numerous planets, each proceeding in its divinely given orbit. The great dimensions of the heavenly body may be something to the mind of God, but much more the question, "Does it fulfill the purpose for which it was made?"

In a great building, the foundation stone is little noticed, perchance, but is a feature of the structure in no sense to be dispensed with, and the ordinary door at the entrance has its valued office in like proportion with the beautiful and captivating art-glass window. The latest in flower garden productions are delightful to look upon, and minister to the happiness and cultivated taste of a civilized people, but many a flower must bloom unseen in the fastness of the mountain or invest its sweetness upon the atmosphere of the desert; but each must fill a place, and cannot be without a design in the plans of the wondrous Creator of the material universe.

The Divine Savior said, "Be ye therefore perfect," not of course in the sense of possessing all the power and attributes of the Divine Being, but to be perfect as a man in a man's place, and in the service to which appointed, as God is perfect in his place as the supreme ruler and supporter of all creation.

People are not alike and should not be. A prominent minister antagonized the admission of a man to the Methodist Conference for the reason that he was not highly educated and competent as a prospective college president. Education of course must always be at a premium for service of whatever kind, but only a few college presidents can be used, consequently I may say that God has prepared only a few people for that type of service. This particular preacher was a mountain specialist in the business of preaching, and was called especially, as it appeared, to that class of work. He could do things for God and for the people of his realm, and for the church, which a bishop could not do, and which he is not expected to do. He might even dig up a mountain jewel which in time would make a bishop, and could have been perfect in his position and in the type of service anticipated. God is back of the small blade of grass, just the same as he is present to support the great stalk of corn, and can, as said Bishop Pierce, "with equal ease float a fishing smack or a man-of-war."

Mere prominence does not of necessity produce greatness, any more than does poverty and low position produce merit. It is the kind of person that enlists the thought of God and attracts the attention of the angels. The competency for the place assigned and the type of service rendered, filling the position in keeping with the will of God, is the proper measure of human superiority; the hod-carrier is important, if he be a royal gentleman, as is also the skilled architect, and the high position is nothing without the elements of true manhood which assure the favor of God.

A visitor from Washington, D. C., posed as a very special personage among plain people, but in conversation a close observer detected tbe limitations and texture of the individual. Not mere possessions, said Bishop Marvin, but "what tbe person is," and again, "not where the person lives but what he is," is the great essential. Improved personality is better than an improved fortune, unless, perchance, the individual shall improve with the fortune. A poorly clad man drove the street in a rickety buggy, drawn by the most ordinary of horses, in worn-out harness, but the man, they said, was worth a million in property, but alas! only two things he had learned: to gather up, and to keep what he gathered. He was a miser, and poorer, in fact, than was the poor animal which drew him to the town. He was dead in sins of omission, if not lost by deeds of evil, and sleeping upon the opportunities of life, the neglect of which was to affect the destiny of human beings, and to fix his own place in the world of eternity.

Possessions and position in some cases indicate tho type of individual, but do not of necessity make the man. Abraham was great in spite of his wealth, and Joseph was a royal personage while yet a prisoner, and was tho same without change when next to the king in power. God invites all alike unto the very best possible attainments. St. Paul said, "I press toward the mark"—ardent service and correct living would bring the reward at the proper time. Later he said, "I have fought a good fight"—and the crown already was manufactured and "laid up," not simply for him, but for all who, in like manner, were faithful.

This same St. Paul possessed heart-solicitude for all kinds of people; the "vessel" now counted ordinary might appear to-morrow in greatest "honor;" such was possible to each and to all. God's plan for human development, like the plan of salvation, comprehends within its ample scope every possible class and condition of humankind. Not that all should possess riches and high position in the sight of men, but in the estimation of God any might come to be a "king and priest" unto Him, and fill the divinely given place and purpose, and at the last "walk with Him in white" upon the boulevards of the Eternal City; not by overturning the foundations and successes of "the other fellow," but by constructing a type of personage which shall be pleasing to God, and by doing the things to which He has appointed. And sooner would crumble the supporting columns of the eternal Throne than that God should desert such an individual, and decline to reward at tbe final day.

Mr. Bryan is reported to have said, "If my son must dig ditches, I would like him to be educated." Knowing a few things increases efficiency, and "the skilled workman is at a premium." The Bolshevist, who hopes to succeed by the business of pulling down and by destroying, must come to grief. Across the files of the ages, in letters never to be effaced, it has long since been written—"He that doeth the will of God shall abide forever." Mr. Wesley was a college man, and this preliminary preparation had vastly to do with his unusual prowess in extending the kingdom of Christ, but never was he a "vessel of honor" in fact until his heart, as he said, was "strangely warmed within him." Christ within was the supreme secret of his wondrous efficiency, coupled, as it was, with his well developed mental powers, and exceptionally splendid physical vigor; but Robert Strawbridge, on Sam's Creek in Virginia, who built the first Methodist "meeting house" in America, was a "vessel of gold and of honor," for the reason that he also was one of God's men, and in his place made the best possible use of his gifts and opportunities and did the work sincerely and cheerfully to which he was appointed of God, and at the final day, with the other multitudes that may not be numbered, will hear the words, "well done."

THE CHURCH PAPER.

By Dr. O. E. Goddard.

There may have been times when a family could afford to be without a church paper (though I should be very reluctant to acknowledge it) but surely not now. The church has just put over the biggest enterprise in its history. It is now preparing for a vastly larger movement. The great revival is to be the most far-reaching movement in our history. It has in it potentialities beyond all previous movements. Interesting developments will be unfolding from week to week. No family can afford to miss the thrill and uplift that this movement will bring. No family can keep up with this, or any other great church movement, without the church paper. The church paper was a mighty factor in the great financial campaign. It will be more indispensable in this great distinctively spiritual movement. The secular press may not lend itself so freely to a revival movement as it did in pushing the strictly financial movement. Only those who read the church paper will know the inwardness of this revival movement. If every family in Southern Methodism had the conference organ, the revival would come sooner and last longer. Much that I shall say concerning the coming revival will be submitted to the church press. Much that many others connected with the movement shall say will also be found in the church papers. Our first desire is, therefore, that whatever we submit through the church press shall reach all our members. If some do not take the papers, our messages will never reach them. I am, therefore, exceedingly anxious for every family in Southern Methodism to have the church paper. Every family should have their conference organ and every outstanding, leading family should have also The Christian Advocate. This secretary is pushing the circulation of all our church papers at every possible opportunity. Let all the people read our church papers.

DO SOMETHING AND DO IT NOW!

To the Pastors and Superintendents of Louisiana Methodist Sunday Schools:

Dear Brethren: Our Sunday school finances are in a critical condition. Only twenty Sunday schools have reported any offerings for Sunday School Day and these are very small.

The Conference Sunday School Board counted upon a thousand dollars or more from Sunday School Day offerings this year, but have received, so far, only $254.49.

From November until the Sunday School Day offerings begin to come in, the Board has absolutely no receipts, except a donation this year from the General Board, and has to borrow money to pay running expenses until the said offerings are received.

Brethren, do something and do it now, please. Hold the Sunday School Day service and send the money at once to our treasurer, Rev. C. V. Breitbaupt, at Alexandria, and help to stop the payment of interest on borrowed money, and oblige.

Yours cordially,
WM. SHIELDS HOLMES.
Chairman Sunday School Board.

"BOOKS ON REVIVALS."

Seeing Dr. Goddard's article in the last issue of the Advocate on the above, called to mind immediately two books which have been of great help and inspiration to me in revival work, and I am sure I will be pardoned for mentioning them, since our minds are turned now to revival work. I have reference to Dr. Goodell's "Pastoral and Personal Evangelism," and Trumbull's "Individual Work for Individuals," both of which are small books and very readable. Dr. Goodell, of our sister Methodism has a remarkable record as a pastor-evangelist and his book is an account of his experiences and success along this lone. A pastor's heart will fairly burn as he reads it. The other book is a classic along its particular line and has had an extraordinary sale. I make bold to mention these two books with the hope that they will be as much help to others as they have been to me.

NOTICE.

The Alexandria District Conference will meet at Boyce, July 22-24. Opening service will be on Tuesday night, July 22, at 8:30 o'clock.

The Wednesday forenoon session will be given to the discussion of the Sunday school interests, and the afternoon session to the Missionary interests.

Preachers will elect their delegates by the church conference in accordance with the rule passed by the last Annual Conference and recorded on page 54 of the Minutes of 1918.

Send the list of your delegates to me so I can make out conference roll.

The preachers will please take up their assessment for district parsonage and bring to district conference, as our notes are due, and it will save us interest.

THE SMALLEST HOSPITAL IN THE WORLD.

The tiniest hospital in the world is probably the bird hospital in New York City. All sorts of feathered patients lie in tiny wicker baskets filled with soft, white cotton and supported on tall wicker stands that form the beds. Over in the corner, under a green bough, lies a green-and-gold parrot, screaming hoarsely with the pain of an attack of neuralgia, while just opposite is a convalescent robin, trying stoutly to utter a faint "cheep!"

The owner and director of the hospital knows how to take care of birds, and she acts as surgeon, nurse and druggist all in one. There is an operating-room with all kinds of sterilized instruments, fairy-like casts and splints, a sun-room, where the birds may flutter back and forth in a bower of green, and a tiny delicatessen store stocked with fat, wriggly worms in small glass bottles, hundreds of brilliant-colored dragon flies and just the right kind of seed for each patient's diet.

Every one of the birds loves the "Doctor," and when she passes on her morning rounds rows of little feathered heads bob up over the sides of the baskets and dozens of bird voices—some of them very faint and weak, others loud and shrill—chirp and scream and "cheep" at her. When she picks up a helpless little robin and takes it into the operating-room, it perks up its small brown head, as if in gratitude, and actually seems to know that something is being done to help the pain of its broken wing. There have been as many as seven hundred birds in the hospital at one time.—The Youth's Companion.

"If when in your endeavor to achieve a high purpose you meet with misunderstanding and apparent defeat, let your solace be found in the memory of Him whose mission on earth culminated in Calvary."

LEMONS BRING OUT THE HIDDEN BEAUTY

Make this lotion for very little cost and just see for yourself.

What girl or woman hasn't heard of lemon juice to remove complexion blemishes; to bleach the skin and to bring out the roses, the freshness and the hidden beauty? But lemon juice alone is acid, therefore irritating, and should be mixed with orchard white this way. Strain through a fine cloth the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing about three ounces of orchard white, then shake well and you have a whole quarter pint of skin and complexion lotion at about the cost one usually pays for a small jar of ordinary cold cream. Be sure to strain the lemon juice so no pulp gets into the bottle, then this lotion will remain pure and fresh for months. When applied daily to the face, neck, arms and hands it should help to bleach, clear, smoothen and beautify the skin.

Any druggist will supply three ounces of orchard white at very little cost and the grocer has the lemons.

Try It! Substitute For Nasty Calomel

Starts your liver without making you sick and can not salivate.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vim, vigor and ambition.

None more deceive themselves than they who think their religion is true and genuine, though it refines not their spirits and reforms not their lives.—Benjamin Whichcote.

The Home Circle

BIRTH OF THE NATIONS.

By Lula E. Brown.

Away back in the ages there was a wedding of great renown when Father Time took Mother Earth for his bride. The Sun and the Moon and all the stars brightened and blessed the marriage with their presence.

In due course of time, six children were born to Father Time and Mother Earth, all girls, and known everywhere as "The Continents."

Asia was the first born, and she was fed upon rice and date-figs, coffee and spices, and became large, strong and sturdy. Her parents were proud of her and clothed her in silk and satin.

The next, who was christened Africa, was a decided brunette and a very peculiar child, ignorant, unlearned, always looking on the dark side of life and most superstitious. Of course, as is always the case, the Mother loved her tenderly, pitied her affliction and endeavored to make up to her for her peculiarity by bestowing upon her large quantities of gold and silver and expensive diamonds.

There was great rejoicing over the birth of the twins, North and South America, for they were indeed lovely and very much alike in appearance. However, like the Siamese twins they were joined together, and though they were very fond of each other, they did not relish this. They were happy indeed when the famous surgeon, Dr. Panama Canal, many years after their birth, severed the tie which bound them together. The twins received from their Mother fertile lands where they raised an abundance of wheat, corn, sugar cane, cotton and coffee. Vast forests of wood also abounded, and the "cattle and sheep upon a thousand hills."

The fifth girl was named Europe, a very brilliant and ingenious child, and she was quick to make use of Mother Earth's gifts of luscious grapes which she transformed into wine, also juicy oranges, lemons, olives and other fruit. Wonderful manufactories were established, and schools of science and skill, where her ambition had full sway.

Australia, the baby of the family, never grew very large, but Mother Earth gave her great wealth in the form of gold and tin mines and large diamonds.

Asia was particularly fond of her little sisters, especially Europe and Australia, whom she kept near her all the time in a motherly, protecting kind of way.

Africa did not mix with the others, but kept to herself. The twins continued to love each other with great devotion and one was seldom seen without the other.

While Mother Earth was the moneyed one of the family and bestowed all the wealth, Father Time gave that most precious of gifts, hours and days and months and years, in which each child could grow and expand and develop and take advantage of opportunities.

In the years that followed one after the other, Asia, Africa, North and South America, Europe and Australia had many children and grandchildren of their own, and should have lived happily forever; but after awhile disputes and dissensions arose over possessions and some became greedy and jealous and selfish and war was declared among the nations. For a time it looked as if all the world was to be destroyed. North and South America wished to stay out of the fight. But after awhile one of the children of North America, known as "Uncle Sam," felt that he must go to the help of those who were being cruelly oppressed and slaughtered, so he called together all of his men and a great and wonderful army was formed, and after much bloodshed and sacrifice, Uncle Sam played the part of Peacemaker, and now once more we have a happy family with Father Time smiling benignly and Mother Earth giving with a free hand from her bounteous storehouse to each of her six girls that they may bless and enrich their children's children throughout all eternity.

New Orleans, La.

"MING-CHEE NAN-CHEE."

By Paul Suter.

The twins sat in the sunlight at either side of the broad bay window, trying to do two things at the same time. One of the things was to study the multiplication table of sevens; the other to hear what the missionary lady from China was saying.

The missionary lady was to stay with the Denhams, that day and part of the next, and was to talk in the church that evening. Both Mildred and Frank found her immensely interesting. It was hard to study while she was telling their mother about the wonderful "New China," and it was tenfold harder when she began to talk about the queer schools and the games of the almond-eyed boys and girls in that far-away land.

"I simply can't get that table," Frank declared, at length, throwing his book down upon the window sill.

Mildred sighed woefully.

"I can't either," she admitted.

The missionary lady looked across at them with a twinkle in her eye.

"Did you say that you were studying the table of sevens?" she inquired smilingly. "I was just going to tell your mother of a game which has seven in it. Maybe you would like to play it with me?"

The twins looked pleadingly at their mother.

"I think they may drop their studies for a little while," Mrs. Denham replied.

"First of all, then, we will form into a circle," said the missionary lady. "We need you, too, Mrs. Denham—that will make four of us. There really ought to be more, but four will do. The game is called 'Ming-Chee Nan-Chee,' which means, plain seven, hidden seven. We will call numbers, beginning with one, and go around the circle. Each time we come to a number which can be divided by seven, or which has seven in it—like 27 or 67—the one whose turn it is will slap his knee instead of calling that number, and we will start around in the opposite direction. Do you see?"

The twins nodded their heads, rather doubtfully.

"Suppose I start; then you will catch the idea. One!"

"Two!" said Mrs. Denham.

"Three!" "Four!" called the twins, in quick succession.

"Five!" "Six!"—their mother followed the missionary lady.

"Sev"—Mildred almost had it out, but she remembered just in time, and slapped her knee.

"Eight!" called Frank, confidently.

"You're out, declared the missionary lady. "It was your mother's turn. We go in the other direction, you see, after each number with seven in it. Never mind, though—the rest of us will start over, and before long all but one will be out; then we can begin a new game. Watch how much farther along we go each time."

Sure enough, they went as high as seventeen and then, to Frank's delight, it was his Mother who slipped.

"I had forgotten about the plain seven," she confessed. "I was waiting for the hidden seven in twenty-one."

Mildred did remarkably well. She got up to thirty-five; but there the hidden seven was lying in wait for her. She spoke the number aloud, instead of slapping her knee.

"All out but one," announced the missionary lady. "Now we can start another game."

They started another—and another—and another. It was great sport—especially after the first two games, for it was not always the missionary lady who won. Mildred and Frank found that they knew more about the table of sevens than they would have dared to believe. After they had missed on a number with a hidden seven in it, they were on the lookout for that number in the next game. Finally, when supper time was at hand and the games were all over, the missionary lady asked them to recite the table of sevens, and they got it right, first time.

"Why, we must have learned it in the game," cried Frank, excitedly. "Why can't we play that game with other numbers, too?"—The Child's Hour.

The power to resist is obtained through resistence. An oak cannot be grown in a hot house, but in the open where it meets the blasts and gathers strength through the strain.—Ex.

The forgiveness act of man is generally excited by commiseration for the offender—it is not the plan of his life, it is an occasional act. But Divine forgiveness is a plan settled, eternal, immutable. —Southern Churchman.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

GIVE GOD A CHANCE.

We believe that the greatest need of this age is a genuine revival of the personal religions life. We have attained a pretty high ethical standard as a people, and the institutional features of Christianity are fairly well established. Our organization as a church seems to be well-nigh perfect, and any addition to our machinery at present is not likely to add to our efficiency.

What we need is an endnement of power from on high that will make religion a joy to us, and that will make our service in behalf of our fellowman spontaneous and whole-hearted. We understand the mechanics of religion well enough; we need now to know more of its dynamics.

A formula will solve a mathematical problem, but it will not produce a spiritual rebirth. Nicodemus was a learned man, but when Jesus became his teacher he had to begin at the beginning. This ruler of the Jews thought that a great spiritual fact could be explained in terms of a physical process. A little later Simon was so gross as to believe that obtaining the richest gifts of Heaven was simply a matter of paying a certain sum of money. He knew what he wanted—but was utterly ignorant of the way to obtain it.

This revival that is so greatly needed, and that we all want, is bound to come from within, out. It will start in the hearts of men and spread through the life, as the blood circulates through the body. It will not begin as a social movement, but as a personal experience. And God will be the outstanding figure through it all.

A plan grows out of an idea—not the idea out of a plan. A revival campaign will develop out of awakened sonls, but very few souls will be born out of a revival campaign of the mechanical sort. Committees can ralse money, but only God can forgive sin. The hand can sign a card, but with the heart man believes unto salvation.

Plans are good things for builders and architects, but God does not work by blueprints. We build houses according to plans and specifications, but God reconstructs human lives by the power of his Spirit. A revival can no more be "worked up" in the beginning than it can be "held down" when once started.

Let us give God a chance in these fateful times. Men everywhere are turning to him in prayer. They are eager to hear the simple gospel of salvation. We have had "drives" without number—how blessed it will be to be led for awhile in the paths of righteousness by the Good Shepherd!

THE MEETING OF THE COMMISSION ON UNIFICATION.

A meeting of the Joint Commission on Unification began in Cleveland, Ohio, last Monday. Apart from the publication of the call for the meeting, and an appeal for prayer for the members of the Commission by Bishop Mouzon, the church press has not had a great deal to say in recent months concerning unification. This has been due, probably, to the feeling that the action of our late General Conference left the matter largely in abeyance until further negotiations were instituted, and to the further fact that the Centenary campaign has been of overwhelming interest and importance.

We believe that the Cleveland meeting of the Commission will prove to be of the utmost importance in connection with the settlement of this question that the two great branches of Methodism in this country are so intensely interested in. We are convinced that the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church and of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, realize the responsibility that rests upon them, and that they are determined to come to some conclusion that will be as nearly a settlement of the issues involved as is possible at this time. They are representative men of the two churches, and we may trust them implicitly to act in accordance with their godly judgment. They are Christian men, and their motives cannot be impugned under any circumstances.

We received a telegram last Saturday from Dr. Frank M. Thomas, secretary of the Commission, stating that the meetings would be open to the editors of the church papers. It was too late for us at that time to make arrangements to attend; otherwise, we should have given our readers a first-hand account of the proceedings so far as we might have been able to record them. The presumption is that a full account of the proceedings will be given to the press for publication, and we will print in the Advocate the results of the meeting just as soon as they are available.

THE INTERCHURCH WORLD MOVEMENT.

Co-operation is a great thing in any kind of work. Without it, the highest kind of success cannot be attained in any undertaking. For this reason, we are inclined to look with favor upon any movement that has as its end the enlistment of all like-minded people in the accomplishment of a good purpose.

This seems to be an age of co-operation—real and attempted. The war, of course, inevitably brought people to see things from a common point of view. In matters of patriotic endeavor, there was no question as to duty. Personal opinions were held in abeyance in so far as they were not in agreement with the general determination to do what was needed to be done in the quickest and best way possible. This was especially true concerning the work of the welfare organizations.

Since the war, there has been a growing feeling that the religious forces of the world should co-operate more closely than ever before in the accomplishment of a common task—the evangelization of the world. There have been various efforts looking toward the formulation of a program that would make use of all the resources of the Christian world and at the same time avoid a wasteful duplication of efforts. One of the chief movements of this kind—perhaps the chief one—is the Interchurch World Movement of North America.

We printed in our issue of June 12 an official statement issued by the Movement concerning its purposes and plans. We have made no comment hitherto concerning this new organization in the religious world, preferring to wait until we should have sufficient data in hand to form a correct opinion, so far as possible, of its implications, tendencies, and probable outcome. We confess that our information is still meager, though we have read everything that has come to hand concerning the Movement. We are inclined, however, to make a few generalizations of the situation as we see it at the present time.

In the first place, we think there can be no doubt as to the value of a unified effort on the part of all Christian denominations to learn what the needs of the world are in this age and to consider how those needs may best be met.

We believe, also, that it is eminently proper for the leaders in the religious life of the world, and all others interested, to come together for consultation and for the working out of plans that will enable the church as a whole to perform its mission in the most effective way.

We are convinced, too, that the denominations represented by those who have entered into these conferences will do well to give serious consideration to the conclusions reached by these representatives as a result of their deliberations.

But we do not believe that the time has yet come for the various denominations of the Christian church to surrender any of their own functions to any organization or body that is, in effect, a kind of holding corporation for administering the affairs of its constituent bodies. We do not at all say that the Interchurch Movement is of such kind. Its advocates specifically declare that it is not intended to interfere in any way with any part of a program that any denomination may have adopted for itself. We merely have in mind what might easily grow out of such a movement unless its functions are clearly defined in the beginning, and rigidly adhered to.

We are not afraid that the Methodist Church, as a denomination, will fall behind, or be left out of, any proper progressive movement that is for the increase of its own efficiency or the betterment of the world. Its whole history is sufficient proof that it has contributed its full share to all such movements. There is no reason, therefore, that we can think of, why we should hastily commit ourselves unreservedly to any undertaking outside of our own urgent and growing obligations, no matter how satisfactorily that undertaking may be underwritten.

As we have stated above, we are in hearty sympathy with the principle of co-operation as it is expressed in the Interchurch Movement, and we are ready to do all in our power to further the praiseworthy aims of the Movement. But in the present status of our denominational enterprises, we believe it is the part of wisdom to make at least some such reservations as the recent General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church made in dealing with the matter under consideration. We give these reservations as we find them summarized in one of our exchanges:

1. The Interchurch Movement must consist only of a co-operation of agencies of evangelical churches.

2. The Presbyterian Church will co-operate through its own New Era committee.

3. The points of co-operation shall be (a) a common survey of home and foreign fields; (b) a united educational and inspirational propaganda for all Protestants; (c) budget campaigns managed simultaneously but separately in the various denominations; (d) the budgets of Presbyterian agencies made known to the Interchurch Movement, but not subjects to its revision.

4. All funds raised in the Presbyterian Church will be disbursed through its own regular agencies.

5. No Presbyterian boards will contribute to the expense of the Interchurch Movement except as authorized by the General Assembly or its executive commission.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

"Everything is moving along nicely with me and the work," is the report that comes from Rev. A. Joe Beasley, of Camden, Miss.

Rev. and Mrs. T. M. Ainsworth, of Mayersville, Miss., announce the birth of a son, Frank Alexander, on June 30. The Advocate extends congratulations.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer preached last Sunday at Epworth Church, the pastor being out of town. He reports having had a happy time with the Epworthians.

Rev. R. H. Barr, of Foxworth, Miss., reports that his work is on the up-grade, and that he is hopeful of a successful year.

We have seen the announcement that Bishop W. R. Lambuth expects to sail from Vancouver on August 7 to take up his work in Korea, Japan, and China.

The late H. J. Heinz, he of the "57 varieties" fame, left by his will $100,000 to the University of Pittsburgh for the training of Sunday school workers.

Rev. W. H. Saunders, our pastor at Natchez, Miss., went from the Seashore Divinity School to Columbus, Ohio, to see the great Centenary Celebration.

Rev. Walt Holcomb, one of our general evangelists, who is well known in Louisiana and Mississippi, will begin a tent meeting in Lawrenceburg, Ky., in the near future.

Rev. H. B. Alsup, pastor of Epworth Church, this city, was called to Pineville, La., last week by the sad news of the death of his father. We extend sincere sympathy in this hour of great sorrow.

Mrs. E. G. Morgan, of Grangeville, La., is still in great sorrow over the death of her husband of influenza last October. She requests the prayers of Christian people that she may be sustained by divine grace in her bereavement.

Rev. H. T. Reed, a member of the Louisville Conference, is in New Orleans as one of the instructors in the Home Service Institute of the American Red Cross. He paid the Advocate office an appreciated call on Saturday of last week.

Rev G. E. Cameron, formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference, who served as pastor at First Church, Shreveport, and at Alexandria, was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity by Kentucky Wesleyan College at its recent commencement.

Dr. John Paul, a member of the Kentucky Conference and dean of Asbury College, at Wilmore, Ky., will assist Rev. L. E. Crooks, of the Greensburg charge, Louisiana Conference, in a meeting at Oakland Tabernacle, July 11-20. Dr. Paul has conducted a great many revival meetings throughout the church.

Mrs. S. L. Holt, of Jackson, Miss., has been a reader of the Advocate for more than fifty years. Not only has Sister Holt read it all these years, but she so impressed her family with the value of the church paper that it goes into the homes of her children. We appreciate her kindly words of commendation.

The following Methodist preachers of New Orleans have visited the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, through the kindly consideration of their congregations: Dr. U. G. Foote, of Rayne Memorial; Rev. J. A. Alford, of Second Church, Rev. C. C. Wier, of Algiers; Rev. Jno. F. Foster, of Carrollton Avenue.

Rev. Albert S. Lutz, presiding elder of the Monroe District, Louisiana Conference, attended the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, during the first week of July. In a business note to the Advocate office, he stated that there had been several successful revivals in the Monroe District, and that the work seemed to be in fine shape.

Southern College at its recent commencement conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. J. B. Mitchell, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Jacksonville, Fla. Dr. Mitchell is a graduate of Millsaps College, at which institution he made a fine record as a student and orator. He is prominently connected in North Mississippi.

Rev. Chas. W. Crisler, pastor of Galloway Memorial, Jackson, Miss., has been given a month's vacation by his congregation and presented with a purse that will enable him to enjoy a period of recreation to the fullest extent. After presiding over the sessions of the Seashore Divinity School, he left for a visit to the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio.

The Southern Baptists have begun a campaign to raise $75,000,000 within the next five years, to be used as follows: Education, $20,000,000; Foreign Missions, $20,000,000; Home Missions, $12,000,000; State Missions, $11,000,000; Ministerial Relief, $5,000,000; Orphans' Homes, $4,700,000; Hospitals, $2,125,000; Roger Williams Memorial, $175,000. Of the total amount, Louisiana is expected to raise $3,325,000, and Mississippi, $3,500,000.

Mr. Lowell Flanery and Miss Elizabeth Lee were married in the parlor of the Istrouma Hotel at Baton Rouge, La., on Thursday July 3. Mr. Flanery is a prominent lumberman of Moorhead, Miss., and his bride is a member of one of the distinguished families of Mississippi. Only members of the families and close friends of the contracting parties were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the editor of the Advocate. We pray that the richest blessings of Heaven may rest upon this fine young couple. They will make their home at Moorhead, Miss.

The Bolivar Commercial, published at Cleveland, Miss., in its issue of June 27, gives a full account of the opening service of the splendid new Methodist church at that place. The sermon was preached by Bishop W. B. Murrah, of which a full synopsis is given. The church is a beautiful structure, modern in plan and construction, which reflects great credit upon the liberality and foresight of the people of the community. A $2500 pipe organ has been installed. Seven beautiful memorial windows adorn the building. The movement for the new church was begun under the leadership of Rev. E. R. Smoot, and brought to completion during the pastorate of Rev. T. M. Bradley, to whose efficient ministerial work the Commercial pays high tribute.

INFANT FOR ADOPTION.

Rev. W. E. Thomas, superintendent of our city mission work in New Orleans, requests us to say that a fine infant boy has been left in his care, which may be adopted under suitable conditions. Those who are interested may communicate with Brother Thomas at 1026 Tchoupitoulas Street, New Orleans, La.

INFLUENCE.

The world is just only beginning to understand the extent to which individuals and nations may be and have been swayed by silent mental influence. A man prefers, of course, to believe that he is the master of his own conclusions and the arbiter of his own conduct; but let any one ask himself how he arrived at any given conclusion or decided upon a certain line of conduct, and unless he can own to an intelligent conception of divine principle upon which he relies for guidance, he will have to admit, if he is equal to the analysis, that he has been swayed throughout his career by influences not his own.—Selected.

The One Standard Mosquito Remedy ---Sweet Dreams

Sweet Dreams Became the One Standard Mosquito Remedy the Morning the First Bottle Was Made.

It lives up to a reputation that demands utmost efficiency. At the time ingredients were highest, and mosquitoes seemed to be hungriest, Sweet Dreams was made double strength. The double strength quality was found far more efficient. So it's double strength to-day.

There's one thing to remember: When a dealer offers "something just as good," the man next door has Sweet Dreams in large original, sprinkle-top bottles. When mosquitoes are torublesome, try the standard—Sweet Dreams.—Adv.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Because you did not make a campaign for new members on the date that was suggested is no reason why such an important matter should be neglected altogether. Do this and it will result in good.

If you failed to observe Sunday School Day in May or June, there is time enough yet. A superintendent recently said he was willing to observe the day if the school wanted to do so. The Methodist Church has a wise law to govern us in such matters. Our orders are written and what we have to do is to carry out the orders. Law-breaking leaders will lead a host into lawlessness. We do not have to make the law; but we do have to execute the law.

This seems to be an age of going to and fro in the earth. The trains are crowded every day in the week with all sorts of people, apparently in a mad rush after something. It is all right to go, if you are going for the purpose of learning how to serve God and for helping others to know and serve him better. More teachers from North Mississippi will attend the training school at Lake Junaluska than ever in the past. Such a trip is not only a good investment of time and money, but it is one of the best investments.

Four teachers in the Clarksdale church have finished the Unfolding Life, have stood the examination and are ready for the next book in the Junior course. What they have done others can do. Trained teachers will make a good school; untrained teachers—well, you see what you have.

Here are the dates set for holding the District Institutes: Aberdeen District, August 19; Columbus District, August 21; Corinth District, August 22; Durant District, August 26; Greenville District, August 28; Holly Springs District, September 3; Sardis District, September 5; Winona District, September 9. If you want an Institute in your church, let me know at an early date. These institutes promise to be the best we have ever held because we will have some trained helpers to do the work. The dates have been settled, now let us fix the places.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE NOTES.

The Sunday school interest grows everywhere. The people are giving themselves to Christian work all over the land. Strong men are needed to lead this body of Christian workers. The church school offers an opportunity for service. Who will volunteer?

"Sunday School Day" is the one day in our Methodist schools when we should give our members the best information concerning our school and church, and then make an offering that will furnish the Conference Sunday School Board with sufficient funds to finance its work in the State. Let every superintendent plan an offering from his school and send same to Treasurer C. V. Breithaupt, Alexandria. The Board will serve all our schools if you will help.

"Membership Campaign" will help you get those boys and girls who used to be in your school and fell by the way. Very few of our schools have put on this campaign yet. You are the one to receive the benefit. Do it now. Write me for information.

The Alexandria District Sunday School Institute will be held in District Conference at Jonesboro, July 15 and 16. The program will be short, using all of the forenoon of the second day.

ALONZO EARLY,
Field Secretary.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"As the child's intellectual development depends on its environment, so does its moral and spiritual development. Is our church doin' all it ought'o in this respect?"

"Lots of times children picture story-heroes as themselves, so we want to be careful what sort of characters we give the heroes in our stories."

"The child comes naturally into its place as a member of the human family. Ought'n't the church to expect it to come the same way into its place as a member of the church family?"

WORLD'S SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION—TOKYO, 1920.

The Eighth Convention of the World's Sunday School Association will be held in Tokyo, Japan, October, 1920. The opening day will be during the first week of that month. The exact time cannot be stated until the steamer sailings have been announced, which will not be for some months. This Convention was to have been held in October, 1916, but a postponement was necessary on account of the war. At the conclusion of the war plans were promptly made to hold the Convention just as soon as possible, and May, 1920, was stated as the time which was satisfactory to the Sunday school leaders in Japan. Owing to the great difficulty in obtaining sufficient reservations on the Pacific ocean steamers, and that more time might be given in which to prepare a great program, the date has now been fixed for October, 1920.

Already it has been found necessary to restrict the number of delegates since the capacity of the ocean steamers is limited. Space has now been pre-empted on five trans-Pacific lines. The details of the various tours have been placed in charge of Thomas Cook & Son, who handled the work at the time of the convention in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1913. All correspondence concerning the Convention, delegates or tours should be addressed to the World's Sunday School Association, 216 Metropolitan Tower, New York City. Very attractive routes are being mapped out to meet the needs according to both time and purse. Some groups will visit points of interest and missionary work in Japan, China, Korea and the Philippines before the Convention, and others will do their touring at the conclusion of the meeting in Tokyo. This is to be a Convention of Christian and Sunday school people rather than of mere sight-seers. Applicants will be requested to indicate their present church relationship and their Sunday school activities.

The work of building the program has been placed in the hands of a competent committee, which met May 13 at the World's headquarters. Speakers of national reputation will be brought to Tokyo. Pre and post Convention meetings will be held on the various steamers as well as at many places in the Far East. It is planned to have one tour extend around the world, returning via India and the Mediterranean. Meetings will be conducted at many of the port cities en route. It is the purpose of those who have the work in charge to make a real contribution to Kingdom-building wherever the delegates may journey.

A Famous Medicine

A visit to the laboratory at Lynn, Mass., where this successful remedy is made, impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually, and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation, which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

Letters from thousands of women who have been restored to health attest to the virtue of PUBLICITY.

This part of our work has as yet scarcely been touched, for with the pressure of the regular literature, which must be mailed at stated times, there has been time for only an occasional news letter sent to the Publicity Superintendents and the Woman's Page of the church organs. For the first quarter of 1918 twenty-eight auxiliaries reported the use of 875 Bulletins and the sending of news to 363 dallies and weekiies; for the second quarter thirty-five auxiliaries reported the use of 846 Bulletins and the sending of news to 368 dailies and weekiies; for the third quarter, thirty-four auxiliaries reported the use of 800 Bulletins and the sending of news to 439 dallies and weeklies; for the fourth quarter, thirty auxiliaries reported the use of 753 Bulietins and the sending of news to 235 dailies and weeklies.

The Publicity work we believe is reaiiy the most important part of our department and is one that should occupy at ieast haif time. The church is one of the greatest educationai forces of the world, and whiie a propaganda is being carried on through our regular iiterature and magazines, yet a very much iarger number of peopie can be touched through the secular press and the conference organ. The great vital missionary facts of the day have a living interest and the people will read them if they can be furnished. To do this, however, there must be time for reading, for keeping in touch with the missionaries on the field, and time for putting the facts gathered into attractive form. In addition to this there must be time for careful, oft repeated cultivation and education of the Publicity women. A most important work can be done through the country papers in the country districts if we have live and wide awake Publicity Superintendents.

We believe that Publicity Work should be done along the following lines: 1. First, by sending to the editors of the Woman's Pages twice each month typed news letters containing Council news and human interest stories from the missionaries. According to the letters from the editors, these are the things they would use. 2. By publishing monthly clip sheets containing news of general interest as well as stories of our accomplishments put in proper form without too much denominational emphasis. These should be sent out in sufficient number to the Conference Publicity Superintendent so that she may mail them to the auxiliary Publicity Superintendent. 3. By sending. perhaps quarterly, printed letters of suggestion and directions to every auxiliary superintendent. 4. Through sets of striking missionary posters printed on canvas and made available for use in the annual conference meetings.—Council Bulletin.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

SOCIAL SERVICE MEANS WORK.

Mrs. Downs said of Social Service that it means work and more work and still more work, but it is work that is worth while, and it should be our privilege to help clean up the social and political life of our country, but we must remember that conditions will not stay clean any more than our houses will stay clean; she said it was our duty to be strong enough and courageous enough to accept the opportunity given us to have a part in such work.

INDUSTRIAL CENTERS.

Seventy-five per cent of the city population of this country are industrial people. The conflicts between labor and capital are sharpest here. as the evidence of over-production on one side, and the hardships of the laborer are brought into sharp contest. When it is recalled that 60 per cent of the laboring men do not receive sufficient wage properly to support their families, some measure of readjustment must be established. It remains for the church to Christianize industry. We cannot believe that the differences between capital and labor are never to be harmonized. We believe that there is such a thing as Justice and Democracy in industry, and we dare believe that the church is going to speak the word which will usher in a better day.

Nine Wesley Houses are located in as many English-speaking communities. Seventeen trained workers and 162 volunteers conducted this work among 28,127 people.

ABOUT A WESLEY HOUSE.

Miss Bessie Allen, who has been the head resident at the Wesley House in Nashville for ten years, was then introduced, and talked on the "Meaning of the Wesley House." She briefly defined the Christian settlement as the ministering body of the Son of Man.

She truthfully said that there were many of our Methodist people who did not realize the meaning nor the work of a social settlement. Some understood it to mean a sort of orphanage, others a rescue home, others believed that it was an institution which ministered only to the poor and neglected of God's creatures. She said while the settlement was a friend to the orphan and the dependent and the poor, its primary aim was to interpret the neighborhood to itself. The Christian settlement strives to interpret the rich to the poor, so that the rich may learn to be more sympathetic and to understand the real meaning of the Master's words, when he said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto me." It strives to interpret the people to the church, and throughout its ministry it seeks to lift up the fallen, cheer the broken-hearted, and help wherever the need is greatest. Only those who are in close touch with the work of a Christian settlement can realize what the friendly visitor means to those people, as she goes in and out of their homes, winning them first for the settlement, and then for Jesus Christ.

Through the clubs and classes, where cooking and sewing and housekeeping and other lines of industrial work, are taught, the results are remarkable. Homes are transformed, and the members of those homes are taught to live on a little higher plane than they once did. Miss Allen spoke of one home, especially, where the children in it who had been members of the little housekeepers' class, decided to put their theory into practice. They went home one day from the class at the settlement, and started cleaning their house. They commenced on the front room, taking down the curtains, sweeping and dusting until the room fairly shone; then the next room was taken, and finally the kitchen was put in perfect order, according to the order of cleaning they had learned at the settlement. The mother of that home marveled at the change, and the whole family wished for the friendly visitor to come, that she might share the joy of their clean surroundings.

These efforts on the part of the children were not spasmodic, for they saw that their home was always kept clean and tidy, where once only dirt and confusion held sway.

Miss Allen further stated that the settlement tried to administer to the four-fold nature of the people who came to them, and she thought there was no greater church agency that was rendering a larger aid than the Christian settlements in our land.

GIVE ME TO-DAY.

By Willie C. Page.

Give me to-day—I do not ask to know
What to-morrow's chalice holds, be it deep or strong;
I only ask for faith, that I may always go
In duty's path and dream or fear no wrong.

Give me to-day—I do not ask to see
What picture on life's screen to-morrow may reveal;
I only beg that each glad moment be Crowned with some kind, some noble, loving deed.

Lexington, Miss.

TREASURERS, SECRETARIES, PREACHERS AND BOARDS.

I joined the Louisiana Annual Conference in January, 1883, at Mansfield. As a Methodist preacher, I have had many and varied experiences. I have served the church as missionary, circuit rider, station preacher, presiding elder, and college man. During these thirty-six years, I have marked with ever-growing interest and with some measure of faithfulness the growth and development of our great church. Men have usually credited me with common sense and even have accused me of possessing some little business acumen and a modicum of scholarship. I have built some churches, parsonages, and collected during my term of service moneys for benevolent and beneficent enterprises. Of these I have kept a strict account, and of these rendered reports manifold to the conferences, quarterly and Annual. I have always despised a fixed, crystallized, only mode, of doing things. Personal freedom to do things in my own way is almost a passion with me; the only master I own here is Right, the only guide I have is Truth. I am not too old to think clearly, and am fully alive to the issues of the age. But in some things of this latter day I am at sea, and some other fairly sensible men are with me.

In connection with the Centenary Movement, I am told to do a thing in a certain way. Having some understanding and being amenable to reason, I proceed to follow instructions. I have about concluded the Boards, or Commissions, or Bureaus who have these things in charge are either helpless or hopeless, or I am stupid. Yet I understand English, speak French fairly well, and can read some Latin or even decipher a little Greek when necessary. But I can't travel both ways at once. I can't follow instructions from a dozen or more sources at the same time—and no one else who has any sense. I am told to follow certain forms, and no forms have appeared. I send many cards and reports, and am told, as though I were a truant schoolboy, that is not the way to do it. If the men in the offices can't keep up with money when sent them, what are they there for?

Just like everything else in the smaller churches, the work of collecting the money is on the preacher. Now hear me—at our Preachers' Meeting in the First Church at Shreveport, it was said, "Send your reports—the pledge cards—to Nashville. To Nashville went mine. Back they came, with instructions to send these reports, pledge cards with addresses, etc., to New Orleans. Forthwith to New Orleans they went. Back again, with a request for a list of the subscribers. Faithfully was the list written and mailed. Now something else is wrong. Certain form shall be followed. Where is the form? I have it not. New York exchange or cash is about all the form I want to handle money. But I am stupid, and don't know much. See you again.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

A CORRECTED REPORT.

Dear Brother Carley: Will you please allow me a little space in the Advocate to make a few explanations with reference to the report of the Kosclusko circuit made in our last Annual Conference?

I failed to get hold of a copy of the Minutes until a few days ago, and find in looking over the reports that the presiding elder did not get his full salary and the preacher was overpaid; I am sure if they published the report in the Minutes that I handed in, there was a mistake made by the secretary or the publisher, or some one else. Rev. E. H. Cunningham kindly assisted me in making out my report for the year's work, and I am sure that it was correct, as he is an expert along that line, having had experience from the quarterly conference to reporting for the General Conference.

My name is not found in connection with the Kosciusko circuit. I find Brother White's name as preacher in charge, but he was there only a month or a little over, and I hardly think he sent in a report to the Conference. So far as the proceedings of the Conference anywhere show, my name is not in connection with any work at all. Brother White was the circuit rider for a month or two, and from some cause left the work, and I took charge by request of Rev. W. W. Mitchell, P. E., and was the circuit walker from March until the Conference met in the fall, and missed only two or three appointments, which was due to the influenza epidemic. We were quarantined and not allowed to gather. I walked the circuit all the while, only when I could find some conveyance going my way, and visited six hundred families or more. The people were very kind in assisting me, however, and we had a good year. Now I would be glad if some kind friend could and would give me some information as to the reports. I do not like to appear before the public as having received more than my share of the salary paid by the circuit. I love my presiding elder too well for that.

With many thanks, I remain,

Yours fraternally,

W. J. O'BRYANT.

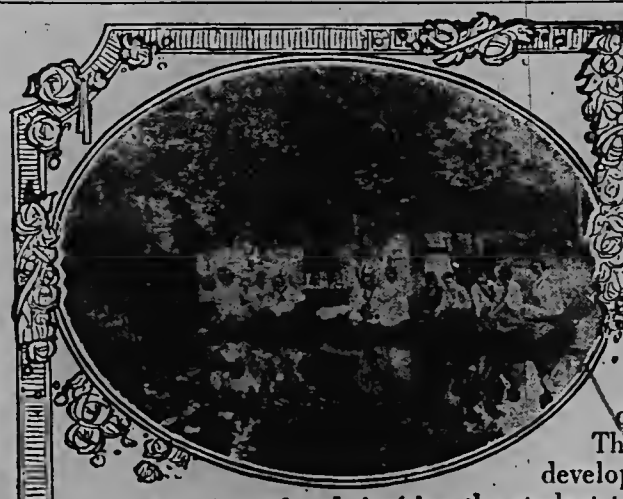
Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

WHAT OF YOUR BOY?

His education and training, and the development of his mind, body, and character depends on you, his parent. It is a grave responsibility, for there are so many antagonistic influences that come into play in a boy's life. As every boy looks back over his education and training he can always point out some one influence, some one life that has had a more profound influence. To thousands of boys this influence has been the guiding spirit, the personal association and the inspiring character of Mr. Robert K. Morgan, principal of Morgan School for twenty-five years. He knows boy nature. The close personal associations which he has fostered between his boy students and himself, his carefully chosen faculty, his careful attention to the boy's work, his thoughts, his talents, and his special needs, have given great prominence to his school and have characterized the success that he has merited in successfully shaping the lives of thousands of youths at the shaping age.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school.



MERIDIAN College and Conservatory

The views of student life illustrated afford a glimpse of the abundant out-of-door recreation given to our young people amid beautiful surroundings. The pictures by no means give an adequate conception of the merit and true worth of the institution. The ideal broad but Christian atmosphere encourages the development of all that is strong and noble in young womanhood and manhood, inciting the student to highest effort in securing a college education.

Located among the health-giving pine forests of Meridian, a more ideal spot with healthful surroundings would be difficult to find. Beautiful campus, modern buildings, 250-acre farm including parks, lakes, dairy farm, etc. Gymnasium, indoor swimming pool. Out-of-door life is possible the whole college year. Sane athletics are encouraged by the new administration. Hot and cold water in bed-rooms.

Regular fall term opens September 15th; offers a preparatory course and a standard college course leading to B. A., B. S., B. L., and B. Mus. degrees; special courses including domestic science, domestic art, painting, expression, oratory, and commercial courses, etc. Special advantages in music and the pipe organ unsurpassed in America. EDITORIAL COMMENT

WORTH ALL IT COSTS.

We commend to the attention of those who have so vigorously opposed war-time prohibition the recent statement of the chief of detectives of Chicago that it has brought about a fifty per cent decrease of crime in that great city. This statement, according to press dispatches, was made on July 11. That is not a sufficient length of time upon which to base absolute conclusions concerning the results of the prohibition law, but, taken in connection with other well established facts, it is practically a demonstration of the claim that liquor is responsible for a very large part of the crime committed in this country. We cannot understand how even the most insistent advocate of "personal liberty" can bring himself to oppose prohibition in the face of its social and economic benefits. Apart from all moral considerations, it is worth infinitely more than it costs. It, of itself, will go a long way toward making the world a safe place in which to live.

LOVE AND WAR.

Reports from Germany indicate that American soldiers, while ready to fight German soldiers, are not proof against the charms of the German girls. Since the peace treaty has been signed, more than 140 inquiries have been made at army headquarters to know whether marriages between American men and German women would be allowed. After all, this is one of the beautiful things of human nature—the overwhelming power of personal love. The principle of love is the one thing that makes life worth living. It is an old story that no barrier can stand in the way of it. It is love that will, at last, redeem the world.

"ALL WORK AND NO PLAY MAKES JACK A DULL BOY."

Lord Northcliffe is one of the great newspaper owners of England. According to a London dispatch, he has recently announced that all the regular editors, special writers, and reporters in his employ are to have two days each week for rest or recreation under the "five-day working week," which he is introducing in his newspaper properties. The industrial world has come to recognize the truth of the old saying, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and the tendency nowadays is to give all employees ample opportunity to renew their strength by affording them suitable opportunities for healthful diversion. There was a time when employers seemed to think that they were entitled to the last ounce of strength the laborer possessed. Skillful bargaining was thought to consist of getting as many hours of work as possible for the smallest wage that would be accepted. Experience has demonstrated the fact, however, that better results are obtained by paying more money for less time. Rest is not a luxury, but a necessity, if the human machine is to be maintained at its highest efficiency.

THE PRESIDENT'S RETURN.

President Wilson returned last week from his epoch-making stay in Paris, and, at the earliest moment possible, delivered the peace treaty to Congress with an address that was intended to insure and hasten its ratification by the Senate. The address, without claiming that the treaty represented the full desires of any of the parties to it, made it clear that it is as complete document as could be expected under the circumstances under which it was written, and that it represents the most successful attempt that has yet been made to bring all the nations of the world into an agreement that will insure future peace and prosperity. He emphasized the fact that it was necessary to incorporate the covenant of the League of Nations in the treaty in order that sufficient provision might be made for the enforcement of the terms that were written into it. It was a clear, dispassionate statement of the efforts that have been made to bring order out of chaos and to set forward the interests of humanity beyond the power of a single misguided or selfish nation to destroy. Its closing paragraph is a beautiful—almost poetic—expression of the high mission and manifest duty of the United States in the new era of internationalism. So far as we have been able to judge from newspaper reports, the reception given the address varies with the political bias of the critics; those who have opposed the policies of the President all along speak disparagingly of it, while those who have been in sympathy with his views speak of it as the greatest of all his utterances. We may well believe that it was the President's purpose in this first address after his return to lay down certain principles upon which he proposes to insist upon the ratification of the treaty, and that he intends, in later communications, to go more into detail concerning the multitudinous interests that had to be taken into consideration in the Versailles conference.

OF COURSE.

When we read in a newspaper headline the other day that the price of gasoline had dropped two cents in a considerable trade territory of the country, we thought that, perhaps, the longed-for downward tendency of prices was beginning to make itself felt. But when we read a few lines further and found that the price of kerosene had been advanced one cent in the same area, we lost hope. We do not know, but we suspect that the one-cent increase in the price of kerosene will more than offset the decrease in the price of gasolene. No matter which way the market turns, the man "higher up" seems to be able to make a satisfactory profit. So distinguished a man as Sir A. Conan Doyle has recently said that unrestrained profiteering is threatening the very foundations of the English social order. Conditions must be pretty bad over there—but we are not prepared to cast any stones from this direction.

NO MORE WAR—BUT WE'LL BE READY.

A news item from Washington, D. C., states that the contract has just been let for a new battleship, which, when completed, will probably be the largest war vessel in the world. We are beginning to learn that nations, like individuals, do not always act as they speak. We might reasonably suppose that, after so much talk about disarmament, the governments of the world would move rather slowly in adding to their already heavy equipment for waging war. Of course we must remember that our present naval program was authorized in 1916—but the peace party is supposed to have made some progress since that time. The man who carries a gun is the one who is likely to shoot somebody; when nations are heavily armed, there is always danger of war. Without universal agreement as to limitation of armaments, however, every nation has to be on the safe side.

KNOWING WHEN TO STOP.

The train stopped at the station a few minutes, and then moved on. The conductor came through the coach, spoke to a young man, reached up and pulled the bell-cord and stopped the train for the young man to get off—he had almost gone by his destination. We do not know what the cause was—we noticed that he was reading a newspaper. But the incident had a lesson. It is not always an easy matter to know when to stop. A preacher will spoil a sermon by going beyond a good stopping place; a visitor will wear out his welcome by staying a little too long; a friendly discussion will grow into a bitter quarrel because one of the speakers goes too far in his remarks. It is generally a misfortune and sometimes a tragedy to go beyond the place where we ought to stop.

ANOTHER ARGUMENT FOR GOOD ROADS.

We have always been of the opinion that good roads are worth all they cost, within reason. The economic value of easy and safe transportation for farm products cannot easily be overestimated; and the social and moral value is considerable. It is sometimes difficult, however, to present these values in specific terms. But now comes an expert of the Live Stock Sanitary Board who says that 90 per cent of the increase of hog cholera in Louisiana during the past winter was due to the poor condition of the roads. It was impossible, in many cases, to answer hurry calls to check outbreaks of the disease because some of the roads were impassable, even on horseback. According to his estimate, enough hogs have died during the past year on account of bad roads to have paid for many miles of good roads. We may not become interested in road building because it increases the value of our homes and adds to our social and moral welfare; but if the lives of our hogs are at stake, we cannot afford to hesitate. Bring on the bond issues and let's put the road machines to work before it is too late!

LETTERS TO THE PREACHERS AND METHODIST PEOPLE IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE AND THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCES.

By Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo.

IV.

My Dear Brethren: I have said we must preach the gospel, the fundamental and eternal truths of the gospel. And the one truth which should be chiefest in all our preaching is the being of the sovereign, eternal, omnipresent, and holy God. He is the final reality of all things. Back of Him there is nothing, above Him there is nothing. Forever and forever God is God. From His presence there is no escape. Go where we may, God is there, and do what we may, the might of His sovereignty is on us.

Religion is union between God and man. This is its essence. It is not a plan of social conduct, a program of world movements, the expression of the best that is in human nature. Its solitary function is to unite the divine and the human natures. Do not forget this. A religion with God left out is the silliest contradiction, veritable nonsense. Keeping this supreme truth of the gospel foremost in our minds, it is absolutely necessary to exalt God, to proclaim His glory, to know and declare His mind, and make men conscious of God with a dreadful sense of holy awe. If there is no God, then there is no such thing as religion. It is a fake. If there were in all the universe no other being but God and me, then religion would be the ultimate thing for me.

The world has lost God, even the church has very vague conceptions of Him, that is, if I am to judge by much of what I hear and read. Science admits that there is something that is absolute, mighty, and universal, and this conception has about supplanted the declarations of the Bible about God. He is a sort of necessity to rational thinking about the universe, an infinite series of cause and effect. The personal God in whom we live and move and have our being, the Father of the Lord Jesus Christ, the source of all life and light and truth, the one and solitary being unto whom all minds and wills must answer day by day, this God of the Holy Scriptures has become largely lost to this generation. The revival we need, the revival we must have is a renewed sense of God, not a new conception about deity and the immanence of deity, but the mighty presence of the eternal God in our hearts and minds and consciences and wills. We have had enough of the heathenism and atheism of academic refinements about the Infinite Being. We must have God, the God whose voice hammered chaos into this vast cosmos, the God whose word upholds all things by its might, the God whose holy will has written every law in all realms, the God who spoke to the patriarchs and prophets in the ancient times, the God whose holy judgments have fallen on sin and whose holy love has upheld the saints in all ages, the God who in Christ Jesus has opened to sinners the way of life, the God who can not tolerate sin, the God whose will in the end of all things will be eternally established in a kingdom of righteousness.

First of all, we as preachers must know this God ourselves, know Him not as a theory or an assumed fact, but know him as Abraham knew Him, as Elijah knew Him, as Isaiah knew Him, as Paul knew Him, as all the saints of all times have known him, within our own hearts and consciences. I am frequently shocked to note how some preachers I hear can so successfully leave God out of their sermons. Then note the much writing about religion in which God is the least mentioned subject. I have heard whole addresses on missionary work and God has had the slightest attention in the thought and plan of the enterprise. We have about assumed that in these times we can get along with a minimum of God, even without Him. This is what St. Paul declared to be the heart of heathendom. "They changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshiped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed forever." How much of this kind of heathendom is in America to-day? How much of it is heard from some pulpits? How much of it is expressed in our so-called learning? How much of it is really in our own hearts? We need God, we must have God. The only revival that will save us from sin is a return of God, such as the prophets in the olden times called for and David cried for.

Charlotte, N. C.

A SECULAR EDITOR'S OPINION OF JOHN BARLEYCORN.

(Some people seem to think that prohibition is the result of religious fanaticism; to offset such a view, we reproduce an editorial utterance of the Commercial Appeal, of Memphis, Tenn., one of the great daily newspapers in this country, which appeared on the morning of July 1.—Editor.)

This morning that most insidious enemy of the human race, John Barleycorn, takes his most welcome departure. He goes with a train of a million evils and ne'er a good to commend him. One last lingering hope of a few months' respite alone remains. Should the army be demobilized before next January, it is possible that a few more days of miserable life may be allowed him until his sentence of death is executed next January. But in the intervening time it is most likely that the majority of his victims will have released themselves from his death grip and he will receive no return welcome even among his former friends. The Department of Justice has decreed that the frail sisters of John Barleycorn—the 2.75 per cent beer and the extra light wines—may live a rather meager and unfruitful existence until the dawn of a new year also sounds their death knell. And then, "farewell, a long farewell to all their greatness"—and to their infamy.

Nothing is truer than that this serpent, held to the breast of this nation for centuries, finally stung itself to death. The arrogance of the whisky interests and their prostitution of politics first attracted the attention of the country to this monster evil. In order to purify our government far-seeing leaders realized that it would be necessary to release politics from the coils of the saloon viper. For a time it was a hard and thankless task. Like all forward-looking reforms the fight against whisky domination was denounced as a species of fanaticism when, as a matter of fact, the only fanatics were the self-seeking beneficiaries of alcoholism and their deluded followers, who struck blindly and in rage at even methods of reform that might have assured them some form of existence.

While in this frame of mind the nation began to take stock of alcohol as an economic and moral factor in these United States. On the debit side of the country's ledger it was charged with a million crimes; on the credit side, not a single virtue. Economically, alcoholism was charged with poverty, disease, hunger and industrial obstruction. It created unemployment, obstructed efficiency, and cut down production in all branches of industry. It retarded progress because it dissipated the mental strength of those upon whom advancement depended. Judged in the most impartial manner, the use of alcohol was found to be a grave economic waste, both in the destruction of wealth and in preventing the production of more wealth. The great industrial leaders of the country and the big employers of labor realized that alcoholic beverages were indefensible and their verdict rejected any appeal.

On the moral side, the debits were even heavier. Alcohol not only debased the individual, but it also wrecked the home, and out of this wreckage a thousand evils flowed. It provoked a host of crimes hardly less heinous than varied. Thievery, murder, social delinquencies and violence offered to women were, in thousands of cases, the products of a brain that had been inflamed or disordered by alcohol. Its last and final crime committed against the individual was his alcoholically inspired self-destruction. The path of the serpent was a path of misery and sorrow and sin.

It remained, however, for the greatest scientists and the most learned physicians to deliver the final blow to alcohol. This they did when they showed without a question of doubt that it had not the slightest medicinal value as a beverage. On the other hand, they demonstrated that the use of alcohol paved the way for a host of diseases of the various organs of the body.

The judgment of this combined wisdom was then formulated and presented. It gripped the common sense of the nation and the dethronement of King Alcohol for years has been but a matter of time. That time has now arrived.

News dispatches from the last remaining loyal fiefs of the king in this country tell us that the observance of his death was in keeping with his life. He was buried in a shroud of his own iniquity. With him went an ocean of tears and a million bleeding hearts. He is gone and he shall not return and in this there should be some consolation. Even to those who have parched throats and a throbbing head to-day there should come a new hope and a new vision of things. We are sure that it will be just as soon as they are freed from the spell of their delusion.

REMINISCENT—AN ECHO OF YESTERDAYS.

By Payton A. Sowell.

V.

Keener, Parker and McTyeire—all were members of the Louisiana Conference in its formative period. I have no doubt they were congenial spirits in their service for the King. They were for a series of years co-pastors in the same Southern city. They all became editors, in turn, of the New Orleans Advocate. They all reached and held the highest office at the disposal of the M. E. Church, South. There was never a dissenting opinion about their ability to be bishops.

In the appointments of 1848, Algiers finds a place. It was then a mere plantation, and H. A. Morse, P. C., rendered his larger service to the slaves. In 1849, 20 members—white—are reported and Zachariah Thompson was P. C. So that our preachers and church have exercised a ministry to Algiers for 71 years. To-day we sorely need a handsome church in which to bear witness to our doctrines and build up the kingdom of Christ. I have no doubt the day will come when such a church will lift up its dome to greet its sister churches across the great river. But it delays its coming. And in these changeful times, a day is a great loss. As a worthy successor of the long line of preachers who, for 71 years, have held up the standard of Methodism in Algiers, Charles C. Wier is P. C. If the Conference and church will build the suitable church, he will do the rest, putting Algiers Methodism permanently on the map.

Even before 1847, antedating this perhaps many years, for in those years there were no records well kept, many heroes of the Methodist ministry perished in the epidemics of cholera and yellow fever. To meet these dreadful epidemics required a courage even superior to that needed on the battlefield of New Orleans, when January 8 saw the riflemen of Andrew Jackson, from Tennessee, and other sections, save the U. S. To wait quietly in the place of danger, watching a handful of members, who might all leave, and as silent as a shadow the footfall of the pestilence falls upon the walter! Many prominent and many obscure heroes, no doubt, went down in those fatefui years. I write three names, long forgotten, as the city has swept on in growth and in health: Revs. Hinds, Wm. F. Brown, and Wm. Tink, a native Prussian.

In 1857, Joseph B. Walker was P. C. of McGehee charge. Walker at McGehee, McTyeire at Fellcity, H. C. Thweatt at Morean, and perhaps Keener and Parker at other points, made a "team" 68 years ago.

It was at Felicity church, I think, McTyeire preached his sermon on the "Eleventh Hour Servant" that awakened so much comment throughout the church. If not in this sermon, then in another he seemed to teach the "intermediary" state.

Bishop Keener is the only preacher, or any one else, I ever heard seriously attempt to sing "Wrestling Jacob." His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Keener, once told me. "Father Keener was the only man who could sing that song."

I never heard Bishop Parker preach or speak, but I saw him consecrated a bishop in McKendree church, Nashville, Tenn. Through many years my faith was steadied, and my love of Methodism, was reinforced, by seeing and hearing Bishops Keener and McTyeire. McTycire's mind and thinking and preaching were much more definite and clear than Keener's.

It was a privilege, worth going a good ways to enjoy, to hear McTyeire read the Scriptures. He was an imposing man in appearance. Ordinary men felt and realized the smallness of their build in his presence. Once you found way into his heart, you rested against him as against your father.

One characteristic New Orleans Methodism has shown largely through the 72 years: it has been kind to strangers. Many transfers have served them. Looking a moment back over these years—how the emptying has gone on! If those great men were here, and those of to-day—what might be done!

IN LUCK AT THE CENTENARY.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

Even to hint at a description of such an event as this Centenary of Methodism would be a task beyond my powers or the patience of your readers.

Everything is on the grandest scale; if anything is lacking, it is simply that the fertile brains of those who have been in charge have failed to recall. From the great continents to the smaliest isles of the sea, none have been forgotten.

Every mission field in the world, large and small, has its special apartments and displays, with lecturers to advertise. Speakers on every hand, and missionary tunes may be heard. I say tunes, for only the tunes are familiar, yet "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" is all the same, whether sung in Japanese, Indian or played by the great trombone choir of one hundred pieces.

The immense crowds on the grounds are reported at 70,000 and up daily. You meet a friend, give a passing greeting, and go on, not to see each other again.

July 1 was Prohibition Day, and a great day indeed. The chief speaker was Wm. J. Bryan and the chief feature was a grand procession preceding the funeral of John Barleycorn.

The greatest attraction on the grounds is the "Wayfarer," a pageant requiring two evenings of two hours each to present. So popular is the play that tickets must be procured 48 hours or longer before one can gain admission. Doubtless it will be taken from here to the great cities for exhibition. The main idea is the reclamation of the doubter, made so by the great war. To describe it is impossible here. While of entirely different character, its popularity is approached only by the "Birth of a Nation."

To-day, July 2, is "Southern Day" at the Coliseum building, which is the largest auditorium on the grounds, with a seating capacity of 8000 people. One of the greatest events of the day is the Evangelistic Service, conducted under the "Big Tent" by Rev. Bob Jones, of Alabama, and Bob is sustaining the reputation of the Jones family in that field, not equal to, but a good second to the famous Sam.

Well, everything must have an end, so must this, and I am reminded of an engagement at this hour. Good bye. I may have more to send if

BISHOP QUAYLE AND THE DICTIONARY

By Allen P. DeLong.

"Oh, people, there isn't anybody who ever drew breath, that knew how to draw the bow of steel and aim the arrow of strange words, who can use words beautiful enough—" So says Bishop Quayle. Ah, that is it then! Herein lies the secret of convincing, persuasive power. Golden words! Wooing, winsome, beautiful words. Expressive words. Words fitly spoken. To Solomon they were as apples of gold in pictures of silver. Whether or not we understand the art of using them, others do, and because they do they bewitch us.

In a little leaflet written by the Bishop entitled "The Task Golden," in which he tells us of his conversion, there is a sweet humor. And perhaps at first this is all we see. But beneath it there lies a great truth. He says:

"The preacher came over to me and said, 'Billy, you belong with Jesus!' He was a kind of a farmer fellow, and grew all crops but hair, and he wore farmer's clothes, and spoke about farming and sowing; and he said that there was a sower that went out to sow, and there was a great harvest. And everybody paid heed. And then he came and put his hand on my shoulder and said, 'Billy, God wants you to be one of his farmers,' and I came up the aisle of the schoolhouse; not to the chancel—there wasn't anything but the dictionary in the schoolhouse, so I came and bowed at the dictionary. And, oh, me, the wind was wild that night! It was as stormy as on a wide sea, the storm that beat upon that prairie schoolhouse. The wind had its chance, and it blew like it did on the Sea of Galilee; and Christ came over and said, 'Boy, what do you want down here?' and I said, 'I want Thee, O, Christ.' And he said, 'I have come.' "

You see the simplicity and sweet humor of it. He came forward expecting to find an altar, and there was none, and, lad-like, he was bewildered. He wanted something to kneel down by, and seeing the dictionary, he, as he says, bowed down by it. A good place to commence a Christian life, especially a ministerial life. If there had been an altar, and still he had knelt at the dictionary, might it not have been the wiser choice? You will agree with me that if there be any other piety—which we question—intelligent piety is the most potential. So while the dictionary may not be numbered with things ecclesiastic and sacred, we know of no better shrine at which youth can bow, if Christ be there. And do you know of any place where Christ can more easily and comprehensively come to a human soul than in a schoolhouse with a Bible on the desk and a dictionary for an altar? Who will say that the dictionary is not the best help a man ever had in the interpretation of the Bible message of human redemption? He best preaches who best understands words, and has the largest number of them at command.

As it seems to us, that scene of years ago, in the windswept schoolhouse on the wide prairie, was a prophesy of things that now are. This man—this poet, preacher, literatus; interpreter of nature, of history of revelation—walks through our souls, pleadingly, prevailng, masterfully, because he has first gone through the dictionary. He knows words; he reverences them, caresses them, conjures with them. Swift and true messengers are they to convey his thoughts to other men. Fitly chosen, they come at his bidding like shafts of light, to illumine any subject he touches. He dreams dreams, and with the skill of an artist visualizes them in word colorings. While he paints we wonder. When done it is no longer a dream, but a reality that lingers with us as an inspiration to lofty purposes and holy deeds Whence this power? He was converted kneeling at the dictionary, and has fellowshiped therewith ever since.

There is a dumb devil in the world, as there was in the days of Jesus. The dumb devil of men is a beggarly vocabularly. But why should a preacher be dominated thereby, when an honest hour with the dictionary every day will exorcise this binderling spirit?—Central Christian Advocate.

A WORD FROM FRANCE.

Dear Advocate: We are to-day breaking up the three camps, Montrichard, Bonree, and Drill Field, where I have been religious director for the Y. M. C. A. for the past seven months.

The men are all smiles everywhere you see them these days, and the word "Home" is on all lips. I saw a string of troop trains yesterday bound for Brest; on one coach was written, "Good-bye, France; its home now;" on another, "We've paid the Lafayette debt—good-bye;" another, "God's country for me;" still another, "Four thousand miles to God's country."

The men are wild for home, and I confess I share to a considerable degree the same feeling. It has been a hard winter, and most of us "Y" workers are tired and worn-out from the constant round of activities we have had to keep going since the Armistice was signed.

I hope to be home in Columbus, Miss., by August. The ocean voyage will give the needed rest, and I will spend the intervening months until Conference meets in revival work, and some occasional services reporting on "Y" activities in France.

THESE SUMMER DAYS.

By Willie C. Page.

What are we doing these perfect summer days? Remembering to be glad and happy, grateful as our hearts are capable of being.

Are we striving to inspire others to be happy? Are we loving and serving with our whole hearts? Are we lending a hand, seeking opportunities to bring cheer and sunshine to those who most need brightness and blessings? Do we realize the amount of good that may be done between the dawn and sunset of these long summer days? Every unselfish deed, little daily act of kindness, if done in His name, will be reflected in our own hearts.

Are we keeping sweet of temper under all circumstances, preserving our poise and serenity of mind and souls so that we may be able to help our neighbors? Are we striving upward and onward, never becoming discouraged by seeming failures, knowing that the Father's hand is on the helm, that some day our frail bark will be guided safely to anchor? Do we realize that the Kingdom of Heaven is not a place to seek afar, but that it lies in our own hearts, and that the quality of our own thoughts makes or mars our life's happiness? That we may be happy or miserable every step of the way, all depends on the manner in which we entertain the silent whisperings that comes to us, the divine communing with the spirit.

At the close of these perfect days, when the twilight folds her soft curtain of purple shadows about us, when night draws her silver, star-decked shades, let us ponder this question:

"What have I done to-day?"

CONCERNING A CHURCH-WIDE REVIVAL.

By Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo.

In the Discipline, in the chapter dealing with the duties of the bishop, is this paragraph: "To travel during the year, as far as practicable, through the presiding elders' districts which may be included in his episcopal district, in order to preach and to oversee the spiritual and temporal affairs of the church." Also, in the vows required of the bishop at the time of ordination, he is required to declare his readiness to guard his charge against all erroneous doctrines, as are all who are ordained to the office of an elder in the church of God.

Conscious of the weight and solemn meaning of these duties, I feel under the necessity to call the attention of the preachers and the people under my oversight to certain statements and plans which they should carefully note lest they fall into grievous error, to say the least of it. In doing this I wish it fully understood that I have no thought of criticism or purpose of personal rebuke. Nothing except a desire to perform the grave responsibilities of the office to which I have been appointed moves me to address this communication to our people.

I have on my desk a bulletin dealing with plans for a church-wide revival which the Centenary Commission is endeavoring to arrange, and giving certain directions to be followed by pastors, bishops, presiding elders, and preachers in charge. Also another communication dealing with other specific programs to be observed by pastors. Public notice has been given that early next year there will be put on an evangelistic drive throughout the church. I need not say to you that the one thing that fills my heart and my mind, and is the burden; as it has been during all the years of my ministry, is the salvation of sinners. For it I pray many times a day, and my work among you has this one end in view at all times. Of this I feel sure you have ample knowledge.

But, my brethren, we must exercise diligent care lest in our zeal we run into extremes and violate the most sacred declarations of God in the Holy Scriptures, and mislead the people. The Holy Spirit, who is the sole executor of the mind of God in the church, will never give false utterances and unholy means His sanction and His blessings, and without Him all our work is vain. Of this I am very certain. We are not novices in the work of conducting revivals, and need not to import programs and experiment with mechanisms. Let us turn unto God and He will have mercy on us.

As a sample of what I am trying to warn you against, is this statement taken from the bulletin to which I have made allusion. "Jesus was both a dreamer and a darer, but his dreams were more real than the logic and philosophy of other men. He dared more than any hero that ever lived." That statement gives me deep pain. To me Jesus has always been God and too infinitely holy and exalted to be compared with men, dreamers and darers among men, such as Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, and the Kaiser. I believe every word in our Articles of Faith and the Apostle's Creed, and nothing shocks my soul like any reference to the Christ of God which places Him on a level less than the "My Son, in whom I am well pleased." But Jesus was not a dreamer, He did not dream or dare "the spiritual conquest of the world." Surprise, experiment, adventure were absolutely unknown to Him. The eternities surged through His consciousness, and His knowledge was the knowledge of the Son of God. If we have only a dreamer, even the greatest of all dreamers, to offer poor sinners, then we have nothing to offer them. Jesus is the Son of God, the crucified Savior of sinners, the exalted Christ at the right hand of the Majesty on High, and let us so preach Him and trust Him. We can never hope to have a revival with a diminished Christ. I beseech you, my brethren, whom I love and with whom I labor, do not allow any sort of zeal to shadow the faith once for all delivered unto the saints. For myself I feel that it is far better that I should be lost than the Holy Christ of God should be diminished. The world has lost God's exalted Son. He has been made by our philosophies less than God and reduced to an exemplary man, and God among us is not known. We must bring Him back to men, to poor lost men, who are groping in darkness calling for God. I say again such declarations pain me beyond expression and out of this sense of pain I send you this warning to protect our people against all forms of error, revival or no revival. Take from our people their health, their riches, their social standing, their political influence, and all else of earthly blessings, but leave them the Christ, their God among them, the Savior of their souls, and the King Eternal, Immortal, Invisible, the only wise God, to whom be glory for ever and ever. He is not a dreamer, He is God with us.

Charlotte, N. C.

TO UNPAID SUBSCRIBERS.

The Board of Trustees and Managers, and those directly in charge of building and financing the Methodist Hospital in Memphis, unhesitatingly and with the best of good will make a special and earnest appeal to all subscribers of the building fund, to send the balance due at once.

The contractors are now calling for $20,000 to $30,000 per month for payment of work and material going into the new building, and this must come from the subscriptions already made, as the Board of Managers have not borrowed anything so far, and think such a step should not be taken until all the subscriptions have been paid up.

The delay in making a special and urgent call for the money on past due subscriptions should in no wise lessen the obligations to pay, but instead should be considered a favor, because they have had the use of the money while many hundreds have receipts in full and are ready to do more. The ministers and laymen of the Methodist Church who read this know whether they owe anything to the Hospital Building Fund or not, and it is to them this appeal is made. If you are in doubt of the amount, write the Financial Agent, who will give the correct information at once.

The non-members of the Methodist Church who subscribed to the Hospital Building Fund have exercised a greater interest in the enterprise and have met their obligations more promptly and more fully than a great many of the Methodists themselves. This is a sad commentary upon church loyalty and of the right appreciation of a legal and moral obligation.

The Building Committee recently decided to let the remainder of the contract for the building and to push the work as rapidly as possible to completion. This Committee is composed of business and professional men of wide experience in commercial matters, and they are taking every step to safeguard the future interest of the Hospital. Surely when such men are giving liberally of their money, time and talent to erect and equip so great, so much needed and so worthy an institution, others should cheerfully pay at once all they owe and then become boosters.

NEWTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Newton District Conference convened at Raleigh, Miss., June 17, 1919, under the direction of Rev. W. L. Linfield, the efficient presiding elder of the Newton District. The business of the conference was dispatched with alacrity, and the reports from the various charges show that the Newton District, under his management, has made substantial advancement along all lines of religious endeavor.

During the afternoon of the first day, the conference was instructed as well as entertained by the inimitable John C. Chambers, who, assisted by Rev. M. L. White, and Mrs. J. E. Okey, conducted a Sunday school institute. Brother Chambers knows his business, and his instructive messages, delivered in his own unique manner, are a worth-while feature of any religious assembly.

The second day of the session was largely taken up in hearing the reports of the pastors. The reports from the various charges of the district were very encouraging. No district in the Conference has more enthusiastic preachers and laymen than those of the Newton District.

At the 11 o'clock hour, Rev. L. L. Roberts, of First Church, Laurel, delivered a most impressive sermon, which was well received. At 4 o'clock, Dr. Hull delivered an able address on the Centenary Movement. The sermon of the evening was delivered by Rev. H. J. Moore, of Montrose. His sermon was of a high order.

On the third day, the various committees made their reports. Brothers Warren N. Warre and Chester O. Boyles were recommended to the Annual Conference for local deacon's orders. Rev. Robt. Selby, Commissioner of Emory University, was introduced to the conference, and spoke in behalf of that Institution.

The following resolution was presented and adopted:

"Whereas the King James Version of our Holy Scriptures has made an incalculable contribution to education, literature, poetry; and whereas our Sunday School Board has seen fit to eliminate said King James Version from our Sunday school literature; and whereas the Revised Version of our Holy Scriptures has failed to commend itself to, and win its way with, the general reading public for constant use; therefore be it resolved:

"That we, the Newton District Conference, in session at Raleigh, Miss., this, the 18th day of June, 1919, do enter our protest to said Sunday School Board for eliminating said Authorized Version from our Sunday school literature, and respectfully ask that it be reinstated."

Ordered that the next district conference be held at Walnut Grove, the place being selected by a vote of the conference.

A resolution of thanks to the people of Raleigh was then introduced by Rev. L. L. Roberts, and was adopted by the conference. It was then moved and carried that after the sermon by Rev. M. L. White, the conference adjourn sine die.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS, LOUISIANA CONFORENCE.

Bills for Sunday School Day programs have been sent me for programs sent out by Smith & Lamar to 129 Sunday schools. Twenty-four schools have reported to this office with remittances aggregating $353; 105 schools have had the Sunday School Board pay for programs which have not reported.

There are 225 schools in the Louisiana Conference which have not, as yet, ordered programs, unless they were ordered direct from the Publishing House.

Order your programs, observe Sunday School Day, send in your offerings.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

It is a good meeting where the people are happy and where good themes are discussed. The Baton Rouge District Conference was a grand meeting. Every day was filled with a progressive program that led to something definite.

The pastors gave special emphasis to Sunday schools. They are planning for better schools and more of them. The Sunday school program was well carried out, and every speaker, save two, was there to take his part.

The hearty co-operation of Brother H. W. May, the presiding elder, made the Sunday school institute a marked success. The institute was planned in this case as all other institutes up to date were, viz., to effect a strong district Sunday school organization. We succeeded in this important task. The following persons were elected to serve in the Baton Rouge District:

District Secretary, O. H. Cline, Baton Rouge; Elementary Superintendent, Mrs. J. B. Magee, Hammond; Superintendent of Intermediate-Senior Bible Classes, Miss Frances Dunbar, Baton Rouge; Superintendent of Young People and Adult Bible Classes, Mrs. W. E. Smith, R. No. 4, box 35A, Baton Rouge; Superintendent of Missionary Education Bible Classes, Miss Mamye Reames, Kentwood; Superintendent of Teacher Training Bible Classes, Mrs. James Moore, Slaughter.

We are planning now for an "Efficiency Conference of District Officers" in each district. It is our plan to hold a one-day session at a convenient place where all the duties of the officers will be definitely outlined.

The Ruston District Sunday School Institute in the district conference will be held at Jonesboro, the second day, July 16, at morning session.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The first Sunday was spent at Capitol Street, Jackson. We had a fine service. The orphan children were present, or rather two truck loads of them were. They sang two songs and were mighty nice. They made a fine impression upon the audience.

Tuesday was spent at Rolling Fork. The district conference started well and gave promise of being a very fine one. A series of district conferences was arranged, and, I feel, will do much good.

Monday evening was spent at the Orphans' Home. I enjoyed my visit with the children there.

Wednesday was spent in the Negro Normal at Clarksdale. I had the opportunity of addressing them twice and hope that it was worth while.

Have you held Sunday School Day? If you have not, please do so and send your contribution to Mr. D. S. Harmon, Poplarville, Miss. The Sunday School Board will appreciate your aid.

Pray for the work and the workers.

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Do you want a district institute held in your town on the date mentioned in the Advocate of last week? If you do, say so, or else some one else will have that privliege.

Do not forget to send the offering for Sunday School Day to Rev. J. E. Stephens, Treasurer, New Albany, Miss. If you attend to this little matter, it will keep the Sunday School Board out of debt.

We have the promise of a large delegation from North Mississippi to attend the Lake Junaluska Training School for leaders this year. It is worth something to run around and see the sights, but it is worth a great deal more to study the wonderful problem of how to nurture an immortal soul.

The teachers and officers of the Liberty school on the Ashland circuit have ordered books to study that they may equip themselves for the work of teaching.

The Potts Camp school has begun the use of the graded lessons in the elementary department. Ten of the young people have agreed to take the course in leadership. Macedonia, on this circuit, has ordered books for their teachers to study.

Brother W. A. Wilson and his wife are doing all they can to bring the kingdom of God into the hearts of the people at Myrtle. They have a fine group of young people that can be trained to do anything that ought to be done to make a great church.

The teachers at Sherman enrolled for the study of the books in the elementary course and have ordered graded lessons for these departments. Brother Baker will leave the Sherman circuit better than when he took charge four years ago.

The excellent school at Tupelo lacks but a few points of attaining to Third Rank Standard in all the departments. Teacher-training is the one thing to be stressed in this school and all other schools of the Conference. We must make teachers if we ever teach religion as well as we teach arithmetic.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"Recollect that time the worthless cur-pup 'dopted you an' followed you home, an' how complimented you felt that a reel, sure-'nough dog wanted to be yours? An' how-hard you tried to be the man that pup seemed to b'lieve you was? Well, 'pears t'me if us teachers tried that hard to be Christians like what our scholars think Christians ought to be we'd have more of 'em follerin' Christ."

"No matter how clearly you see the p'int you're adrivin' at in your teachin', your scholars won't git it onless'n they see it too—only they must see it through usin' their own thinkin' apparatuses."

"It's lots more fun usin' 'rithmetic behind the soda-water fountain at the drug store durin' vacation than it was studyin' it in school. Likewise young folks enjoys usin' religion more'n they do just studyin' it."

Permanent Muscular Strength cannot exist where there is not blood strength. Young men giving attention to muscular development should bear this in mind. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives blood strength and builds up the whole system.—Adv.

Too much prosperity begets a spirit of sneering. And God will not have any sneering in his school. * * * When you sneer you are going down; when you sneer God is raising up a wind against you from the east, and it will blow you away.—Joseph Parker.

A STIRRING REVIVAL.

We have just closed one of the best meetings held in Greenville within recent years. Chaplain W. B. Hogg, of the Mississippi Conference, did the preaching. He is splendidly endowed for evangelistic work and ought to be persuaded to devote himself entirely to that kind of work. He is a wonderful success as a lecturer, but he is equally strong as a preacher. He has a quick mind, ready utterance, a marvelous memory and an inexhaustible store of illustration. He has spiritual insight and the power to stir the deepest springs of emotion. He can weave sunshine and shadow into such matchless combinations that his addresses are irresistible.

The revival did our church a great deal of good. Great congregations attended the services. Twenty-five have already been received into the church, fifteen of them on profession. Seventy-five have been received into the church since the first of January, twenty-nine of them being on profession of faith. One hundred and seventy-five have joined our church here since the beginning of my pastorate nineteen months ago.

This is a delightful charge to serve. They are loyal and generous, supporting the church with their money and their presence. We raised our Centenary quota without difficulty and are now planning to carry the revival into every home connected with the congregation.

E. S. LEWIS.

Greenville, Miss.

A SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL.

On June 20, the pastor began a meeting at Bienville, La., and preached until Monday night, when Rev. A. L. Harper, of Sibley, La., came to his assistance. Brother Harper is a safe and efficient revivalist, and did the preaching well. The choir, led by Brother G. W. Bolton, rendered splendid revival music that was really uplifting. Misses Crawford and Dewees presided at the organ with punctuality, grace, and efficiency.

One of the great features of the meeting was the spirit of co-operation existing between the churches. On their own initiative, the merchants closed the stores and came to church at the 11 o'clock hour. At 7 o'clock p. m., the men and boys met at some one of the stores for a prayer service, which were real spiritual feasts. At 7 p. m., the ladies held their prayer service at the church. We received 4 members on profession of faith.

We trust that much other good has been accomplished.

RALEIGH V. FULTON.

FROM WINNSBORO, LA.

The Winnsboro charge raised in money and pledges two or three hundred dollars over her Centenary allotment of $8,000. To God be the glory.

Then came the district conference, and the brethren and sisters that came seemed to enjoy it. The pastor and church at Winnsboro enjoyed it very much.

In spite of the criticisms of Brother Neil, we feel that the district conference was a success. The preaching was fine, the reports of the brethren from the different appointments were encouraging and had the ring of victory. Our beloved presiding elder, Brother Lutz, presided with grace and ability. We were glad to have the presiding elder of the Alexandria District with us—Brother C. B. Carter—and enjoyed his sermon very much. Brother Early, our Conference Sunday School Secretary, did well.

As the district conference closed, we invited Rev. J. M. Alford to preach Thursday and Friday nights. Then Sunday night our revival opened. Rev. R. A. Bozeman, evangelist, and Brother Spinks, his singer, were with us for three weeks. The church was greatly revived, and we had 12 additions to our church. Junior and Senior Epworth Leagues were organized, more than 20 members in each one.

Brother Bozeman preaches the gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven. He is sane, scriptural, and dares to declare the whole truth. As a token of appreciation of faithful services, they were presented with a purse of $318. All things considered we had a fine meeting. To God be the glory.

Yes, we contemplate either repairing the present church, or building a new one here. The matter is being considered just now, and will be definitely decided very soon. Brother Neil is very much mistaken about the Baptist church here. It is simply a brick church, of very small dimensions, without a single Sunday school room. As such, it will not seat as many as our church, by 75 or more.

If we attempt a new building, it will be worth while, otherwise we will repair our present building, and add a few Sunday school rooms.

Yours fraternally,

S. D. HOWARD.

Nellie S. Cowley.

I first saw my little California hummingbird before my window, running her bill into one clematis flower after another. Finding nothing, she darted off; but was soon baek. Evidently she was finding little to eat, so I mixed some honey and water together, and filled the blossoms. Presently she returned, and, half-heartedly, tried a flower. At the first taste, the whir of her wings quiekened, and with an air of pleased surprise, she cleaned up every drop. Two or three other huminers diseovered the new lunch-room that afternoon, and it met with instant approval.

I had always supposed that hummingbirds were timid, but three days after the first meal, one, growing impatient, came down while I was filling the flowers, and began to eat. Afterwards she hovered around my head a minute. Another time she sat down on the vine about a foot from me, and inspeeted me at her leisure. Later I read in a bulletin of the California Fish and Game Commission that the hummingbird was "quite courageous, and seems to have little fear of man. It has even been known to light on flowers held in the hand."

They were eurious as well. If I started to pull weeds, or sat down on the poreh, they sailed down to see what I was doing, and one day I noticed a very interested hummer sitting on the vine at the window, and craning his neck to watch me.

They soon deeided that I was the source of supplies. If they found the flowers empty, they would sit on the wire fenee, or in the pepper trees until I eame. Finally they learned to hunt me up. I would see a hummer hovering before a window; then, when it had attraeted my attention, it would dart away to the ciematis vine.

They soon learned to eat out of a flower held in my hand. One day, about a month after our acquaintanee began, I held my finger in front of the flower, and slowly raised it until it touehed the hummer's body. To my breathless wonder, she straightened out her legs, and finished her luncheon perehed on my finger.

I learned to reeognize only three of them apart. One, whieh eame only a few times, had a fawn colored baek, and was, probably, a rufous hummingbird. The other two were of the Anna variety. Their heads and baeks were green, and they were gray underneath. The larger hummer learned to pereh on my finger also, but he was never as trusting as the smaller one. She would fly up, and examine my faee, sit down and scratch her head (she could also perform this feat in the air) pretend to fall off my finger, adjusting herself with much fluttering, eat out of a teaspoon, and run her tongue out at me. I do not think she meant this impolitely, but as a delicate mark of appreciation.

What puzzled me, however, was where she kept that appalling length of tongue. Her bill was about three-quarters of an inch long, and she could run her tongue out fully as far again. I have since read that there is a small cavity at the back of the bill in which the tongue eoils up like a watch-spring.

The male would drive the female away if he found her at the flowers. One day, after chasing her out of sight, he took his station on a vine over the porch, now and then gazing fireely into the sky for more hummers to eonquer. Meantime, the female came around from the other direction, and took the last drop of honey.

Sometimes she would refuse to be driven away. Then the male would fly at her again and again, like a vicious little pendulum. He never sueeeeded in hitting her, but, if he had, there would have been an explosion of small feathers.

One day, after driving her off, he came to the window where I was, and, hovering in the air, sang a song of victory. It was a sweet song of five or six notes, and he repeated it two or three times. I had never known before that the hummingbirds sang, although they had often chirped when there was no honey waiting for them. When angry, they make a chattering sound, and when they fight, they give a tiny shriek.

The last I saw of my hummers that year was near the end of August. The female disappeared first. A few days after I saw the male at the window. I opened it, but, instead of coming down for the honey, he hovered in the air, looked at me for a seeond or two, and then flew away.—Our Dumb Animals.

WITHOUT WAX.

By Kate S. Gates.

Aunt Martha was knitting as usual, in her own speeial ehair by the south window, in the living room, when Dorothy eame in from a committee meeting to plan for a ehurch supper.

"I feel peeved," she said, half laughingly. "I always do when I have anything to do with Graee Burt."

"I thought that you were all very mueh pleased with Miss Burt," said Aunt Martha looking up in surprise.

"So we were, at first, and she is very sweet and lovely now, but she is not what I call true blue. We met at her house to-day you know. I was the first one there. Grace was up stairs, and evidently her little sister had mislaid something of hers. Grace was dreadfully vexed, and was scolding the poor little thing unmercifully. I could not help hearing what she said, though probably she did not realize that I could. Grace would not even speak pleasantly when Ethel sobbingly told her she was sorry—truly she was. Just before our meeting was over Ethel came into the room with a message from her mother, and Grace was so sweet to her, calling her darling and sweetheart. I have noticed things like that before, and, do my best, I cannot like Grace as well as I thought I should."

"You prefer your friends 'without wax,'" said Aunt Martha smilingly.

"If I knew what you meant by that I could tell better."

"You like your friends to be sincere, as we all do, and the word sincere comes from two Latin words meaning 'without wax.'

"You see in those old times many of the houses were built of marble. Often the edges of the blocks would be chipped and broken, and would present a very untidy appearance if put in place in that condition. So the builder would fill up the broken places with wax, smooth it over and polish it up so that it seemed at first, at least, to be all right.

"But by and by people began to have the clause 'without wax' put into their contracts.

"It might look all right at first, patched up in that way, but it did not wear well.

"And it is so with people; if they are not really and truly at heart what they pretend to be, it is sure to show sooner or later, and we are disappointed. We want our friends to be without wax, true and sincere."

"You are right we do, you blessed Aunt o' mine. I'm just wondering now if I myself am absolutely free from wax," laughed Dorothy, as she ran up stairs with her things.—Exchange.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

A THOUGHT-PROVOKING ARTICLE.

The July number of the Methodist Quarterly Review has come to hand. We have not had time to read it carefully, but in glancing through its pages our eyes fell upon some sentences in the article by Dr. George Trumbull Ladd on "Modern Theism," that held our attention. We believe his position, that the modern ministry is at fault in not grappling with the difficult problems of theology, is well taken. We quote:

"I think it must also be admitted that the ministry of all the denominations, and the schools of theology which have trained them, have been altogether too ignorant and too neglectful in their recognition of the existing conditions, and in their measure to combat and improve them. For to influences of the intellectual order, which have operated most disastrously upon intelligent and well-rounded theistic theology, has been added a certain type of so-called 'Pragmatism,' which has—it makes so little demand for prolonged and logical thinking—captivated the great multitude of specially designated exponents of Christian doctrine. Indeed, so little has this most important function of the pulpit been of late attended to that thoughtful adult men and women, not confirmed in agnosticism nor atheism, and even church-goers, with a certain degree of regularity, have ceased to look upon the ministry as teachers of theology. And, in fact, not a few of them have no theology to teach."

Further on in the same article, Dr. Ladd very strikingly calls attention to the sad neglect of constructive thinking in the realm of theology in the present day. We quote again: "It is fit time for Modern Theism to summon the thought of Christendom to the task of reconstruction. But as the essential prerequisite for a hopeful issue of this summons, it is necessary that the mental temper of Christendom should be greatly changed. It is universally assumed that the last century has been the world's most predominantly and brilliantly intellectual age. The assumption is far enough from being true. In the fields of experimental science, historical research and criticism, the collection and collocation of social phenomena, there has been unexampled diligence, ingenuity, and fruitfulness of results. But for the exercise of prolonged, painful, and profound reflective thinking upon the ultimate problems involved in the discoveries, there has been a comparative lack of interest, where there has not prevailed a somewhat disgraceful neglect. The so-called practical has been exalted in interest and importance; the so-called metaphysical has been regarded as comparatively worthless, if not rightfully subject of contempt. But it is just that metaphysical, in which all the practice of religion has its roots, and without being rooted in which practice withers and dies, that demands the attention of modern theistic belief. * * * We do not wish to revive the ancient way of contention over the grounds of, and deductions following from, theistic belief. But in the interests of unity, and the firmer founding and more solid defense of that belief, there is a loud call for far more profound and even agonizing thought. Let modern theism gird the loins of its mind and enter into the arena for a struggle against the current agnosticism and atheism, with fullness of knowledge, with Christian temper, but with the training of intellectual fiber and the invincible courage of the true gladiator."

We commend this thought especially to our young preachers. It is, perhaps, not difficult to make a show of learning with little real intellectual training, and to meet the requirements of many commonplace positions with a meagreness of doctrinal information. But the man who would make a real contribution to a vital reconstruction program of this difficult age must be willing to pay the price of unremitting toil in the study of the fundamental principles that underlie all real progress. We must never forget that the world is ruled by thinkers.

MEETING OF JOINT COMMISSION ON UNIFICATION.

We have awaited with great interest a report of the meeting of the Unification Commission at Cleveland. We have seen no account of the meeting in the Associated Press dispatches, and there has not come to us any official communication except the telegram given below, which we received from Dr. Frank M. Thomas on last Saturday. It was sent from Cleveland, Ohio, on July 11. It is as follows:

"Joint Commission adjourned without reaching agreement. Methodist Episcopal Commission proposed regional conference for colored membership on parity with white regional conference; Southern Commission proposed subordinate regional Conferences with limit on representation in General Conference. Commission will meet again next January to hear from ad interim committee."

We trust that full details of the propositions submitted by both Commissions will be given to the church as soon as possible. We believe that everything is to be gained at this stage of the negotiations by the fullest kind of publicity. We do not insist upon the recital of the incidentals of discussion, but we feel that both communions are entitled to know exactly what bases are proposed and are being discussed looking to the unification of the two great branches of Methodism in this country. We presume this information will be given, accompanied by a statement as to the personnel of the ad interim committee and the duties with which that committee is charged. We take it as a hopeful sign that such committee has been appointed.

COLLECTION DAY FOR THE CENTENARY.

Sunday, July 20, has been designated as Collection Day for the first payment of the Centenary pledges. This will bring to our attention a very important matter in connection with the raising of our great Centenary fund. The response to the appeal for this fund was most gratifying. We understand that the total amount raised, including credits, exceeds $50,000,000. We must remember, however, that this amount was secured in pledges running over a period of five years, payment to be made in five installments.

The first installment is now due. We hope this will be a busy week for the local Centenary treasurers of all our churches. It is well understood, we presume, that the payments are to be made through them. A complete record has been given each treasurer of the subscriptions made in his church, and a complete system of keeping records has been provided. If any subscriber does not recall the amount he should pay now, the treasurer will be able to give him the desired information.

The collection of this Centenary fund will be the real test of the interest of the church in the great Centenary movement. It is one thing to pledge a specified amount to a cause; it is another thing to pay that pledge. Of course it sometimes happens that unforeseen events make it impossible to meet obligations as they become due; but we believe this subscription will be as nearly a hundred per cent collection as any ever taken in the church. We should use every effort to make it so. Our program has been predicated upon the validity of these subscriptions, and there will be great damage to our work if there should be any serious falling short. Let us make our first payment on July 20, if we have not already done so.

DEATH OF REV. V. D. SKIPPER.

A dispatch to the Times-Picayune, of this city, from Hazlehurst, Miss., announced the death, on Friday of last week, of Rev. V. D. Skipper, an honored superannuate member of the Louisiana Conference. Brother Skipper had been in bad health for a long time and it has been known for several months that he was in a serious condition. The announcement of his death is not unexpected, therefore, but it will bring great sorrow to a large circle of friends in Louisiana and Mississippi to whom Brother Skipper ministered during his active career. The Advocate extends sincere sympathy to those who have been bereaved by his going away. We trust a suitable memoir will be furnished us for publication in due time.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Southern Christian Advocate has increased its subscription price from $1.50 to $2.00 a year, the change to go into effect on August 1.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer reports a delightful service last Sunday night at Carrollton Avenue Church, where he preached to a large and appreciative congregation.

According to the Midland Methodist, one hundred and seventy-nine members were received by our churches in Memphis, Tenn., during the month of June.

An exchange states that Mr. John D. Rockefeller gave $2,000,000 to the Mission Board of the Northern Baptist Church during the recent Convention at Denver, Col.

We learn from press dispatches that Rev. R. J. Campbell, one of the most distinguished ministers of England, has been given the degree of Doctor of Divinity by Oxford University.

It has been announced that Dr. E. H. Rawlings and Miss Mabel Howell will accompany Bishop Lambuth to the Orient on an extended investigating tour in the interest of the Centenary Movement.

Rev. C. D. Atkinson, presiding elder of the Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference, recently visited relatives in Atlanta, Ga. The Wesleyan Advocate makes mention of his brotherly call at its office.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, of Lake Charles, La., spent a few minutes in the Advocate office last Saturday morning on his way home after having attended the Centenary Celebration. He said the Celebration was a great gathering.

Under date of July 10, Rev. F. L. Applewhite, of Sharon, Miss., writes: "Rev. J. V. Bennett is conducting a meeting here. There is decided interest—several have joined the church. We expect to continue the meeting another week."

We have seen a statement to the effect that the salaries of the home missionaries of the United Presbyterian Church have been raised from $1600 to $1800 a year. Our church ought to increase the salaries of some of its poorly paid men.

Dr. Theodore Copeland, of Texarkana, Ark., recently conducted a meeting at Oakland, Miss. We have not been informed as to the results of the meeting, but we venture to say that the people were greatly edified by Dr. Copeland's preaching.

Other denominations have shown much interest in the Methodist Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio. The Continent, one of the leading Presbyterian periodicals of the country, recently gave a full page to the story of its achievements.

Bishop Homer Stuntz, of the M. E. Church, who presides over the Omaha area, has asked all the preachers of the Conferences which he is to hold to meet one day earlier than the date announced, for the purpose of planning for a great evangelistic campaign during the next Conference year.

Chaplain John A. Randolph, of the U. S. Army, is rapidly regaining his health after having been confined to the hospital for some time. He will spend the summer with his family at Lake Junaluska, N. C. He expects to return to duty about October 1.

According to an exchange, Mr. Henry Ford has asked the Government to appoint expert accountants to examine his books to find out what his war profits were, in order that he may turn the whole amount back to the Government. This action is in striking contrast with that of some "big business" concerns that we have heard of.

Lieut. L. W. Cain, son of our pastor at Minter City, Miss., has been appointed commandant of Grubbs Vocational College, at Arlington, Texas, which is a branch of the Texas A. & M. College. We congratulate Brother and Sister Cain upon the fine record made by their son and the recognition that has been given him by military and educational authorities.

Rev. A. J. Henry, of the Ripley circuit, is delighted with the progress of the work under his charge. The report at the third quarterly conference was unusually good, a large proportion of the financial claims being in hand. The Centenary campaign was, of course, a success on that charge. Brother Henry requests the prayers of the brethren that the revival season may witness a great ingathering of souls.

Just before the Advocate went to press, we received the sad news that Mrs. George Fox, the wife of our pastor at Bunkie, La., passed away early on Tuesday morning of this week. We make this announcement with very great sorrow. Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to the bereaved husband and the splendid little son who are left to mourn, and we pray that divine grace may sustain them in this dark hour.

We clip from an exchange the following statement concerning the denominational affiliation of the present members of Congress: Methodist, 82; Presbyterian, 57; Episcopalian, 31; Baptist, 26; Catholic, 24; Congregationalist, 20; Christian Church, 21; Lutheran, 7; Unitarian, 4; Dutch Reform, 4; Jews, 3; Quaker, 2; Norwegian Lutheran, 2; True Life Church, 1; Mennonite, 1; United Brethren, 1; Christian Scientist, 1; no religion, 10.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. H. B. Thomason, Campti, La., 4; Rev. John C. Chambers, Jackson, Miss., 5; Mrs. F. K. Thetford, Robinsonville, Miss., 2; Rev. W. N. Duncan, Drew, Miss., 2; Mrs. H. J. Norris, Oak Ridge, La., 4; Rev. P. O. Lowrey, Pleasant Hill, La., 2; Rev. J. M. Corley, Wiggins, Miss., 2; Rev. S. F. Harkey, Terry, Miss., 4.

A FITTING MEMORIAL FOR OUR BOYS.

By Rev. W. Winans Drake.

Our boys are coming home, thank God! At least, most of them are coming. Some have given their lives on the field or in camp or hospital. Their sacrifice can never be forgotten by a grateful people. The rest, having freely given evidence of readiness to make the same sacrifice, have been spared by a good providence and will soon be home. The question that rises in many minds as they come is, "How shall we fittingly commemorate their gallant service for the eyes of future generations?"

In answer to this question, the trustees of Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Tex., have conceived a plan to celebrate the service of the soldiers, living or dead, by the erection of a great memorial chapel or temple on the University grounds. It is being so designed that a panel will be provided for the inscription in bronze of the name of each of the soldiers affiliated with our churches in the whole southwestern territory, tributary to the University. The parents or nearest friends of these soldier boys will be offered the opportunity of having their names thus commemorated thereupon for the contribution of the small sum of ten dollars.

The building itself will cost not less than $250,000, and will stand as a noble monument of the patriotism and valor of these thousands of men. It will be in constant use as a place for worship and for the religious development of the young people of the Southwest who may be students of our great University. Many of these students will themselves be returned soldiers; others, in increasing numbers in the years to come, will be the children and grandchildren of our soldiers whose names are inscribed upon the chapel walls.

No more appropriate memorial could be erected in celebration of the valor and service of the heroes of world liberty than such a building, dedicated to the development in trained Christian character of the future leaders of democracy in our own section.

A further merit of this plan is that the sum required for the commemoration of each individual soldier is so small that almost any father or mother can afford to secure for a soldier son, admission to this high roll of honor. In those cases where extreme poverty or the absence of near relatives prevents, there can always be found friends in the local church or community whose interest in individual soldiers or whose civic zeal and gratitude for the service of the boys, will lead them to make this small provision. Judging by my own feeling as a father when this plan was first outlined to me, I feel confident that every father will unhesitatingly say when the plan is presented, "Yes, I want my son counted in on that memorial, and am ready to pay the ten dollars." It is equally certain that thousands who had no sons in the service themselves, but none the less recognize their debt to the gallant service of these crusaders of a new freedom, will cheerfully enshrine the names of the boys who are otherwise unprovided for.

A definite effort is being made now to secure the names of all the soldier boys on the honor rolls of our Louisiana churches, with a view to carrying out these plans. Incidentally, it will be good for our Louisiana Methodists in this way to get in touch with the great university which has been provided by the church for the western section of our territory, which includes Louisiana. It is hoped that all our preachers and people will co-operate in the securing of the names and the enlistment of them in this worthy memorial. If, for lack of such co-operation, any name should be left out, it would be very unfortunate, to say the least. There are probably several thousand boys of Methodist affiliations in Louisiana who should be thus remembered.

When, a year or two years ago, these boys went forth to represent us on the battlefields and protect our rights and liberties, we cheered them on with music and banners. Surely now, as they are coming home, we will not fail to enshrine their victorious valor in a worthy and useful monument.

AIMS AND MOTIVES IN MISSIONARY EDUCATION.

By Rev. William A. Brown, D.D.

Missionary education is not so much the impartation of knowledge such as the gaining of mere information, or the mastery of a certain set of facts, or even the becoming familiar with the queer customs and apparent peculiarities of strange people. A man may have all this information and much more and yet not be educated at all. For knowledge alone is not enough. Missionary education is rather an attitude of life, and a man is truly educated in a missionary sense when he is led to accept a personal obligation to help forward the Kingdom of God in all the world. To lead to true missionary service, then, knowledge of other people must be vitalized by the Spirit of the living God. The missionary spirit prevents explorers from becoming exploiters, and makes it exceedingly difficult for discoverers to become deceitful.

The aims in religious education are all in an ascending scale. And when you come to the aims in missions you strike the universal note, and it is in the universals that all themes become grand. Missions is the highest point in Christianity. The aims in missionary education are to broaden the intellectual horizon, to deepen the spiritual life, to make prayer a great reality, to remove racial prejudices, to promote good will among all men, to lead to an enlightened internationalism, to open up fields for Christian service, to give a better understanding of the Bible, and to win all to a more devoted acceptance of Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord. Missionary education of the right sort will inspire the intellect, kindle the emotions, carry the will, and command the full allegiance of the whole man.

There are many motives in missionary education, such as securing support of missions, and enlisting workers for missions, and the desire to help other folks, and all these are worthy motives. But there is only one motive that we can never tire of, nor ever exhaust, nor ever outgrow, and that motive is the love of Christ—His love for us and our love for Him.

"EVEN THE STONES."

Measured by our ideals, the tribute of the first Palm Sunday was pathetically meager. Yet, meager as it was, it was far too extravagant for certain contemporary churchmen. As such men always do, they questioned the good taste of the affair. They were masters of decorums and proprieties. They knew how to measure enthusiasm in gills and inches. They cried out against excitement. Jesus' reply has not yet grown old: "I tell you that if these should hold their peace, even the stones would cry out." We are too tame, too absurdly proper, too disquietingly quiet. If our sires sang too loud, we err in the opposite direction. We have grown afraid of hosannas and waving palm-branches. When our Lord enters a city or an institution of a heart that entry is wonderful enough to justify acclamation. Perhaps, if we should let ourselves go occasionally, with the zeal of the Kingdom, we might help remind our neighbors that the King is approaching.—George Clarke Peck.

MRS. SARAH EMERLEY ELIZY McNULTY was born on April 24, 1837, near Holmesville, Pike County, Mississippi. She was happily married to Samuel E. McNulty, December 31, 1859. To this happy union were born eight children, all girls, as follows: Miss Katura L. McNulty, McComb, Miss.; Mrs. C. E. Fenn, McComb, Miss.; Mrs. Maggie Ford, Waco, Tex.; Mrs. Mary Turner, Summit, Miss.; Mrs. W. E. Caruth, Cushing, Oklahoma; Mrs. R. J. Hearon, New Orleans, La., and two more who died in infancy, and whose names I do not recall. This was a fine family of girls, and the family is well connected here in McComb. Sister McNulty joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, early in life, and lived a gentle, refined, loving, consecrated Christian life, as a young lady, wife, mother and neighbor. She loved her church with a devotion that was beautiful, was always happy in her Master's service, filled her home with joy and gladness, led all the children into the kingdom of God. She never forgot her neighbors and friends, making companions of them all, and during her last illness, in the boarding house of her daughter, Miss Katura, she was loved by them all, and the pallbearers were selected from among the boarders, and all of them followed the remains to the old Adams cemetery, fifteen miles in the country, to witness the last ceremony. She has gone to live with God, and the dear husband, children and loved ones, gone before. The home, church, and town of McComb, will miss her, but, thank God, they know where to find her. Her pastor,

A. B. BARRY.

McComb, Miss., June 20.

JAMES ALEXANDER THOM was born on October 11, 1850, in Wilkinson County, Mississippi, not far from Old Bethel Camp Ground, and died on April 7, 1919, in a sanitarium in New Orleans, where he had gone for an operation for an affliction of a minor nature. He contracted pneumonia at the hospital and, despite the best of care, it proved to be fatal. The body was brought to his home near Rogillioville and laid to rest in the family cemetery on the next day, by the side of a son who preceded him to the grave several years. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in early manhood and lived a true and consistent Christian life. He was not demonstrative, but lived for the good of others and was ever ready to render sympathy, assistance, kindness, to any who were suffering or in distress. Mr. Thom was thrice married. About 1880 Mr. Thom married, as his third wife, Miss Margaret A. Tannett, who, with eight children, remains to mourn for an affectionate father and a devoted husband. Mr. Thom leaves four sons and four daughters, and a large number of relatives scattered over the South. The passing of Mr. Thom leaves a void in a happy home, where the family oft assembled in love for father and mother, but his loved ones are not without hope, for they look forward to the reunion around the great white throne where they will greet husband and father and join together in singing praise to a triune God through the cycles of eternity.

W. R. CAMPBELL,
A life-long friend.

Rogillioville, La.

MRS. LAURA DAVIS, wife of J. W. Davis, and daughter of Dr. W. A. and Mrs. M. M. Russwurm (deceased), of Independence, Miss., was born on December 20, 1863. She joined the Methodist Church in early girlhood, was a devoted Christian, loved her church, supported its ordinances, and attended regularly as long as her health would permit. She was married to James W. Davis, on February 20, 1895. She died at her home at Olive Branch, Miss., on June 9, 1919. She was a devoted wife, an affectionate, indulgent mother of four children, one little son having preceded her to the glory land several years; leaving to mourn their loss two sons, William Denton and Russwurm Lamar; one daughter, Miss Pauline; a devoted husband, three brothers, Sumner, Dr. W. C., and Dr. Sam Russwurm; three sisters, Mrs. Lula Baker, Mrs. Sallie Sandidge, and Mrs. Ellen Ingram. Mrs. Davis was another heroine of the late war to pass into the beyond before its final close. Both of her sons enlisted in the service, Russwurm in training at A. and M. College; Denton, the older son, who was the idol of his mother's heart, is still in France. How fervently the fond mother prayed that her boy would be spared to return to her, and during her last illness she prayed daily to live to see her noble boy again. But alas! She was a self-sacrificing mother, a splendid nurse in sickness, a true friend, a kind and beloved neighbor, a noble, home-loving Christian woman, much loved by her neighbors and friends. Everything that medical skill and loving hands could do was done, but to no avail. Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. W. S. Sellman, at the residence; and gloom overshadowed our town as the remains were borne to the Blocker cemetery, amid showers of June and flowers of friends, and laid to rest. To the bereaved ones we extend our deepest sympathy, especially to the dear boy in France. May God comfort the bereaved hearts and may they be submissive to divine Providence.

May the light of the Spirit which has taken its flight,
In gentle obedience to the Master's call,
Shine on thy pathway and lead thee

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas God has seen fit to call into eternal rest our beloved friend, Mrs. Addie Collier; and whereas she was a faithful member and teacher in our Sunday school and a member of the Methodist Church of this place; and whereas her life was that of a good Samaritan, a faithful neighbor and a devout and constant Christian; therefore be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to the will of our heavenly Father who doeth all things well.

2. That in her death our Sunday school has lost one of its most faithful and useful members, and her class a most competent and consecrated teacher.

3. That we ever hold in grateful memory the useful life, the splendid character, and the unselfish and loving service of this noble woman in our hearts.

4. That we commend her pure life, her love of Christ, and all things good, as the greatest source of condolence to those who mourn for her.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be entered on the minutes of our Sunday school, a copy sent to the bereaved family, a copy sent to the local papers and to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. J. W. Chadwick, Mrs. Katie Starling, Mrs. Lillian Hattaway, Committee for Walnut Grove Sunday School.

A CENTURY OF SERVICE.

In 1820 a good old-fashioned doctor in North Carolina prepared an ointment for skin eruptions. It met the needs of his patients, and has likewise met the needs of millions of other doctors' patients. Gray's Ointment, the compound he prepared, is now rounding its hundredth year of honest, good old-fashioned service and value. It is very effective for sores, boils, cuts, bruises, burns, stings, eczema and the many similar forms of skin eruption. It soothes the pain, cleanses the wound, kills the germs and begins healing. If your druggist can not supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you.—Adv.

A REVIVAL AT WASHINGTON, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: I have been away from my work and have not reported a splendid meeting we had at Washington during the first week in June. Brother A. M. Broadfoot, of Fernwood, was with us and captured the hearts of the folks by his gentle, kindly spirit, his strong, vigorous messages, and the deep current of spirituality that ran through all he said and did. For real results it was the best meeting we have had here, and the end is not yet. Five members were received, with more to come. Brother Broadfoot's presence and messages were especially helpful to me as pastor, and the only difficulty I shall find will be in helping the folks to live up to the high spiritual levels and ideals that he held before them.

We failed to go over the top with the Centenary. So far, I claim to be the first one to make that public acknowledgment. Yet the results were deep and far-reaching, and we shall always be a better church and people because of the Centenary. I am willing to strike an average between number, ability, and the amount subscribed, and compare my people with those of any church or congregation. With your permission, I should like to write an article on that much-discussed and sorely-abused subject, "The Problem of the Country Church," and show that it compares favorably with the city churches.

At the meeting of the Historical Society at McComb last fall much was said about the noted Pleasant Valley revival. I am sure some, at least, will be interested in knowing that one person now lives on my work and belongs to the church here who joined during that revival. This is Mrs. Adaline R. Lazarus, a splendid Christian lady and loyal Methodist.

Sincerely, your brother.

J. B. CAIN.

Coca-Cola

Why Coca-Cola is so refreshing

The refreshing quality of Coca-Cola, which has made it a favorite with the millions, is the result of three factors which are entirely natural and wholesome.

First—Coca-Cola is prepared with cold, carbonated water, which alone is quite refreshing.

Second—Coca-Cola contains natural fruit flavorings, which, with pure sugar, are very refreshing.

Third—Coca-Cola contains a purified extract from tea, called caffein, which is both wholesome and refreshing.

Coca-Cola may therefore be described as "a cold, carbonated, fruit-flavored improvement upon tea, of approximately one-fourth the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

Coca-Cola is entirely wholesome, delicious and refreshing.

Has It Occurred to You?

That after all our boasted "increase in finance" there are eleven Conferences ahead of us?

That this is the month to study the "Conference Minutes" at the meeting of your auxiliary as ordered by the Annual Conference?

That if you have not sent in all your reports, you are holding back the Conference Standard?

That it is time you were "catching on" to the fact you are to purchase your Report Blanks in books, 25 cents per, from Home Base?

That that unique meeting of yours might help others if you would send a bright account of it to the Bulletin?

That everybody is writing on "Ruts?"

That the Centenary Study Books are being rapidly sold out, and soon, like "working women," cannot be had?

That your circle had better be formed after the popular "mid-summer plan," and your books ordered?

That your July and August literature came in one package this time, and if put behind the clock, may come up missing? Clocks do not always watch. Of course if they are "hands off," it's all right.

That half the year is gone and it will take a "long pull, a strong pull and a pull altogether" if we are to round out our work in a creditable manner?

That "a million a month in China are dying without God?"

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEPARTMENT.

Mrs. T. W. Baker.

New Banner.

There is to be a new banner awarded at the next annual meeting. Who wills to win it? It will stand for the greatest number of credits. Do you know what you should do to win credits?

Organization Campaign.

We simply cannot do without the young people in our work any longer. We must have them. Here is our plan. On the "Rally-the-Membership Day," June 26, the young people are given an hour. A program (No. 1) for this hour was sent to your district secretary to be forwarded to you. At this time each Young Peoples' Auxiliary pledges itself to present the work and organize, if possible, at least one other Young Peoples' Auxiliary in a neighboring unorganized church before September 30. For this work you will be given extra credits in the contest for the banner. There is being appointed in each district a special committee to aid in this work and a special program (No. 2) suggested. If in doubt, apply to me or to your district secretary.

District Rallies.

At Okolona, May 30, at the Aberdeen District meeting, one hour was given to the discussion of Young People's work. On account of the heavy rainfall, Tupelo and Okolona were the only Young People's Auxiliaries represented. These both gave material assistance on the program. Amory has reorganized. Let us have eight instead of four auxiliaries in Aberdeen District—each one organize one.

I understand the young people of Brooksville, led by Miss Lucile Colony, gave an excellent program at the Columbus District meeting on June 11.

I have had no report of the part taken by the young people in the Greenville District meeting in May.

On June 12, at the Holly Springs District meeting held at Grenada, the young people of Grenada gave a splendidly-prepared program. The Conference Superintendent wished that every superintendent of the Conference and every Young People's auxiliary might have been there to catch the meaning of the beautiful object lesson. After the program delicious punch was served while the guests got acquainted. Then came a refreshing car ride. You young people who did not accept Grenada's gracious hospitality have lost an opportunity you cannot recall. Your absence was the one thing that marred my happiness.

On June 4, at Senatobia, the Young People and Juniors of Sardis District held a rally of their own. In spite of heavy rains, seven Young People's and eight Junior Auxiliaries were represented and took part in the program. They were as follows: Sardis, Lake Cormorant, Independence, Coldwater, Senatobia, Como, Batesville, Hernando, Charleston and Cypress Corner. This meeting was of particular interest because of the fact that it was our first district rally held for Young People and Juniors only; also because of the presence of two volunteers who live in the district, Miss Myrtle Pollard, last year a teacher in Holding Institute, and Mrs. Ida Terry, last year a student at Scarritt. I am certainly expecting great things of the Young People of Sardis District and I don't believe they will disappoint me.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT.

Organization Month: Our Slogan: "Each One Organize One."

At the next annual meeting a blue ribbon will be given to each Junior Society that organizes another society. For each additional society organized a silver star will be placed on the blue ribbon. No newly organized society that fails to become active will be counted. In every district there are dozens of places that should be organized. I plead with every Junior Society to co-operate in this organization campaign. Do not delay. Begin to make your organization plans at once. Resolve to win a blue ribbon shining with silver stars.

To the appeal sent out for standardizing the Junior work the following societies responded: Grenada, Houston, Cypress Corner, Tupelo, Artesia, Holly Springs, Starkville, Nettleton, Corinth, Como, Iuka, Ripley, Holcomb, New Albany. I thank each one for the beautiful spirit of co-operation shown in the signing of these cards. It is not too late to sign and send it yet. The Junior work of North Mississippi can never be what it should be until we learn to follow the Standard of Excellence. It was very disappointing that more of the Junior workers could not see the importance of reaching Council Standards.

The time has come for the second quarterly reports. Please send them in not later than the tenth of July. Remember the mite box opening picnic must be held before the report goes in.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Woman's Missionary Society Members Visit Lecompte.

On last Wednesday afternoon, June 11, a large number of the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church motored to Lecompte in response to an invitation from Mrs. Anna Cox Lyons, president of the Lecompte auxiliary, where, together with that auxiliary, a delightful meeting was held and a splendid program given.

The meeting was in the beautiful home of Captain Matt Cox. Mrs. Lyons, in her usual charming manner greeted her guests and invited them into the spacious reception hall, where they met the members of the Lecompte society, who added much cordiality in the reception of the ladies.

Shasta daisies and gorgeous red dahlias adorned the tables and gave the finishing touch of beauty to the handsome room where the meeting was held.

The president of the Alexandria auxiliary, Mrs. W. D. Haas, presided, and, after a short prayer, in a few well chosen words expressed the appreciation of the ladies for the invitation, and the privilege of being present on this occasion. Then the following program was rendered:

Hymn—"Blessed Assurance."

Devotional—Bible lesson, 12th chapter of Romans—Mrs. C. B. Carter.

Prayer—Mrs. E. A. Owen.

Vocal Solo—"Abide With Me"—Mrs. O. E. Madden.

"Foreign Work," taken from Conference Bulletin—Mrs. S. H. Werlein.

"Home Work," from Missionary Voice—Mrs. C. N. Hirshly.

"How Mission Study Came to Bentonville"—Mrs. J. S. Butler.

"Christian Stewardship"—Mrs. John Evans.

"Temperance and Its Relation to Missions"—Mrs. E. M. Henning.

Vocal Solo—"Teach Me to Pray"—Mrs. Baxter Robison.

Prayer—Mrs. W. V. Thompson.

After the program, Mrs. Lyons made a few appreciated remarks, then a social hour was enjoyed, and delicious ice cream with home-made cake was served by a bevy of lovely girls, members of Mrs. Lyons' Sunday school class.

Those present from Alexandria, not already mentioned, were: Mesdames H. H. Morgan, A. P. Baird, H. J. Cason, Nettie Brown, M. E. Steadman, D. C. Baker, A. C. Simmonds, Ella Curtis, H. H. White, C. A. Wells, J. R. Simmons, E. B. Whitman, J. R. Stanley, J. M. Eicher, A. E. Anderson, and M. W. McLaurin, of Laurel, Miss. X. X.

Notice.

The Alexandria District meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society will be held at Boyce, July 23.

Economy and Extra Value in Motor Cars

ECONOMY and LUXURY meet in the BOUR-DAVIS MOTOR CAR.

We invite your closest scrutiny and comparison to the claims we make for the BOUR-DAVIS.

Light in weight, constructed with a view to strength and endurance, it is priced within the average man's pocketbook.

The BOUR-DAVIS is as easy to operate as to buy. The stream-line body is a masterpiece of the body builders' art, and is mounted on an amply powered, thoroughly reliable, standard six-cylinder chassis.

The BOUR-DAVIS motor car commands the admiration of the critical car enthusiast everywhere. The luxurious appointments and distinctive appearance single out the BOUR-DAVIS as an EXCEPTIONAL motor car at the price at which it is sold.

In every section of the country, and under every road test, and under all conceivable weather conditions the BOUR-DAVIS has proved every claim that has ever been made for it and has delighted the owner.

Examine this car at your dealer's, or write for catalogue, and know more about the BOUR-DAVIS before you buy any motor car.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DAY AT THE CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

Dear Brother Carley: June 30 was Epworth League Day at the Centenary Celebration, Columbus, Ohio. The Southern Methodist Church was represented on the program by the following: Dr. F. S. Parker, Dr. S. A. Steel, Dr. D. L. Mumpower, Dr. R. L. Russell, and others.

At the Conference of Epworth League officers from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held in the big tent on the morning of the thirtieth, there were noted present the following: sixteen members of Annual Conference Epworth League Boards; twenty-one Conference Epworth League officers; eleven District Conference Epworth League officers; thirty-six chapter officers and a large number of chapter members.

When the call was made at the mass meeting in the afternoon for those representing the Church, South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, fully fifty per cent of those in attendance were from our Southern Church, which is remarkable in view of the fact that the Celebration was quite a distance from Southern territory.

We are proud of our Epworthians! They have attended the Celebration in large numbers, which should mean that the church of to-morrow will have a leadership with a broad vision, a knowledge of the needs of the world, and a knowledge of what it will take to satisfy these needs.

Yours faithfully,
RALPH E. NOLLNER.
Nashville, Tenn., July 7.

ACCEPTED BUT HINDERED.

By S. A. Neblett,
Intercession Secretary.

At this time when missionaries are needed to re-enforce the work and open new work made possible by the Centenary, a number of splendid men and women who have already been accepted or whose applications are reasonably certain of favorable consideration, are hindered from entering service now by various causes more or less serious. In many, if not all of these cases, the cause of the hindrance and delay may be removed by prayer. We ask the church to make daily intercession for these men and women that the will of God may be done in their lives.

A splendid man who was to go out this year fears he has tuberculosis and is now in Colorado.

A young lady may be detained by the sickness of her mother.

Two men think they cannot go until next year for family reasons.

Two fine prospects want to go on contract only.

A candidate for Africa will go provided his wife's health will permit.

Three good men need further preparation, which, if made, will enable them to go out next year.

Others are detained by reasons that are removable by prayer.

Three Generations
"When grandmother was young she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some female illness and it helped her. My mother took it during the change of life and it did wonders for her. So when I got into a run down condition and suffered with periodic pains, backache, bearing down pains, I took it and it restored my health."
Thus writes a young woman of the third generation about this great remedy for woman's ills.

DEEDS AND WORDS.

Deeds are greater than words. Deeds have such a life, mute, but undeniable, and grow as living trees and fruit trees do; they people the vacuity of time and make it green and worthy. Why should the oak prove logically that it ought to grow and will grow? Plant it, try it; what gifts of diligent, judicious assimilation and secretion it has, of progress and resistance, of force to grow, will then declare themselves.—Caryle.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

Freckles

The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.

Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful

BE A WINNER.

The prize of life is to be won every day. The winner is always a hero. The doctor wins it who works not for his fees, but for his patient, and who seeks by his teachings to eliminate the need for his own services; the banker who tries to safeguard, not his personal gain, but his client's confidence; the merchant who rejoices not in his profits, but in his utility and the good values he gives; the educator who seeks to develop not scholarship, primarily, but character; the housewife who lives, not for personal adornment, but for the grace and beauty of her home. So to every class, in every rank in life, there comes their call. The prize is obtained in the act of answering that call.—Selected.

AN APPRECIATION.

David Olney Clark was born on March 4, 1894, at Johns, Rankin County, Miss. He attended school at Mendenhall and Hattiesburg, Miss., and joined the M. E. Church, South, at Johns, on August 11, 1909, under the pastorate of Rev. J. F. McClellan. He came to Louisiana on January 1, 1913. When the war broke out, he volunteered for the army and was trained at Jackson Barracks, La., Camp Forest, Ga., and Camp Jackson, S. C. He was in Co. K., 11th Infantry and early showed proficiency as a soldier. He left camp on April 24, 1918, and reached France, May 2, 1918. He took part in the charge at St. Mihiel Hill and was promoted to First Sergeant. On September 13, 1918, in the midst of a most terrific battle and with a most daring charge in full face of the enemy at St. Mihiel, he was mortally wounded and later died in the hospital.

This is the short record of one of the finest young men whose lives were offered upon the altar of their country for the cause of liberty. He wrote to his father several times that he was trusting in God, and through His grace was able to withstand the many temptations of army life. He was fully consecrated to the Lord, loved his church and all her ordinances. He was a great lover of singing and had a beautiful voice which he acquired by training from his youth up. Some of his favorite songs were, "I'm a Child of the King," "We Shall See the King Some Day," "Farther On," "Volunteers for Jesus," all of which, he loved to sing; and those who heard him felt that there was a pure soul back of the voice.

He enlisted willingly, gave up home and loved ones willingly, went to battle willingly and died willingly, if need be, that we might live in peace. He was so brave and valiant and never shirked a duty at home, in school or church, and when it came to serving his country, he gladly obeyed and charged the enemy in the midst of a terrific fire and gave the best and all he had—his life. His life was full of self-sacrifice and devotion to those he loved. No one had a more devoted son and brother than his father, mother, sisters and brothers who are left to mourn their loss.

David lived a life of honor and at all times held up for high and noble things. The men under him were tied to him with hooks of steel and gladly followed his leadership right into the jaws of death. Such sacrifices made these latter days of peace possible to all of us. The only grief he had at leaving his native land was parting from his loved ones and friends, to whom he was so passionately devoted. He said that he would come back if it was God's will, but if he should be numbered among the slain, he would be found at his post of duty, and he was. Soon after he was picked up off the battlefield, a card was found on him upon which he had written this inscription:

"May the dear Old Flag, never fall,
But trimphantly wave,
O'er the Land of the Free,
And the Home of the Brave."

FROM COUSHATTA, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: A few lines to tell the good news of a good meeting which we have just closed here. We began Sunday, June 15, and closed on the 29th. The day services were conducted in the church and the night services at the "Air Dome," located in the central portion of town. It rained almost every day and on several occasions we were chased off to the church.

Rev. A. C. Holder was with us in the power of the Spirit. His messages were timely and very effective. He is a master of such situations and knows how to help men to decide for Christ. Brother J. W. Wetzel, of Comanche, Texas, led the choir in song. His sweet solos filled many a soul with hunger for Him. Mrs. R. T. Lester laid by other things for the time and added her bit that helped so much to make the meeting a success by her faithful attention to the music.

The conversions reached all classes and ages, from the Sunday school boy and girl, to the heads of families in the fifties. The conversions and reclamations totaled nearly a hundred. The church is greatly revived and encouraged. The last night of the meeting presented a gracious scene; in the midst of tears and rejoicing we baptized twenty-three persons, ranging from children to those past middle age. We received, on that occasion, thirty members into our church. We have twelve more to receive at the proper time. Eight persons applied for membership in the Baptist Church during our meeting.

It would be hard for any people to be more appreciative of their pastor than the Methodist people of Coushatta and the tributary district. We are doing what we can to make things go. So far, we have added fifty-five to the roll and dismissed six or eight. Everything seems to be going ahead nicely. Forty-one adults have been baptized, but, strange to say, not an infant! Your brother in Christ,

A. A. BERNARD.

MILITANT CAMPAIGN FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS.

According to the best available figures a little less than $40,000,000 is being spent annually in the propagation of Protestant Christianity in non-Christian lands and among the undeveloped races. The total revenues of all the missionary societies and boards of the United States and Canada have been increased at the rate of more than a million dollars each year since 1910. The average increase for the years 1916 to 1918 was more than $1,700,000 a year. In the year 1918 the United States and Canada contributed considerably more than half of the entire fund for Protestant foreign missionary work. Present indications are that the next decade will witness such a rapid extension of the work as will be quite unprecedented in the history of Christianity. The Missionary Centenary of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has just completed a remarkable financial drive of eight days in which a total of nearly $125,000,000 have ben subscribed for a period of five years. It is confidently expected that delayed subscriptions will bring this total probably up to $150,000,000. One-half of this enormous sum, the largest ever raised by any religious body for any purpose, will be devoted to foreign missions. The New Era Movement of the Presbyterian Church reports that already virtually $38,000,000 has been subscribed for the extension of its work and a very large proportion of this sum also is devoted to foreign missionary work. The Interchurch World Movement of North America, recently organized, is now engaged in a very complete survey of the entire religious resources of all non-Christian lands and undeveloped races with a view to presenting before the end of the year a report of the present condition of all American foreign missionary work. On the basis of the facts gathered a unified program of foreign missionary work, defined in the broadest possible terms, will be built with a view to securing the unified effort of all the American Protestant churches in a well considered program for the adequate presentation of Christianity to the entire non-Christian world. It is yet too early to speak of figures in connection with this new program, but it seems a safe prediction that within five years the annual contributions of the United States and Canada will be increased to at least $50,000,000.—From "The Business Side of Foreign Missions," by Tyler Dennett, in "Asia" magazine for July.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

NUXATED IRON

A DRIVING FORCE BEHIND KEEN SUCCESSFUL MEN AND WOMEN

When you think of the successful men and women you know—people who are doing things worth while—you will find that they possess force, vim and energy—the kind that simply brim over when the blood is filled with iron. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed force and energy into the whole system. Three million people use it annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder.

MAKE THIS TEST

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

NOT EQUIPMENT, BUT THE MAN MAKES THE DIFFERENCE.

Every great school, college or university has been built around the personality of some one man. The educated men of America who have accomplished great things and who stand well in professions look back on their college training and attribute much of their accomplishments to the dominating personality of the school in which they were educated. The dominating personality of Morgan School is that of Professor R. K. Morgan. His influence for good and better things does much toward the moulding of morals and stimulating of broader ideals in the students who are so fortunate as to attend Morgan School. Mr. Morgan has devoted his life to the training of boys.

The thoughtful, considerate parent feels that the school to which he sends his son must be equipped and its faculty chosen with the primary end of training the boy to become a man—to teach true Christian faith, to develop manly independence and self-confidence, to inspire high ideals of life and service, to strengthen and develop mind and body alike.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, which has been built up around the Christian character and wholesome, inspiring personality of Robert K. Morgan, who has been principal for 26 years.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalog and full information about this school.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE CHURCH-GOING HABIT.

People are not going to church as they ought to go. We do not believe that their failure to do so is due, usually, to the unattractiveness of the services of the church. We have worshiped with all sorts of congregations and listened to all kinds of preachers, and it has been very seldom indeed that we have found anything that made the service distasteful. We have enjoyed some more than others, of course, and the profit derived has been less in some cases than in others, but there is nearly always something in some part of the service—music, prayers, preaching—that is intellectually stimulating and spiritually strengthening. The chief trouble, we believe, is that we are not developing the church-going habit in our children and young people. Too generally, parents seem to think that it is a matter of no concern whether their children attend church or not. The element of duty is not stressed, and mere childish whim is allowed to fix habits that will exercise a controlling influence upon the life in later years. Church-going need not be impressed upon children as a burdensome obligation; but they ought to be taught from their infancy that they ought to be found in the house of God on Sunday. And the way to teach them is for the parents themselves to be faithful in attendance. Example means much more than precept, though one re-enforces the other. We have very little confidence in the permanent results of a "go-to-church Sunday" unless we have such a Sunday fifty-two times a year.

WHERE WILL OUR SUPPLY COME FROM?

The daily newspapers have recently been carrying display advertisements urging the people to buy coal now, in view of the fact that there has been a great shortage in production during the last few months and there is no prospect of an increase. The advertisements in question are re-enforced by quotations from various public officials emphasizing the importance of buying now to avoid paying higher prices later in the year. Now comes another official, the chief mining engineer of the bureau of mines, who tells us that the United States will have to export a large amount of coal to avert a threatened shortage in Europe. During the war, the American people were perfectly willing to deny themselves of everything necessary in order to insure victory; and they did suffer a great many hardships for the sake of those who were in need oversees. But we have the feeling now that it is time for the Government to give some consideration to our own requirements. It was only a prompt and emphatic protest that brought about a change in the Government's announced plan to sell a large amount of food supplies abroad in order to avoid, as it naively confessed, "breaking the market" at home, and this in spite of the fact the American people are thoroughly convinced that they are paying food profiteers exhorbitant prices for practically all the staple articles of consumption. We are sure that we do not misrepresent our people when we say that they are perfectly willing to share their resources with the needy nations of Europe in order to bring about industrial rehabilitation as soon as possible; but we think we have a right to demand that our officials see to it that there is at least an equitable distribution in which our own people may share. We presume that a good deal of this publicity campaign is to prepare the way for still further advances in the present almost prohibitive prices of many things that are essential to our welfare—if we cannot pay the increase, there are those who can. Europe will get her supply of coal from America—where will ours come from?

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SENATE.

President Wilson is taking so seriously the opposition of a considerable number of senators to the ratification of the peace treaty that, according to newspaper reports, he is calling into consultation daily those who have expressed themselves as opposed to unconditional ratification. By the weight of his personal and official influence, and by the presentation of confidential information he hopes, apparently, to overcome the obstacles in the way of the speedy ratification of the treaty. Several of the senators thus consulted have stated that their views have been considerably modified by the additional light they received in their interviews with the President. This is especially true with regard to the provision of the treaty by which Japan is given great concessions in China—concessions so great that the Chinese delegates to the Peace Conference refused to sign the treaty. We feel sure that urgent considerations lie back of those concessions—but we wish the President would take the entire country into his confidence and clear up what appears, on the surface, to be a grave injustice.

DISCOUNTING PROHIBITION.

Nobody need be alarmed by glaring headlines in the secular newspapers calling attention to alleged attempts by the prohibitionists in Congress to pass laws in restriction of perfectly legitimate lines of business and of thoroughly innocent forms of amusement and recreation. The writers of these headlines oftentimes read their own interpretation into the acts that are proposed, and at other times take advantage of the opportunity to make sensational reading matter that will sell their periodicals. We do not believe that the hitherto sane leadership of the prohibition forces of the country has lost its bearings. There is a stern determination not to allow the fruits of the great victory that has been won to be snatched away, but there is no disposition that we have been able to detect to do unwise and foolish things. We must remember all the time, too, that those who are opposed to prohibition in any form are doing, and will continue to do, everything in their power to bring about a reaction that will result in a poor enforcement of the law. Most of the outcries against prohibition that we see in the newspapers are simply the howls of hard losers.

THE VALUE OF AN EDUCATION.

Nobody doubts now that education pays. Its value has been demonstrated from every possible point of view. But because it is, as the economist would say, a "future good," a great many young people will not go to the trouble to get it, preferring the "present good," though small in comparison, to that, the enjoyment of which must be deferred for a time. We ought not, perhaps, to find fault with the desire of the immature youth to begin "to make money" as soon as possible, as a consequence of which he leaves school before he has completed even the grammar grades, but we ought to point out to him "a more excellent way." The life ought to be constantly enlarging—in its capacity to earn, to enjoy, to serve, to find happiness, to direct and control the forces that determine destiny here and hereafter. The uneducated man lives a constantly diminishing life. The passing years take away his power to earn; they leave him less and less to enjoy because his horizon becomes smaller and smaller; they handicap him in his efforts to minister to the needs of a complex social order which he does not understand; they shut him up to his own small devices for the enlargement of heart and soul in which he may find happiness; they rob him of the power to grapple with the stern problems which must be solved aright if the life is to reach its full fruition. We are hearing much to-day of the tragedy of unemployed hands; the real tragedy of life is unemployed heads and hearts.

WHAT PERCENTAGE?

According to a press dispatch, the waiters of Paris have gone on a strike for the betterment of their condition generally. Among other things they are demanding is the substitution of a percentage of receipts in place of tips. We have a curiosity to know what percentage they want—it must be pretty high if they think as much of tips as the waiters of New Orleans do. The proprietors of restaurants are the only class of people we know of who allow their customers to be "held up" regularly by their employees.

WHAT MONEY IS GOOD FOR.

The daily newspapers had an interesting story a short time ago about a young man, a coal passer in the U. S. Navy, who has recently entered the millionaire class through the discovery of oil on a small farm owned by him in Texas. "What are you going to do with the money?" he was asked. "I am going to use it for the benefit of the people of the world and Christianity," he said. "There are many people in this world who need some one to help them. You know I am a Christian." We have been greatly heartened by the reading of this simple incident. Practically everybody wants money—plenty of it—but too many people want it for the gratification of their own desires. But here is a man—a young man—who, in the application of his simple Christian faith, looks forward to the good he may do with the fortune that has come into his possession. "There are many people in this world who need some one to help them. You know I am a Christian." A professed Christianity that does not make us want to help those in need falls very far short of the teachings of Christ.

GOD IS MINDFUL OF HIS OWN.

Father, how oft of woe and weal
With anxious mind I fret;
How oft a nameless dread I feel,
As if Thou couldst forget.

Yet ever doth Thy hand supply
My wholesome meat and drink,
With more of pleasing good than I
Could either ask or think.

And oft for this world's good I seek
From Thine indulgent love;
While all too seldom I bespeak
The things that are above.

Yet, Lord, Thou knowest, in my heart
Of hearts I would be blest,
Like Mary, with that better part;
I trust Thee for the rest.

MIDDLE LIFE, ITS STRENGTH AND PERILS.

By Ward Adair.

To the literary student who is interested in character analysis, Joab presents unexplored possibilities. Not alone as a military man, but in numerous little passages at arms in times of peace, he repays our careful study. Finally we reach a pivotal text in his career, where the statement occurs; "for Joab had turned after Adonijah, though he turned not after Absalom." In other words, the hero who had gone crashing through all the conquests of early life, with unswerving loyalty to the best things of the kingdom, broke down in his middle years and fell into an error that would have been impossible in the days of youth. The man who scorned alliance with the first insurrection, fell a prey to the second temptation at a time when the casual observer would have pronounced him impervious to such a suggestion.

The incident raises the whole question of why a man who has charged triumphantly through all opposition in the formative days of his life, often succumbs when the victory has apparently been won; why the ship that has weathered all the gales and storms of the voyage sometimes goes down in sight of the harbor.

Breaking Down at Noonday.

The writer of the psalms speaks of "the destruction that wasteth at noonday." The morning of inexperience claims its share of victims, but the noontime of life, with its blazing sun, adds its quota. We probably hear a hundred sermons to the young where we hear one directed especially to people in middle life, and yet it can hardly be doubted that these are very faulty proportions. The middle-aged man is far from being as safe and secure as his friends sometimes think or as his own fancy frequently paints him. Take the spectacular failures of sacred history and note how many of them were made by men in middle life. Achan, the thief, was such a man. Saul, whose youth was so full of promise, breaks in middle life.

The life of Joab's chieftain, King David, turned also on a pivotal verse that was written of him in the days of middle life: "And it came to pass at the time when kings go forth to battle, that David tarried still at Jerusalem." No longer accustomed to the rigors of actual warfare, the king indulged the luxuries of his gilded palace on Easy Street, and the stage was set for the ignominious failure that stains his entire career. Solomon, eloquent in prayer and fervent in promise at the dedication of the temple, is the same man who later in life finds his cup turning to bitterness through failure to "follow the gleam." The traitor who kisses his Master in the shadow of the palm trees in Gethsemane is no plastic and untried youth, but a man of middle life.

The pages of our own history are blotted with the records of Burr and Arnold and others of a later time, whose sun set under the blackest clouds.

The secular papers, with their disheartening stories of defalcation and divorce, have mostly to do with men of maturity. "The destruction that wasteth at noonday" is very far from being false alarm.

The Dangerous Middle Age.

Why should this be so? Is it not reasonable to suppose that one's habits are fixed by the time life reaches its zenith? Are not all the failures and the follies supposed to be left far behind us? Yes, this no doubt is true, but there remain subtle causes for these late-in-life failures that should keep the mature man forever on his guard.

There are certain traits almost uniformly developed by our middle-aged man, particularly if he has achieved a measure of success. In the first place, he is almost sure to be a trifle overconfident, and every military strategist knows how expensive a trait that is. He overestimates his own powers of resistance and as surely underestimates the power of opposing attack. He laughs at youthful mistakes and says, "I'm a long way past that now." Carelessness follows inevitably on the heels of overconfidence and your eminently respectable middle-aged man becomes a logical prey to his first great temptation.

The trait of willfulness also marches hand in hand with success. Byron's old devilish philosophy of the "rights of genius" has its roots in willfulness. Accustomed to command, our middle-aged man "wants what he wants when he wants it," and this makes him a somewhat dangerous member of society by reason of the fact that he is almost certain at some time to want the wrong thing.

Then, too, there are memories of the early days, and few indeed are the men whose recollections are all sweet and wholesome. The tragic moment in Dr. Jekyll's confession, when he slipped involuntarily into the personality of Hyde, was, according to his own admission, when he "sat on a bench in the park, licking the chops of memory." Dangerous business! The mature man who would avoid disaster should shun that practice as he would shun a pestilence. Guinevere is recounting the vows she has just made in her separation with Lancelot:

"Not even in inmost thought to think again.
The things that made the past so pleasant to us;
And I have sworn never to see him more—
To see him more * * * and even in saying this
Her memory, from old habit of the mind,
Went slipping back upon the golden days
In which she saw him first."

Among the pitfalls and perils of middle life there are none more insidious than those opened up by unwholesome recollections.

* * * * * * * *

Diminishing Power of Resistance.

Another factor frequently lost sight of is the effect of wear and tear on a man's resisting power. The dropping of the water eventually wears away the stone. The steel rail deteriorates and becomes useless, even while its appearance is nearly the same as when it left the hearth. Constant pounding against the doors of resistance too often forces an entrance. In Jack London's White Fang an interesting study in resisting power is presented in the case of the two woodsmen who started for the post with the dead body of their comrade bound upon a sled. Every night when they built their fire the glaring eyes of the "huskies" formed a ring about them and peered at them from the bush. At first no thought of resigning themselves to their fate so much as occurred to them, but those who have followed the sad tale to its ending remember how the huskies wore them down and wore them out. One poor fellow rushed into the woods, half crazed, and never came back; the other was snatched from the very jaws of the wolves by a rescuing party, after he had fallen exhausted.

The man in middle life should carefully appraise his powers of resistance and should make certain never to expose himself to a strain that has threatened his undoing in earlier days. The destruction that wasteth at noonday "walks around us," and it is the most sublime folly to make light of it and undertake to laugh it off. We need constantly to remember that the Joab who stood rock-ribbed in the days of youth against every seductive suggestion to disloyalty was the same Joab who in middle life turned against his king and followed wandering fires.

The Strength of Maturity.

The strength of mature age, that constitutes the bulwark against its perils, is altogether sufficient to afford a ground for courage for the remainder of the journey. The strength of experience is a mighty asset in itself. One of the great Oriental religions has its root in the proverb, "Profit by your experience." However insufficient that may be as a religious slogan, it is a most valuable suggestion to the man who has been over the trail. He has had an opportunity to know all the elements of life at their real value, and he is not easily befooled. Knowing so thoroughly the difference between the false and the true, he can stand on guard and keep clear of the nets that are spread for the feet of the unwary. There was much both of good and of evil in the play "Experience" that had such a run on Broadway a year or two ago. The seamy side of life was exposed in a rather disgusting manner—a trick not yet obsolete in stage craft—but above all the crass suggestion of the play the outstanding note of the value of experience was clear and distinct. The fundamental error of the play was in the implication that one must know every rock in the channel, when, as a matter of fact, it is only necessary to know where the deep water is in order to steer a safe course. There is no more dangerous sophistry than that which assumes that familiarity with evil is necessary in order to avoid its dangers. The man of maturity knows that his business is to keep as far from danger as he possibly can.

Ripening Judgment.

Another faculty that ripens with mature age is a man's judgment. The judicial quality is an inheritance of middle life. Along with experience comes the capacity for balancing values and making the wise choice. Just as your middle-aged man contracts hypermetrophia, compelling him to carry an extra pair of glasses, even so he is frequently endowed with a far-sightedness of judgment that helps him to discern between what things seem and what they really are. He is able to deal with the situation, not in the light of its momentary pleasure or advantage, but with a proper estimate of its far-reaching consequences. Matters are settled in the light of their potential result, instead of on the basis of their immediate appeal. This is strength.

The power of right habit is a source of strength known only to the man who, by a steadfast policy of self-denial, has practiced it for years. The psychologist's theory of a brain path for every fixed habit is a heartening idea to the man who for years has "gone straight." "Sow a habit and reap a character," runs the old, but true proverb. It is difficult to unsettle the man who through the decades preceding middle life has formed the habit of doing right. Sir Gareth's exclamation. "He who has slain the morn shall slay the noonday," embodies a great philosophy. Our greatest athletic experts set much store by what they term "the winning habit." The theory is far more vital and important in the moral struggle than in the realms of athletics. The man who stores the years with victory over self is laying up treasure against which he can draw many a check for his later needs.

Above all, a growing love for God is the safeguard for the man in the midday of life. Where all else fails one may hope for victory through what Dr. Chalmers so aptly called "the expulsive power of a new affection." There is room for only one dominating love in the human heart. If that love is for the highest it must follow, as the night the day, that it will hold a man steady from the appeals of the lowest. Orpheus always sings more sweetly than the sirens, and a dominating love for God will keep the ship off the rocks, regardless of all the alluring voices.—Christian Advocate (New York).

GREAT DAYS AT THE CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

Every day is a great day, but for certain features some surpass others in interest. Tuesday, the 1st, was Prohibition Day, which was made glorious because of the closing of all saloons under special war enactments. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union was in charge, so to speak, several of their number making addresses.

Two great meetings were held in the largest auditoriums at the same hour, Col. Bryan addressing one, while George Stuart held the other, interchanging places on conclusion of their speeches. These were magnificent deliverances, after which, headed by a procession, we held the funeral of John Barleycorn.

On Epworth League Day, the young people of the church were much in evidence. Of course, as representative of Dixie, Sam Steel came off with honors just such as his friends knew him capable of. While his head is snowy, his heart is still young, and on the platform he still reaches the high-water mark.

Of course the glorious fourth was celebrated as no other day. The crowd on the grounds was estimated between 100,000 and 120,000. The guest of the day was ex-Secretary McAdoo, who delivered a strong appeal in advocacy of the League of Nations. His service in the Secretary's office is so appreciated up here that he is spoken of as the logical candidate of the Democratic Party for President in 1920.

Concededly, the most gigantic feature of the entire Centenary Celebration was a great parade of 10,000 people, representing every nation and country on the globe, and the result of Methodist effort to carry the gospel to every nation and kindred and tongue. Led by the two oldest ministers of the two Methodisms, on horseback, with saddlebags, the procession passed under the review of John Wesley, who proclaimed, "The world is my parish."

Fully 75,000 or 80,000 people witnessed this wonderful pageant, pronounced by some as the grandest thing ever seen on the American continent.

July 5 was Methodist Minute Men's Day. The procession of minute men was estimated as 6,000 strong. When this organization shall have gotten hold of the men of our church, Methodism will take the world for Christ. Secretary Daniels addressed these men in an address of such stirring appeal that when, after an hour, he apologized, cries were heard from all sides, "Go on, go on."

Bob Jones, the Alabama evangelist, preaches to immense crowds under the "Big Tent" every evening.

This will be my last from these associations, as I turn my face towards the Southland to-morrow, convinced "It's better to be born lucky than rich," and praying most earnestly God's richest blessings upon the friend who made it all possible.

Thinking that it might be of interest to some of your readers, some father who lingers or some mother who still recalls her boy in gray, I went out to the Confederate Cemetery at Camp Chase. Here I found a beautiful grove, enclosed with concrete, capped with an iron fence, neatly kept, and gate locked. Upon a stone archway stands a Confederate soldier in his gray, with face turned toward the South; beneath him, a large stone, which bears this inscription:

"Here lie 2,260 Confederate soldiers—Americans."

Each grave is marked with a marble slab 2 inches thick, 18 inches high and 12 inches broad, on which is the name of the party, his regiment and State. As I recall, nearly, if not every State of the Lost Cause is represented in this hallowed spot over which there is such tender care.

I could not learn who were the care-takers of this sacred dust, but I breathed a prayer for them and for those, if still they remain, whose thoughts turn thither. Just recently there had been a memorial service; the decorations, though faded, were there, and by each stone was a small flag of our great country. More at another time if I can reproduce my impressions.

While here, I have met many old friends and made some new ones, but as we passed on we were lost in the mighty throng, not to meet again, like ships that pass in the night. We shall meet again, sometime, somewhere.

THE PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Port Gibson District Conference was held in Rolling Fork, Miss., July 8-10, with Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, presiding elder, in the chair.

The conference was organized at 8 p. m., July 8, by the election of the writer as secretary, and of Rev. W. J. Dawson, assistant secretary. After the organization was completed, Rev. N. B. Harmon preached the opening sermon, which was a very interesting and instructive dissertation on James 4:13-15.

All the pastors in the district were present, except two, Brothers W. H. Saunders and O. S. Lewis, Saunders being at the Centenary Celebration at Columbs, Ohio, and Lewis being in a meeting at Flora, Miss.

Only two local preachers except supplies were present, and but very few lay members were present. We attribute the small attendance of lay delegates to two things: This is almost exclusively an agricultural territory, and this is a very busy season for farmers; then, some of the delegates would have had to travel a long way to reach the conference, for the district reaches from the "Dan to Beersheba" of the Mississippi Annual Conference, being bound on the north by the North Mississippi Conference, and on the south by the Louisiana State line, and Rolling Fork is in the extreme northern part of the district.

The reports given from the several pastoral charges show the work to be in a fairly prosperous condition, both in point of finance and spiritual growth. Quite a number have been added to the church already this year, though the usual revival season has just begun.

The district as a whole has not subscribed its full quota of the Centenary Fund, yet some charges have gone over the top. With humiliation, we must confess that the charge which the writer serves brings up the rear rank in this great movement.

Rev. R. Selby, Commissioner for Emory University, Rev. M. M. Black, Commissioner for Millsaps College, and Mrs. Mary Riley, representing the Methodist Orphanage, at Jackson, Miss., visited the conference. All were given ample opportunity to represent their work. Selby wears a long face, but he is not at all sour in disposition. In characteristic style, he gave a glowing account of the good work being done at the University. Black is somewhat Zacchaeus-like in physique, but does not find it difficult to make himself heard when he appears on the platform. He delighted the conference with his encouraging report of the progress being made on the new dormitory at Millsaps College.

Our own Dr. Rolfe Hunt brought a very encouraging report from Port Gibson Female College, telling of the good work that is being done in thoroughly repairing, renovating, and painting all the buildings, and that the session has been lengthened to full nine months exclusive of holidays, and that the indications are that there will be a record attendance on the next session of the institution.

Mrs. R. L. McLaurin occupied both the eleven o'clock hour and the evening hour, Thursday. She is a very pleasing speaker. Her messages were well received by the conference and by the citizens of Rolling Fork. She has lived and labored here in other days, and her visits to us and labors among us are always appreciated.

Rev. M. L. Burton preached Wednesday evening. As usual, his sermon was profound and eloquent, entertaining and instructive. Mr. Editor, did you know Burton is one of our strongest preachers?

Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, after finishing the routine business, the conference went in a body to Anguilla, eight miles north of Rolling Fork, and laid the corner-stone of the Kate Field Memorial Methodist Church, which is being builded by Rev. J. E. J. Ferguson and his loyal people. The service was conducted by Presiding Elder Sharbrough, assisted by Rev. N. B. Harmon. The address was delivered by Rev. M. L. Burton. Withal, the whole program was very pretty, and impressive. The church is a brick structure, will cost about $10,000, and when complete will be a perfect gem.

The conference elected Dr. Rolfe Hunt, M. L. Burton, W. W. Hopper, and M. M. Satterfield, ad interim Licensing Committee, chose Dr. Hunt for District Lay Leader, elected W. A. Price, J. M. Sessions, J. G. Parham, J. W. Sharbrough, T. M. Barland, M. M. Satterfield, N. Vick Robbins, and Mrs. M. B. Sharbrough, lay delegates to the Annual Conference, and chose Vicksburg, Crawford Street, as the place for holding its next session.

T. J. O'NEIL, Secretary.

Resolutions of Appreciation of Brother Sharbrough Adopted by the Port Gibson District Conference.

Whereas, Rev. M. B. Sharbrough will have served four consecutive years as presiding elder of this district at the close of the current Conference year, and

Whereas, because of disciplinary limitation, Brother Sharbrough must be removed from this district at the incoming session of the Mississippi Annual Conference; therefore, be it resolved:

First—That Brother Sharbrough has been very helpful to the church in this district during the quadrennium of his incumbency in the office of presiding elder, by his indefatigable labors, brotherly spirit, and fatherly counsels.

Second—That we pray the bishop who shall preside at the next session of our Annual Conference, and his cabinet, to give Brother Sharbrough the kindliest consideration in fixing the appointments for next year.

Third—That our prayers and best wishes shall follow Brother Sharbrough wherever he goes, and that we shall ever cherish his memory, as a true friend and real brother in the Gospel.

T. J. O'NEIL, Secretary.

TOPISAW CAMP MEETING.

Dear Mr. Editor: Allow me space in your paper to say that the Topisaw Camp Meeting, at Felder's Camp Ground, will begin on Friday night before the second Sunday in August. The Revs. A. M. Broadfoot, of Fernwood, Miss., and B. L. Sutherland, of Meridian, Miss., will do the preaching. Rev. A. B. Barry, of McComb, will lead the singing. All ministers are invited to attend; those close by will be expected to attend some.

Write J. H. Felder, of Summit, Miss., just what time and what train you will come on, and he will see that you have transportation to the Camp Ground; this is without cost to ministers. Further, the ministers are looked after and provided free entertainment. There will be a hotel operated by Mr. Coker, of Ruth, Miss. Other visitors can arrange rooms, etc., by writing him.

C. C. McEWIN, Layman.
H. C. CASTLES,
Preacher in charge.

McComb, Miss., July 14.

THE NEW MILLSAPS DORMITORY.

To the Methodists of Mississippi: The need of a well equipped dormitory, adequate in size, has for a number of years been recognized as one of the most urgent needs of Millsaps College. It has long been the conviction of those in a position to know that such a structure would be a valuable asset to the institution, both as a means of securing patronage and of maintaining helpful discipline on the campus. At present, the boarding facilities lack much of being what they should be, and until this deficiency is supplied, no matter how diligently those in charge of the College may work, it cannot progress as it ought.

As a committee representing the Board of Trustees of Millsaps College, we are happy to state that the movement to secure the dormitory so imperatively needed has, under the faithful leadership of Commissioner M. M. Black, made gratifying progress, and that plans for the building have been adopted. It will be a handsome brick structure consisting of three units, and it will occupy the site of the old Hemingway residence—one of the most beautiful spots on the College grounds. The central unit will be called Galloway Hall; the south unit, Murrah Hall, and the north unit, Burton Hall, after the late Professor J. M. Burton, who died in the service of the Government in France. The structure, when completed, will cost more than $100,000.

The immediate objective, however, is to finish as speedily as possible the central unit and the first floor of the north unit, so as to meet the pressing demands which are being made upon the College, and the contract for this work has been let, and it is now going forward. It calls for an expenditure of $68,000, and this does not cover the furnishing. The available resources to meet this outlay are approximately $50,000 in cash, and an uncollected subscription from citizens of Jackson and from over the State, from which it is hoped to realize several thousand dollars. But the funds in sight, upon a conservative estimate, are not sufficient to cover the work contracted for, to say nothing of furnishing the completed portions of the building and the erection of the third unit.

We desire, therefore, to appeal to our pastors in the two patronizing Conferences, the Millsaps alumni, and all other friends of the institution, to assist Commissioner Black, for the next few weeks, all that they possibly can in the work of securing means to consummate this enterprise. The Methodists of Mississippi now have before them no call that is more deserving and urgent than this.

There has been abroad an impression that Millsaps College has ample resources and does not need money. This impression is an erroneous one. Because of the war conditions and the high cost of living, it has been necessary to increase the salaries of the professors and other employees of the institution until its income is not more than adequate to cover its unavoidable current expenses. In consequence, the 125,000 Methodists of the State must henceforth do much more for the College than they have been doing, if it is to continue to develop and keep abreast of other progressive educational institutions. The generous founder of our College is no longer with us, and the time has come when we must depend more largely upon ourselves. To let Millsaps College fail in efficiency would be to weaken and cripple our church in Mississippi in the future. The need for the service it can render, if rightly maintained, is greater now than ever before.

The preachers can immensely aid in the present undertaking by writing Brother Black and opening their pulpits to him. They, and others who are specially interested, can also be of valuable assistance to him by co-operating with him in bringing this appealing cause to the attention of our people who have means.

The parts of the dormitory contracted for will give excellent accommodations to 70 or 75 students, and it is hoped that they will be ready for occupancy by the first or middle of next November. Let us see that this hope is not defeated by our dilatoriness in providing the funds necessary for this enterprise.

Fraternally yours,
W. B. MURRAH,
W. W. WOOLLARD,
R. A. MEEK,
Committee.

THE BATON ROUGE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Baton Rouge District Conference convened at First Church, Baton Rouge, La., July 8-10.

This sitting of the conference was in several respects a red letter period in the history of the Baton Rouge District and registered the best that this scribe of twenty-seven conferences ever attended. The delegation part of the conference registered very high, possibly twice as great numerically as at former conferences. The personnel of the conference was of high order in representative laymen and laywomen of the district.

There was a very fine spirit pervading the conference; brotherly kindness, love, and Christian courtesy were very marked. "Preferring one another," seemed to be the order of the occasion, and not once did this spirit abdicate its rule and authority over brethren.

Our president, Rev. H. W. May, is an executive of no mean ability. He is kind, courteous, and brotherly in his relation to his preachers, and thorough and methodical in business, and accurate and rapid in dispatch—a courteous and elegant gentleman, and an untiring and devoted servant to the church.

Every interest of the church was wisely and carefully considered, according to merit and importance, special stress being put on the spiritual state of the church, missions, Sunday schools, etc.

Our committeemen on the many activities of the church were thorough, safe and sane in their several reports. These reports were comprehensive, yet detailed; full, yet brief; progressive, yet conservative. The secretary lifts his hat and says, "I thank you, brethren; your work is well done and sanely executed."

Our Sunday School Field Secretary, Rev. Alonzo Early, was present throughout the conference. The conference bows to Brother Early in recognition and appreciation of the man and his work—our own Sunday school and our own secretary. When will our Methodist folks learn first of all to support their own Sunday school work and their own Field Secretary? Why should we Methodists permit a parasite to live, thrive, and fatten on our Sunday school branch of the church, while we suffer and own to being underfed and lacking in support?

We have been generous almost to a fault in our support of an interdenominational enterprise, while grievously sinning against our own. This fact reminds one of nothing so much as parents taking up a fondling and giving it the right of way in their home, lavishing upon it affections and every good thing, and yet having no authority to correct, instruct, or direct its actions and conduct, while denying to their own child recognition and support—a mere vagabond within their doors, to whom they hand out a crumb and deny even a meager support. It is high time that this son of the bond-woman was turned out and the son of the free woman given a chance to come into his own.

Dr. Bourne, president of Centenary College, was present at the conference and made a fine impression. Dr. Bourne, in manner, association and address, delighted and pleased all who met and heard him.

There was present at the conference every pastor in the district save one. They were good to look upon, and were pleasing to associate with.

The first appearance of laywomen in the conference was not that of a novice, but that of a veteran.

We had some mighty good preaching, done by Brothers Early, Mills, Smith, Fulton, and Akin.

That prince of laymen, W. S. Holmes, Centenary District Director, was present and greatly endeared himself to his brethren; he can always be depended upon to have the facts and figures that make one "sit up and take notice."

Our new men in the conference and the district, Brothers Ellis Smith, pastor at Amite, and T. H. Mills, pastor at Wilson, won the hearts and affections of their brethren.

Baton Rouge Methodism is strong and progressive and par excellent in the art of hospitality; their entertainment of the conference was gracious and splendid.

Our delegation to the Annual Conference is safe, sane and strong from every view-point, and will worthily represent our great church. They are as follows: Judge R. R. Reed, Col. I. D. Wall, Judge Chas. Kilbourne, Hon. W. T. Holland, W. S. Holmes, O. H. Cline, J. R. Abels, and Miss Nell Richardson.

The preachers of the district are full of plans, purposes, faith and hope for a great ingathering of souls during the coming months of the Conference year.

The presiding elder and associate pastors of the Bluff Creek Camp Meeting are planning for great things there this summer, August 8-18. Let everybody concerned take notice and so arrange his business that he can take in the camp meeting.

The Woman's Missionary Society was represented by Mrs. Niebergall, of New Orleans, and Mrs. Stewart, of Amite. All honor to these elect women.

The conference goes next year to Franklinton, La. That prosperous little city is served and represented by a heavy weight—Ful-ton. So the conference may anticipate some ponderous expression in the way of welcome, entertainment, etc.

THE SUPERANNUATE ENDOWMENT—OUGHT IT TO PROSPER?

By Payton A. Sowell.

I am sure my interest in the great cause is at least 99 per cent unselfish. Judging the Methodists by their zeal and enthusiasm, and by their interest and sympathetic touch with the toiling masses, it seems natural to infer that they would be leaders and pioneers among the churches to provide a pension for their retired preachers. Strange to say, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has been the "slacker" among all the large churches of the United States.

In the days of Asbury and McKendree, there was no arrangement for superannuation. It was work—or locate—or die. A modern General Conference, without hesitation, would put a bishop, as old and broken as Asbury, in the superannuated relation. But these men had to choose between work until death—or location.

A great church, filled with the spirit of appreciation, is expected to make provision for the men and women who toiled for a generation to build the church.

The Presbyterians have far outstripped our church. The Methodist Episcopal Church has also. The Baptists will create a fund this year. The Christian Church is taking permanent steps in this direction. The Protestant Episcopal Church, led by Bishop Lawrence, in two years, secured nine millions; when it began, it was to get seven. They have provided for retirement at 68 years on a minimum of $600; and a maximum possibility of $2,000. There is a disability provision for the same. The widows will receive 50 per cent of the amount their husbands would have been entitled to. Orphans of deceased preachers will receive $100, below age of seven; and $200, between seven and fourteen. These are pension gifts, paid by drafts or checks, in a business-like way, not charity.

Something like twenty or more years ago, our church began in a business-like way to pay annually a sum to the retired bishops. As the changing conditions made living expenses greater, the church has increased their pensions. The retired bishops receive $2,500, and the widows not less than $1,000. These pensioners do not need to have a "Board of Finance" search into their private affairs to see if they need it.

There are approximately 800 retired preachers in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who receive a charity of an average of about $200, many of them not over $50. There are about 1200 widows of preachers—they get an average of about 50 per cent of the amount paid the preachers—an average of $100. They must prove their need to get anything from the Conference Boards.

Why this difference between the plain preachers and their widws, and the bishops and their widows?

Who was it that lengthened the lines and strengthened the stakes? Planted and built the church? Was it not these plain men? Did not their wives bear the brunt and self-denial while it was being done?

I read in a secular paper a few days since this story: "Wm. B. Trembly, a private, swam a river in the Philippine Islands, fastened a rope that could be used in transporting troops; and Col. Funston, using this advantage, defeated and captured Aguinaldo." The government made Funston a brigadier general, but they did nothing for Private Trembly, who lost his clothes in the act and performed the deed in the midst of a hail of bullets. Not even an extra suit of clothes was given him.

Why this difference? Why does the church make this difference between its bishops and ordinary preachers?

Why does this Endowment Fund not prosper?

Why is it that the preachers themselves manifest so little interest? I believe, subconsciously, it is because it is a charity.

I think another reason for its slow growth is, the bishops have never lent themselves to its support. I have attended over fifty sessions of Annual Conferences; I have never heard one make a real address in the interest of the Superannuate Endowment. I have heard them on many subjects, but not on this one.

Lately two or three allusions have been made in the Advocate to gifts made after reading editorials in the interest of superannuates. We must say the cause has had a very small space in the church papers.

Pastors might open every pulpit to Dr. Todd, and others, and in three months' time the bulk of the fund would be in hand. How many pastors have opened their doors, and invited the secretary?

The General Conference declares that an organized effort shall not be made for four years. If they would throttle these retired men, and have the good conscience to do so for four years, they will do so at the beginning of the next four years. In one way or another, they have tied a knot for the seventeen years of the effort.

I was talking to a rector of an Episcopal church, to-day. He said, "By every just and generous consideration, the old men who built the church through this half-century ought to have a part—the first part—of the great gift of the Centenary.

The strange thing is, that Methodists, a Methodist General Conference, should cut them off, and see 800 old preachers continue through another four years, receiving an average of $200.

The percentages of the church budget reveal the same lack of interest—read two or three items: Foreign Missions, 35.5 per cent; Church Extension, 19 per cent; Negro Work, 3.25 per cent; Superannuates, 1 per cent.

As long as the cause is considered as this table reveals it to be, we need not be surprised that it does not prosper.

Dr. Watkins, after a lonesome service, retired; Dr. Stewart, after the same circumstances, retired; to date only $527,965.77 has been collected—in seventeen years. I am sure Dr. Todd has a lonesome service. Will he have to retire also?

THE EDITOR OF THE REVIEW ON THE INTER-CHURCH MOVEMENT.

Dear Brother Carley: I am enclosing you an extract from the last Methodist Review, taken from the Editor's Table, from an article entitled, "Will the Churches Be Scrambled," which I would be glad to have you publish. The subject, as I consider it, is one that is liable to become serious and hurtful to churches in general, and especially to ours. M. B. SHARBROUGH

The Extract.

"The Editor of the Review believes strongly in the final unification of Protestantism. He welcomes any wise movement that has a tendency to usher it in. He is not, therefore, hostile to this Inter-Church Movement. But as one who has been observant of the drift of the Federal Council for some time, he is confident that our bishops, connectional officers, pastors and laymen should scrutinize this movement without prejudice, and then determine the attitude of Southern Methodism toward it. Undoubtedly the men who are behind it are earnest, good men, who have the kingdom of God upon their hearts. They are anxious to usher it in among men. But the fact that motives are noble and intentions praiseworthy is no guarantee against error." * * *

"We are developing in America a lot of 'church experts,' men who have never been pastors, whose knowledge of God's Word is superficial, who have no clear conception of the drift of the world order, who are obsessed by the illusion of social salvation. Yet they are men of considerable ability, especially in putting on campaigns, in harnessing up religious forces to business methods. These men the church ought to use. But the church should be careful lest it allow them to deflect it from its divine purpose—the salvation of souls." * * *

"Methodism, by virtue of its organization, is peculiarly exposed to the dangers of a movement like this. By virtue of its connectionalism it has a large number of men long removed from the pastorate, and so long occupied with movements and measures that are inclined to minimize the work of the supreme man in the church—the pastor. They do not hesitate to overload him with their plans, they are tireless in their calls upon him, they leave him but little time for study, and the delicate offices of spiritual healing and surgery. They become so immersed in their task of serving tables that they lose sight of the deeper values of the kingdom of Christ, and are therefore inclined to welcome any scheme, however superficial, that seems to further the ends in which they are concerned.

"One thing is very clear: men of large intellectual and spiritual insight are not going to continue to enter the ministry of any church that becomes a mere business organization. We believe in the Methodist system and the Methodist creed. But as one who has represented the church on the executive committee of the Federal Council, we would warn Southern Methodism that it ought to scrutinize every movement that does not originate in some light upon human life from the great Head of the Church, but has at least a part of its origin in that tendency of some portions of American Protestantism to be dissatisfied unless it is "doing something" or "putting something over." The Master of life said to the Pharisees who spent their lives trying to make religion visible, 'The kingdom of God cometh not in such a manner that it can be watched with the eyes.' What would he say if he should come into our midst where the eternal click of the typewriter seems more important than the inspired preaching of the Word of Truth?"

A FINE SELECTION.

Colonel John E. Edgerton, of Lebanon, Tenn., comes to Centenary headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., to have charge of the Department of Finance for the Centenary Movement. As director of this department, Colonel Edgerton will be in charge of all work connected with the collection of the $53,000,000 subscribed during the Big Drive. He will assume the duties of his office immediately.

Colonel Edgerton is one of the best known business men in the South. He is President and Manager of the Lebanon Woolen Mills at Lebanon, Tenn., President of the Tennessee Manufacturers' Association, Vice President of the National Association of Manufacturers, and one of the directors of the National Council of Industries Defense. During the war he rendered valuable service as a member of the Boards of Federal Fuel and Food Administration. He has long been identified with all the activities of the Methodist Church. He served as Campaign Director for the Tennessee Conference during the recent Centenary Campaign and is also lay leader for the Tennessee Conference.

Colonel Edgerton's connection with the Centenary in the capacity of Director of the Department of Finance insures careful business methods for this most important work. The Centenary Commission is fortunate in securing his services, and Southern Methodists are to be congratulated upon having so capable a representative.

TO THE PASTORS OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: As treasurer of the Sunday School Board, I want to call your attention to the fact that Sunday School Day is not being observed in our Conference as it should be. Only seven churches in the Greenville, six in the Sardis, six in the Durant, five in the Corinth, four in the Winona, four in the Holly Springs, four in the Aberdeen and three in the Columbus Districts have reported to the treasurer. We have not enough money to pay for the programs.

Now, brethren, this seems to me to be a situation worthy of our notice. Sandy Bayou, Gunnison, Byhalia, and Grenada are leading in the order named. Come on, fellows, help us out of a tight.

A METHODIST PENTECOST.

By Rev. O. E. Goddard, D.D.

The outstanding need of Methodism is a genuine revival. The pre-requisite to having such a revival is that the leadership of the church have the Pentecostal experience in the present tense. We have some who have had it, but the cares of the world, the deceitfulness of riches, the love of ease, money or power, or some other of the subtle sins, that, like a vampire, extract the spirituality of the man, have left but an echo of a former experience. Burnt out enthusiasms, experiences that exist only in memory, will not suffice for the present struggle. Neither will pre-Pentecostal experiences answer the present distress. Many are longing for it, but longings and moanings must be turned into actualities. Those with the pre-Pentecostal experiences and those with the post-Pentecostal experiences must meet at the altar August the 29th, our day of prayer and fasting, and get a present Pentecostal experience that will qualify them for the oncoming revival campaign. Pentecostal power in the present tense is the purpose of the prayer program.

There is no use in our having any controversy about this Pentecostal experience. Let every man have his own way of naming and numbering his. It is not the theory but the fact we want, not an argument to establish any man's or any sect's theory, but the fruits in our lives that were manifest in the early disciples who were at Pentecost. The Word says, "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." Witnessing power is all the power herein mentioned. When the power came they began at once to witness. How gladly they witnessed for Christ! Christ needs just such witnesses to-day. It is not a new theology, not a new form of church government, not new machinery, but witnessing power, such as came to the disciples at Pentecost, that Methodism needs to-day. Now a day has been set apart for prayer and fasting. Why not make this the time to seek the Pentecostal power? Come to this day cleansed from sin, living the justified life, and get this Pentecostal infilling that gives witnessing power. Call it what you may. Number it as you please. Put your own interpretation on it, but get the power. It will be a joy to tell what the Lord has done for you. Let the congregations assemble at the church for a sunrise prayer service. Read Matt. 17:21; Acts 1:18, Matt. 9:29.

Let every member of the church seek definitely this enduement of power. Every member shall need it in the coming revival. This day ought to go down in the history of Southern Methodism as a second Pentecost. Will all our pastors endeavor to make it so? Will all our members join heartily to make the most of this day? Is not this the need of the church? Has not the soul of every devout member longed for it? On this morning may we all hear the Master say: "Receive ye the Holy Ghost."

THE FOOLISHNESS OF PREACHING.

By Rev. Donald Boyce.

There was trouble in the church at Corinth. Four opposing parties threatened to destroy the life of the little church. Paul was an expert in his line. He knew how dangerous sects are in the church of the living God. He realized that strife hindered the progress of the kingdom in Corinth. With these thoughts in mind, he directed an epistle to the Corinthian church.

In the introduction of his epistle the Apostle says: "Now I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you. For it hath been signified unto me that there are contentions among you." And then the Apostle plainly tells his former parishioners that he knows the existing difficulty at Corinth. Most of the Corinthian Christians were followers of certain well known Christian leaders. They had lost sight of Jesus Christ, their Lord. Some of them had gone so far as to introduce into the life and worship of the church, Jewish rites and ceremonies, which had been done away with by Christ, while not a few hailed Paul as the leader of their party.

The situation was a delicate one, but Paul was equal to it. Said he: "Now this I mean, that each of you saith: I am of Paul; and I of Apollos; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ. Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were ye baptized into the name of Paul?" And then Paul goes on to say that during his stay in Corinth he had not spoken to the Corinthians of the destiny of man, of the unity of the race, of the existence of a personal God. While in their city he "determined not to know anything among them save Christ and Him crucified." "We preach Christ crucified, unto Jews a stumbling-block, and unto Gentiles foolishness; but unto them that are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God."

Paul proclaimed Christ as the only Savior of men, but to the average Jewish audience his message was not acceptable. The majority of the Jews failed to see in Christ the Messiah of whom Moses in the law and the prophets wrote. The Apostle's message was a stumbling-block, because it was not accompanied with signs.

Moses had given the Jews signs. Had he not exhibited a sign of God's presence with him when the rod, which he carried, turned into a serpent and from a serpent into a rod again? During all the years of their wanderings, Moses had wrought signs for them. And those signs were symbols of God's presence, His favor or His wrath.

Centuries later, a greater than Moses appeared. To Him the Jews said: "Show us a sign." And He said: "An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given unto it, but of the sign of the prophet Jonah." The earthly ministry of Jesus was a stumbling-block to the chosen people. They closed their ears and blinded their eyes against His message. Their idea of the Kingdom of God was contrary to that which Jesus taught. The old idea of political kingdoms was uppermost in the mind of every loyal Jew. Jewish minds could not conceive the idea that the Kingdom of God is a spiritual kingdom—a kingdom established in the hearts and lives of men. Even to this day the Cross of Christ is a stumbling-block to Israel.

To the Gentiles the Cross is foolishness. The Greeks made sport of Christianity. They would accept no truth that was not commended by philosophical speculation. They preferred to worship an unknown God rather than a God who revealed Himself to men in the person of Jesus Christ. In the eyes of the Greeks the Cross was an abhorrent object. The idea that God would allow His only begotten Son to be crucified was ridiculous. The Greeks had a shallow conception of sin, therefore the Cross to them was an object of ridicule. Such a Gospel as Paul preached might commend itself to simple-minded men, but not to the scholarly Greeks. To them his message was foolishness.

"We preach Christ crucified, unto Jews a stumbling-block, and unto Gentiles foolishness; but unto them that are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God." If the Gospel is a stumbling-block to some, and foolishness to others, it is the power of God unto salvation unto those that are called. As in Paul's time, so to-day—men, women and children, who are burdened with sin and shame, see in Christ "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." To be sure, the Cross is an abhorrent thing, so is sin. Sin is deadly. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." I would to God that I might write indelibly upon every heart: "The wrath of God against sin is so great, that rather than it should go unpunished, He hath punished the same in His well-beloved Son: Jesus Christ, with the bitter and shameful death of the Cross." The Christ is the hope of every contrite heart. His blessed body was nailed to the Cross that He might affix thereon the handwriting of our sins. I do not wonder that Paul wrote: "God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom the world hath been crucified unto me, and I unto the world." Paul could look at the vilest sinner and say: "There, but for the grace of God, goes Paul." To the great Apostle, Christ was the power of God and the wisdom of God.

"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have eternal life." Here are the vital truths of the Gospel. Here is the wonderful story of God's love. Here is the magnet that draws and saves men.

But will men ever tire of hearing the story of God's love and of a suffering Savior? As long as suffering, sin and sorrow remain in this old world, hearts will cry:

"Tell me the old, old story,
Of unseen things above,
Of Jesus and His glory,
Of Jesus and His love.

Tell me the story slowly
That I may take it in—
That wonderful redemption,
God's remedy for sin.

Tell me the story softly,
With earnest tones and grave;
Remember! I'm the sinner
Whom Jesus came to save."

The world is to be saved by the foolishness of preaching. The Gospel is still "the power of God unto salvation." "See that ye refuse not Him that speaketh."—The Christian Intelligencer.

ALABAMA LETTER.

By Rev. W. G. Henry, Ph. D.

How quickly the months pass! The calendar tells me that it has been nearly eight months since the last session of the Annual Conference. When I met a host of the "brethren" of the Mississippi Conference at Columbus, Ohio, a few days ago, I felt quite at home. My friendships have been permanently and helpfully enriched by having known these choice kingdom-makers. It is quite true that we are never the same persons again after other lives have entered our lives. We are noticeably modified in the spirit of work now attempted. So friendship must ever be a matter of serious moment for the adult as well as for the adolescent. "On God, and God-like men, we build our trust." Many splendid laymen, whose philanthropy and probity bless the world, are reckoned among those who help me in the dispensation of the gospel of Christ. Mississippi is rich in noblemen in the ministry and in the laity.

The Centenary drive for intercessors, tithers, volunteers for active Christian service, and for $35,000,000, has come and gone. Now two great opportunities confront us as a church—Revivals and Christian Education. Of all time, the church—every church—must experience a revival. The pastor who does not see the moving of providence towards a higher spiritual demand, is blind indeed. We must either Christianize America now or give up our cause. Unless all signs fail, now is the greatest opportunity ever set before our Zion in all of her illustrious history. Let us pray that we fail not.

Scarcely second to any need in all the world is the imperative demand for Christian education. Our leadership must be both Christian and educated. Mississippi Methodism can make no better contribution to the spiritual progress of the race than to crowd the halls of her Christian institutions with promising students. I must commend the unparalleled example of Dr. I. W. Cooper, who made possible the education of forty ministers in ten years. The home field and foreign territory cry aloud for such men.

All success to the New Orleans Christian Advocate and to every constructive force whose aim is moral excellence.

WISHING.

I wish I had a pair of wings.
Oh, how I'd like to fly
Above the mountains and the clouds,
Up in the deep blue sky!

I'd like to be with fairy folks
One long, long summer day,
And see the places where they live,
And learn the games they play.

A mermaid fair, with golden locks,
I'd surely like to be,
And talk with funny, funny folks
That live beneath the sea!

I'd like to be a princess grand,
All dressed in cloth of gold!
I wish—I wish—oh, half the things
I wish, could not be told!

But still, wherever I might be,
I know that, when 'twas night,
I'd want to come back home, and have My mother hug me tight.

—Lena B. Ellingwood.

PLAIN WHITE.

Mary June caught sight of the tired little figure by the big range as soon as she reached the kitchen door. "I'll dish up the potatoes, mother," she called out, cheerfully.

Mother turned. She was a little frail woman, with soft brown eyes.

"That you, dear?" she said, with a relieved sigh. "Run in, please, and see if the table is all right. Mrs. Jackson is bringing a friend to dinner to-day and I do want everything to be nice."

"Poor little mother!" she whispered. "She's forgotten to give Mr. Snodgrass a napkin and Mrs. Willets hasn't any fork. It's just a shame she has to work so hard. Boarders are no fun and she has had them so long. If father had just lived," and then Mary June, supplying the missing napkin, sighed a little.

Father had not lived and mother had been obliged to work, and work very hard, to keep food in their mouths and a roof over their heads and Mary June in school.

After seeing that the table lacked nothing, Mary June went back to the kitchen, and for the next few minutes both were so busy that neither spoke. It was just after dinner that the opportunity came.

"Marjory Mills has invited me to her party," said Mary June, suddenly.

"She has?" answered mother, and then just a little shadow crept over the sweet, tired face, for Mary June would have to have a new dress if she went to the party, and with the high cost of living, how was she to give it to her?

When her bills were met there was scarcely anything left. For boarders, to be permanent, must be well fed, and Mary June's mother could not economize at their expense.

Mary June saw the look, and when she came back from the pantry she put both arms about her. "Now, mother," she said, fondly, "if that party is going to worry you, I won't go."

"But your dress," protested mother, faintly.

"Well," replied Mary June, with a practical air, "I've about figured out the dress. What the other girls wear must not influence me. Wasn't it grandma who used to say that we must not 'measure our oats in other people's half bushels?' In other words, what the rest of the world has need not concern us."

"And I thought," added Mary June, in her sweet young voice, "that if you could get me a few yards of plain white goods I could make it myself after school."

Mother looked at Mary June. "Plain white!" she repeated.

Mary June nodded. "Plain white and nothing else. The goods won't cost much and the making nothing. And I can go to the party after all.

"You remember the little rhyme of the 'Birds' Ball' you used to tell me about, and what Jenny Wren said? The other birds were all going to dress up, but Jenny Wren said:

"'I must wear my brown gown,
And never look too fine.'

"I'm Jenny Wren and my mother keeps boarders, but when I get to teaching after I have my diploma, she's going to rest. We can both have better clothes then, but just now it has to be plain white. Why, mother, I don't care a bit, really. That Alice will wear pink chiffon and Edith blue messaline and Mildred lace does not matter to me. If my mother is willing I will be happy to go in the plain white."

For a moment mother did not reply. She could not. Mary June was such a help, and so unselfish, asking for so little always.

And then she saw Mary June in the plain white, with her sweet, glowing young face and her brown curls, and she knew that even in a plain white dress Mary June would still be Mary June—the sweetest little daughter in the world. It was worth all her struggles to feel that. A tear ran down the pale cheek, but there was joy in her heart.

"We will get the plain white, dear," she said, huskily.—Susan Hubbard Martin, in Baptist Boys and Girls.

GENERAL LEE'S KINDNESS.

A humble countryman was driving a loaded wagon over a muddy road in Virginia. His team was light and progress was slow and difficult. At last his wagon sank in a deep rut and his struggling horses stopped. He had "stalled," hard and fast. Nothing he could do—yelling at his horses, whipping them, prizing at his wagon wheels—would extricate him.

Meantime there were passers-by in plenty. But it was war-time and most of them had on hand difficulties of their own. Underling officers pushed ahead of the luckless wagoner; cavalrymen rode by without apparent concern; and even privates afoot were too much engrossed to lend a helping hand.

But just then rode up an elderly gentleman of soldierly bearing and kindly face who proved to be "the noblest Roman of them all." At once he saw the difficulty and at once he dismounted, gave some suggestions, put his shoulder to the muddy wheels and helped the driver out to solid earth and sent him on his way.

Not until later did the grateful beneficiary learn that he had been aided by no less a personage than the Commander-in-chief of the Confederate Army.—Kind Words.

ANY WAY YOU PLEASE.

"Mamma, I wish you'd call the baby in; he's so cross we can't play!" cried Robert one day as he was playing in the yard with his sister and the baby.

"I don't think he would be cross if you were not cross to him," said mamma, coming out. "He does just as he sees you do. Just try him and see. Put your hat on one side of your head."

Robert did so, and presently the baby pushed his straw hat over on one side of his head, just as Robbie had done.

"Whistle," said mamma.

Robbie did, and the baby began to whistle, too.

"Stop mocking me!" said Robbie, giving the baby a push. Baby screamed and pushed Robbie back.

"There, you see," said his mother, "the baby does just as you do. Kiss him now, and you will see how quickly he will follow your example."

Robbie did not feel exactly like doing this, but he did, and baby hugged and kissed him back very warmly.

"Now, you see," said his mother, "you can make a cross or a good boy of your little brother, just as you choose. But you must teach him yourself."—Jewels.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

THE NEW DORMITORY AT MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

We call special attention to the statement in this issue of the Advocate by the Board of Trustees of Millsaps College concerning the new dormitory which is in process of construction. It has to do with a matter that is of great importance to Mississippi Methodism. For a long time the entire church has taken great pride in Millsaps College. It is an institution which has brought honor to the name of its noble founder and munificent benefactor, and which has contributed largely to the educational work of the church and the State. We do not know of any school which has made a nobler record in the same length of time than has Millsaps College.

But it has made this record in spite of certain difficulties in the way of proper boarding accommodations for students. There has been a system of private boarding houses, and a number of cottages in which co-operative boarding clubs were maintained for awhile; but the need of a modern, thoroughly equipped dormitory has been keenly felt. That need is now being met in the erection of the new building. When it is completed, it will not be excelled by any similar building in this section of the South, if, indeed, it will have a superior anywhere.

It should be a matter of pride with the alumni and friends of the College, and with Mississippi Methodists in general, to see to it that ample funds are provided for the completion of the building without debt, and for its proper furnishing before the opening of the next session of the College. We hope the appeal of the Board of Trustees will meet with an immediate and generous response, so that there will be no lack of money to go rapidly forward with the work that has been undertaken. A contribution to any part of the equipment of an educational institution is an imperishable monument to the generosity and high idealism of the donor.

MEETING OF THE JOINT COMMISSION.

By Rev. J. A. Burrow, D.D.

(Dr. J. A. Burrow, editor of the Midland Methodist, attended all the sessions of the Joint Commission on Unification at its recent meeting in Cleveland, Ohio. We arranged with him to give the account of the meeting which appears below.—Editor.)

The Joint Commission of the two great American Methodisms met in called session at Hotel Statler, Cleveland, Ohio, July 7, 1919. Telegrams to church editors announced that they would be admitted, so I hied me thither. For all of the first day I was the only editor present, and remained the only Southern Methodist editor throughout. This does not take into account Dr. Ivey and Dr. Joy, of the Nashville and New York Advocates, who are members of the Commission.

Two editors from the Methodist Episcopal Church came in later, and we three held the reporters' fort unto the end. We were admitted to all the joint sessions. I was welcomed to the sittings of the Southern delegation apart, as I suppose the other editors were to their delegation conferences.

The Commission paid a beautiful tribute to the memory of Bishop Elijah Embree Hoss, ascended. Then they plunged into the middle of things by ordering a committee of ten—five to be elected by each delegation—said committee to proceed at once to consider the status of the Negro to the proposed reorganized Methodism of America. The committee chosen was as follows: Bishop Cannon, Dr. Bradfield, Dr. Thomas, Judge White, Mr. Madden, Bishop McDowell, Dr. Goucher, Dr. Blake, Mr. Harris and Judge Simpson.

The next morning the committee asked for a little further time to complete its work, which was readily granted. In the afternoon the committee made a majority and a minority report. The majority report was brief, and read as follows: "We propose to the Joint Commission that the colored membership of the church shall be constituted and reorganized as a quadrennial or Regional Conference, with proportionate representation in the General Conference." This report was signed by Dr. Bradfield, in addition to the five representatives of the M. E. Church.

The minority report, which will be given further on, provided for the formation of Regional Conferences for Colored People in America; for Latin America, for Europe, for Eastern Asia and for Southern Asia. The purpose of the plan was to place the colored people in line with the Missionary Regional Conferences, needing development, funds, and watchful oversight, under such restrictions as appear in the report. The discussions which followed were candid, courteous, brotherly. I did not hear a sharp utterance, or see the shadow of a discourtesy. Some of the Southern delegation were willing to grant proportionate representation to the colored people in a General Conference under the safeguards hitherto tentatively agree upon. The Northern delegation seemed anxious to protect the minority at every possible point. Dr. Edward Blake made a memorable speech. His mind is as clear as a bell; and his spirit is admirable.

The delegation met separately that night. The Southerners dealt frankly with the situation. What did the majority report mean? What was the full import of its words? If it meant a colored Regional Conference on a parity with the white, with colored bishops in coordinate relations, then the delegation was not willing to agree. Dr. Bradfield, who was serving as an alternate for Dr. Chappell, now in Europe, declared that his signature to the majority report was on the assumption that all restrictions hitherto tentatively agreed upon were in full force. The delegation adjourned to await further light.

The full Commission met next morning. After some discussion, interlarded with cross-questions and answers—all in the finest of spirit—it was decided to recommit both reports with instructions to define more clearly the full meaning of the same. Dr. Young, Mr. Hyer, Dr. Wallace and Mr. Robertson were added to the committee, these being selcted by their respective delegations. The Commission then adjourned to give the committee time to do its work.

On reassembling of the entire Commission, the committee brought in two reports, as follows:

Report No. 1.

We propose to the Joint Commission that the colored membership of the church shall be constituted and recognized as a Quadrennial, or Regional Conference, with proportionate representation and the same rights and privileges in the General Conference as belong to other Regional Conferences, recognizing fully the limitations at present due to the smaller number of members who would constitute the colored Regional Conference.

1. In harmony therewith, we recommend the amendment of Art. IX., Sec. 4, sub sec. 4 (page 12 Savannah folder), by the substitution, in line 3, of the words "two-thirds" for the words "a majority of," so that the section shall read:

"Whenever a majority of each of two Regional delegations shall so request, a vote shall be taken on any pending motion or resolution, except amendments to the Constitution, by Regional delegations, and it shall require the concurrence of two-thirds of the Regional delegation to adopt said motion or resolution, provided, however, that no motion or resolution shall be adopted that does not receive a majority vote of the members of the General Conference present and voting."

2. We recommend that Art. IX, Sec. 3, sub sec. 3 (page 12 Savannah folder), be amended to read as follows:

(5th line) "The General Superintendents, before the General Conference convenes, shall elect from their own number, by a two-thirds vote, one bishop, or more, to preside during the session.

3. We recommend that Art. IX., Sec. 2, sub Sec. 7 (page 10 Savannah folder), be amended by adding after the word "supervision" in the 10th line, the words "if a majority of the resident bishops of the jurisdiction to which he is assigned shall concur in said assignments."

4. We recommend that to Art. VI (pages 1 and 2, Savannah folder), there be added a section to be numbered 7 reading as follows: "The Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions embracing the work among colored people in the United States."

5. We recommend that Art. VI., Sec. 2 (page 4 Savannah folder), be referred to the Committee on Conferences for a restatement in harmony with the principles of this report.

6. We recommend that Art. VII., Sec. 1 (page 3 Savannah folder), be amended by the omission of sub-section 1 and that the sub-sections be renumbered accordingly; also that the words "not otherwise provided for" be omitted from sub-section 2.

This report was signed by Bishop McDowell, Dr. Downey, Dr. Goucher, Dr. Blake, Mr. Harris, Judge Simpson, Dr. Wallace and Mr. Robertson.

Report No. 2.

We suggest:

I. That there be the following additional Regional Conferences:

a. Colored People in America.
b. Latin America.
c. Europe.
d. Eastern Asia.
e Southern Asia.

II. These Regional Conferences shall each have representation in the General Conference in proportion to their membership in full standing, provided that each of such Regional Conferences shall be entitled to at least five clerical and five lay delegates; provided further, that the number of delegates from any one of these Conferences shall not exceed five per cent of the entire membership of the General Conference.

III. These Regional Conferences shall have the powers proposed for the General Conferences as contained in the report of the Committee of Conference as amended at the Savannah session of the Joint Commission on Unification.

IV. Whenever the membership in full standing of any of these Regional Conferences shall exceed 400,000, upon request of said Conference, the General Conference shall organize the membership of said Conference into an Associate General Conference with the powers proposed for such Associate General Conference in the report of the Committee of Conference at the Savannah meeting of the Joint Commission. Such Associate General Conference shall have representation in the General Conference of ten clerical and ten lay delegates, with the right to speak and to vote in the General Conference on all matters which affect their relation to the church.

V. The relation of these Regional Conferences to the General Conference may be changed by the vote of two successive General Conferences.

VI. We reaffirm the action of the Commission taken at Savannah in reference to the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church.

This report was signed by Bishop Cannon, Dr. Bradfield, Dr. Thomas, Judge White, Mr. Madden, Dr. Young and Mr. Hyer. It is identical with the original minority report. Bishop McDowell explained that the two reports were on an exact parity so far as parliamentary rules were concerned, neither having technical nor tactical precedence over the other. Bishop Mouzon, as chairman of the Southern delegation, stated that he was directed to say that said delegation unanimously preferred plan No. 2 (called so for mere convenience); that a majority of said delegation put the plan up to the Methodist Episcopal Church as a distinct proposition; that in the event the Northern delegation could not see its way clear to adopt the plan, an ad interim committee be appointed to consider the whole matter of the unification of American Methodism, and report to the Joint Commission at a time and place to be agreed on.

Bishop McDowell laughingly copied the verbiage of Bishop Mouzon, as expressing the will of the Northern delegation: that is, that they preferred plan No. 1; that they put it up to Methodist Episcopal Church, South, as a distinct proposition; and that, in the event the Southern delegation could not see its way clear to adopt the plan, an ad interim committee be appointed, etc. Judge Simpson, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, moved, as a substitute for both resorts, that an ad interim committee consisting of seven members from each delegation be appointed to consider the whole matter of Methodist unification, and report to a subsequent meeting of the Joint Commission. The motion unanimously prevailed. Each delegation apart selected the following representatives:

Methodist Episcopal Church—Bishop McDowell, Dr. Blake, Dr. Goucher, Mr. Harris, Judge Simpson, Dr. Wallace, Mr. Robertsou.

Methodist Episcopal Church, South—Bishop Cannon, Dr. Thomas, Dr. Linn, Judge White, Mr. Madden, Dr. Young, Mr. Hyer.

The committee will meet in Richmond, Va., November 3. The Joint Commission will meet January 15, at a place to be hereafter agreed upon.

Thus ends another chapter in the history of the union of American Methodism. Slowly but surely the parts are coming together. The M. E. Church has yielded on the point of a Regional Conference for the colored people. The M. E. Church, South, has yielded on the point of proportionate representation of colored people in the General Conference, under specified limitations. In time, with patience and prayer, the remaining distance between the two will be brought together. Dr. Edgar Blake told me that this was decidedly the best meeting the Commission had yet held. Dr. Downey was not so sure of substantial progress. Dr. Goucher, Bishop McDowell and others, were more than hopeful. Of our own delegation, Bishop Mouzon, Bishop Moore, Dr. Charles, Bishop, Dr. Paul Linn, Mr. Blackwell and Mr. Hyer are progressive for union. Bishop Cannon is close on their heels, but a little more cautious. Bishop Denny, Judge White, Judge Sanford, Dr. Lamar and one or two others are conservative. Nobody seems disposed to "take the bit between the teeth."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. C. C. Evans, of Canton, Miss., will assist his son, Rev. J. Lambuth Evans, in a meeting at Haughton, La., in August.

Rev. Paul H. Grice, of Saucier, Miss., is meeting with encouraging success in his work. The outlook now indicates a good report at the end of the year.

The next meeting of the Joint Commission on Unification will be held on January 15, 1920. It is very likely that New Orleans will be the place of meeting.

Rev. O. P. Armour, of Houlka, Miss., reports that his charge is making satisfactory progress, and that a fine beginning has been made in his revival work.

A note from Rev. W. P. Bailey, of Roxie, Miss., informs us that the funeral services of Brother Fred Seab were held on Wednesday of last week. He was a good man.

Mr. Robert O. Randle, of Monroe, La., one of the most prominent Methodist laymen of the State, was in New Orleans on Tuesday of last week, and honored the Advocate office with a call.

We learn from a press dispatch that Dr. J. B. Fearn, for twenty years a missionary to China, is visiting his sister in Yazoo City, Miss., after extended service with the Chinese in France.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate is our authority for the statement that Bishop W. A. Candler has resigned as chairman of the Commission on Unification from our church, and that Bishop E. D. Mouzon has been elected to that position.

We learn from a press dispatch that plans have been adopted for a new Methodist church at Crystal Springs, Miss., and that work will begin at once. The structure will cost $25,000. Rev. J. S. Purcell is our efficient pastor at that place.

We have received copies of the catalogues of Millsaps College and of Mansfield Female College. They are attractive in form and contents. We hope these fine schools will have their halls filled with students at the opening of their next sessions.

A personal note from Dr. R. A. Meek, presiding elder of the Sardis District, informs us that the work in his district seems to be progressing well. Most of the charges are making their best financial reports at the third quarterly conference, which is something unusual.

The Yazoo County Sunday School Association recently held one of the best annual conventions in its history. Mr. A. B. Kling, one of the leading Methodist laymen of the county, and superintendent of our Sunday school at Satartia, Miss., was re-elected to the presidency.

Rev. John W. Ramsey, of the Daleville charge, Mississippi Conference, reports that everything is moving along smoothly in his work. He expects to begin his revival campaign soon, in which he will do the preaching except at one point, where Rev. W. E. Dickens will assist him.

All Methodist pastors of the patronizing territory of the Advocate are requested to send the names of all Methodists moving to New Orleans, and of patients coming to New Orleans hospitals, to Rev. A. Inman Townsley, secretary of the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting. His address is 1818 Chestnut Street.

Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt, pastor of Louisiana Avenue Church, this city, left on Monday of this week to assist Rev. H. C. Castles, of the Topisaw charge, Mississippi Conference, in revival work. Later, he will assist Rev. B. H. Andrews, of the Louisiana Conference, at Meadow's Chapel, on the Gonzales charge.

Our work at Union, Miss., prospers. In addition to pledging more than the Centenary quota, the church has recently paid off a long-standing debt of $500, and bought an up-to-date bungalow for a parsonage. Dr. D. C. Hull, of Meridian, Miss., occupied the pulpit on the second Sunday of this month, delivering a great message to the people.

The presiding elders of the New Orleans, the Seashore, and the Mobile Districts, who have charge of the Seashore Camp Meeting, have decided, after careful consideration, that it will be inexpedient to hold the meeting this year. We understand, however, that the tenters on the Camp Grounds have invited Rev. W. B. Hogg to hold a series of services, beginning on July 28.

The Christian forces of Koseiusko, Miss., have set themselves steadily and strongly against the demoralization brought about by the modern dances. The churches of that city, led by the Methodist congregation, have taken action condemning attendance upon them, or participation in them, on the part of their members. The pastors have entered into an agreement that they will not receive "offended" members who may desire to change their church affiliations. Some people will be inclined to say that the churches are narrow—overlooking the fact that already a good many purely social organizations have placed a ban on these unsavory forms of social entertainment.

FROM PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Dear Brother Carley: Since our catalog for Port Gibson Female College was issued, a friend, who asks me to withhold his name, authorizes me to announce four prizes for proficiency in Bible study. Particulars will be announced to our students at the opening in September.

We are still pressing the work on the buildings and adding some improvements not at first contemplated for this season. Conditions will be much improved.

If among your readers there is a devout widow with children to educate who is a good dressmaker, we might be of service to her if she will write me at once, giving references. If she can teach dressmaking and cooking, so much the better. She will need to be in good health. She should write full particulars as to her children and her qualifications. Cordially,

ROLFE HUNT, President,
Port Gibson Female College.

Port Gibson, Miss.

RESIGNATION OF DR. J. J. STOWE AS CENTENARY TREASURER.

Dr. J. J. Stowe, who, since the inception of the Centenary Movement, has been acting as Treasurer of the Centenary Commission and also Secretary of the Department of Stewardship, has tendered his resignation as Treasurer. This was made necessary because of the importance of the Stewardship Department in carrying on an educational campaign throughout the church and also by the vastness of the organization required to handle the great Centenary funds.

The ad interim committee has accepted Dr. Stowe's resignation and has expressed to him the gratitude which the Commission feels for the services he has rendered in this double connection.

Dr. Stowe will continue as Secretary of the Department of Stewardship, while the office of Treasurer has been placed under the newly created Department of Finance. This department will be directed by Colonel John E. Edgerton of Tennessee, President of the Lebanon Woolen Mills, and President of the Tennessee Manufacturers' Association. Col. Edgerton is one of the most successful business men in the entire country and enjoys a national reputation as such. He will be manager of the Department of Finance and Treasurer of the Centenary funds, and in the future Dr. Stowe will have no connection of any kind with this department. W. B. BEAUCHAMP

REV. H. P. LEWIS SERIOUSLY ILL.

After the Advocate had gone to press on Tuesday, we received a note from Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., informing us of the critical illness of his father, Rev. H. P. Lewis, at his home in Jackson, Miss. Small hope is entertained of his recovery. We opened the forms to make this announcement, that prayers might ascend in behalf of this noble veteran of the Cross.

The Same As When The Mercury Goes Down You Know There Will be a Frost

How To Make The Test That Tells

Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill lack iron in their blood and that they are ill for no other reason than lack of iron. Iron deficiency paralyzes the [illegible] function, pulls down the whole [illegible] and weakens the entire system. A [illegible] nervous, irritable disposition, [illegible] strength and endurance and the [illegible] cope with the strong. Vigorous [illegible] life these are the sort of [illegible] signals that Nature gives when the blood is getting thin, pale, watery and literally starving for want of iron. If you are not sure of your condition, go to your doctor and have him take your blood count and see where you stand or else make the following test yourself. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired, next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained in enriching the blood and creating new [illegible] cells. Nuxated Iron strengthens the [illegible] rebuilds the weakened tissues and [illegible] with renewed energy and power into the [illegible] system.

Unlike the older inorganic iron products Nuxated Iron is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Vigor

SUCCESS IS ACHIEVED by vigorous men and women. When one is lacking in strength and endurance, when good health is wanting, when physical power is at low ebb, it is impossible to accomplish one's work.

One of the causes of ill health and low vitality is the improper functioning of the kidneys. Trouble results when they fail to eliminate waste and poisonous matter from the system, and rheumatic pains, backache, stiff joints, sore muscles, and other symptoms quickly follow.

Foley Kidney Pills

Banish effects of kidney and bladder trouble by removing the cause. They are healing and curative. They tone up and strengthen the weakened or diseased organs.

H. D. Castleberry, Marine Engineer, Port Vincent, La., writes: "I consider Foley Kidney Pills the greatest medicine for kidney and bladder trouble I ever used. I recommend them to all who suffer with kidney and bladder trouble."

YOU NEED NOT SUFFER FROM CATARRH

But You Must Drive It Out of Your Blood.

Catarrh is annoying enough when it chokes up your nostrils and air passages, causing difficult breathing and other discomforts. Real danger comes when it reaches down into your lungs.

This is why you should at once realize the importance of the proper treatment, and lose no time experimenting with worthless remedies which touch only the surface.

To be rid of Catarrh, you must drive the disease germs out of your blood.

Splendid results have been reported from the use of S. S. S., which completely routs from your blood the Catarrh germs, for which it is a perfect antidote.

If you wish medical advice as to the treatment of your own individual case, write to Chief Medical Adviser, 42 Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The Sunday School Field Secretaries of the church will meet at Lake Junaluska the 22d and 23rd of this month to discuss their work and receive instruction that they may be better prepared for their task. Then they will get down to hard study for two weeks. The men who know most study hardest.

When men and women are called to teach in the Sunday school, they are called to prepare themselves for this holy task. The preacher that has this matter upon his own heart manages to get it upon the heart of some one else.

There is no such thing as standing still. It is go forward or go down. The school makes progress as the teachers make progress. If one teacher does the work as it should be done, the entire school will feel the influence of that teacher.

The wise preacher will not tinker with his school in the details of its management, but he will see that at least one teacher is trained for the work. The truth is, the majority of the teachers feel their lack of preparation and are anxious to do more effective teaching. They need a leader that knows how to lead.

Nearly every superintendent I have been with this year has ordered The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School, price 65 cents. This is a new book, full of fundamental principles. If you want to learn something, get this book and tell others about what you have learned.

We must have at least one summer training school for our teachers. Twelve other Conferences have launched these schools this summer with most satisfactory results. Our sister church working in the same territory has been holding these encampments for several years. The good effect of such training is being felt in every part of the State. We are having our crown taken from us and some day we will wake up and find out how it was done. There is one place for this training school.

Every superintendent should take a definite and vital part in the revival meeting. Have the superintendent call a meeting of the officers and teachers. Make a list of all the unsaved in the school and out of the school. Pray together, plan together, work together in a systematic way. Pray much, read God's promises, pray until your soul is filled with his holy presence, then you will be ready to talk to the members of your class. We judge a tree by its fruit; Christ judges us by the same rule. It is time we were having a revival in the church; let the Sunday school forces help to pray it down.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The sixth District Sunday School Institute has just been held for the Louisiana Conference. It was held at Jonesboro, in the Ruston District. The talks on the Sunday school topics were made by Dr. R. H. Wynn, Rev. C. F. Sheppard, Rev. R. S. Walton, Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., and Rev. J. L. Evans. The forenoon session was given to this Sunday school program. Every program should be made to meet certain needs and I trust it filled this place.

The Sunday school officers for the Ruston District are as follows: District Secretary, E. L. Walker, Jonesboro; Superintendent of Elementary Department, Mrs. A. D. Turner, Ruston; Superintendent of Intermediate-Senior, Robt. Bethea, Winnfield; Superintendent of Young People—Adult. C. R. Kelley, Dubach; Superintendent of Missionary Education, Mrs. V. C. Cupp, Ruston; Superintendent of Teacher-training, Prof. E. H. Fisher.

Every pastor, Sunday school superintendent and co-worker in the Ruston District is asked to clip this list of district officers. You will need them and will want information from their department. Write them for help. You will always get best help for Methodists through your own officers, but make use of all.

An Efficiency Conference for District officers will be called in every district as soon as possible. Keep your eye on these notes every week for information.

The district conference was a very good one. It was warm weather, but everything was well planned, so the meeting moved forward all the time. Dr. J. M. Henry presided over the conference with ease and dispatch. His words of exhortation from time to time were full of food for though and wisdom for action.

The Alexandria District Conference will be held at Boyce July 22-24. The District Sunday School Institute will be held July 23, Wednesday. The former Sunday School Field Secretary, Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, will have charge of the institute in absence of myself. I request all to help make this Institute most helpful. I will leave Saturday for Training School at Lake Junaluska, N. C. ALONZO EARLY, Sunday School Field Secretary.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Have you observed Sunday School Day?

Last Sunday was spent at Gallman. We had a fine day and the people were very kind in their reception. A Cradle Roll was promised and a Wesley Bible Class organized. Their school met the Standard for Teacher-training.

The afternoon was spent at Tabernacle. We had a good service. A Cradle Roll was promised and also the observance of Sunday School Day.

Monday was spent at the Negro Normal at Hattlesburg; Wednesday was spent in the Negro Normal at Alcorn and Friday at the one in Jackson.

I have enjoyed carrying a message to the Negroes. I feel that we must help them help themselves. I have been startled at the progress they are making.

The "Willing To Help" Wesley Bible Class sent a picture of their class to me, with a report of their work. This is at the Beulah Church, a little church Brother Louis Fayard built out from Lyman. This class of those dear people spent $62 the past year. One item was paying for the laundry of a sick family; another item was $11 to help a cripple; another item was $26.60 for the Centenary. Who can beat it? Send your picture and your report.

I received from the superintendent of the Bell Grove Sunday school an account of the Sunday School Day. It must have been a great day for them. The roll of the members of the Home Department was called, and as they answered a white flower was pinned upon them, after which "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" was sung to the tune of "Silver Threads Among the Gold" by the Wesley Bible Class. The Cradle Roll was presented and seven infants baptized by the pastor. Who can beat this? Send in your reports.

Some pastor in each district is going to have a banner for the observance of Sunday School Day thrust upon him. Display the charts and take an offering if nothing more; that will count. Send offering to Mr. D. S. Harmon, Poplarville, Miss.

Please call attention of each and every one to the fact that Rev. H. F. Tolle, Jackson, is not the treasurer of the Centenary Fund of the Sunday schools; it goes to J. J. Stowe, Doctors' Building, Nashville, Tenn.

Pray for the work and the workers.
JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

NEWS NOTES FROM SUNDAY SCHOOL HEADQUARTERS.

For the two weeks ended July 16 the Teacher-training Department enrolled the following from our territory:

North Mississippi Conference—At Oxford, a class of three students, Miss Velma Wilson, teacher. Nine individual students, at New Albany, Potts Camp, and Ripley.

In the same period the Wesley Bible Class Department registered the following new classes from our Conferences:

Louisiana Conference—"Mrs. J. A. Isgate Wesley Bible Class," South Mansfield, Adult Certificate No. 7513, twenty-six men and women; teacher, Mrs. J. A. Isgate; president, Mr. Claude Price. "True Blue" class, Blackwater Sunday school (near Baton Rouge), Adult Certificate No. 7518, thirty men and women; teacher, Mrs. W. E. Smith; president, Mr. J. C. Register.

Mississippi Conference—"Character Builders" class, Poplar Head Sunday school (near Saucler), Adult Certificate No. 7509, seven men and women; teacher, Miss Marjorie Stewart; president, Miss Volina Evans.

A. L. DIETRICH.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"The ol' fashioned Methodis' class meetin' helped folks to be religious 'cause it made 'em think religious thoughts, talk religious talk, pray religious prayers, an' do religious things. As we don't have class meetin's any more our Wesley Bible Classes ought to make their members do them same things."

"Of course, when you've helped a old pusson to become a disciple of Christ you've did a good thing; but his life is most ended an' th' ain't much time left for him to serve Christ. But when you've started a young pusson on 'the way' the's a whole row of years ahead for him to serve Christ in."

"I'e's not forget that the destiny of both our Church an' State will be determined by the influences at work among the boys an' girls now growin' up."

DIVINE LOVE.

Give every day a part of your time to your fellow-man by relieving the distress of those who may chance to meet you. The highway has many who are poor and friendless that are worthy, but your gift is worthy if in the Master's name.—Selected.

Wonderful Defense Against Mosquito

SWEET DREAMS, THE MOSQUITO REMEDY THAT'S BADLY NEEDED IN MANY HOMES.

Weapons used in any sort of warfare must be dependable.

To bring the idea closer home, it may become necessary for you to start some sort of warfare against those mosquitoes that threaten your rest.

When you do begin your war, start it right. With a bad weapon you're whipped in the beginning.

Where mosquitoes are troublesome, Sweet Dreams offers the one dependable weapon. You never lose by a counter attack, for Sweet Dreams keeps 'em off all night long.

A trial will verify these claims.—Adv.

Loss of Vitality is loss of the principle of life, and is early indicated by failing appetite and diminishing strength and endurance. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest vitalizer—it acts on all the organs and functions, and builds up the whole system.—Adv.

NERVOUS DISEASES

We have reprinted from a leading Health Magazine a series of articles by Dr. Biggs, treating on Nervous Debility, Melancholia, all forms of Neurasthenia, Nervous Dyspepsia, and other nervous diseases. A CARD OF THANKS.

Through the columns of this paper we wish to thank the former friends and customers of John B. Vaughan for their continued support of the work which he gave so much to build up.

Mr. Vaughan has given to the world a great message in sacred song, the story of Jesus and Him crucified; His love, power and mercy is told in such beautiful variety that the work is a great power for good. We aspire to nothing greater in this life, than to be permitted to successfully carry on the work, as many from over the States write us how the singing of the songs have brought many to a saving knowledge of their Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Thus the Lord, true to His promise, continues to bless the labor of dear Mr. Vaughan, just as He will that of you and me if we work in His name, and for His glory. Respectfully,

MRS. JOHN B. VAUGHAN.

Mr. Vaughan was among the first writers of new Sunday school songs, and edited the first song book ever published south of the Mason and Dixon line. Advertisement.

BATON ROUGE DISTRICT MEETING.

The first session of the District Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society met at 10 a. m., in the Sunday school room of First Church, Baton Rouge, Mrs. C. S. Stewart, District Secretary, presiding.

Mrs. C. H. Detterly led the devotional service. The Stewardship of Intercession was her subject. Several Bible selections were read, and an impressive talk was given by the leader. Mrs. S. T. Sanders led the prayer and a song by Mrs. J. A. Anderson was appreciated by the listeners. Mrs. Niebergall was presented to the Conference.

Roll call of auxiliaries was the first item of business. Response was made by delegates for Amite Adult, Young People, and Juniors: Baton Rouge, Hammond, Kentwood, Ponchatoula, St. Francisville, Jackson, and Wilson. Franklinton Adult report was read by the secretary. There was no report from Franklinton Juniors, or Gileal Adult. The morning session adjourned, after prayer by Mrs. Niebergall, to go into the church for the 11 o'clock sermon, the district conference being in session. At 12:30 lunch was served by the local auxiliary to all attending.

At 1:15 Mrs. Niebergall called the afternoon session together, using for the opening of the devotional service the hymn, "Tell It Wherever You Go." A psalm of praise was read followed by an experience meeting, in which several told what the Centenary meant to them. Because of limited time, the reading of Minutes of 1918 was dispensed with.

The District Secretary's report gave: Adult Societies 10, members 258; Young People's Societies 1, members 11; Junior Societies 2, members 43; Baby Divisions 2, members 14; Mission Study Classes 5, members 84; boxes of supplies 5, valued at $125.52; subscribers to Voice 56; subscribers to Young Christian Worker 14; total dues District Conference Treasurer, $205.90; total pledge District Conference Treasurer, $205.66; total Conference Expense Fund, $11.80; total Scarritt Treasurer, 80 cents; grand total, $424.16.

With the figures before her, the Secretary showed that eleven charges in the district have no missionary organization, and requested co-operation and prayer that she may be able to put active auxiliaries into these churches.

Young People's Work was next in order. Mrs. H. S. Johns made a strong plea that the older people of the church "hold up the hands" of the young people, that their faith and enthusiasm fail not. Miss Nell Richardson showed a Christian Service Flag and explained how, when each church displayed such a flag with a star for each one doing special work, others would find it easier to answer the call of God. She further hopes the district will have such a flag. A member of the local auxiliary spoke of the joy that is hers because her only son has recently volunteered for mission work when his college course is completed; she asked for prayer to safeguard him against the allurements of college days.

Children's work was discussed. While the reports to our conference are meager, the good work is being done by Young People and Juniors in the Epworth Leagues. Mission Study Classes were urged. The present book, "Making America Safe," is so interesting and so vital that this is a fitting time to begin new classes. A class has been organized at Keener Memorial, with the expectation of having an auxiliary in the near future.

Social Service discussions were inspiring, several reporting for their societies. Mrs. S. T. Sanders told of the efforts of Baton Rouge auxiliary to give a personal, Christian-home touch to the life of the young men of foreign countries attending the State university. The young men had responded, expressing themselves with sincere appreciation.

St. Mark's Hall was laid upon the hearts of all, that the faithful workers be strengthened by material help and by prayer for spiritual strength.

During Bluff Creek Camp Meeting, which meets in August, an hour each day has been set apart for missions. Mrs. Stewart will arrange for the time to be profitably filled.

After a delightful solo by Mrs. W. S. Holmes, the conference was closed with prayer by Miss Richardson.

FLORA I. WATSON, Sec'y.

JAPAN—A NATION PROSPECTING FOR A RELIGION.

When that missionary veteran, Dr. J. D. Davis, was leaving America for his last period of service in Japan, he was asked by a friend to state the situation as he then saw it. He replied: "Have it clearly in mind that the issue in Japan to-day is no longer between Christianity and Buddhism, but between Christianity and nothing. Japan has already turned her back on Buddhism, and is now seeking for some new basis of faith." That statement was made about ten years ago and everything which has happened since in the Sunrise Kingdom has tended to confirm Dr. Davis's broad and striking generalization.

A few years ago the government made a religious census of the students in the Imperial University at Tokyo. Of the 5,000 students, eight reported themselves as Shintoists, fifty as Buddhists, sixty as Christians, 1,500 as atheists, and 3,000 as agnostics. There you have the situation in Japan in a nutshell. The educated classes, with rare exceptions, are either atheists or agnostics. Few care to confess themselves as adherents of any religion. Japan is a country prospecting for a religion.

Shintoism has practically become a patriotic cult and no longer should be classed as a religion. There are certain striking reform movements in Japanese Buddhism, and evidences of a wide-spread desire for better conditions, ethical and religious, on the part of many of the monks. One sign of this reform effort is the almost slavish aping of Christian ways, and institutions. Buddhist Y. M. C. A.'s and Buddhist Sunday schools are being formed, in which these effective agencies of the church are being adopted in order to revive interest in this waning faith. But the process of decadence has gone too far. The government itself has taken cognizance of the situation. The recent conference of religious leaders of all faiths, including the Christian, which was summoned by the government, is significant not only because of its recognition of Christianity, but also as indicative of a state of alarm on the part of governmental leaders. Japan may well be anxious over her future unless the Christian forces can speedily gather momentum. Never was it more clear than to-day that Christ is the only hope of this land. Japan claims to be leading the Orient to-day; but whither?—Selected.

HOW LIGHT WAS SEEN BY JAPANESE WOMAN.

Mrs. Frances Caldwell Macaulay, well known author of "The Lady of the Decoration," and other stories, tells an interesting story about what kindergarten work in Japan is doing for Christianity.

Mrs. Macaulay is demonstrating this work in the Japanese exhibit at the Centenary celebration. She said that while in Japanese kindergarten work, under the direction of Miss Gaines, their attention was attracted to an exquisitely dressed and beautifully reared child that attended the kindergarten regularly, with her nurse. After a short time the nurse's place was taken by the mother of the child.

Mrs. Macaulay said that woman was the very essence of culture and refinement. At first she appeared ill at ease, and it was learned that this was her first contact with outside life. Under the law concubines are not allowed to leave their homes. Later she told Mrs. Macaulay that she had been sold to her master when very young.

She became interested in the prayers and wanted to know what they meant. Mrs. Macaulay gave her a Testament and explained the meaning of it. The little woman took it home and did not go to the kindergarten again for many months. One day two jinrickshas drove up to the door and the woman called to Miss Gaines. In the other jinricksha was a great array of beautiful clothes, crepes, sashes, handsome embroideries, and all kinds of wearing apparel. She wanted Miss Gaines to sell them—said that she had left her master and needed money. She drew the little worn Testament from her belt and said she had been shown another road. Her master finally allowed her to go.

She realized enough money from the clothes to buy a public bathhouse, and after being the petted favorite of a wealthy man, she worked in this sordid business 18 hours a day. She succeeded so well that she was not only able to buy her own child, but she also bought a younger sister, who was being prepared for the same life of slavery she had led. She took them both to another part of the country, where she married happily and is now one of the best influences for Christianity among the Japanese in her part of the country.—Selected.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

Freckles

The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.

Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

Ever Salivated By Calomel? Horrible!

Calomel is quicksilver and acts like dynamite on your liver.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—Adv.

"TREASURERS, SECRETARIES, PREACHERS, AND BOARDS."

In the Advocate of July 10, under the above caption, there appears an article, signed by Rev. S. J. Davies of the Louisiana Conference, wherein he, with apparent facetiousness, and yet, as I am constrained to believe, with an undercurrent of seriousness, calls attention to some of his difficulties in connection with the Centenary, and points out some of the tangles in the Centenary skein which were made, presumably, by some of the Centenary leaders. Since my own experience, in many respects, has been similar to that of Brother Davies, I wish him to know how much I sympathize with him; and since, as the old saw has it, "Misery loves company," I take this means of reaching across the space intervening to shake hands with him as an expression of my fellow-feeling because of the mutual predicament into which we have fallen.

In company with all the pastors, I was admonished "not to rock the boat," but to follow the "Standard Plan," not a single copy of which came into my hands till the whole church was approximating the date announced by the Centenary leaders for the drive to begin; yet, when I, confused by an ambiguous statement made at the last session of the Mississippi Conference by a Centenary speaker, misapprehended some of the manifold and conflicting directions which were so copiously issued from headquarters at Nashville, I was sententiously informed that I had done my head an injustice in failing to comprehend the financial plan of the Centenary.

While I write there lies on my desk a little booklet entitled, "Instructions to Local Church Treasurers," in which the local church treasurer is directed to designate a local bank as a depository for Centenary funds, and that he will be furnished with cards officially appointing such banks as depositories, stating conditions of deposit, one of which, as stated on the cards and also in the booklet to which reference has been made, is that, the local treasurer should see that the bank pays the customary interest. At the same time, mark you, it is stipulated that said deposit shall be subject to the draft of the treasurer of the Centenary Commission. In pursuance of directions, one of my local treasurers offered money to a bank for deposit on the stated condition and the bank refused to accept the deposit, as was to be expected; for any man who has a speaking acquaintance with the most elementary principles of banking is familiar with the fact that banks do not pay interest on accounts which are subject to draft or check. This is but one instance of many showing how the wires were crossed at Nashville during the preparation for the Centenary.

On the above matter, as well as in various other things in connection with the Centenary, I have been wandering in the wilderness. However, I am indeed glad to ascertain that I am not wandering alone, as I thought, but that I am in the good company of Brother Davies and others, I venture to assert.

The worst of it is, I am still wandering in the wilderness. If I could see some light on the other side, however dimly it might shine, it would not be so discouraging. But as it is, I see no way out unless some man, wiser than I and possessing a humanitarian spirit, will be kind enough to show the way. Among other things, I am now, with all other pastors, confronted with the problem of raising the regular Conference collections, in addition to the Centenary pledges, and, in the general mix-up, I fear that the former important causes are going to suffer. In the preparation for the Centenary, and in the drive itself, I put my best intelligence and every ounce of my energy, loyally following as nearly as possible the suggestions of the belated "Standard Plan." Notwithstanding this fact, urgent requests intended, supposedly, to spur my flagging, because everburdened, energies in the collection of Centenary pledges are already arriving at my postoffice, and, following the precedent set by other Centenary literature which duplicated itself at thousands of post offices, will, I suppose, continue to arrive with increasing urgency throughout the next five years. (The good Lord deliver the long-suffering pastors!) I "beg to be excused," since the local treasurers are for that purpose; and while through this officially designated agency the Centenary Commission is endeavoring to secure the Centenary pledges, I shall be engaged in another task, viz., doing my dead level best to raise the regular collections, although I may be facing a problematic undertaking, especially since the collections are approximately fifty per cent more than they have ever been previously.

Brother Davies, here is my hand, hoping that we shall somehow find our way out of every perplexing situation, though carrying heavy burdens. Amen! JOHN W. RAMSEY.

FROM LAKE CHARGE.

I have just closed a glorious meeting at Lawrence. The Holy Spirit was manifestly present in each service. Many, in public testimony, said that the meeting had been a benefit to them and that the Lord had blessed their souls. Three were added to the church membership. Lawrence has a fine Sunday school. We praise God. The pastor did the preaching.

Your Greatest Problem— That Boy of Yours.

What kind of a man will he be ten, twenty, thirty years from now? You know, every parent knows, that it depends entirely upon the training he is getting right now, his associations, his ideals, his inspirations.

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, Principal of the Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., has been training boys for twenty-five years. He wants your boy. He recognizes in him one of the men who may some day manage big affairs and he wants to train him for that end. His school has been built and equipped, and his instructors chosen with the first and only consideration of giving the boy the mental and physical training, the associations, with clean, high-minded men, the ideals of character, the inspirations to ambition, which the world expects: Robert K. Morgan is a Christian gentleman of strong, wholesome, inspiring personality, and his school is the material projection of that character. Write Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tennessee, to-day, and let him send you a catalogue and tell you what this school can do for your boy.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

STAYING ON THE MAIN TRACK.

The main business of the preacher is to proclaim the gospel with such persuasive and compelling power as to bring men and women to a consciousness of their lost condition without Christ and to turn from their sins through repentance and faith to a life of righteousness in fellowship with God. Other things he has to do, but none of them should take the place of his main work. It may be easier sometimes to do other things—through his own choice or the suggestions of other people—but at his peril he turns aside from the main track. These are times when collateral issues are numerous, and some of them are important, but the preacher has one chief work to do. Let him do it.

NOBODY SAID IT WOULD.

The opposition of Cardinal Gibbons to prohibition is well known. He has done everything in his power, apparently, to hinder its coming, and to bring into reproach the cause throughout the land. His latest reported comment is just about as strong as any of the arguments he has used hitherto—it has no strength at all. In connection with the race riots in Washington, D. C., he is reported to have said, "It is a proof that legislative suppression of intoxicating drinks is not as it was said to be—a panacea for all social and moral evils." We have been more or less familiar with the arguments advanced in behalf of prohibition a good many years, but we do not recall having come across the claim anywhere that it would be a cure for "all social and moral evils." It will go a long way toward reducing these evils—as a month's experience has demonstrated—but nothing but the grace of God in the human heart will eliminate sin and the evils attendant upon it. The Cardinal was celebrating his eighty-fifth birthday when he made the comment quoted above; we will be charitable, therefore, and suppose that the distinguished prelate's logical faculties have been somewhat impaired by old age. It is a strange process of reasoning that would connect the rioting in Washington with the abolition of the liquor traffic.

ALABAMA DID IT.

The usual excuse for failure to punish mob violence is that the members of the mob cannot be identified. This is doubtless true in some cases. But Alabama has shown that the violators of the law can be identified sometimes, and a just penalty imposed upon them. Sentences of imprisonment and fine have recently been imposed upon the members of a mob that were found guilty of killing a helpless prisoner in one of the county jails. We congratulate Alabama upon what she has accomplished in behalf of law and order; other States will take courage and press forward in their efforts to do away with lynching.

THE GREATEST CIVILIZER IN THE WORLD.

The American Bible Society has received the following testimony as to the value of the Bible from Hsu Shih Chang, president of China: "The instruction concerning all virtue, as contained in the Holy Scriptures of the religion of Jesus, has truly exerted an unlimited influence for good among all Christians in China, and has also raised the standard of all my people along lines of true progress. I earnestly hope that the future benefits derived from the Holy Scriptures will extend to the ends of the earth and transcend the success of the past." The surest way of raising the moral standards of the whole world, of civilizing all the backward nations of all the earth, of eliminating unholy rivalries, and of preventing wars in the future is to circulate the Scriptures and to preach without ceasing and without compromise the fundamental doctrines of righteousness as they are contained therein. We believe in the League of Nations—but we have more confidence in the power of the Bible to make the world what it ought to be than we have in all the leagues that can be formed.

HOW FLEETING IS FAME!

Now comes the announcement that certain residents of San Francisco are preparing to petition the city authorities to change the name of Willard Street to Dempsey Avenue. We suppose that so long as Willard was the champion heavyweight prize fighter of the world, it was a matter of pride with the above mentioned residents to live on a street bearing his name; but now that his crown has been taken from him, said name has lost its charm. How fleeting is fame! The only names that endure are those of men and women who have made the world better.

LET'S ORGANIZE.

So far as we are able to judge, practically every idea under the sun has been organized into a "movement," a "campaign," a "drive," or something else of the kind. We should like to organize something, too, but we cannot think of a single thing that has not already an Honorary President, an Executive Secretary, a Director General and a group of Associate Directors, and a full staff of Departmental Superintendents, etc., etc. If any of our readers have any suggestions to make in this connection, we shall be glad to receive them. We must not let a day pass over our heads without organizing something if we can help it. Unless we can become organizers, we shall have to continue to look after the ordinary affairs of everyday, hum-drum business life. Of course somebody ought to do that, very thing, but everybody seems to have gone into the organizing business; let's join the procession!

THE TESTIMONY OF A HERO.

Somebody asked Sergeant York if he were "fortified" with liquor when he made that fight in the Argonne. His reply was: "I was perfectly sober, as I have been for years. I don't touch a drop, and haven't had a drop for five years. Liquor is no good." The ex-emperor of Germany is reported to have said once that the nation that would win the next world war would be the one that used the least alcohol. We believe he knew what he was talking about.

THE VALUE OF PREVENTIVE MEASURES.

The Director General of the United States Railroad Administration announced recently that 569 fewer persons were killed in railroad accidents during the first three months of 1919 than during the same period last year. This gratifying result is attributed to the "safety campaign" now being waged by the Railroad Administration throughout the country. The natural inference is that a great many people are very careless even of their lives, and that they need to be reminded constantly of the dangers by which they are surrounded. This is certainly true in the moral world. The maintenance of churches and the regular preaching of the Word serve as a warning to millions of souls against the perils of indifference to religion. Too many people go recklessly on to their destruction anyway; but the number would be immeasurably increased if a "safety campaign" were not being waged constantly by the forces of righteousness. We cannot give definite statistics as to the number saved by the activities of the church, but multitudes will stand up in the last day to testify to its saving influence.

ASCENDING PRICES.

The plain citizen of the United States is unable to understand why the prices of the necessaries of life should be constantly increasing, now that the war is over. Europe is still in need of supplies, of course, but most of our own men have come home, and the Government's first duty is to its own citizens. According to reports from abroad, prices have been greatly decreased in France, and even in Germany. The live stock growers are telling the people, through display advertisements in the newspapers, that there is plenty of beef and mutton; the United States Sugar Equalization Board has announced that there is an abundant supply of sugar, and that there is no reason for a retail price in excess of eleven cents; the Government has millions of dollars' worth of food supplies that are not needed for the army; the wheat crop is the largest ever known. But the tendency of prices is still upward. Congress is doing a good deal of "investigating," but without much visible result. In the meantime, "big business" seems to be optimistic. Profits are evidently satisfactory.

LETTERS TO THE PREACHERS AND METHODIST PEOPLE IN THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE AND THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCES.

By Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo.

V.

My Dear Brethren: I have said we must preach with all our souls and all our minds, and that we must preach the Word, the doctrines revealed from God and contained in the Holy Scriptures. I have exhorted that first of all we become supremely concerned to bring all our people to know God as the eternal God, unto whom we owe all being, devotion, and obedience. I repeat, men have lost knowledge of God, anything like immediate, sovereign knowledge of Him.

I plead that we put in our preaching tremendous stress on sin. Our fathers never passed it by. To them it was the one tragedy of human life, the awful thing in the world. They used the great texts of the Bible that deal with sin. They did not deliver addresses on small matters of social disadvantages, but they cried aloud and told God's people of their sins and the house of Jacob of his transgressions. They spared no man, not even themselves. Let us learn with tremendous meaning that the gospel is God's answer to the sin cry of the world, and to this cry alone.

We give entirely too much attention to the secondary aspects of sins and too little to the essence of sin, that is sin itself. What is it? The world needs to have an answer to this very question. They do not understand its nature, its true meaning. They think it is evil and crime that hinder progress. Beyond this the general idea does not go. Multitudes are willing to help cure social evils and disadvantages, and to unite with the church in doing this kind of work, but they will die before they will repent of their sins, before they will give them a single thought. They are interested in the welfare of men, but care little about God or anything He may think. I have heard sermons that left the impression on my mind that the preacher was much concerned about the comfort of the folks and little concerned about the mind and will of God.

Sin is rebellion against God. This is its real nature, its very essence. It has no other meaning, and if there is no God, there is and can be no sin. Sin is a man's war on God, his hatred to God, his collision with God, his dismissal of God from his life. Every sinner is a man who defies God and takes his life in his own hands independent of what God may say or think or do. This is what we must preach about sin. It is what the Bible declares and is the nature of sin as God judges it. To Him it is always intolerable. He will not occupy any soul that gives place to sin, and He and sin can not abide in the same world. Brethren, I beseech you and myself, let us pray that God will be the eternal reality in our own minds and that He may give us power so to preach Him that He will be felt the glorious reality of all things, and sin may appear in its hideous nature as a protest against God, a rebellion of each soul against all His laws and all His love.

VI.

To preach on sin and its damning power is an awful theme, and if such preaching were left to itself, it would end in a state of despair and madness. Our preaching must put over against every sin and its eternal ruin the blessed Savior of sinners. When the mind and the conscience become sensible of sin in its deep realities and its final results, guilt settles down on the soul and unspeakable remorse fills the spirit. If there is no door of escape, far better never raise the question of sin.

But over against sin stands infinitely mightier the crucified Christ. There is salvation in Him from all sin. He made by His oblation of Himself once offered, a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world. This is the overtowering glory of the gospel which we preach. It is the gospel of the saving Christ. It is the way of escape from sin and out of hell, and it is our consuming commission to preach it to all men. Preach it to the proud and haughty in the boulevard, preach it to the harlot down in the dives; preach it to the idle by the seaside, and preach it to the burdened laborer in the mines; preach it all and everywhere.

We hear much preaching about Jesus. The pulpit gives Him wide advertisement, but too often it is Jesus the neighbor, the big brother, the worldly ideal, the wisest teacher, the kindest soul, and all sorts of worldly compliments and flattery are bestowed on Him. What we want is the Savior. Men are dying, they are going down to hell in vast throngs, and they need a Savior. Can Jesus save the poor drunkard, the miserable harlot, the vulgar swearer, the adulterous dancer, the proud leader of society and her patrons of lecherous sports? This is the cry that must come out of every awakened conscience, and unless we can answer it, far better that it should never be raised. But, thank God, it is our business to tell all the world of the power of Christ to save unto the uttermost all who come unto Him. Let us be done with this modern hypocrisy and cheap belittling of Christ by putting Him forward in everything except His redeeming blood and saving might. Paying tribute to His moral record and His fine spirit of compassion while the solitary thing that brought Him into the world is pushed into the background, is as horrible to Him as the wild cry of the mob for His blood in Pilate's hall.

THE PROPOSED CHURCH-WIDE EVANGELISTIC DRIVE.

By Rev. R. A. Meek, D.D.

In the New Orleans Christian Advocate of July 3, there appeared an article from the pen of Dr. O. E. Goddard, Secretary of the Department of Home Missions of the M. E. Church, South, entitled, "Keep the Centenary Organization Intact for the Great Revival." In that communication Dr. Goddard outlines the plan that he has in mind for the promotion of this movement, and states that "sometime in the early spring of 1920 (about Easter) a great simultaneous revival campaign will be put on throughout the whole church." Letters are already beginning to reach me from Nashville urging me to communicate with the pastors in my district concerning this undertaking, and one stating that all the presiding elders in Southern Methodism are being called upon to prepare brief statements on "Why a Church-wide Revival Now," for a symposium that is to be published in the church press, lies before me at this writing. Some of the preachers associated with me in the Master's work have also made inquiries concerning my views as to this project. Hence, it seems to me to be entirely in order for me respectfully to submit for publication a few general observations concerning this contemplated movement.

1. That Southern Methodism needs a deep, genuine, and widespread revival of religion is, in my opinion, a fact so obvious that it cannot be questioned. Such a spiritual awakening would mean more to the church than any other undertaking, no matter how successful, could possibly mean. But between a church-wide evangelistic campaign and a real revival of religion extending throughout the Connection there may be a wide difference. The two things are by no means one and the same. There are so-called revival efforts that hurt more than they help. Instead of setting the Holy Spirit to work in human hearts and leading men to repentance, regeneration, and a surrendered, holy life, they get up a superficial stir and induce persons who have undergone no inward change to make a profession of religion and unite with the church. Many of our churches now are water-logged with worldly and inconsistent members. To multiply the number of such among us would, as I see it, be an unspeakable calamity. The crying call of the hour, one that should stir the heart of every spiritual son and daughter of Wesley, is for a deeper work of grace—a work that shall make the church of Christ a holy church, truly adorning the Gospel of our risen and living Lord.

2. The history of revivals does not, in my judgment, warrant the conclusion that a great spiritual revival can be mechanically and simultaneously engendered over any mapped-out wide area of territory. The great revivals of the past, those which have done the most for the church and for humanity, have started in the heart-searchings and earnest intercessions of some little company of believers, and have spread from community to community as the Holy Spirit seemed to lead the way, until whole lands were aflame. This was certainly true of the remarkable Wesleyan revival, out of which Methodism emerged, and of the extraordinary Welsh revival, which attracted world-wide attention a few years ago.

One objection to a "simultaneous" evangelistic campaign throughout a Conference, or a State, or a church, is that it necessarily must ignore the varying conditions in different communities. When the situation in one locality is favorable for a meeting, it may be, because of circumstances which the workers cannot control, quite unfavorable in another. To rush prematurely into a meeting in the face of adverse influences would be to fail, and perhaps block the way for an effort that might be successful at a more propitious time. Why should the judgment of those on the ground be ignored in a matter so important? Has the outcome of the "one-to-win-one campaigns" over large districts taught us nothing respecting such undertakings?

Another objection to large and mechanically arranged evangelistic "drives," simultaneously conducted, is that they do not seem to permit sufficient freedom for the leadership of the Holy Spirit. In a real revival, in which souls are born into the Kingdom, people must work as they are directly impressed by the Holy Ghost. This was the way the early disciples wrought, as is shown in the Book of Acts. Who has not seen harm done in revival meetings by a mechanical sending forth of certain persons to labor with others, when such persons had no impression from the Divine Spirit summoning them to the task? "Where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty." A standardized program for winning souls, like a written sermon slavishly adhered to, cannot reasonably be expected to furnish the great Divine Executive the latitude that he needs to accomplish the work of saving human beings, which can be performed by him alone, and for the achievement of which he makes use of human instrumentalities.

3. The Centenary organization, which it is proposed to use in the contemplated evangelistic campaign, was built up for quite another purpose. The best men for raising money were enlisted and brought to the front. That these men are the ones best capacitated to direct an effort to bring souls to Christ and lift those already saved to loftier religious heights, certainly cannot be safely inferred. Well may we meditate upon the significance of the words of the Apostle Paul:

"Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are SPIRITUAL restore such an one in the spirit of meekness." The law of biogenesis holds in the spiritual world. Life can come only from life. Hence, along with any true regenerating of sinners there invariably goes a new vitalizing of the saints. The work of spiritual regeneration and nurture is too high and sacred for any but blood-cleansed hands and hearts. To have persons who do not know Christ consciously in the forgiveness of their sins to conduct a superficial, drag-net campaign, called evangelistic, throughout the church, would be a poor substitute for the revivals that have been the glory of Methodism in the days agone. Of course, we would not accuse those who are leading in the proposed movement of starting out to do this intentionally; but it is to be feared that this would be the outcome of the methods that they seem to have in view, however pure and good may be their purposes.

4. While Paragraphs 285 and 286 of the Discipline seem to give the Home Department of the General Board of Missions a good deal of authority in carrying forward a work of evangelism, it surely was not intended by the General Conference to give that body the power to control the services and meetings in the well established pastoral charges of the church. It still stands in the Discipline, that it is the duty of a preacher in charge, "in the absence of a presiding elder or bishop, to control the appointment of all services to be held in the churches of his charge." It is he who has spiritual oversight in the field assigned him, and it is he who must answer in the judgment for the kinds of efforts that are made to reach the lost in his parish. To what extent bishops, presiding elders, and pastors will surrender to outside agencies this most fundamental work of their high calling, is a question which each of them must for himself determine. As the law of the church now stands, no organized bureau has the right to say to any one of them, "It is your duty to conform to this, or that plan which we have devised." The co-operation of our preachers in any general evangelistic campaign that may be put on by the Department of Home Missions should be regarded as a matter entirely voluntary upon their part. There should be no undue assumption of authority in any plans that may be formulated, and not the slightest attempt at duress of any kind. It is my conviction that our Home Mission Department would render the church a better service by restricting its operations, so far as a general evangelistic campaign is concerned, to the creation and circulation of a stimulating revival literature and the awakening of a revival spirit among our pastors and more active lay workers, than it will by assuming to be directors and managers of the details of a "church-wide evangelistic drive" of a military type. From the echoes reaching me, I have been impelled to the conclusion that our people are becoming weary of all kinds of "drives" carried forward by high-pressure methods, and that such courses of procedure have about had their day. They originated in the abnormal times through which we have been passing, and were serviceable in the storm and stress born of the exigencies of war; but they cannot be indefinitely substituted for the more normal and Scriptural way of achieving the noble tasks committed to the regenerated followers of the divine Christ.

CHINA AND THE CENTENARY.

By Rev. R. G. Moore.

One week ago, the following cablegram was dispatched throughout the Soochow Mission Compound: "Fifty Millions For The Centenary." It was a message which bore unmeasured joy, which briefly told of the triumphant march of Methodism, which records, perhaps, the most magnificent and far-reaching feat in the history of our great church, which expresses the sacrifice, faith, prayer, and devotion of a large host of Christians whose spiritual worth cannot be appraised, whose courage is undaunting, whose vision and sympathies are as broad as the world. It is the harbinger of a supreme effort of a mighty, unified advance in the ranks of Methodism, looking to the Christianization of the world; of the consummation of a great and purposeful movement as the result of unceasing prayer, oneness of purpose, enthusiastic, and unremitting effort made effective through the power and presence of God; the herald of a Golden Age; the initial stage in the fulfillment of the fond expectations and the prophetic venture of thousands, viz., that the Centenary would be the crowning event in the history of the Methodist Church, a new and glorious epoch in more firmly establishing the Kingdom of God, in making possible the dawn of a new era in missionary enterprise.

Suffice it to say that it seems as if the project has been undertaken and executed at the psychological moment as it is related to the multitudinous needs of the world. When we pause to reflect how it is seeking to carry substantial help and healing balm to the war-stricken nations, to comfort, cheer, reconstruct, to carry the light of the truth of Christ to the dark regions of the earth, does it not seem that Methodism has only rallied to what seems to be the providential coincidence in the history of the world as well as the history of the church of God?

That Methodism has spoken in positive accents to this unparalleled challenge to loyalty and sacrifice, is clearly evidenced and emphatically proclaimed by the enthusiastic response which has come from churches in every section. I hazard the assertion that missionaries have never before received any message that evoked a deeper gratitude, that excited a brighter hope and a stronger faith than that concerning the Centenary, because it announces that the church at home has never before been so completely and universally aroused to the supreme hour of opportunity, the stupendous day of responsibility which the various mission posts are now presenting.

It is, indeed, a source of greatest concern and profoundest gratitude that China may be accounted as one of the needy objects of the beneficent help, the transforming influence which the Centenary holds out to the soul-sick hosts of heathenism in her program of world-evangelization and world-reconstruction. That China is an open door of opportunity to the immediate exercise of the gracious ministry of the Gospel of Christ, is a fact that comes with conviction to every observant, thinking representative of the church who is privileged to share with China in her present perplexities and forebodings.

We are told that for more than a quarter of a century in divers ways the foundations of China have been shaken and that to some extent the superstructure of her huge anatomy, under the influence of Christianity, has, from time to time, sustained definite alterations for the better. A glance at the tables of time show us that this great nation, embracing 400,000,000 of people, or one-fourth of the world's population, has witnessed the complete overthrow of all the ancient kingdoms of the world and has survived twenty-four dynasties throughout forty centuries of civilization. A nation which can successfully emerge from centuries of time, perpetuate itself through conflicting scenes and combating powers surely possesses some of the qualities which go to make a great nation.

Although China has directed her steps, sometimes feebly, sometimes falteringly, over the shores of time, seeing a ray of truth here, a spark of light there, partially accepting, universally rejecting, yet to-day, standing in the beautiful and searching light of world-civilization, world-brotherhood and world-commerce, she beholds the wretchedness of her estate, unfittingly and untimely clothed in the ancient garb of stiff conventionalism, false pride, foolish superstitions, self-satisfaction, lack of enterprise; held in the throes of a dangerous bureaucracy, largely composed of disloyal, corrupt officials who would barter the honor and integrity of their country for a small sum of money. Just at this time, however, thousand of intelligent, and, I believe, justice-loving students, together with millions of the people, to whom the students have been preaching patriotism and liberty by word and by letter, have denounced this type of officials and government, and have demanded and accomplished the impeachment of these traitorous officials. A large number of these student leaders are Christians, and, amid the disorder and confusion, which hitherto has not expressed itself in any serious acts of violence not only do these Christian students recognize the imperative need of a strong moral leadership but many of the non-Christian students are coming to share in this belief as the only immediate hope of saving China. The whole situation is in a stage of fermentation. I believe the wide-spread disturbance is of God. The leaven of righteousness and justice is still abroad and at work in the hearts of the human family. How oft are we taught to-day that the memorials of past ambitions admonish us of the futility of leaving God out of a nation's program, and the triumph and prosperity of present systems re-enforce the truth and wisdom of "happy is that nation whose God is the Lord?"

Now is the time to help save China in her hour of extreme crisis and great awakening. Fraught with internal evils of penurious politicians who, in turn, are arrayed against each other in selfish divisions, threatened by selfish exploitation from without, weakened to a large degree by superstitions and non-Christian influences and ideals, China—a fine part and an increasingly large proportion of China—is striving to assert herself in democratic terms, to take her rightful place along with the great family of the nations of the world. To aid her in this desperate attempt at something better, China needs an increase in Christian leadership. A fine, virile type of leadership is needed; men who can influence and save the intelligent, ambitious youth of her land who in the future shall assume the leadership in church and in State; men who can help model such types of Chinese leaders as Wellington Koo, who is now representing China at the Peace Conference, Dr. C. Y. Chen, a prominent Christian editor and minister of Shanghai, and hundreds of other native lights who are nobly contributing their part toward the enlightment, the illumination of the whole.

It seems that God has timed the Centenary clock to strike at this hour of crisis and supreme need in China as well as in other parts of the world. The Chinese workers have awakened to the opportunity. Many have caught the vision and meaning of the Centenary. The present failures and disturbances in governmental affairs, resulting from a lack of sound morality, are arousing men to serious thinking. Already a few, fine-typed officials have accepted Christianity and have publicly and in the presence of Confucianist, Buddhist, non-Christian or what not, proclaimed their allegiance to Christianity and their faith in it as being the only hope and salvation of China.

The door stands wide open! Hearts are hungry for education and evangelization. Many are waiting at the "forks."

Shall the Centenary point the way in this hour of hesitation and decision? Shall it furnish the balance of spiritual impetus, the corps of spiritually endowed men and women, the needed relief funds, which shall completely re-enforce all lines of endeavor and turn the tide in China for Jesus Christ? We believe it shall. At His command we press forward! In vain we strive to keep pace with the sturdy, triumphant advance of the hosts of God in the home-base. In haste we shall move. In faith we shall await His further biddings in the performance of His wondrous works and holy will.

ALEXANDRIA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

"Fully up to the average," is what our presiding elder, Rev. C. B. Carter, said of the district conference held at Boyce, La., July 22-24.

The one regrettable thing about it was the meager attendance. Only about half of the pastors and less than one-fourth of the lay delegates reported for duty, but a spirit of loyalty, zeal, and enthusiasm was evident among them, and much good work was done.

The conference was opened Tuesday night with a soul-stirring sermon by Rev. H. T. Young, of the Jena charge.

The conference was organized Wednesday, at 9 o'clock a. m., and began its work in earnest.

The method followed was that of having a committee for each department of the work, and the plan worked well, for the business was transacted with thoroughness and dispatch.

The reports from the several charges were quite encouraging. Almost without exception, the finances were reported as being in good shape.

There was general rejoicing over the success of the Centenary Drive, and the feeling was general that this success should and would be followed by a church-wide revival.

According to reports, the spiritual state of the church was not at all discouraging, as many accessions by profession of faith, and many more by certificate were reported.

But, oh! the women! They were there! They both voted and were voted for. They wore their newly-won, their hard-won honors with such dignity and grace that the prediction was freely made that they would not only do the noblest work of the church in the future, but that as preachers, they would at no distant day, eclipse all the Chrysostoms, the Luthers, and the Wesleys of the past! So mote it be! In real earnest, they acquitted themselves well. Some even defeated their own husbands for office.

The following delegates and alternates were elected to the Annual Conference: Rev. Thomas Carter, L. E.; Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, L. E.; H. H. White, Mrs. W. T. Cunningham, Mrs. W. D. Haas, Mrs. T. E. Brown, Mrs. Briscoe Carter, Miss Lillie Brewer. Alternates: Mrs. P. M. Brown, Rev. E. Valiery, W. D. Haas, J. T. Sandlin.

One young man, Brother Charles William Lehey, was licensed to preach.

On Wednesday afternoon, a most interesting program of the Woman's Missionary Society was ably carried out by the district secretary, Mrs. T. E. Brown, assisted by Mesdames Hargrove, Evans, Harper, and Cunningham. All of these addresses were edifying and showed thorough knowledge of the subjects discussed, and some of them were exceedingly uplifting and inspiring.

The preaching was done by Revs. H. T. Young, Dr. S. H. Werlein, R. M. Brown, and John G. Snelling; and it would be superfluous to say that it was well done.

Brother R. W. Vaughan was with us and presented the cause of the Orphanage in his usual forceful style.

Professor R. E. Bobbitt, President of Mansfield Female College, was with us for a few hours, and gave a very encouraging report of his work.

On Thursday, Prof. W. R. Bourne, President of Centenary College, in a great address, presented the cause of Christian education and the claims of Centenary College.

Following an address by Brother T. W. Holloman, Conference Lay Leader, the following Sunday school organization was effected: District Secretary, A. R. Hyde, Pineville, La.; Superintendent Elementary Department, Mrs. Anna Lyon, Lecompte, La.; Superintendent Intermediate and Senior Department, Mrs. A. W. Bryan, Oakdale, La.; Superintendent Young People—Adult, R. F. White, Alexandria, La.; Superintendent Missionary Education, Mrs. W. T. Cunningham, Natchitoches, La.; Superintendent Teacher-training, H. C. Cooley, Natchitoches, La.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated on Wednesday night and was a most solemn occasion.

The next district conference will be held at Bunkie.

After reading various reports, and offering resolutions of thanks to the good people of Boyce for royal entertainment, the conference adjourned sine die.

Rev. J. G. Snelling, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, will assist Brother Faulk in a meeting at Boyce from the close of the conference.

MEETING OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS, MISSISSIPPI ORPHANS' HOME.

(The following account of the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mississippi Orphans' Home is taken from the Daily News, of Jackson, Miss.—Editor).

At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home all phases of the work were looked into and plans adopted for the future welfare of the institution. The reports of the superintendent, field secretary, auditor and treasurer were carefully examined and approved. The home was found to be in much better condition than was the case last year. The heating system has been overhauled and also the plumbing and lighting. A coal bin capable of holding four large cars of coal has been built and several smaller bins in the various buildings have been put in order. The coal for next winter has been stored.

Two hundred and sixty-one children have passed through the Home during the past year, and sixty-two have been placed in good homes. Since the close of the official year, nineteen others have been placed, making a total since the last meeting of the Board of eighty-one. The field secretary, Mrs. S. F. Riley, has traveled over ten thousand miles the past year getting in touch with the families that have taken a child from the home during the last five years. One hundred and three homes asking for children have been visited and half of these were refused because they were thought not to be suitable for the children. The children are going into the best families of the State.

The curriculum of the school has been steadily raised and next year the same work that is done in the Jackson schools will be done in the orphanage school. Two girls graduated at the High School this year and one girl is being supported at Whitworth College by Mr. Jas. Hand of Purvis.

The following officers of the Board of Directors were re-elected:

John H. Sherard, chairman; M. S. Enochs, secretary; W. M. Buie, treasurer.

Rev. B. F. Lewis was re-elected superintendent and Mrs. S. F. Riley, secretary.

The executive committee consists of John H. Sherard, chairman; M. S. Enochs, A. F. Watkins, V. C. Curtis and Mrs. W. W. Scales, Jr.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE RUSTON DISTRICT.

We, your Committee on Resolutions, respectfully present the following for your consideration:

I.—Minimum Salaries.

Whereas, there has been a very great increase in the cost of living; therefore,

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Ruston District Conference that the minimum salary of a married preacher in charge should be $1,200, and that the lay leaders of each charge be requested to bring this action to the attention of each congregation in the district.

Resolved, further, That the Louisiana Annual Conference is hereby memorialized to take action similar to the above, and formulate some plan by which it may be put into effect.

II.—Our Schools.

Resolved, That we are much pleased to have had in attendance with us the newly elected President of Centenary College, and also the President of Mansfield College;

Resolved, That we pledge Presidents Bourne and Bobbitt our hearty co-operation, and efforts to have at least one representative from every charge in each institution.

III.—The Missionary Centenary.

Resolved, That we rejoice in the financial success of the Centenary Campaign in the Louisiana Conference, and in the Ruston District, and that we express our conviction that there should be a great follow-up evangelistic revival to conserve what has been accomplished.

IV.—The Advocate.

Resolved, That we appreciate highly the editorial direction of the New Orleans Christian Advocate and it is our conviction that this paper should be in the homes of every Methodist family in Louisiana.

V.—The Orphanage.

Resolved, That we are gratified at the loyal, generous support which is being given to the Orphanage in Ruston, and the movement under headway for the enlargement of the plant to meet the constantly increasing need.

VI.

Resolved, That we express our great appreciation of the splendid entertainment given the members of the conference by the citizens of Jonesboro, and pray the richest blessing of God upon them.

REALIZING ON CENTENARY PLEDGES.

By Col. John E. Edgerton,
Manager, Department of Finance.

Through our church and by means of the Centenary, God has wrought a miracle in human achievement that has thrilled all Christendom. Thirty-seven millions of dollars in pledges tell a story of vision, faith, and sacrifice that must stir the souls of all who love the Lord and wish for the dominance of His spirit in the affairs of men. But only the first act of the Centenary drama has been played. The most important acts are yet to come. Until the newly aroused energies of our church have been properly harnessed and hitched to the unfinished portion of the church's program, and until we have resolved into actual cash the pledges that have been made, we will not have justified the high compliment God paid us in the overwhelming success of our first mighty effort for His cause.

The task of collecting these pledges will not be any harder than securing them, if we put into it the same consecrated energy, faith, and determination. Certainly it is of at least equal importance, and its magnitude is just as great. The church is in sore need of the funds, and the people need the stimulus that comes from actual sacrifice.

In response to the call of my church, I have gladly consented to devote a large part of my time to directing the machinery for collecting the Centenary pledges. As a busy business man, I feel that I have a right to call upon the other busy laymen for their unstinted co-operation. Not only are they expected to be prompt in the payment of their own pledges, but to assist in every practicable way to impress the importance of prompt payment upon others.

Of course, we shall have from presiding elders and pastors the same measure of devoted service which they have hitherto rendered. In fact, every worker who assisted in the Eight-Day Drive for pledges is expected to lend himself in some measure to this other drive for cash.

By working loyally together, we shall again win a great victory for God and the church, and show the world that Methodists pay as readily as they pledge.

DEATH OF REV. A. C. HOLDER, Ph. D.

Dear Brother Carley: Telegrams received by the family yesterday afternoon announce the sudden death of Dr. A. C. Holder, while engaged in a revival meeting in Texas. Dr. Holder is well known to your readers, having been for some years a member of the Louisiana Conference and later one of the general evangelists of the church, in which work he has had much success in various sections of the church. Dr. Holder and his family have lived in Shreveport for some years, and have been faithful and useful members of Noel Memorial Church. They are held in high esteem among our people.

No particulars of his death have been received here. Doubtless full obituary notice will be furnished later. Fraternally,

W. WINANS DRAKE.

Shreveport, La., July 25, 1919.

A FRIENDLY WORD.

As I turn my face to Tennessee, where my childhood was spent, where the years of my life's service were spent, where the dust of my loved one's reposes, I necessarily experience a sensation of pleasure. But to go, I necessarily have to turn my back on Louisiana and New Orleans.

I have had two short fragments of pastoral service with two small companies of disciples; and at Jeanerette and Jennings, I made a few friends that brought into my declining years a rich aroma.

Most of my stay in Louisiana has been in New Orleans. Four hundred thousand is too large a city for a stranger superannuate. In the multitude there is loneliness. Every one is bent on his own business and pleasure. Forty-nine years of connection with the Methodist itinerancy naturally create an affiliation with and an interest in Methodist preachers.

Brother W. W. Holmes, the past P. E., was very cordial to the stranger itinerant. I felt drawn towards Felicity Street because my life-long acquaintance and friend, tho Rev. Dr. Felix R. Hill, was there for a time to give me a handgrasp. Lately, the bright and enterprising young Townsley has been as warm in his fellowship as if he had known me through life.

Dr. Foote brings from Kentucky—just beyond Tennessee — kindness and an eloquence which make one feel at home.

I have sat oftenest in worship in Carrollton, and have been made to think of the days of the old South and the Southerner, as I have listened to the cultured Foster. And I never entered the church that I did not remember the stalwart form of Bishop Keener. It is no business of mine, but it would be fitting if Carrollton were Keener.

I often heard with pleasure young Harper: with the expected growth of the years, it will be logical that he shall give the church many years of enriched service.

A few times I have sat before the young Texan —Freeman; nature opened her hands as she passed them over his life, and let fall favors which make possible a service of high quality. I have worshiped in Brother Alford's church, but was never favored by hearing him. The Harrisons, good friends I made at Jeanerette, worship there.

While at Jeanerette, I came to know of the intrinsic worth of Brother Wier. Presiding Elder Snelling is both cordial and administrative; he bids fair to succeed. For a time, Brother Vaughan served Carrollton—before he entered the service of the Army. I knew his worth as a man and pastor when he was at Franklin.

At the office of the New Orleans Advocate my fellowship has been pleasant. The publishers—all—have been kind.

My appreciation of the Editors has been high. Meek was true to his convictions. Carley is building—and well—on many worthy foundations. There is evidence of hard work and proof of marked improvements. I shall miss the Advocate office, when I am gone.

A MILLION INTERCESSORS IN METHODISM.

By S. A. Neblett, Intercession Secretary.

The remarkable success of the first year of the Centenary served to emphasize very clearly Methodism's unfinished task. Every man, every woman, and every dollar enlisted for definite service, stand out in bold relief against the larger background of the unenlisted. It is because a few have been enabled to do so much, and because so very many have apparently not been actively engaged in the fundamental Christian labors which the Centenary has undertaken to promote, that the second Centenary year must of necessity be a very intense and busy period.

First of all comes prayer, intercessory prayer. The permanent conservation of every benefit that has come to the church as a result of the Centenary depends upon our success in getting a large portion of the membership of the church to engage more constantly and systematically in prayer. No amount of money subscribed and paid in can be made to do the work of prayer. Indeed, tho working power of our money is enhanced by the volume of prayer that is back of it, while money without prayer accomplishes little. We cannot substitute service for prayer and expect to satisfy God's demands upon us.

There is no substitute for prayer. Pastors recognize this, and, therefore, take frequent occasion to pledge people to pray for specific objects. Evangelists for the same reason, at the beginning of a meeting, or before, insist that people pledge themselves to pray for the meeting. On the same principle, we deem it essential to the success of the causes represented in and encouraged by the Centenary, that a very large per cent of the church membership be pledged to participate by prayer in them.

During the past year fifty-three per cent of the pastors and ten per cent of the members of the church enrolled in the Fellowship of Intercession. Even that result, while far short of what ought to have been done, is gratifying as a beginning. But with the larger work before us of more completely manning the foreign fields, discovering a host of laborers and co-operating with them by prayer; with an enlarged view of the home mission problem demanding hundreds of trained workers to be supported by prayer and in many sections by intelligent, personal co-operation; with a church-wide revival just in the first stages, the aim of which is to make the part of America in which we live Christian—is it too much to expect that a million Southern Methodists will give themselves as never before to intercession?

To the end that this additional seven hundred and seventy-five thousand Southern Methodists may definitely associate themselves together in the Fellowship of Intercession, the last week of August has been designated as "Enlistment Week." All pastors have been supplied with intercession literature and enrollment forms. They are requested to utilize their Committees on Spiritual Resources and Intercession in the distribution of literature among Methodist families and in personally canvassing the membership for enlistments. August 24 to 31 should be even more memorable than May 18 to 25, because the church shall in prayer "come up to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty."

PASTORS AND TREASURERS OF CENTENARY FUNDS, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, CALLED TO MEET.

Let all pastors and local church treasurers of Centenary Funds in North Mississippi come to whichever place is most convenient and least expensive. In order to make the collection a success, we must have a perfect understanding of, and co-operation in, the set plans. All these matters will be thoroughly discussed. Whoever fails to come, and thus modify our achievement, will hurt our church just that much. Observe times and places, as follows:

West Point, August 6, 1 to 4 p. m.
Tupelo, August 7, 1 to 4 p. m.
Corinth, August 8, 10 a. m. to 2 p. m.
Mathiston, August 11, 1 to 4 p. m.
Holly Springs, August 12, 9 a. m. to 3 p. m
Greenwood, August 14, 9 a. m. to 1 p. m.
Durant, August 15, 11 a. m. to 3 p. m.
Sardis, August 16, 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Again, let us request that all treasurers keep the pledge cards, but send me a list of the names and amounts subscribed. Organize the teams that made the drive and use them in making immediate collections. We surprised ourselves in making pledges—now let us do a still more surprising thing. S. J. HIGH, Conference Treasurer.

THE GUIDE OF THE NIGHT.

While traveling in Canada I had occasion one evening to call on a physician for a friend of mine who was ill. I found the doctor most congenial and companionable, and when he learned that I was from "the States," he insisted on a prolonged conversation.

The route from the home of my friend to that of the doctor was somewhat zigzag, which I had no difficulty in finding in the lingering twilight of that beautiful Canadian evening. But when I emerged from the doctor's office a dense darkness had settled down upon the little hillside village, and I soon became confused and lost. Wandering about for a time, amid hope and fear, I concluded to return to the doctor's office—if I could. After more groping in the darkness I succeeded and asked my new-made friend to give me further direction. But he said: "No; I will do better than that. I will accompany you back to your home." Then he and I went out into the night together and my fears were clean gone. I had no further concern about either the winding pathway or the uncertain footing. We walked happily together until we reached a little hillock, when, pointing directly in front of me, he said: "Do you see that light in the window? Make straight for that. That is your home. Good night!"

I have never seen that friend of the night from that day to this. But I have a Friend who has walked with me in all the dark places of life's uncertain pathway, and often when the twilight had faded, and feelings of fear overtook me, and I felt myself hemmed in by the dense darkness of the night, I found walking by my side this one precious and abiding Friend and I was comforted and calmed, not only in the consciousness of His mute presence, but stayed and steadied in my onward course to my mansion home beyond by His assuring direction: "Do you see that light in the window? Make straight for that. That is your home!" Thank God for the Guide and thank God for the light in a window! —Rev. J. H. Shirey.

A NOTE FROM REV. S. L. POPE.

Dear Mr. Editor: I landed in New York from France July 19. I came over with 7000 of our boys on the surrendered ship, "Kaiserin." It feels good to be back again. I will live in Columbus, Miss., 611-3d Avenue, north, until Conference. My plan is to rest a little, then help in some revivals until November. S. L. POPE.

Thy feet, at last, shall stand on jasper floors;
Thy heart, at last, shall seem a thousand hearts—
Each single heart with myriad raptures filled—
While thou shalt sit with princes and with kings,
Rich in the jewel of a ransomed soul.

FROM THE PELICAN PINES.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D.D.

We have just had supper at "Camp Idlewild" in the Pelican Pines. Camp Idlewild is my study in the woods. I can't study in town—too many interruptions—women book-agents, vendors of new-fangled contraptions of all sorts, frisky promoters of social service schemes, advance agents of the millennium that is to be brought in by "organization," and so on! And study I must—and will! I was brought up with such men for my examples as Doggett, and Sledd, and John E. Edwards, and McTyeire. These men spent the forenoon in their study, closeted with their books, and admitted no disturbance. I can't break the habit. Old Sex, the Humdinger over in Shreveport, may want his office opening on the street. I want mine in the woods!

Coming back to that supper, the guests were Major Liverman and his accomplished wife; Mr. Mac Nabors and his charming wife; Mrs. Sharp, the matron at Mansfield College, and her winsome daughter, Miss Lillian, who had her violin along; Mrs. Fontenay, my daughter, and her frisky little hopeful. I invited these friends out to drink a glass of tea, but Sister Steel spread a sure enough supper in spite of all I could do to prevent it, and from the looks of the dishes when it was over she made no mistake. Sister Steel is a queen—an American queen, the only sort of queens worth having now, queens of love and beauty; and they will go when woman suffrage gets control. Queens over in Europe don't amount to much now. The lustre has faded from their diadems. She of Holland seems to retain something of the old splendor. An ex-emperor is hiding behind her petticoats now. Every now and then he quits sawing wood, and ventures to peep around to see where Foch is. She won't let him chirp, and says to him, "Sh'; hush, Bill, and saw. Maybe they will go away." And he saws!

Mac Nabors is "the gentleman from Missouri." He wouldn't believe that I have watermelons at Camp Idlewild until I led him over the patch and he could count for himself hundreds of the luscious beauties. He knows the way to the patch now. Liverman is a lawyer. I try to keep people out of trouble, and when they won't listen to me, and get in trouble, they trot to him to get them out of trouble! My, if they paid me as they do him! He is chairman of our board of stewards, and one of the best I ever had. But he has a government job to hold fifteen stewards up to his standard of efficiency. We are getting on so far splendidly; finances up, and no paper in bank; and there will be none if Liverman's punch holds out!

But the millennium is not at hand. I understand the millennium to be a time when people will all be so religious that they will give the preference to the things of the Spirit. If that be true, the millennium is not even in sight. Mansfield is above the average town in the character of its citizenship. Most everybody belongs to some church and so far as known lives a decent life. We had a fine protracted meeting this year, conducted by Rev. L. P. Law. The whole community was stirred. The church was packed with the people who were intent to hear the message of the gospel as brought by Brother Law, and his musical wife. The Baptists took almost as much stock in the meeting as the Methodists. I felt sure that we had reached higher ground, for Law certainly preached a pure gospel.

But bless your life, the whole thing fell from grace in six weeks. Do you know Waldrip, the Hot Springs pastor? Well, if you ever have to turn down Taft, or Mott, or Billy Sunday to hear Waldrip, don't hesitate a minute to let them go, and hear the Ozark parson. We brought him to Mansfield to speak about the great Centenary movement, a movement which in itself appealed to every intelligent Methodist as of surpassing interest. And busy as he must be, he came, and made a wonderful address. But he made it to college girls and empty benches. Where were the people? Well, sir, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, "Episcopians," the whole community, all my stewards except one, crowded to see "Nut's Show!" I never was more mortified in my life. I was afraid at Columbus that Waldrip might bob up while I was bragging on Mansfield, and spoil my speech by asking embarrassing questions. But you tell Marse John Kilgo that the millennium is far away when Methodist stewards, the very fellows that clapped their hands at lunch when he made such a fine talk to us last summer, pass right by the open church door, where such a man as Waldrip is speaking on such a theme as the Centenary, and stand for three hours looking at indecently dressed actresses and listening to the smutty wit of vulgar buffoons. Where are we? Say what you please about the times being better than they use to be, such a meeting as we had in Mansfield with Brother Law, when I was a boy would have made it impossible for such a company of coarse comedians to have got a hearing for a long time. Religion seems to be a mere moral veneer, or a sort of pink powder, like the ladies use to improve their complexion, and it is easily washed off.

You may unite the two Methodist Churches if you will, but after my visit to Columbus it is all over with me. I simply will not mix with negroes like the Northern Methodists do, and that is the whole thing in a word. Neither will old Tom Holloman, and ten thousand besides. No use to argue it. The thing is settled. Union means disruption of the Southern Church.

The state of the world is critical in the extreme. The Germans openly call the treaty of peace a "scrap of paper," and declare they will tear it up just as soon as they are strong enough. The treaty has created an eastern "Alsace-Lorraine" in the Shantung question. There is the egg that will hatch a million horrors in time. And sly, treacherous Japan all but put it over with her "secret agreement" with Germany! We will see what we will see. Meantime, my gun is loaded, and it might be well to keep out of my watermelon patch. Will they steal watermelons when the millennium comes? I mean to keep my gun till then anybow.

Mansfield, La.

THE RETURN HOME.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

Leaving Columbus at 5 p. m., we passed over the country in daylight which, on the going trip, was covered in night, thus completing a day trip all the way. Looking out upon the thousands and thousands of shocks of wheat, the orchards laden with fruits, the neatly cultivated fields, fat stock and comfortable homes, I asked "Why would one leave these surroundings to settle elsewhere?" to get reply "over-crowded;" and that recalled the statement of a Jewish friend in Vicksburg, who said, "God quit making land six thousand years ago, but hasn't quit making people yet."

Leaving St. Louis at 8 p. m., we passed through Southern Illinois, dining at Cairo at 2 p. m. On this stretch, we are seeing things more familiar—the one-horse plow, crooked rows, and larger fields of corn—interspersed now and then with the black face of cuffy.

At Cairo, we crossed the Ohio River on the bridge, to which we ascended by a circultous, gradual slant, all of which—the bridge, the ascent and the river—recalled the musing of the colored brother at Niagara, who, looking upon the great cataract for the first time and seeing a heavy train passing over the great cantilever bridge, exclaimed, "God has made great things, and man can make great things, too."

Old Kentuck—Dixie—and we are beginning to recognize our surroundings, as we pass by the little cabin homes with the pickaninnies playing around the door—full brother to those in old Mississip. But what is that cabbage-like little plant that lies so close to the ground? Oh, we are passing through a tobacco field!

And now we pass into Tennessee, the land of the cotton and the corn, and we have found our folks—the typical negro and mule in the cotton patch warring against General Green; flushed and muddy streams tell of recent rains and the "crab" grass tells its own story. Now we are passing a jolly crowd of young people with buckets and pans, gathering the shining berries from the vines which skirt the fields.

Then we come to our native land, the land of cotton, the great delta, the Eden of the negro. Much rain has retarded the planting and increased the grass crop until labor is commanding unprecedented wages, as much as two dollars a day being paid for boe hands. Cotton is from 2 to 4 weeks late and crop spotted. Whether the pledge for reduction in acreage has been faithfully kept, the crop will, of necessity, be short because of unfavorable seasons. My, how hot it is! But there is a moving among the branches of the trees which proclaims the cooling breeze. Home again and in luck!

GREENVILLE DISTRICT NOTES.

The presiding elder has moved into the handsome new parsonage recently purchased, in the town of Greenville, at a cost of $8,500.

We are glad to learn that Rev. I. F. Holland, of the Gunnison charge, is improving. Brother Holland has been for several months away from his charge, on account of ill health. The noble people have continued to pay his salary, thus expressing their love and devotion for the worthy pastor.

Brother A. S. Raper, of Friars Point, is doing evangelistic work on the eastern side of the State. He is at present assisting Brother W. R. Williams, on the Nettleton Circuit.

Brother E. M. Fant, a layman at Coahoma, gave his pastor a check and said: "Go somewhere." Brother Smith went to Columbus, Ohio.

Rev. J. H. Holder, presiding elder of the Holly Springs District, has been a welcome visitor in the district. He conducted a very successful revival meeting at Pace, Miss., where Rev. W. V. Shearer is the pastor.

Brother V. C. Curtis, presiding elder, has recently returned from a deserved outing on the coast.

The two new stewards at Dundee, Mrs. Hubbard and Mrs. Oswalt, have broken all records by keeping the finances of the church up to date.

Dr. J. W. Ellis and Miss Carrie Smith, two valuable members of the Methodist Church at Coahoma, were recently married. They are making their home at Coahoma, where Dr. Ellis is a popular physician.

Jonestown has given Brother W. C. Galceran a vacation. He, with his family, has gone tenting for awhile.

Rev. D. W. Babb, of Strongs, on his way to Columbus, Ohio, stopped off for a few days at the parsonage at Lula. Gracious days were these for us. It is the good fortune of your correspondent to have the privilege of calling Brother Babb, "Uncle Dan'l."

A man who wishes to be known as "the clod-hopper steward" raised the third quarter's salary for the presiding elder and preacher in less than one and a half hours, with a good excess to be carried over to the fourth quarter, and did not get off the walks to do it. Henry Watson is his real name.

Several of the churches in the Greenville District are asking for more time, next year. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest to send more laborers into this part of the vineyard.

LOVING A CHILD.

Loving a child is key
To Heaven's mystery.
Loving a child, and giving
It knowledge, this is living.
Loving a child brings pain,
And is life's greatest gain.

Loving a child is knowing
The fierce joy of a sowing
That shall cause mighty reaping.
Loving a child is weeping,
And fearing, too, and praying;
This, there is no gainsaying.

Loving a child is being
A part of God and seeing
The world beneath one's hand
Enlarge, expand,
Be different, and grow
To one's thought. Even so.

Loving a child is key
To every mystery.
Loving a child is laughter
And heartache after—
Heartache and grief and pain,
But always joy again.

WHY ROBIN STOPPED CRYING.

Robin was crying again. This time it was because his mother called him to come to his reading lesson. Last time it was because he could not find his ball. The time before he had a sliver taken out, and the time before that Uncle Dan had laughed when he saw Robin finishing a slice of bread and jelly—a great irregular line of red, stretching away up under his eyes, far out on his cheeks and down to the tip of his little chin.

Grandpa said it did beat all how many things that lad could find to cry about between daylight and dark. Uncle Dan said that at a moderate calculation Robin shed a pint of salt water every day. By the time he was in college he would weep a gallon a day, and he tried to count up how much it would be when Robin was fifty. Grandma promised him pennies galore if he would go a week without a cry; then, finding that impossible, if only one day should pass without tears. But he was still penniless.

The boys of the neighborhood jeered at Robin, and called "cry-baby" when he passed. But that did not cure him. Papa sent him promptly out of sight when the crying began, saying that so much damp air was bad for his rheumatism. Mamma told him stories of brave people, and encouraged him in every way, but nothing seemed to help when once a cry got fairly started.

To-day the lesson was about George Washington and the flag. Mamma had some flags, tiny ones, such as Robin had never seen before. They crossed some over the door and put some about George Washington's picture, and held one in his hand while they went through the lesson.

At the very bottom of the page were these three lines:

Red says, be "Brave."
White says, "Be pure."
Blue says, "Be true."

They said them over and over, until Robin could say them alone. Then he ran away to play.

Pretty soon mamma heard him saying them over in the parlor, picking out things having those colors. Then he came into her room and tried it with the flowers. The simple lines seemed to have charmed him, so that two or three hours passed before he even felt like crying. The first time the tears started again his mother caught him up and, carrying him to Washington's picture, said:

"What does the flag say, Robin?"

Smiling through his tears, in spite of himself, he began, "Red says, 'Be brave.'"

"That's it! That's my little man! Whenever you feel like crying, just say it to yourself, Robin, and then the boys won't laugh at you and grandma will pay you the pennies, and we'll all be so proud and happy because our little boy has grown to be a little man."

So Robin and mamma went to work hard and said nothing to anyone about it. When trouble came and Robin's face began to screw up, mamma called, "What does it say Robin?" and the clouds cleared away with very little rainfall.

"What does that mean?" asked Uncle Dan one day.

"Never mind! That's our secret," laughed mamma.

"It works pretty well, whatever it is. Must have reduced the salt water to about a gill a day, I should think."

Then papa brought Robin a knife, saying that his rheumatism was so much better that he and Robin would have to celebrate.

He had a jolly time with it for a while, but it was not long before a scream from the back yard brought every one out to see what had happened to Robin. He had cut a gash in his finger and the blood—a terrible sight to the little boy—was drip, drip, dripping down.

Mamma held him in her arms until his fright was over, and then said, "See how bright and pretty the blood is, Robin. What color is it?"

"Red," said he in a very faint voice.

"And what does Red say?"

"Red says, 'Be brave,'" with a smile breaking through the tears.

"What's that?" asked grandpa.

Then Robin told them all about the flag and what its colors meant.

"Every time a drop of blood comes peeping out," said mamma, "it is Mother Nature saying, 'Be brave, Robin, be brave.'"

Then Uncle Dan said: "That's a pretty good idea, young man. Now let me tell you something. Pull your upper lip down tight and hard—so. Now, just as long as you can keep it stiff that way, you can't cry. Did you know that?"

So Robin tried it, not only then, but often afterward, and between the two helps it wasn't so very long before every one came to think a great deal more of the little boy than they used to, and he rattled pennies in his pocket as proudly as you please.—Lucy M. Sprague.

TAKING BOYS SERIOUSLY.

"Come home with me, my dear," said a lady from the city who was calling at the home of one of her country friends. She was speaking to a charming little boy perhaps two years and a half old.

"I should love to have you," she continued. "You could see the horse-cars go by, and we would go to the museum and see that big whale. Won't you go?"

The little fellow's bright, confiding eyes looked sweetly into hers. They did not detect her insincerity. They saw only kindness and admiration there, and he started at once for his coat and cap.

"Mercy!" cried the lady, shocked at his literal way of taking her words. "He thinks I am really in earnest! Bless you, dear! I couldn't carry you off. Your mamma wouldn't let you go."

Then, turning in apology to her friend, she added, "I never thought of his taking me at my word. It is too bad."

The child gazed at her for a moment, his great eyes flaming with indignation. He flung down his little coat and cap with a gesture as imperiously contemptuous as a child's could be. Then he rushed to his mother's side, buried his face in her gown, and cried hard and long. Wounded pride, disappointed hope, and utter bewilderment were expressed in his smothered sobs.

A poem might have been written then and there upon the undying impression of one's first experience in being deceived. The child's confidence had been abused, and he never forgot it.

"Mother," said a boy of ten, rushing in one day in excitement, "we've got a dandy raft down on the river. Edgar 'n' I have fixed it up, an' "—

"Well," cried the mother, who knew that the river was shallow, and felt no further interest in the work there, "don't bother me now. I'm cutting out a sleeve, and I can't hear your nonsense. Run away."

This was that mother's way of taking her boys' communications. She had two sons, and she meant to do right by them; but before they were twelve they had learned that there was no place at home for the outpouring of their hearts, and they naturally sought sympathy elsewhere. The heart of a boy, if he is of the right stuff, is always full and running over. He needs a confidant. His rafts and magic tables and mortice boards are as mighty to him as the settling of the new minister or the rise and fall of stocks may be to his elders. His spirit recoils from the imputation that his affairs are "nonsense," with the same injured feeling as if he were a man.—Presbyterian Banner.

DEATH OF REV H. P. LEWIS.

Following the announcement in last week's Advocate of the serious illness of Rev. H. P. Lewis, at his home in Jackson, Miss., our readers will not be surprised to hear that Brother Lewis peacefully passed away on last Saturday morning at 8:20 o'clock. All his children were with him when the end came.

The death of this good man marks the passing of one of the heroes of Mississippi Methodism. His name stood at the head of the chronological roll of his Conference. From 1857, when he was admitted on trial, until his superannuation a few years ago, Brother Lewis served the church faithfully and well. Five of his sons are Methodist preachers—four of them in the Mississippi Conference, and one in the North Mississippi Conference. The name of Lewis is as ointment poured forth in Mississippi.

The Advocate extends heartfelt sympathy to the sorrowing family in its hour of bereavement. We hope to be able to give, in an early issue of the Advocate, an extended account of the life of this servant of God.

A FORWARD MOVEMENT IN EDUCATION.

It is very encouraging to note the progress that is being made in the educational work of the church in Louisiana and Mississippi. Notable improvements are being made in practically all our schools in these two States. In Louisiana, Mansfield Female College will begin the session with greatly improved facilities by reason of a new dining room, and additional rooms for classes and dormitory purposes. Centenary College, according to recent announcements, has come into unconditional possession of its property, and plans have been made for the immediate erection of a new building.

In Mississippi, Grenada Female College will have the benefit of one of the newest and most up-to-date buildings in the State. Millsaps College will be able to offer unexcelled dormitory facilities in the building now being erected. Whitworth Female College is pushing a successful campaign for an adequate endowment, and improvements are being made upon the property that will increase its value materially. Port Gibson Female College is undergoing extensive repairs that will add to its efficiency. We have no definite information concerning our other schools in Mississippi, but we understand that they, too, are looking forward to unusually successful sessions.

We believe these substantial advances in the resources and equipment of these institutions indicate a renewed interest in educational work in these States. For one thing, people are coming to realize that the church cannot afford to neglect the education of its young people if it would maintain its influence and play its proper part in the development of a Christian civilization. We have no fight to make upon the State for fostering education and doing all in its power to bring its advantages within reach of every citizen. In fact, we are of the opinion that the State will, in the near future, find it necessary to give largely increased attention to the maintenance of its public school system and its institutions of higher learning. But we are thoroughly convinced that the church cannot, without great loss to itself and to the State, afford to withdraw from this field of endeavor that is large enough for all parties interested to labor without harmful competition. There is, indeed, ample opportunity for the most helpful co-operation.

Our people are coming to realize, also, that the institutions of the church must be properly endowed and equipped if they are to perform the missions with which they are charged. Mark Hopkins on one end of a log and a student on the other end might have made a university a long time ago—but they will not do it now. This statement is no discount upon the value of the enthusiastic teacher and the eager student, but it is a recognition of the fact that modern conditions demand the investment of money for making available the resources of knowledge, without which our young people are poorly equipped for the battle of life. Too long our school authorities have been forced to think in terms of hundreds and thousands of dollars; the time has come when we must give them the millions without which they will be constantly hampered and hindered in their work.

We confidently expect all our schools to have a record-breaking attendance at the opening of their fall sessions, and we hope to see our people generously contributing to the needs of the institutions in which they expect their sons and daughters to be trained for the highest type of Christian citizenship.

THE AD INTERIM COMMITTEE.

The appointment of an ad interim committee by the Joint Commission on Unification at its recent meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, is a hopeful indication that the difficulties in the way of the coming together of the great branches of American Methodism will ultimately be cleared away. That these difficulties exist, and that they are very real, no one who is familiar with the history of the negotiations thus far will deny. But we believe the complex problems that have confronted the commissioners are gradually being solved, and a basis is being found upon which we may expect to take place the consummation of our hopes.

We take it that comparatively few people in either church are opposed to the idea of unification as such. One in origin, one in doctrine, and one in purpose, there is every reason to believe that the great majority of Methodists look longingly forward to the time when they may be one in organization. We do not believe that unification is desirable at any cost and any hazard—and we do not believe that it is coming in any such way. But the long course of the negotiations has served to clear the atmosphere of a great many uncertainties and perplexities, and we are beginning to feel that we have arrived at the place where, as brethren, we may deal calmly with the things that keep us apart. Our own hope is that an equitable adjustment of the difficulties in the way of unification may be made that will enable Methodism in the United States to present an unbroken front to the enemies of righteousness at home and abroad.

There is no reason to find fault with the personnel of the ad interim committee. We believe all of them to be level-headed, clear-visioned, big-hearted, Christian men who will perform their duty in the fear of God. We await the result of their deliberations with full confidence that no rash action will be taken or inequitable recommendation be made.

THE MISSISSIPPI ORPHANS' HOME.

The report of the work of the Mississippi Orphans' Home made at the recent meeting of the Board of Directors, which we give on another page of this week's Advocate, shows a splendid record for the past year's work. Rev. B. F. Lewis, the superintendent, and Mrs. S. F. Riley, the field agent, assisted by the directors and the many friends of the institution throughout the State, have wrought nobly in behalf of the children committed to their care.

In reading the report, we were especially impressed with the statement made concerning the applications to the Home for children for adoption. About 200 applications were made during the year, but a great many of them were denied because careful investigation revealed the fact that for various reasons, these homes were not suitable places in which to place these helpless and dependent children. We commend the faithfulness of the authorites of the Home in insisting that the children who are sent out from it shall have a fair chance for normal development into good citizens. It is a good thing for all children to have the advantages of a private home; but unless these can be insured, it is infinitely better for them to remain in the institution, where they are carefully educated and trained for positions of influence and responsibility when they reach maturity. We cannot be too careful in dealing with these lives that have been committed to our care as a church. Not one of them should be placed in a home where one will not be received and treated as a member of the family—a home where love for the child reigns.

This same careful policy in placing children is followed by the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, and all other similar institutions of the church of which we have knowledge. All the more, therefore, do these institutions deserve the generous support of all our people.

DEATH OF DR. A. C. HOLDER.

We carry in another column the announcement of the sudden death of Dr. A. C. Holder, one of the general evangelists of our church, who passed away suddenly while holding a meeting in Texas. Dr. Holder was formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference, but of late years had devoted himself exclusively to evangelistic work throughout the church, in which work he was very successful. He made his home in Shreveport, La., where he and his family were loyal supporters of the Noel Memorial Church. We extend sincere sympathy to the bereaved family, and pray that God's grace may sustain them in the dark hour that has fallen so unexpectedly upon them.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The wife of Dr. Louis Albert Banks, widely known as a Methodist preacher, writer, and temperance worker, died recently.

Rev. J. W. Booth, pastor of Keener Memorial Church, Baton Rouge, La., has been assisting in revival work recently in North Louisiana.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, presiding elder of the Monroe District, Louisiana Conference, assisted Rev. S. D. Howard in a meeting at Crowville last week.

Of the three Chinese who represented their nation in the peace conference at Paris, two are Christians, according to one of our exchanges.

For forty-eight years, Mrs. W. W. Hurst, of Vicksburg, Miss., has been reading the Advocate. She is the widow of the late Rev. W. W. Hurst, of the Mississippi Conference.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Kosciusko, Miss., reports having had a great time at the Centenary Celebration after the close of his recent successful revival meeting.

We learn from a news item in one of our exchanges that the great organ in the Coliseum at the Centenary Celebration has been purchased by the city of Evansville, Ind., for $30,000.

Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, formerly chairman of all the training camp social activities for the army, sailed recently for Europe to take a position with the secretariat of the League of Nations.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Louisiana Conference Missionary Secretary, is making his business headquarters, for the present, at the Advocate office, 512 Camp Street. Correspondents may address him accordingly.

Rev. R. E. Rutledge, of the Mississippi Conference, has just closed a good meeting at Conehatta, on the Lake charge. Five were added to the church—three boys and two girls. The pastor did the preaching.

After a respite of several weeks from strenuous work at training schools and institutes throughout the church, Dr. John A. Rice, formerly of the Louisiana Conference, will preach at Mandel Hall, Chicago, on August 10.

Several of the organs of the Methodist Episcopal Church have opened departments for the discussion of subjects that are likely to be considered at the General Conference, which meets at Des Moines, Iowa, May 1, 1920.

The New Orleans Union Epworth League has undertaken the publication of a monthly paper, which will be the official organ of the various chapters. It is edited by James McGowan, assisted by a competent staff of young Leaguers.

Rev. Lastie N. Hoffpauir is engaged in a great revival meeting at Zachary, La., assisted by Rev. R. A. Bozeman and Brother Spinks. There have already been fifteen conversions and three accessions to the church. The meeting will continue until August 3.

Dr. David Spence Hill, a son of the late Dr. Felix R. Hill, has recently been elected president of the University of New Mexico, at Albuquerque. Dr. Hill has won distinction in the educational world, his fame extending beyond the borders of his own country.

Dr. U. G. Foote, pastor of Rayne Memorial Church, of this city, after attending the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, visited friends and relatives in Kentucky. The Central Methodist, of Louisville, makes mention of an appreciated call by him last week.

Rev. J. Lambuth Evans, of Haughton, La., says he saw, as well as heard, things at the Centenary Celebration in Columbus, Ohio. We opine that many visitors to that great gathering came away with their optic nerves somewhat strained—the corners of the earth were brought together.

Dr. E. H. Rawlings, Secretary of the Department of Foreign Missions, will leave in a few days for a tour of our mission fields in the Orient, in company with Bishop W. R. Lambuth. We hope to be able to give our readers some account of the work abroad from the pen of Dr. Rawlings.

Rev. George Fox, of Bunkie, La., who has lately been bereaved by the death of his wife, honored the Advocate office with a call on Thursday of last week. He was passing through the city on his way to Nashville, Tenn., to visit relatives. He was accompanied by his fine six-year old son.

Rev. T. J. O'Neil, our pastor at Rolling Fork, Miss., is diligently looking after the interests committed to his care by the church. A period of seed-sowing will be followed by a harvest in days to come. Brother O'Neil was recently the host of the Port Gibson District Conference.

A press dispatch from Baton Rouge, La., states that police records show that only twenty-one arrests for all causes were made in that city during the first seventeen days of prohibition. During the first seventeen days of July, 1918, eighty-eight arrests were made. Still, "Prohibition does not prohibit!"

Rev. A. S. Lutz, presiding elder of the Monroe District Louisiana Conference, after attending the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, continued his journey to Niagara Falls, Toronto, Canada, and other points of interest. While in Toronto, he attended service at the Metropolitan Methodist Church.

From a personal note from Rev. J. L. Neill, superintendent of the Department of Missionary Education of the General Sunday School Board, we learn the Sunday schools of the church are sending in more than $1000 every day of the week, and the indications are that they will soon be doing even better than that.

A digest of the reports of the preachers of the Greenville District, North Mississippi Conference, for the second quarter, shows the following figures: Sermons preached, 459; Pastoral visits, 1613; Members received, 272; Prayer meetings held, 118; Sunday school pupils, 2022. The preachers of that district are manifestly busy and efficient men.

Rev. C. E. Downer, of the Petal charge, Mississippi Conference, has been busily engaged in holding revival meetings. He was assisted at McCallum by Rev. David Ulmer, at Estabuchie by Rev. L. L. Roberts, and at Lux by Rev. W. A. Terry. At each of these places the preaching was splendidly done, and the church and community were greatly helped.

Rev. J. S. Land, pastor of the St. Charles Avenue Branch of the First Presbyterian Church, at St. Charles Avenue and State Street, in this city, is spending his vacation in his home State of South Carolina. Dr. John T. Sawyer has been engaged to fill his pulpit during his absence, and will preach each of the five Sundays of August, at 11 a. m., and 7:45 p. m.

At the recent meeting of the Baton Rouge District Conference, Brother Roy Johns, of Baton Rouge, and Brother Louis A Griffin, of New Hope, were granted license to preach. Brother C. V. Vetter, of Kentwood, was recommended for deacon's orders. The Licensing Committee for the district is composed of Revs. J. B. Fulton, J. W. Booth, Thomas H. Mills, and J. S. Rutledge.

Rev. Payton A. Sowell, a superannuate member of the Tennessee Conference who has been living in New Orleans for some time, left last week for Lawrenceburg, Tenn., where he will make his home in the future. Brother Sowell is a vigorous thinker and a gifted writer, as readers of the Advocate can well testify. It has been our privliege to sit at his feet and learn wisdom. We shall miss his welcome visits to the Advocate office.

According to a statement made at the recent General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in America, there are 9,823 churches in the denomination Of these, 4,634 had pastors, 3,271 had stated supplies, and 1,907 were vacant. Eleven were reported as unclassified. No additions on profession of faith were reported by 3,526 churches. There were 36 churches reporting 100 or more additions on profession of faith.

Rev. Felix R. Hill, Jr., presiding elder of the San Antonio District of the West Texas Conference, was recently in New Orleans and honored the Advocate office with a call. Dr. Hill was returning from the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, which he spoke of as a marvelous exhibition of the achievement of Christianity throughout the world. Dr. Hill is well known and greatly beloved in New Orleans, where he served four years as the pastor of Rayne Memorial Church.

A note from Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, presiding elder of the Meridian District, Mississippi Conference, informs us that his wife, after a six weeks' illness, has just undergone a serious operation. She is still in a critical condition, but it is hoped that the worst is past. The sympathy and prayers of the brethren will go out to Brother Thompson and his family in this time of trial. The sickness of his wife has kept Brother Thompson from meeting many of his engagements, but the pastors of the district have been uniformly kind in helping him with his work.

Rev. Wm. B. Van Valkenburgh, of West Springfield, Mass., is visiting his father, Rev. F. D. Van Valkenburgh, and other relatives and friends at the Seashore Camp Grounds. Dr. Van Valkenburgh recently contributed an interesting article to the Daily News of his city concerning the notable life of the late Dr. Anna Howard Shaw. He is peculiarly well qualified to speak of some of the influences that entered into her life, since he served as pastor some years ago in the village in which Dr. Shaw once served in the same capacity, and he learned many interesting facts concerning her from those who knew her in the early days of her active life.

HENS MOULT FAST.

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

MRS. SARAH A. DIAMOND was born on January 11, 1825, in Washington, Adams County, Miss., and died in Franklin Parish, at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. A. D. Moore, near Winnsboro, La., on June 29, 1919, aged 94 years, 5 months and 16 days. She was married to William Diamond when she was 17 years of age. To this union were born eight children—five boys and three girls. Six out of the eight preceded her to the golden shore. Two sons remain, W. B. Diamond, her oldest child, now 76 years of age, and T. D. Diamond. She professed religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, when quite young and lived a consistent life until God called her home. She was living with her granddaughter, Mrs. A. D. Moore, when death came. She leaves fifteen grandchildren, twelve great-grandchildren, and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She lost two of her grandsons in France last year, when they were fighting the Huns. As her pastor, I can say that she was a fine Christian character, a holy woman, ripe for heaven. To be in her presence was an inspiration. She was always cheerful and smiling. She was sick only two or three days when the end came. She had wrought well and finished her work, and said good bye to time and the things of time to be with her Father forever.

Her pastor, S. D. HOWARD.
Winnsboro, La., July 7, 1919.

T. J. CURRY was born on June 13, 1857; died on June 25, 1919. He was converted in his boyhood days, and was a member of the Methodist Church even when a lad. It is not enough to say that Brother Curry was a good man, merely and passively good—he was good for something. He was distinguished for his active, energetic service to the church. Of him it is said he creditably served in almost every official capacity committed to the laity. His goodness was not selfishly hid away in an alabaster box: it was present in and diffused through his daily life. His was a soul of heroic proportions. His faith in God and the Christian religion was absolute, profound, serene. During his long-drawn-out illness, which covered a period of many months, he, knowing the consequence of the malady that had fastened upon him, bore his affliction with sublime heroism. Patient resignation to the inevitable was a characteristic of the sick man. He prayed much; loved the Book, sought and found spiritual comfort therein. As the evening bell tolled, there was no stir of hasty preparation; his voyage was ready and prepared for. Living the long Christian life he did in intimate fellowship with the Father would make it inappropriate to speak of death in connection with the man's going away; but, to use another expression, as it was spoken of the Lord's companion of old, "He walked with God; and he was not; for God took him."

A MEETING AT MAIN STREET CHURCH, WATER VALLEY, MISS.

I helped Brother M. A. Burns in his meting in Water Valley from June 15 to June 26. It was quite hot all through the meeting, which, doubtless, affected the congregations. But we did not have a service that the Holy Spirit was not manifestly present, and often in great power.

Personally, I was much pleased with the future prospect for this church. Brother Burns, the pastor, evidently has the church well in hand. His folks co-operated splendidly in the activities of the meeting. They have in this church some noble, elect women, who are thoroughly consecrated to God and the church. But the thing that was most striking to me was the splendid body of men, some eight or ten, comparatively young men, who are at the head of things, and with push, intelligence and true manhood, they will make Main Street Church count for much in the coming years.

We had a real revival, with 18 accessions as I remember, all on profession of faith. The meeting had its difficulties in the way of hot weather, sickness, and so many men working for the railroad, and yet God greatly blessed the church. The church has definitely decided to build a modern brick church. These noble young men deserve to succeed and they will.

FROM MOORINGSPORT, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: We are getting along nicely up here. I don't think we have anything to complain of, except that the Texas oil fields are about to get all our people. We have lost about half of our membership so far. We are being kept busy writing church letters, and mailing Centenary pledge cards to those we have lost.

Well, we have just finished up our new parsonage, which is valued at $3,500. We have a building which the people are proud of, and most especially the preacher. It has nine rooms. It has a nice, roomy pastor's study, which, as you know, adds much to the preacher's life.

I have received 55 into the church this year. I have had some real, old-time revivals, where the people did all the talking, and the preacher had to keep silent. In one service, the preacher didn't get to go into the pulpit at all; this was the best service I have had this year. After preaching a sermon on the "Witness of the Spirit," a critic said, "You preach too much doctrine." I said, "What shall I preach, then?" I expect to preach, "Repent ye," "Justification by faith," "Witness of the Spirit," "Ye shall stand before the judgment seat," etc., as long as I live, I don't care what the critics may say. The trouble to-day is, we have too many people who want to serve God and the devil, too. They want to dance, play cards, and do every other devilment, and still be called Christians, but this won't stand in the day of judgment.

We will have our meeting here sometime in September, with Brother F. R. Power to do the preaching; we are praying for a great outpouring of the Holy Spirit. R. T. WARE, P. C.

As the Magi came bearing gifts, so do we also bear gifts that relieve want; gifts that are sweet and fragrant with friendship; gifts that breathe love; gifts that mean service; gifts inspired still by the star which shone over the City of David two thousand years ago.—Kate D. Wiggin.

A PROTEST AGAINST SABBATH DESECRATION.

Dear Brother Carley: The little town—Jeanerette—in which I am pastor, has been very prominent of late. All eyes in the State have been directed towards it. Why? Because some say we have had "a circus," others, fond of military parlance, call it "battle," bombs, trench warfare; some have suggested an auditorium, with a platform, ring and gloves for a fisticuff. In reality, it was a feature of an American gubernatorial campaign. But it was also a fair, and all held on a Sunday. There is no need to describe a Sunday fair in Louisiana—your readers know all it means. During the last four years, I have had to stand a running fire of criticism, some real, some in fun, all because I happen to have been born in England, and still cling to many of "my confounded English notions." Whatever England has been, and whatever she lacks, and whatever she may become, thank God, I never have seen, nor ever shall see, if I live another lifetime, an election battle fought on a Sunday.

When, three years or more ago, my name was read out in Annual Conference as sent to Jeanerette, more than one minister cautioned me not to fight the religious observance of Sunday, as "it would be running my head against a stone wall." As if it were possible for an Englishman, cradled in Methodism, to remain silent! I will not take up your valuable space with a long letter. I want to ask one question: Is there not one man in this State who will dare run for Governor that will observe the Sabbath in his campaign? Nay, I will ask another question: Are there not enough Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists — say Protestant church members—who can find such a man and support him? I fought this question in Florida over the election of a mayor for its biggest city, and a Methodist mayor was elected. In Patterson, La., I pleaded for a baseball game on a Saturday with half-holiday, and it has come. "You cannot alter it, Brother Hill, in Louisiana." No, because Protestants support it, and church members aid it, and Methodists are indifferent. In fairness to my church here in this town, let me say they did not attend.

One other note of warning: Thank God, the saloons are closed and prohibition has come, but do you hear what "the man in the street" is saying? "They are cutting off this, and this, and that; what are they going to put in its place?" What is the church's answer? Jesus Christ said, "Repent, repent"—but He put something in its place, or, more correctly, he added something to it—"for the kingdom of Heaven is at hand." Our young people and the men and women, in their social needs and recreation, must be provided for. How? I await the answer from the churches.

F. B. HILL.

Jeanerette, La.

Christ's cure for trouble is very simple. We are not blind to His essentially spiritual meaning when we say that His cure for trouble and fear is mental. The only permanent cure must be wrought upon the mind itself in its attitude towards the source of trouble. Christ's cure is not mental paralysis, stupefaction, a permanent state of intellectual neutrality, carelessness of consequences, but rather a restful faith. First, faith in Christ Himself, which is personal and spiritual; and next a faith in Christ's own faith, and this is mental.—C. C. Albertson.

NUXATED IRON
—MASTER STRENGTH BUILDER OF THE BLOOD

The Power Behind the Strong Sturdy Men and Healthy Beautiful Women of Today

"To make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron" says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system. It often increases the strength of weak, delicate people in two weeks' time. It is estimated that over 3,000,000 people use Nuxated Iron annually as a tonic and blood-builder.

MAKE THIS TEST YOURSELF
And Find Out Where Your Blood Stands

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron recommended and prescribed by physicians is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

A Godsend to Rheumatics.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood. The cause of rheumatism is uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expells the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of your rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price 50c. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.—Adv.

Sunday School

FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The Corinth District Institute will be held at Ripley, Monday, August 11, with a full program and a full day's work. This institute will be held for the benefit of superintendents and teachers.

Write to Mr. H. E. Finger, Ripley, Miss., that you will attend.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"The's consider'ble diff'rence between habit an' instinct. As I see it you foller a instinct 'cause it's borned into you to do it; but you foller a habit 'cause your own or somebody else's sense made you learn. Habit is the result of learnin'—instinct don't require any thinkin' or learnin'."

"The Sunday school teacher who just fills his scholars full of information about religion but don't help 'em to make use of it, won't have those scholars long—they won't graduate, they'll quituate."

"Accordin' to the parable the talents belonged to the householder, an' he just loaned 'em to the servants to be used an' multiplied. I'm wonderin' if we realized our talents b'long to God an' he expects us to multiply 'em by use."

A GREAT MEETING AT CLEVELAND, MISS.

Chaplain W. B. Hogg has been with me in a meeting here. The services were well attended, and great interest manifested. It is estimated that the evening congregations numbered eight hundred people. Services were held in the courthouse square, under the shadetrees.

Some forty united with the church, most of them on profession of faith. The meeting will be of untold good to the town and churches here. Hundreds came, under deep conviction, to be prayed for and to pray. It was like the old camp meeting experiences. God was with us. The Delta people respond to the gospel message.

Chaplain Hogg won all hearts, and he will be long remembered by the people of Cleveland.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON STATE OF THE CHURCH (PORT GIBSON DISTRICT).

The reports of the preachers of the district, while indicating progress in some respects, yet in others show a marked tendency toward retrogression. The paying of church debts, the building of churches and the liberal manner in which most of the charges in the district met their Centenary allotments is evidence that the people love the church, and also of material progress. But the small number of accessions on profession of faith, only 80 from the entire district and 50 of the 80 being the result of a revival at Gibson Memorial, reveals to us that the regular stated preaching of the Word of God by the pastors on the Sabbath day is not bearing fruit as it should. This should cause not only serious reflection, but should send us to our knees in prayer.

During the last thirty years, there has not been a time when greater attention has been paid by the ministry to the forms of church worship and the administration of the Sacraments, and yet if our reports are true we are face to face with spiritual dearth.

Is John Wesley's prophecy to be realized in our day, that Methodism shall remain, but it will be a form without the power of godliness? God forbid. And yet the ancient landmarks the fathers set are being renowned. Family prayer, in years past the daily custom of Methodist people, is now practiced by only a few. The teaching of the Scriptures to the children by the parents in the home is fast becoming obsolete. Many children leave professedly Christian homes for the Sunday school on the Sabbath without ever having studied the portion of the Word of God to be recited. Fasting as required by the Word of God and enjoined by the Discipline of the church is almost entirely given up by our preachers and people.

Therefore resolved, That August 24-31 be set apart as a week of house-to-house campaign for intercessors and the erection of family altars, and the 29th day of August be set apart as a day of fasting and prayer.

We are hoping and trusting that the League of Intercession, inaugurated by the Centenary, will revive again vital piety and the spirit of prayer throughout the church.

Methodist preachers generally are not pessimists, but optimists, and when they cry out against worldliness in the church their voices should be heeded. The reports have been unanimous in their condemnation of the dance. The latest modern dances are so indecent that a New Orleans paper, The Morning Star, devoted to the interest of the Roman Catholic Church, declared that no good Catholic could countenance them. Some brand them as products of the underworld. The conference heard with alarm and distress the reported desecration of the Sabbath day by the unholy use of the automobile, depleting both the morning and evening services in the church. Some years ago, the religious life of the people of Vermont ebbed until many of the churches were closed for lack of congregations. It was then the Governor of the State, a Christian himself, issued a proclamation calling the people of Vermont to a day of fasting and prayer, that God might be pleased to renew again fervent piety among the churches. Shall we do less? Do not the tendencies of this day, the dance craze, the spirit of unrest created by the turmoil of war, the system of education in our universities, separate our people from a simple faith in the supernatural in the Word of God, and the lack of parental control in the home call for a day of fasting and prayer?

Resolved, That the pastors of the Port Gibson District be urged to preach a special sermon on family religion and the duty of parental authority in determining the colleges their children shall attend.

Resolved, That in pastoral visiting and preaching they unstintedly condemn the modern dance as grossly irreligious and damaging to the character of our people.

AT THE CENTENARY.

Exhibits and Demonstrations.

Exhibits showing the homes, temples, shrines, music and songs of different lands were arranged by the skillful use of curtains and beaver board to picture as to be truly typical of the country represented. In all these places the customs and costumes of the people were shown by means of pageants, demonstrations, impersonations, stereopticon and movie. So great was the zeal of those who would have the needs of non-Christian nations made known, that if one went to rest for a few minutes in the air and sunshine, he would most likely witness a Moslem funeral with its train of mourners, or a Korean wedding party passing by. Camels and elephants carried passengers about and posed patiently for photographs. Donkeys, goats, monkeys and cocks added to the realistic side of life. Hospitals and schools set forth the practical work done for the bodies and brains of men, while exquisite paintings and embroideries, dainty enough to revive one's faith in fairies, were to be seen in different booths.

Of especial interest to our church people was the exhibit of the Hindu kindergarten. A group of Japanese children were brought from our work in Oakland and during the two hours each day that they had their kindergarten exercises the crowds gathered around to admire these dear little ones. Many who watched them play their games and heard them sing their songs determined that all the children everywhere should know the One who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

One of the most impressive demonstrations given in the buildings was the India Mass Movement. The time was that missionaries in India prayed that the door to the hearts of the people might be opened. Now their prayer has been answered. It is no unusual occurrence for men representing twenty villages to come to the missionaries begging for a preacher. The preachers, missionaries and workers in India are overworked. They cannot answer the calls that come to them. When a delegation comes, asking for a teacher to tell the villagers about Christ, the missionary has to send them away without help in many cases. The people are distressed when they find that no help is coming, for they have destroyed their idols and cut the sacred lock of hair and cannot go back to their own religious faith. These returned missionaries at the Celebration are telling by demonstration over and over again and again how the people of India are coming in masses and how greatly they need missionaries and workers to go to them and tell them the glad tidings which they long to hear. Schools are needed to train the younger generation so that when they are grown they may go out and evangelize their own people.

Another demonstration in the African building showed the treatment of the sick; the family tried charms, ground tiger claws and dead men's eyes in vain; then the witch doctor was called, but his incantations were fruitless, and only the timely arrival of the Christian doctor saved the patient. Here also a native wedding was shown. A young man came and overlooked the daughters of the family and chose the one he thought could do the most work. The father and brother of the family were bargained with, and when they had run the price as high as they felt the young man could be made to pay, the daughter was sent away with him.

And thus it was by acting out the life and customs of the people of the countries of the world, that the great need of the gospel was made vivid before the eyes of the thousands and thousands who witnessed this world in miniature. On the fourth of July, 125,000 people passed through the gates of the Exposition, and from that time on the crowds seemed not to be on the decrease. Thousands were unable to witness the great pageant because of the numbers present.—Exchange.

WOMAN'S DAY AT THE CELEBRATION.

The work of the Woman's Missionary Societies of both churches was graphically portrayed on Woman's Day, not only by the strong speeches that were made from the platform, but also by the impressive processional of the loyal and consecrated missionaries and members of missionary societies who were present. The banner which headed the procession had upon it a symbolic figure of the Woman's Missionary Movement encircling the world. Following the banner marched the Conference Officers of the missionary societies, who preceded a long line of the membership of these societies. The meeting was presided over by Miss Belle H. Bennett, the president of the Woman's Missionary Council, M. E. Church, South. It is a notable fact that Miss Bennett was the only woman who was a member of the Centenary Commission. Her appointment to the commission was due to the fact that at the time of her election the Board of Missions of the M. E. Church, South, with one exception, was the only Board that admitted women to its membership.—Exchange.

LIFE SERVICE AT THE CENTENARY.

The response of the young people at the Centenary for life service was one of the great outstanding features during the first two weeks of the Celebration and ten young people signed life service pledges, and the number will be increased. Workers in the Life Service Department said as many as thirty interviews in one day with prospective missionaries. The high-water mark of the Celebration was probably reached on Sunday, July 6, when Bishop Henderson put three propositions to the young people asking them to respond by coming forward to the platform. The first call was for those who knew that if they did God's will they would be led to the foreign field; the second was for those who were willing to respond if it should be God's will for them to serve in the home land; the third was for those who were willing for God to direct their lives into whatever channel he might choose. The response was spontaneous, and at each call masses of young people looked forward without a moment's hesitation until the platform and the adjoining inclines were filled. The number that came was between four hundred and fifty and five hundred young people.—Exchange.

METHODIST DORMITORIES.

It has been said that the State University has been the neglected continent in the Methodist world. In 1916, 25,000 Methodist young people were enrolled in State schools throughout the country. Approximately 11,000 of these were young women. To meet this need the Centenary asking: have included funds for the building of Methodist dormitories at State schools. The work is proceeding rapidly at the State University in Oklahoma. The Board of Control for the Methodist Girls' Dormitory met in Oklahoma City, elected officers and perfected plans to finance the new dormitory. The Treasurer's report showed $12,576 in hand with a subscription list of $15,000 which will be available when the contract is let.

PRAYER REMEMBRANCES.

A Book of Prayer Remembrances convenient in size and attractive in style has been prepared to aid auxiliary members in the work of Intercession. It contains suggestions for objects of prayer and also blank pages intended to be filled with the names of those you may wish to remember daily. Prayer Remembrances will make an attractive gift. Order for yourself and your friend of Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn. Price, 25 cents.

PRAYER REMINDERS.

Pray for the young people of our church who have decided to give their lives to missionary service at home or abroad.

Pray for those who are trying to make the decision for life service. Hundreds have heard the call at the Centenary and in the Summer Conferences. Ask that God's will may be done in their lives.

Pray for the young people who are now hearing God's voice in making the decision for their life work that they may listen to the call and do His will.

YOU DO MORE WORK.

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, lassitude, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

Freckles

The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.

Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful. KINTHO MFG. CO., Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

OAKLAND TABERNACLE MEETING.

Dear Brother Carley: We have just closed our Oakland Tabernacle meeting. This project was started four years ago by Brother J. L. Cady, the pastor of the Greensburg charge that year, and some of the far-seeing laymen, as a central meeting for the Day and Center churches, the largest churches on the charge, and for any or all of the other churches that would co-operate in the enterprise.

The first two meetings were held under a brush arbor; last year we built a tabernacle that will seat 500 people. The location is ideal with one exception, i. e., water supply, which is not quite sufficient even for Methodists. The meeting the three previous years was held by our most efficient and popular Conference evangelist, Rev. H. T. Young, who did the preaching well and endeared himself to the people for the very work's sake. His works do follow him.

This year we secured the service of Dr. John Paul, of Wilmore, Ky. His messages gripped the mind and heart of the people. The meeting was well attended by people from every section throughout the parish and the adjoining parishes and from the State of Mississippi. Our people were greatly blessed. We did not put on a special campaign for membership; while that was looked after or received due attention, we received 3 on profession of faith. This, no doubt, is due to the fact that a large per cent of the people of this section are members of the church.

Special attention was given to, and laid upon, a godly life, the building up of the faith of our people, and quickening of the church life, in which we were more successful than we estimate or can tell till we go hence.

A great number professed to have found that peace for which they had longed, i. e., peace with God. Others were reclaimed from their backsliding, among them some of our old brethren, and many were definitely blessed. More than 50 went on record that they would erect family altars, and many gave their hands that they would be more loyal to Christ and His church.

The Advocate's interest was looked after and we secured more than a dozen new and renewal subscriptions. Three of the new we are sending at this time; the others I hope to have in hand in the next two weeks. I find it pays in many ways to circulate our church paper and all other good literature.

Dr. Paul goes from here to Old Scottsville camp meeting for the next ten days' battle, thence to Indian Springs, (Ga.) camp meeting, and will return to Wilmore for his school work.

PROFANING THE SABBATH.

By W. H. Patton.

Owing to illness of the pastor, there were no preaching services at the local Baptist church last Sunday. I went to the Methodist church to hear Dr. Huntley preach.

It is one of the requirements that the General Rules of "The United Societies" organized by Mr. Wesley in 1739 be read once each year, and this Dr. Huntley did, they being in part as follows:

"There is only one condition previously required of those who desire admission into these societies, a desire to flee from the wrath to come, and to be saved from their sins, but wherever this is really fixed in the soul, it will be shown by its fruits. It is therefore expected of all who continue therein, that they should continue to evidence their desire of salvation; first by doing no harm, by avoiding evil of every kind, especially that which is most generally practiced, such as taking the name of God in vain; profaning the day of the Lord, either by doing ordinary work therein or by buying or selling; or drunkenness, or drinking spirituous liquors except in cases of necessity," etc.

"It is expected of all who desire to continue to evidence their desire of salvation: thirdly, by attending upon all the ordinances of God, such as the public worship of God; the ministry of the Word, either read or expounded; the Supper of the Lord; family and private prayer; searching the Scriptures, and fasting or abstinence." The Rules close with these words: "We will admonish him of the error of his ways; we will bear with him for a season, but if then he repent not, he hath no more place among us. We have delivered our own souls."

Brother Huntley commented at length on the first two named. He spoke of hearing of one expert cusser residing here, and of there being some aggravated cases of profaning the Sabbath here; he dwelt quite awhile on it. He was as hard on the buyer of goods on the Sabbath as he was on the seller, calling upon a lawyer to know if they were not particeps criminis, and he assented.

So many of the church members make a practice of buying cold drinks, ice cream, cigars, etc., on the Sabbath, and are so indifferent about attending the stated meeting of the church, and the officers of the law "go blind" to the violations of the laws of God and State and town, that it is disheartening to the ministers and Sunday school superintendents.

That evening I heard the presiding elder, Dr. Thompson, preach a fine sermon from 2d Cor. 13:14, where he showed Christ's redeeming love and comforting influence of the Holy Ghost in the Christian life.

Our dear Savior was the meekest and most patient character recorded in history, but even he was so aroused by the desecration of God's temple that he drove the money changers out with a scourage; and the slumbering anger of God-loving men and women will yet break forth and in their righteous wrath they will put a stop to the flagrant and open, boastful desecration of God's day, and enforce that great commandment, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

Shubuta, Miss., July 17, 1919.

It is a very easy thing to toss a copper to a beggar on the street; it is generally an easier thing than not to do it. Yet love is just as often in the withholding. We purchase relief from the sympathetic feelings roused by the spectacle of misery at a copper's cost. It is too cheap—too cheap for us, and often too dear for the beggar. If we really loved him we would either do more for him or less.—Henry Drummond.

Hens Moult Fast

E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered a scientific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. The tonic is called "More Eggs" and a package of it is enough to carry the ordinary chicken raiser over the entire moulting season. First to lay is first to pay. "Since using 'More Eggs' I get forty to fifty eggs a day, instead of eight or nine," writes A. P. Woodward, of St. Cloud, Fla. A million dollar bank guarantees that you can have your money back if you want it. So, you don't take any risk. Send $1.00 for a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic. If you want to hurry the moult and get more eggs, act at once; it means more profit for you. Don't wait, but order to-day. Send $1 to-day to E. J. Reefer, 4th Floor, Poultry Bldg., Kansas City, Missouri. Or ask Mr. Reefer for his valuable poultry book free, that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE ENLARGED HORIZON.

The higher we stand, the farther we see. We may have clearness of vision under all circumstances, but our range is limited by the elevation of our viewpoint. It means much to see clearly; it means much, also, to see far. Broad sympathy is not characteristic of narrow vision. Intensity of conviction we must have if our lives are to count for very much in the world, but catholicity of spirit does not interfere with usefulness—it ministers to it. World-mindedness is one of the marks of true greatness. Christ did not preach a provincial gospel; Paul was not disobedient to the vision of the Macedonian man; John Wesley took the world as his parish. These are times when we need to know not only how "the other half lives," but also how it feels and how it thinks. We cannot attain that knowledge by living in a hole or by working in a groove. Reading a good book may lift us to a mountain peak; hearing a messenger from afar may enable us to catch a glimpse of purple-topped hills out on the rim of things; shaking hands with a stranger may cause to blow upon us the refreshing breezes from vast seas beyond. By whatever means we may, we should constantly widen the range of our vision and of our interests.

INTERESTING TO SIGHTSEERS.

It is understood that the Prince of Wales will make a visit to the United States in the near future. Municipalities all over the country are presenting requests through the Department of State to be included in the Prince's itinerary throughout the nation. It will be interesting to our democratic people to look upon and pay homage to a real prince. We do not recall that he has rendered any special service to humanity—but that is a small matter, since he was born "with a gold spoon in his mouth." We honor heroes—but we dearly love a scion of the royal line. We understand that the Canadian Parliament has recently abolished all orders of nobility.

MIGHT AS WELL.

The House recently voted to take a recess from August 2 to September 9. The recess resolution was supported by the leaders of both parties. There was some opposition, however. One member expressed himself rather vigorously as follows: "I don't charge it against either side, but I want to say that the high cost of living has got to have attention from somebody, and at once. You have got to do something." Since Congress has not done anything, and since it does not seem to have anything in mind to do, we suppose it might as well take a recess until the trouble "blows over," or something "turns up." Doubtless the members of the House will be glad of a little leisure in which to frame plausible excuses to their constituents for their failure to do anything more than "investigate." In the meantime, the profiteers are waxing fat.

WHAT WILL THEY SEE?

The chairman of the House Immigration Committee has proposed that the Committee visit the Pacific coast and the Mexican and the Canadian borders to study immigration questions, particularly the smuggling of aliens into the United States. We are sure the Committee would have an enjoyable trip—at public expense—and doubtless its report would embody various suggestions and ideas picked up along the way. But if the members of Congress are unable to see the need of legislation concerning some of the vital issues that are confronting the American people to-day, restriction of profiteering, for example, we wonder how much the members of that Committee would see at the end of a journey across the continent. We respectfully suggest that they can serve the country very well at present by remaining in Washington and proceeding to "saw wood" from the pile that has assumed vast proportions. It is human nature, though, to want to investigate things away from home, regardless of conditions near at hand.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT.

Feats of manual dexterity are performed as the result of long and faithful practice. The performer exhibits such ease of manner and skill in manipulation that the onlooker is tempted to believe that he himself could soon acquire similar perfection. But he is sadly in error. No pearl of great price can be obtained merely for the asking; work—long-continued, hard and painstaking effort—is the price of success. All the more is this true of the higher virtues. Character is not formed overnight. Conversion may take place in a moment, but the crowning excellencies of faith and hope and love reach their fullest development after years of patience and prayer and the practice of doing good. Back of every great achievement is the period of preparation. Heroes are not made in an hour, though they may show their greatness in a moment of crisis. Well may we ponder those profoundly significant words: "Let us not be weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap—if we faint not."

RACE RIOTS.

The recent rioting in Chicago is to be regretted from every point of view. It has unsettled business to some extent, intensified an acute economic situation, and made more perplexing the difficult problem of racial adjustment in this country. We do not believe at all that the occurrence of these disorders in Chicago is indicative of the normal attitude of the races toward each other any more than we believe the occurrence of a lynching in the South indicates that attitude in this section of the country. They do show one thing, however, that is elemental in the Southern viewpoint: there is a radical difference between the races that cannot be overcome by any possible process of philosophizing about social solidarity or moralizing about the great doctrine of brotherhood. This conception does not at all mean that prejudice is to be developed or maintained, or that strict justice is not to be observed in all social relations. It means that the white man is a white man wherever found, and that the sanctity of his racial instinct is inviolable in any quarter of the globe. We would not taunt our friends above the Line with the suggestion that those who live in glass houses should not throw stones; but we do call upon them to recognize the fact that when they are brought face to face with conditions as they actually exist they feel and think and act pretty much as we do. There is this difference, however; we are satisfied when the guilty individual has been punished.

WOMEN IN POLITICS.

We do not know to what extent women will take part in politics when full suffrage is granted them—as it unquestionably will be. They will determine the extent of that participation for themselves, and we may be very sure that they will be a force to be reckoned with in the settlement of any question in which they wish to have a voice. We believe that the great majority of them will uniformly be found on the right side of every moral question. We are encouraged in this belief by the recent action of the Equal Suffrage League of Memphis, Tenn., in calling upon local candidates for office to express themselves upon certain matters of great local interest. The matters specified are the following: violation of the speed limit, by which many deplorable accidents have occurred, and the lives of children are constantly endangered; the prohibition of loitering, with special attention to boys between 16 and 21 years of age; the appointment of women police officers, to deal with certain conditions which cannot be properly handled otherwise; the keeping of a probation officer of the Juvenile Court on duty until midnight, with authority to keep boys and girls away from places that are a menace to their morals; the severe punishment of those who are guilty of adulterating milk; strict enforcement of the prohibition laws; careful police supervision of the parks of the city, to prevent their being used for improper purposes. Every one of these matters is of great importance, and most of them deal with moral issues. The women will be likely to get what they want.

PLACE OF MEETING OF LOUISIANA CONFERENCE CHANGED.

Rev. Briscoe Carter, presiding elder of the Alexandria Dist., Louisiana Conference, asks us to announce, upon request of Bishop Kilgo, that after consultation with all parties involved, the place of holding the Louisiana Annual Conference has been changed from Oakdale to Ruston, La.

LETTERS TO THE PREACHERS AND METHODIST PEOPLE OF THE LOUISIANA AND THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCES.

By Bishop [illegible]

IV.

My dear brethren: I come now to call your attention to the supreme subject of the office of the Holy Spirit in the divine administration of redeeming grace. It must be all essential in our thought and in all our plans the essential truth that the Holy Spirit is the sole executive of the divine kingdom and will in all things in every realm. In the beginning He moved on the face of the waters and caused chaos into orderly creation. He created the heavens and the earth. He created the church and in all the history of redemption He and He alone, has been the immediate and effective interpreter and executor of Christ in Scripture. Without Him preaching is nothing more than sounding brass. We know it as others. This is the final reality with which we must reckon in all our endeavors.

One of the things which astonished my Christ in His disciples is to convict the world of sin. "Of sin, because they believe not on me." Sin is not an idea, it is an experience. Its reality is to be read wrong in the will of the Holy God, and it is realized as an experience, or it is not realized in any sense. Remorse and suffering and spiritual anguish resulting from sin will never produce a sense of sin. They may stir a sense of horror at the effects of sin and suffering, but such horrors are distinctly away from the realities of sin. Sin rides, sin is wholly a personal attitude and can only be realized through its history in conscious persons. All the glories above, all the heavens all the universal ministry, and all the combined influences of the race can never convict a soul of sin. This is distinctly the work of the Holy Spirit. It is His purpose to make men sensible of the fact; it is absolutely no process by which such a result can be produced in the unregenerate.

His approach to the inner thoughts and motives of spiritual beings is immediate. He enters within the sacred realms of the consciousness and delivers His judgments directly on the conscience, bartering remorse with, and an awful feeling of wrath upon the soul. Men suddenly wake under a sermon, a song, a prayer, an exhortation, or some other circumstance, or under no obvious circumstances, to know with dreadful reality that they are sinners, rebels against God and at war with his will. From this there is no escape. The conviction has seized them with the weight of eternal bitterness. They may try to run away, but it goes with them. They may try to sleep, but it keeps them sleepless all the night. They may try to delude themselves with all sorts of sophistry, but they know they lie. They are sinners and this is the outcry of every voice within them. This is the work of the Holy Ghost, and when He does this work, altars are crowded with broken-hearted men, women, and children, and they repent unto God with repentance that needeth not to be repented of. Unless such results attend our ministry, we only enact a farce the shame of which is only heightened by the solemnity of the name in which it is perpetrated.

You and we have it now with the remembrance sacred feature of a revival of religion. An organized round of an elected program may be run through a community, and it is probable it will call such a performance a revival of religion, but a revival of religion is the supreme achievement of the Holy Ghost. In how few may be universally admitted as a brother who sent to be my presence. "Of course the Holy Ghost is taken for granted." That is just what He is not. He is a person with His own infinite and sovereign will, and as a reservoir of spiritual energy is to be united in and all as we in vain or in spiritual success. Because being a person, He is the most sensitive person in the Godhead. His regard Him a personal interest. To grieve Him is fatal to all church efficiency. The final success of any church work is with Him and even the seeming success of the church may be purchased with most dreadful calamities because of His absence.

It is important beyond words to express that we discern His will and we have submit His administration in our ministries. We can not ignore His sovereign liberty without grieving Him, and thus we may by living a schedule by which He must work. He will not be subservient to our orders and plans. He has always been a hindrance to which He would not submit. All the great adventures of the church have been in the highly unreasonable courses and above the chairs of orthodoxy. He exercises the freedom of the wind, and thus we must expect.

He will not be in our ministry if we rely wholly or partially upon other means than Him for our success. Advertisement is good for commerce and other worldly enterprises and within certain limits is permissible in a revival. Organized services and the employment of large agencies are not in themselves grievous unto Him. But we to the preacher who says, "I am bound to have a great meeting. I have the best preacher available, the best choir leader in the land, the best selected and trained choir, the weather is fine, my people are enthusiastic and everything is propitious." Everything except the one and only person in whose absence there can be no meeting and that is the presence of the Holy Spirit, and now that the preacher has put his trust in, or partially in, things of his own arrangement, it is very certain he will not have the Spirit. His Lordship has been set aside or ignored. There may be a religious commotion in town for ten days or more, but there will be no revival and every one of them in town will know something is wrong and what that something is. The direst thing on earth is a revival season without revival power. Do not make this violent error. If we are not willing to trust absolutely the Holy Spirit we are in no fit to attempt a revival meeting. Of this I am as certain as a human being can be certain of any ultimate truth.

And let us remember we can not adopt unholy means through which the Holy Spirit is called on to administer truth. Leaving girls and boys singing in a revival meeting is a piece of impudence which the Spirit of Truth will not tolerate. I had a meeting to fail recently and then as even now I believe because of godless young folks packed into the choir, and nothing I could say relieved the situation. A dancing woman singing "Jesus, I my cross have taken, All to leave and follow thee," is a brazen falsehood that will quench the Spirit in a moment. He is the Holy Spirit, and let us keep that in mind. Perhaps if some of us search deep and squarely into our own lives, we may find why He has withdrawn from us and our work is not as powerful as it was other times. If so, let us throw far from us the sin that grieves Him.

Then how may we have His presence? Every true preacher of the gospel earnestly desires Him. I have good confidence that not a single one of my brethren is indifferent to His presence with him in all his work. How can we have Him. The Spirit reveals the things of God, the deep things of God, to them that love the Lord Jesus Christ. He does not accompany the enemies, or even the strangers, to the Lord. Love is the condition of His presence; it is that to which He speaks the things of love; it is love without which we can not see Him. We measure our endowment of spirit by our devotion to the Lord. An unlimited devotion to the Lord gives us boundless realms in the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Intercession, consecration, all unselfishness is what He will [illegible] divine.

Love of the Lord with all possible emphasis is the confession of this article, but our own personal devotion to the redeeming Master will demonstrate if our will is the will of the Father, is the work of which a personal Christ calls for some or that it [illegible]. In our every [illegible] ministry is to be [illegible] by prayer, by our daily [illegible] people to be wholly [illegible] spirit from all things of the world and solitarily devoted to Christ and [illegible] to the will of His Father. This is a consuming concern for power.

FROM LAKE JUNALUSKA, N. C.

Greetings of the Advocate and its readers from the summer capital of Methodism in the "land of the sky." Truly it is good to be here for Junaluska seems a veritable mount of the Lord, where the Spirit moves in mighty power and speaks in accents unmistakable to the listening ear. "Beautiful for situation" beyond all words is the heavenly spot in the heart of the Blue Ridge mountains. Nature has covered it with a thousand charms, living and abounding it for its high mission as the center of a great religious movement—the sacred and gathering place of our beloved Methodism. Every close student of the Lord, who considers the rise of a Southern Methodist assembly and whose [illegible] as its permanent meeting place, were led and inspired by the Lord. Only high and holy thoughts can fill and satisfy the heart in such an environment. The poetic and exalted speech of the Psalmists seems the only fitting expression for the majesty of reverence worship. Thanksgiving and praise which surge through the soul. Even that falls short of a fully adequate response to the majesty of God as it is enthroned upon the mountains and in the glory as it is interpreted in the shimmering beauty of the lake.

Fortunate indeed is the Methodist pilgrim who finds his way to this beauty-spot in the mountains this summer during one of his church. Here he enjoys his physical rest in the pure mountain air and to refresh his soul with high communion with the Father and in Christian fellowship with kindred minds. What can [illegible] felt as he [illegible] such spiritual inspiration as indeed "like to that above"?

The often heard-weary Methodist preacher who can steal a while away from the cares of a busy pastorate in the heated duty valleys below to this mount of inspiration, finds strength for the tired body rest and exhilaration for his soul. Thanks to his considerate and generous parishioners the pastor of Shelby Miss.—[illegible] and his wife [illegible] is permitted to enjoy the wondrous privileges of a month's vacation at Lake Junaluska.

That splendid body of men which this writer has the privilege of teaching—the Business Men's Bible Class of the Sunday school in Shelby—gave [illegible] the joyous surprise of her life in the form of a generous purse, providing for the [illegible] and much-needed season of rest and inspiration. Two liberal-hearted laymen were equally kind to their pastor. So here we are with a song of praise in our hearts and thanksgiving upon our lips. Such evidence of the appreciation and good will of our people is a powerful challenge to the best that is in us; and impels us to renewed consecration and service. "Truly the Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

The conferences at the Junaluska Assembly this season are wonderful in the character and scope of their work. Many of the brightest luminaries of Methodism, both from the home and foreign fields, are lending inspiration to the occasion.

The Centenary flood-tides, which ran so high at Columbus, Ohio, are now flowing outward over the entire country. A mighty current of this spirit has found its way to Junaluska, to the enrichment of the Assembly programs and work.

Everywhere there is evident the high purpose to heed the Master's divine law of consecration, and "gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost."

The Epworth League conference, which is now in session, can but make a great contribution to the spiritual life of the young people of our church. I doubt not that to many it will prove a Mount of Transfiguration, where the Christ and life-service to his cause shall be so glorified as to compel life-long obedience to the "heavenly vision."

The wonderful ministry here of Dr. F. S. Parker, of the Epworth League Board; of Rev. C. G. Hounshell, Educational Secretary; of Rev. R. S. Stewart, Missionary to Japan; of Rev. H. R. Bardwell, President of Candler College, in Cuba, supplemented by the presence and help of other consecrated workers with the Leaguers, can not fail to bring forth abundant fruitage to the glory of God. Their messages fall with marvelous power upon the hearts of old and young alike.

The Assembly orchestra and choir, under the capable leadership of Rev. Jas. B. Grambling, of Shreveport, La., are making a very enjoyable contribution to the pleasure and the spiritual uplift of the conferences.

The Chautauqua members of the season are providing delightful, wholesome and cultured entertainment from time to time. Only the highest-class platform attractions are offered Junaluska audiences.

The Sunday school conference, which is to be the greatest gathering of the season here, opens on next Wednesday, July 23. This is scheduled to bring together an unusually brilliant galaxy of instructors, preachers, lecturers, and Christian workers. It proposes to set the highest standard of intensive study and work ever yet attained by the Sunday school forces of Southern Methodism. But of that we shall, perhaps, hear more anon.

With cordial good wishes, and Christian greetings, Mr. Editor, I am sincerely,

MRS. J. M. WYATT.

THAT EDITORIAL.

By Rev. James H. Felts.

Mr. Editor: Some of your editorials please me greatly. Sometime since, you "shot at me." More, YOU HIT ME. For a long time I thought to play innocent, and say, "He didn't touch me." But I havn't succeeded in getting all the shot out. The innocent role becomes increasingly difficult. Even my best friends say I am noisy.

"When the mortar is thin you have to throw harder to make it stick"—Davis.

"Some men expend a prodigious amount of energy in accomplishing a very small task. That is their affair; but they must be content for the world to value them by what they accomplish rather than by the noise they make"—N. O. Advocate.

Phew! You may not have had a special target before you, but I am hit. I can locate others. Sermons (?) made up of "sweetened wind," provoking "perfectly lovely," "a breath from the land of Araby the blest." Cold tongue dissertations on "The Whyness of the What;" sleep producers guaranteed to cure insomnia. Were you speaking the truth in love, puncturing a plug hat, or just using a slipper where nature intended?

"The noise they make." I don't feel lonesome, Mr. Editor, I just feel guilty. "Misery loves company"—AND COMPANY I HAVE! Look at that new P. E., walking like a thoroughbred, presiding like an old hand, and making a noise like an E-L-E-PHANT. Surely, you have "hung" on the burning words of the evangelist who was the greatest preacher of his age. Havn't heard of him since you "hung." Then you must have pitied yourself because of the ignorance indicated in not knowing the best known leader of men in the country. Also, there was the case of Brother Blank who captured a whole town in about four weeks, and—MOVED THE FOLLOWING FALL. Nor have you forgotten Brother Catchem, the brilliant star of the first magnitude, who preached like a bishop. The particular bishop is not mentioned. We would know more of the youngster's preaching ability if we knew what bishop was referred to. When it comes to preaching, some of our bishops—ah, excuse me, Mr. Editor, I had nearly forgotten Brother Scholarly. He makes a fe How think of a second-hand encyclopedia.

It was an interesting cabinet meeting, the late Bishop Hoss presiding. A well known P. E. was speaking "dissertationally" on the merits of one of his men. Incidentally, he was nominating him for a mighty good place in another man's district. The other elder quietly remarked, "If he is so good as all that, Mr. President, suppose you place him in station Blank in the brother's own district." The bishop: "That would seem to be a most fitting place for him. Put him down there, Mr. Secretary." The chin music ceased. A wail, long drawn out, followed. "Bishop, my dear Bishop, that would never do. He is the longest-winded man in the Conference, never knows when to stop, and is as dry as dust." Selah.

Young folks like noise. Make-believe appeals to them because they have fertile imaginations. Many of us get by with it, "Heap Big Noise" sounds like something doing. And this noisitis is not confined to the "night-shirt brigade," sir. The animalcule sometimes found under a plug hat and a swallow-tail coat, sporting a swag-belly well swaddled in silk, often catches the disease. Instead of putting crape on the chin in token of a defunct brain, white hair appears. Overwork, sir, just overwork. Talk, talk, talk. The engine runs away but the car goes nowhere. One thing is certain, the real doers are in the minority. Big headlines do not always appear in the papers because of their doings, either.

We killed enough Germans, on paper, during the war to repopulate a world. We have killed sin often enough, on paper, to fill the maw of the infernal regions. We report "out" in the middle of the year often enough, on paper, to make a missionary to the cannibals shout, but the boys in the home fields do not find it out from the treasurer. We have heard of whole towns' being saved so often that it is no surprise to hear of their being saved again another year.

Experience has taught me, to say nothing of observation, to prefer following a man who has done more than he told. When a man strains his diaphragm telling how patriotic he is, I get uneasy. I fear, when doing time comes, he will prove to be a flamboyant fizgig. And, I can't get enthusiastic when a man tells me how to run my charge who has never made any special progress in that field himself. Evidently some of us havn't enough steam to "run and whistle at the same time"—so we just whistle.

One of these days we will get away from hyperbole (pronounced HIGH-PER-BOWL by college men) when reporting simple facts, and speak the truth in love. Fuss and feathers do not make a bird. Beard and britches do not make a man. Sound and substance are sometimes as far apart as the hee-haw of a donkey and the treble note of a mock-bird. God made them both, but the one is less musical than the other.

I thank you, Mr. Editor, for that special remark among the many remarks. It was a hot shot. It hit me. It did me good. More than once I have been "thundering away" since reading that squib, when the thought of it sobered me, quieted me, caused me to lower my voice and put more sense into my message. Given a chance, I believe it would even put fresh air under plug hats and make D. D.'s "sit up and take notice."

THE MORE EXCELLENT WAY.

By Rev. S. J. Davies.

The apostle uses this phrase at the close of the 12th Chapter in his first letter to the church at Corinth, and then breaks forth in words of ever living grace and beauty incomparable elsewhere in literature. It is confessedly the work of a master, the loftiest reaches of redeeming love, the greatest thing among the great. How its cadences live and sing in the heart and memory of God's children! For in this lyric, the highest note of gospel love and life is sounded. It lives, throbs and pulses with the vast movement of saving grace and holy passion. This message is the hope of the world to-day, as it ever has been since the day of the ascension from the hill in Galilee. No uncertain note is sounded in Paul's gospel in any part of his writings. His is a message of victory, since it is a message of faith and hope.

Bishop John C. Kilgo's clarion call to our preachers upon the efficiency and power of the spoken word should claim the attention of all. Great movements in the world, past and present, whether they be for good or evil, are propagated more widely and successfully through the medium of human speech than in other ways. From the soapbox ranter to the senator, this statement is evidenced. Our great President places before the world splendid state papers, rich in thought, pure in dicton, giving the conclusions of himself and fellow-statesmen on the momentous issues of the day now stirring the hearts of men. Yet he sees fit to enforce final convincement of these questions by speaking before Senate and people. Why leave the desk for the forum? Is it not because he full well knows, that in the voice of the living man, Truth lives, moves, and has its being? Expressed in strong, sympathetic speech, crystallized in the master man, in the cadence of his voice, with all the skill of one trained in schools and scholarship, the triumph for his cause is assured. Much is said of the power of the press. Yet it eagerly follows the train of the orator in pulpit, hall, or on the public platform. When a real orator speaks, men are moved and stirred to action, as no news leader can or may influence them. Great sermons linger in our memory, but who remembers the editorial in last Sunday's Times? It is through preaching, the power of the gospel that God has appointed that the world be saved, and not through your money, your fads, and fancies.

Preaching, says Phillips Brooks, is "declaring Truth through personality." So, when the personality is absent, it is a mere Barmecide feast, a shadow of the substance. Music charms and soothes, but eloquence, the loftiest reach and swing of human speech, breaks down opposition, and, like some cleansing, sweeping flood, bears all before it. "Preaching is a man's job;" you are right, Bishop. It takes all the virile strength of a man, all his brain energy, all his nerve force, and all the help he can get from Almighty God to do in the right manner, and it is never done rightly unless God and man are united in the message and deliverance. Better than the dream of the alchemist, does your true preacher transmute revealed Truth into the gold of life

Some churches are crying, too often like children in the dark, give us a "mixer," or an "organizer," or a "financier." Yet we have more company than we can meet, more societies and fads than we can attend, and just about as much money as men can safely handle. When I attend church I am not going to a concert; I want to hear a preacher preach, preach the unsearchable riches of Christ, preach the terror and penalty of violated law, the glory and triumph of redeeming love, the comforting sense of sins forgiven, the blessed witness of the Spirit, and the assurance of sonship in the faith. This alone makes life and living worth while.

PROF. A. G. SANDERS ELECTED TO CHAIR OF ROMANCE LANGUAGES IN MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

Millsaps College has been fortunate in securing Prof. A. G. Sanders of Emory and Henry College to fill the Chair of Romance Languages vacated by the death in France of Dr. J. M. Burton.

Prof. Sanders is a native of Tennessee and a graduate of Dr. Wm. Rapp of Maryville University. After three years of study at Southwestern University in Texas, he went to Yale and graduated from Yale in 1907 with the degree of B. A.

Prof. A. G. Sanders.

He then spent three years at the University of Oxford, England, and received the degree of B. A. in the Romantics. In 1914 he received the degree of M. A. from the University of Oxford.

Returning from Oxford in 1911, he spent two years in the Yale Graduate School, after which he was for one year Acting Professor of Greek in Emory College, Ga. For the past six years he has been Professor of Modern Languages in Emory and Henry College, Va.

A born Southerner, of distinguished ancestry, trained in two of the oldest and most famous universities in the United States and England, with a record of success in teaching in two excellent colleges, and a profound scholar in both ancient and modern languages, Prof. Sanders comes to Millsaps under the most flattering auspices and with bright prospects of success.

His family consists of his wife and himself, and they will be a welcome addition to the cultured society of Jackson, as well as an added strength to the College. A. F. WATKINS.

SHALL WE SET A GOAL IN THE COMING REVIVAL?

By Rev. O. E. Goddard, D. D.

Human beings are so constituted that they will work more intensely for a definite goal than they will for a vague and indefinite end. With a definite objective they can mark progress and take courage and go forward. In all enterprises, great and small, other things being equal, the more definite the goal the more likely will the end be realized.

But there are valid objections to setting as a goal so many additions to the church. Counting converts, counting souls, numbering Israel, have their great danger. We have a historic example that it is not pleasing to God. A campaign for so many additions to the church could easily degenerate into a cold-blooded, dry-eyed campaign for members, void of spiritual power. It could fill the churches with unregenerate folks who would hinder more than they would help in the advancement of the Kingdom. All saved people should be in the church of their choice, but, to be true to our history, we must at least insist that the candidates for membership show such a fixed desire to be saved that it will show itself in their changed lives. Some churches have set as a goal a certain number of additions to the church a year. If I may speak for my church, I should say we might do so or not.

For a definite goal should be set. Not for getting so many members but for presenting Jesus Christ to the very best of our ability to every man, woman and child for whom we are responsible. An accurate religious census of the community will reveal how many unidentified Methodists there are, how many unconverted people who ought to be Methodists a-coming, and how many here in church preferences. This measures the local church's responsibility in its immediate surroundings. It ought to set about presenting Christ to every one of the potential members in the best way possible. Begin to announce a protracted meeting and send out invitations to all to come, and if they do not come it does not close the meeting, is neither wise nor scriptural. Let no church feel that it is absolved from future responsibility when it has held a protracted meeting and the unsaved would not come. We must take Christ to them. We shall likely have to go to them one by one. This has quite as much scriptural authority and precedent as holding a protracted meeting. What then should be the goal in the coming revival? "To present Jesus Christ to every man, woman and child for whom we are responsible." Our denominational lines have been so clearly drawn in most communities that those outside of the churches have their preferences quite as well defined as those within. We should be quite happy to help every potential Baptist to Christ and into the church of his choice, and so with every potential Presbyterian and all the other evangelical churches. But these people are not so accessible to us. They may entertain certain prejudices against us. If we will work in our own constituency and set an example of thorough-going work to our sister churches, they, too, will soon begin this intensive effective method of reaching their constituency. Thus in discharging our responsibility we stimulate others to do likewise.

It is contemplated that in the great simultaneous campaign next spring plans will be adopted by which Christ will be presented personally and persistently to every person for whom the local church feels responsible, until he says "yes" or "no" for Jesus Christ. Such a goal is legitimate. Such a goal is commendable. Such a goal is obligatory. Such a goal ought to be set by every local church in Southern Methodism.

THE SUPERANNUATE.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

In conversation with a real live bishop at Columbus, Ohio, he asked: "Why don't you write something in the interest of the Superannuate?" "Because that would be pleading my own cause and to 'beg I am ashamed'—I belong to that gang," I replied. "Oh, submerge yourself and write," he responded: "So here goes the submerger."

Who is the Superannuate? Technically, he is one beyond the years of usefulness in the itinerant ministry, but commonly designated as "worn-out," even so great a journal as the Advocate (Nashville) so classing him.

One does not need to go far to find machinery that is so worn that it can not be used longer, but to find such a human being is rare in any of the walks of life. The eye may not be as sparkling, the ear not as acute or the step as agile; but the brain, from its long training, is quicker to detect error and more ready to bring forth things new and old out of its treasure house. It has been my experience, in my pastorates, to be associated with some of this honored class, whose counsel was invaluable and whose presence in the community was a benediction; yet, because of some physical infirmity of minor character, had been deprived of exercising those functions to which God had called them.

Referring to one of these honored men recently—one who has held rank among us—I asked by what art in financiering he was able to care for himself and his invalid wife on the pittance doled out by the Board to Pilgrims, which I got reply "From my pocket." Well, I have my own ideas and [illegible] to live [illegible] which I [illegible] I shall [illegible] it the best possible [illegible] I shall [illegible] it [illegible] and it [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] have found within my soul an utter contempt for all sham, cant, hypocrisy, two-faeedness, arbitrary class distinetion and all things else that smack of sin and selfishness. My mother was so sweet, gentle and amiable that I have never thought that my righteous hatred of these things were inspired by her life. For many years I did not know just exactly whence they eame. I was so foolish, for awhile, as to believe God had just developed them in me, without any especial human aid. But during the past few years I have come to know that God used the stalwart, noble and godly nature of my dear father to stamp that righteous hatred, of things evil, in my heart. Father was honest to the core. He was honest to his own hurt. There was absolutely no deception in him at all. He was altogether uncompromising with sin and evil. If ever there was a human who was guileless, that human was father. it was impossible for him to deceive any one. Nor was he designing in the least. He lived altogether in the open and invited men and devils to read him through and through. It was impossible for him to reconcile the spirit of deception towards, and designing against, his fellow-man with the spirit of Christ. His perception was quite acute enough for him to know that some of his brethren in his Conference were designing and deceiving in their dealings with other men, whom they called brethren, but no living man can in honesty lay that heinous sin at his door. Yea, he suffered at the hands of men who called him brother, but no living man ever suffered at his hand. When he stands before the judgment bar of God no man will be able to point the finger of accusation at him and charge him with having wronged him.

Speaking of his honesty: On one oceasion I remember to have run in on him while he was groaning as though he would die in despair. I asked him what was the trouble. He then made known to me the faet that because of adverse circumstances he was unable to meet his obligations. For days and weeks he hardly slept or ate. He could see no light. He was honest and would have gladly paid his obligations, over and over again, if he had been able, but misfortune had him in her grasp and he could not meet his obligations when they were due. Most of his creditors, knowing the circumstances, bade him not to worry over what he owed them, but to just do the best he could and pay the obligations when he got able to do so. One man, however, was like that man about whom Jesus told whose Lord forgave him a great dept, then who went and threw in prison another man who owed him a small debt. This alleged brother went so far as to threaten to sue father, when he knew that father had not the wherewith with which to pay. Like Shylock, that man demanded the pound of flesh. When father was able, he gladly met the obligation, and he died owing no man anything, save to love him.

The rulers and elders did not think much of him, but the common people loved him. He was of the common people and he loved the common people. His joy and delight was to preach to them the gospel of glad tidings. In that section of the State where he spent the vigorous part of his ministerial life he was known by almost every one as "Uncle Henry." Every one who knew him both honored and loved him.

At the time in his ministerial life when he was strongest as a preacher, he had to locate with his aged father near Homesville, Miss., and care for his father and mother in their declining days. He spent twelve years both preaching and running his father's farm. Grandfather owed a small debt at Summit when he turned things over to father. He willed father his farm with the understanding that he would take up that debt. After the decease of grandfather, he sold the farm and paid both his own and grandfather's debts. When father was leaving the store to take his buggy for home, Mr. Atkins, the merchant, was heard to say: "There goes one honest Methodist preacher." Wherever he lived, that kind of reputation followed him.

Together with being an honest man, he was a man of much Bible reading, prayer and earnest effort to get men converted. His one business throughout life was to get men reconciled unto God, through Jesus Christ. He loved dearly the Methodist Church, South, but he spent his energies in behalf of the Kingdom of God, primarily. He had discretion enough to know that the Methodist Church is but one of the many branches of the visible church of God on earth. In this he was altogether Methodistic.

The Late Rev. H. P. Lewis

We five preacher-boys of our dear father are proud of him and the work he did for the Kingdom. We well know that being only a poor circuit rider, during the days of his active ministry, the officials of the visible church regarded him as but one of the many whom they could manipulate as suited their desires and conveniences, but we boys knew him as a man of God who did effective work for his Lord and Master wherever he toiled. I now well know that he labored unseen and unsung, by the lords of the church, from choice. There came a time in his life—like there comes a time in the life of all capable preachers—when father had to choose between laboring in obscurity, or surrender his noble Christian character. He chose to walk in obscurity and keep the companionship of his Lord. Personally, I glory in the fact that he made that choice. He neither had nor wanted a "pull" by which to get into the coveted places of the Conference. He was not one of the world's noblemen for which I thank God. Had he been one of the world's noblemen I could not now honor and love him with the devotion with which I regard him. But he is one of God's noblemen. Over yonder God will trust him, because of his honesty and guilelessness. God can afford to trust him anywhere in His universe. If circumstances should arise that would demand God's attention elsewhere to such an extent that God would have to leave the business of a planet in the hands of some one of the redeemed for a period of time, God could easily afford to endow father with the necessary wisdom, then leave everything to his hands with the assurance that righteousness and justice would be done, without fear or favor.

When our dear Heavenly Father called our earthly father from this mundane world to the glories of the spiritual world that God has for those who love Him, and when the funeral services had been said over his earthly remains, we, his six sons (who for almost a week, together with our sisters and his dear wife and faithful doctor and friends had cared for him as life was ebbing away), took his precious body to McComb, and with our own hands lowered the casket into the ground to rest beside the sacred remains of our dear mother till Easter morning. On that glorious day we will, as an unbroken family, meet our Lord in the air as He comes back to rule the earth for a thousand years. Till then I pray that each of us five preacher-boys shall be as faithful, earnest, self-sacrificing and prayerful for the highest interests of the Kingdom of God as was him whom we tenderly laid to rest on Sunday afternoon July 20, 1919!

In conclusion, I hereby make acknowledgment to God and the world of the rich heritage that God gave to me in the earthly father and mother that were mine. I acknowledge with shamefacedness that I have not always appreciated, at their true worth, these two grand and noble children of God. But as the days come and go, and as I am made to see more and more of the sham, cant and hypocrisy of humanity, I appreciate more and more the rugged honesty of purpose that dominated the life of dear father, and the sweet, trustful faith that marked the life of dear mother. I thank God every day for the privilege of having been born in such a devoutly Christian home.

With love I lay this unworthy tribute upon the grave of both mother and father. Humbly,

JOHN TILLERRY LEWIS.

The Home Circle

IN AS MUCH.

It was only a group of children,
Ragged, dirty, forlorn,
Who had strayed from the slums of the city
That glorious springtime morn.

It was only a hush of lilacs.
Colorful, fragrant, sweet,
In the rear of a princely mansion
At the end of a quaint old street.

But it tempted the little wanderers
Whose hearts for beauty were starved,
And they sought to reach the blossoms
From the iron fence, richly carved.

It was only a harsh word spoken,
But it filled their hearts with fear,
And they fled like frightened rabbits
Back to the tenement drear.

And methinks He who made the blossoms
To gladden the hearts of men,
Who said, "Suffer the little children,"
Was grieved and saddened then,

That those he had showered with blessings
Should refuse a blossom wild,
That might with its beauty and fragrance
Have heartened a little child.

God help us to share the blessings
That fill our lives to the brim!
For when we have done it unto the least,
We have done it unto Him.

—Irene Plymton Hoyt, in Zion's Herald.

ONLY THE SCRAPS.

Miss Mary's class had met at the church to make scrapbooks for the missionary box. Now the books were ready to go on their long journey across the sea where they would show little children over there what American places and peoples are like, and would help them to listen to the missionaries as they told them of Jesus.

"We shall have to earn the money to send the box," said Miss Mary," and the sooner we earn it, the sooner it can go."

As they cleared up the room they talked of ways to earn the dollar to pay the postage on the box. All at once the telephone bell rang, and some one called for Miss Mary to come home right away. The children went, too. "I wish we could have finished cleaning up," said Miss Mary.

"Only the scraps are left," said Elsie.

"I'll stay and pick them up," said Anna.

"That is just like my faithful little Anna; thank you, dear," said Miss Mary.

They all had gone but Anna and she was slowly, carefully picking up all the tiny scraps, when the minister came hurrying down from his study looking troubled. "I have just time to get down to the train," he said, and I forgot to send an important paper to Mr. Kellog. I was going to ask Miss Mary to take it, and tell her that I would give a dollar to the class; but I see she has gone."

"I will take it," said Anna. "I know where he lives."

"It is a very important errand," said the minister, "but a little girl who picks up the scraps well can surely be trusted," and he handed the paper and the dollar to proud and happy Anna.—The Sunbeam.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS.

Frances Littlefield Sherrill.

A circumstance was brought to my notice recently which set me to thinking of mothers and daughters. There are all kinds of mothers and all kinds of daughters.

Some mothers keep young with their girls. That is the kind of a mother I admire. It is hard, I confess, to be young with your girls when you are tired with a tiredness that saps the strength of mind, body, and nerves; tired with a tiredness that rebels at the light-hearted frivolity of youth just budding into young womanhood; tired with the tiredness that brings the sharp reproof for the noisy gaiety of joyous, irrepressible, giggling girlhood; but if we can put the bridle on our own lips, it will repay us many times over in the future, for it means so much to the daughter to feel free to come to mother with all the happenings, big or little, bad or indifferent, which she meets with day by day.

I have found that the girl who makes a confidant of her mother and tells her what she and her companions have been doing, what this boy said and how that boy acted, and what she said and did and what her girl friends said and did, has a mother who keeps young with her daughter. She probably does not approve of all that is said and done, nor of her daughter's share in the fun, but she is wise enough to conceal that disapproval and continue to draw out the whole story with sympathizing interest.

This is a kind of diplomacy that requires much prayer and all the tender love of the mother heart to protect the young mind and lead it in right paths, to be able to say enough and not too much, to know where to draw the line and still make her daughter feel that mother wants her to have the best kind of a time always, and always be ready to come and share it with mother. The very worst thing that can befall a young girl is to have her fear the sharp reproof. Fear develops more evil thought than actual desire to do wrong. Once a girl's impetuous and impulsive confidence in mother's ability to understand all her moods and tenses is checked and chilled by stern disapproval or fretful impatience, their pathways diverge, and confidence once broken will never be restored.

A mother's duty toward her children is a complex and fearful thing. She must combine the love that passes knowledge with the insight of the seer into the plastic mind of youth. She must build for her child on the failures of her own life: build anew on the ashes of her dead hopes, desires, and ambitions a stronger and more beautiful structure, hoping to realize in her daughter all she ever hoped to be, and do, and fell short of.

When I hear a girl say, "Oh, don't let my mother know," I feel sure that something has gone wrong between mother and daughter, and I confess I am more apt to find fault with the mother than with the daughter. She had the training of the child from the time it was laid in her arms, a helpless little bundle of humanity. When it was little it came to her with all its troubles and worries, and if she did not have time or take time to listen with sympathy to the little tale of woe and give advice and counsel as only mothers can do, she has no one to blame but herself if, as the child grows older, it gradually is weaned away from these loving heart-to-heart confidences and sets up a court of justice of its own.

No young girl can judge always properly of the things she should and should not do. Youth can not see with the eyes of mature experience.

Of course, all mothers are not in every instance the best guides for daughters. It is a terrible thing to know that a mother is not fit to be the guardian of her child. I think, sometimes that her trouble dates back to a time when confidence was broken between her and her mother.

I am speaking now to the average mother, with plenty of care and worry and anxiety, who wants to do her best for her children. Try to keep your heart young with your children, so that they will feel free to come and tell you of the little happenings of the day, sure of a sympathetic listener who has not forgotten the time when she was young and foolish. And when you have sifted the things you did not like to hear from the things that were all right and nice. If you are a wise mother you will be sure that the little pill of good advice is sugar-coated. It is so much pleasanter to take, and I believe the results will be just as beneficial. Keep your girls close to you with loving, tender interest, so that they will never feel obliged to use that heart-breaking sentence, "I'd never dare to tell my mother that."—Parke County Times.

LIVE DAY BY DAY.

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could; some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in, forget them as soon as you can. This day for all that is good and fair.—Emerson.

The Christian prays as he lives and lives as he prays. But Christian prayer is the prayer of faith and not merely of form; it is prayer of the heart and not merely of the lips, it is prayer which rests not in bodily posture but in spiritual power.—James Hastings.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

THE FIRST CENTENARY CONSERVATION GROUP MEETING.

An invitation from the Centenary Commission to take part in the discussion of the subject, "The Relation of the Church Paper to the Conservation Program," gave us the opportunity of attending the first Centenary conservation group meeting, held at St. Louis, Mo., July 30-31.

It was a great meeting. Dr. W. B. Beauchamp, Director General of the Centenary Movement, was in charge of the meeting. Practically every member of the organizing and directing force of the movement was in attendance. Four bishops were there—Atkins, Darlington, Murrah, and McMurry. A host of presiding elders, Conference Centenary secretaries, Conference directors, and Conference treasurers were present. The meeting was held in Centenary Church, our great down-town institution in St. Louis, of which Dr. C. W. Tadlock is pastor.

Every phase of the conservation program that must necessarily be carried out as a result of the marvelous success of the Centenary Movement was fully discussed.

The opening address was delivered by Bishop Atkins. It was a ringing statement of the opportunity of the church in view of its awakened conscience, its increased resources, and the needs confronting it. Dr. Beauchamp from time to time illuminatingly discussed the various phases of the work as it now presents itself to us. Other speakers stressed the importance of continued activity and explained plans that have been formed to conserve the great results that are manifest to all as growing out of the Centenary campaign.

Col. John E. Edgerton, General Centenary Treasurer, very forcibly brought to the attention of those present the necessity of collecting the full amount pledged during the "Big Drive," and explained the methods that have been adopted to that end. He declined to entertain the idea that the collections will be less than the subscriptions, and it was suggested that a slogan be adopted, "No shrinkage, but a surplus." There seems to be good reason to believe that the amount collected will actually be in excess of the amount subscribed.

We shall, very likely, have occasion from time to time to speak of various questions that were considered during the meeting; but it is our purpose now to mention briefly the suggestions that were made with reference to the proposed church-wide evangelistic campaign.

It was very evident that the Centenary Commission is not unmindful of the difficulties in connection with the carrying on of a great revival movement, especially of the danger of allowing a mechanical organization to take the place of a real work of grace among our people. Emphasis was laid upon the fact that it is the great hope of the Commission to be able to co-operate helpfully with all the agencies of the church in bringing about a revival, and not in any sense to dictate a policy that must be followed. Dr. O. E. Goddard stated specifically that it must be distinctly understood that every preacher is to hold his own meeting at his own time in his own way. All the resources of the Centenary organization will be at his command for the successful carrying out of his plans, but there will be no attempt to dictate in any sense whatsoever the plans to be followed.

So far as we were able to observe, there was no difference of opinion as to the need of a concerted evangelistic movement throughout the church. The address of Bishop Darlington on Wednesday evening was, in fact, an impassioned evangelistic appeal to the large audience present to the reconsecration of life to the service of God. And the response to that appeal was spontaneous and overwhelming.

We believe the church is ready for a great revival, and we believe the revival is coming. A mighty volume of prayer is ascending daily for this quickening of our spiritual life, and already the revival fires are beginning to burn brightly throughout the church. If we are faithful in prayer, faithful in preaching the Word, and faithful in work, we believe we are going to experience one of the most remarkable spiritual awakenings in the history of Methodism.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Dr. S. C. Black, in his helpful book, "Building a Working Church," devotes a chapter to the prayer meeting, and in the beginning he calls attention to the significant fact that Europe's first convert to Christianity was a woman, and that that woman was converted at a prayer meeting. The few Jews in the city had no synagogue, but every Sabbath they had a prayer meeting outside the city, on the river bank, and Lydia was wont to attend. When Paul and Silas came to the city, they attended that prayer meeting, and Lydia was converted. So Dr. Black thinks we should not find it remarkable that there should be conversions in the modern prayer meeting, but that we should work to that end. But certainly it would seem remarkable in the average prayer meeting.

It is surely a sadly neglected meeting of the church, by the people, and sometimes by the pastor. The pastor, in many instances, does not look upon it as a service of any importance. Consequently he does not esteem it of great importance to give much time and preparation to it—to what he shall say, and to the way it shall be conducted. A friend attended the prayer meeting in a certain church, and afterward expressed his appreciation of the helpful service, and of the fine talk which the pastor had made. But he said he felt it his duty to warn the pastor that he was devoting too much time to his prayer meeting. Indeed! Perhaps if more pastors would follow that pastor's plan their mid-week meetings would be a larger means of grace to a larger number of people. As it is, preparation for the meeting is often evidently put off until the last moment, a few thoughts are got togther while on the way to the church, and a passage is read, and talked "from" indeed, or "a running commentary" is made on the chapter.

It would be a genuine surprise to the faithful (often few) who attend if the pastor would vary the meeting by making a real talk upon the scripture which is adapted to the people's needs, and which is the product of real and prayerful work—work which is done before it is time to start for the church, rather than the terrible work which is sometimes done by one standing before the people and struggling with the problem of what to say next.

On the other hand the majority of the people in every church, who seem not to know that a meeting is held during the middle of every week in their church; might get together and give their pastor a surprise party that we never read about—all the members of the church at prayer meeting.

Certainly we would do well to realize the manifold possibilities of the prayer meeting, and to ask the help and direction of the Spirit that this mid-week meeting may be more profitable to the church.

INVESTIGATION OF VICE CONDITIONS IN NEW ORLEANS.

Captain Harold M. Wilson, investigating vice conditions in New Orleans under the orders of his government, having encountered antagonism on account of charges which he made as to conditions here, and an effort to have him recalled, Rev. Alfred Berkeley, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, as President of the New Orleans Ministerial Union, called a special meeting of the Union in the rooms of the Methodist Association, Carondelet Street, Wednesday, July 23, to hear Captain Wilson and Dr. Edler, physician in the government service, and to take such steps as might be necessary to assist them in the work which they have been doing in this city. Strong resolutions were passed endorsing the work, and the resolutions were given to the press. The whole matter was then referred to the Committee on Social Betterment, with full power to act. Reference to some of the members of this Committee is made in the column of Personals. The first work of the Committee was to send a telegram to Secretary Baker in Washington, urging that Captain Wilson be retained here in the work which he has been doing.

Sunday, July 27, the majority of the Protestant pastors in this city spoke in no uncertain terms concerning conditions charged to exist here, endorsing the work of the government, and calling for the fullest publicity and rigid enforcement of the law against professional vice. This concerted effort has been far-reaching and telling in its influence. The press of Monday following gave good space to the sermons which were preached upon the subject. Judging from the remark of a prominent business man, the evident sincerity of the ministers has made a good impression upon the public, and the publicity given to the matter has already accomplished much good, while the campaign is by no means ended. It is claimed by some that New Orleans is no worse respecting vice than any other city, but this does not satisfy. "Worse" is the comparative degree of bad, and it is used to draw a comparison between two things, both of which are bad. We who are interested in the highest welfare of New Orleans want it to be a better city than others. Sometimes those who point out the evils of a city or community are at once branded as its enemies. Evil-doers are the real enemies of any city, and also those who seek to hide its evils for fear that the city may be injured. That which can be exposed ought to be exposed. We welcome the light—the fullest investigation of conditions here. It would be the best advertisement New Orleans ever had for the news to go abroad, from coast to coast, that the people of the Crescent City do not propose to "stand for" vice of any kind.

We are convinced that pastors should, when necessary, lift up their voices upon public questions that involve public morals, and our people should be depended upon to rally to their leadership in the eradication of any evil which is a public menace. Old John Barleycorn has followed many of his victims to the grave. But other evils remain, which will require our untiring watchfulness, and our unceasing efforts, with the help of God, to remove.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

A letter from Rev. J. D. Harper of Opelousas, La., brings the money for two renewals. We thank him.

The second Sunday in September Rev. Theodore Copeland of Texarkana will begin a union meeting in Gilmer, Texas.

We thank Mrs. Martha Rye of Amory, Miss., for three new subscriptions. She writes that she has been a reader of the Advocate for thirty years.

Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Riley, and Mrs. T. P. Bell, all members of Algiers Methodist Church, have left on a trip to Colorado.

Rev. James E. Selfe, our pastor at Covington, La., will assist the pastor, Brother Sweeney, in a meeting at Sun. La., beginning the second Sunday in August.

Dr. S. H. Werlein of Alexandria, La., expects soon to enjoy a month's vacation, probably at the Seashore Camp Ground at Biloxi, Miss., where he has a cottage.

Misses Vernette and Eleanor Wier, daughters of Dr. Wier of Beaumont, Texas, have recently returned home after spending a week with their uncle, Rev. C. C. Wier, our pastor in Algiers.

Mrs. James A. Peterman, a prominent member of the Franklin, La., church, has been sick in the Presbyterian Hospital of this city, but she is rapidly recovering. Her sister, Mrs. Cross, has been with her.

Rev. John F. Foster, pastor of Carrollton Avenue Church, this city, reports that the first payments on Centenary pledges are large, and that the prospect for full collections on subscriptions are encouraging.

The recent meeting at Boyce, La., where the pastor, Rev. J. W. Faulk, was assisted by Rev. J. G. Snelling, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, was well attended, and the church was greatly revived.

Rev. Briscoe Carter, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference, was in New Orleans during the past week, and was present at the prayer meeting of Parker Memorial Church on Wednesday night.

Rev. W. P. Bailey of Roxie, Miss., reports a good meeting at that point. The preaching was done by Rev. N. S. Loftus of Woodville, Miss. The services closed with four accessions to the church, and prospects of more to follow.

Miss Janie Watkins, for twelve years a missionary in China, and now at home on furlough, spent Sunday, July 27, in New Orleans, and while here spoke to the Sunday school of First Church, and worshiped with the congregation at the 11 o'clock hour.

The people at Sontag, Miss., under the leadership of Rev. W. D. Barrett, have just completed a church building at a cost of $500. At McCall Creek, where he resides, Brother Barrett was being assisted by Brother Westbrook last week in a meeting. We have not yet had a report of the results.

Rev. Elmer C. Gunn writes that he reached the good old U. S. A. without mishap, after serving nearly a year as chaplain in the army. Having been discharged from the army service, he desires his brethren to know that he is ready to serve the church in any way that he can. His address is Gloster, Miss.

We thank Brother J. J. Garner, our pastor at Sidon, Miss., for six renewal subscriptions to the Advocate. He writes that Sunday School Day was observed at Sidon on the second Sunday in July, with good results. One of the interesting features of the occasion was the baptism of eight infants by the pastor.

We thank the following friends of the Advocate, whose names do not appear elsewhere, for sending in two or more subscriptions to the Advocate: Rev. J. H. Brooks, Okolona, Miss.; Rev. C. M. Chapman, Waynesboro, Miss.; Rev. D. R. McDougal, Calhoun City, Miss., and Rev. M. L. Burton, Port Gibson, Miss.; Rev. W. W. Lantrip, Eros, La.; Rev. T. B. Winstead, Burns, Miss.

Rev. A. I. Townsley, pastor of Felicity Methodist Church in New Orleans, has been very active in the campaign against vicious conditions in this city, and practically all the Methodist pastors in the city joined with other Protestant ministers in speaking in no uncertain tones upon the matter, Sunday, July 27.

Rev. J. M. Boykin of Bossier City, La., announced a meeting at Powhattan, La., to begin August 3. Powhattan is a new town in the valley of Red River. Until recently it had no regular services. Brother Boykin reported last week that a very successful meeting was in progress at Bossier City. Rev. Frank Power of Shreveport was doing the preaching.

Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt, pastor of Louisiana Avenue Church of this city, has been busy recently assisting brethren elsewhere in revival meetings, first near McComb, Miss., and during the past week at Meadow Chapel, Gonzales charge, Louisiana Conference. Rev. B. H. Andrews is the pastor. Both meetings were well attended, and the results were good.

The work at Charleston, Miss., is prospering under the pastorate of Rev. J. Tillerry Lewis. Owing to the hot weather, Brother Lewis suggested that arrangements be made for holding Sunday evening services on the grounds of the courthouse. The suggestion met with enthusiastic favor, and approximately five hundred people are attending these open-air services.

From Rev. F. L. Applewhite, our pastor at Sharon, Miss., comes the following report of a gracious revival in his charge: "We closed a fine meeting here last week. Rev. J. V. Bennett, Conference Evangelist, did the preaching, which is equivalent to saying it was well done. Thirteen joined our church; four joined other churches. The membership is greatly revived."

Rev. P. O. Lowrey, pastor of the Pleasant Hill charge of the Louisiana Conference, plans a meeting for Robeline the latter part of the month. The church at Robeline has recently sustained a heavy loss in the death of Major James Caldwell, one of its leading members. Brother Caldwell was a Masonic lecturer for many years, and he was one year head of the Masons in Louisiana.

During the past week the Editor was in St. Louis, attending an important Centenary meeting. It was his intention, after the meeting there, to visit Chicago, Cincinnati and Louisville, in which last city he expected to spend last Sunday. Meanwhile his substitute on writing the personals for this week wonders why you do not write the Editor more about what is happening in your charges.

Among the organizations of New Orleans asked to express an opinion as to whether the city should erect an auditorium or build a parkway as a memorial to her soldiers in the great war, the Ministerial Union voted in favor of an auditorium, and Rev. W. H. Allen and Rev. R. H. Harper were appointed to represent the Union. Sentiment is rather evenly divided, and the form of the memorial has not yet been definitely decided upon.

It may soon be necessary to use an aeroplane to reach the prevailing high prices, and the average man is not able to buy or rent an aeroplane. But Rev. J. A. Wells of Bovina, Miss., is not troubled, judging from the number of good things which were recently brought to his home. The first thing that appeared was a half barrel of flour, and other good things in proportion followed. A number of happy people of his charge came with the good things, and a pleasant evening was spent with the pastor and his family.

Rev. J. W. Lee, who has done a splendid work at Natchitoches, La., in paying off the indebtedness upon the new church building, is planning to have the church dedicated the latter part of September. He and his people have been ready for the dedication since last autumn, but the prevalence of influenza necessitated postponement. Brother Lee was educated in Louisiana State University, and he is well fitted for the pastorate he now serves in the town where the Louisiana State Normal School is located.

The Kiwanis Club of this city, which in the recent Boy Scout drive won the beautiful loving cup offered to the organization securing the largest number of memberships, announced Boy Scout day at the luncheon for last Tuesday at Kolb's Restaurant in St. Charles Street, when every member of the Club should bring a scout as his guest, and when Chaplain A. Floyd Vaughan, recently returned from service in France, should be chief speaker. Chaplain Vaughan was formerly pastor of Carrollton Avenue Methodist Church of New Orleans.

Rev. H. H. Ahrens expects soon to reach New Orleans to spend a short vacation with his son, F. Herman Ahrens, after which he will leave for points in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas. He has just returned from a trip to the far west, especially to Washington and Oregon. The work in which Brother Ahrens is engaged keeps him the greater part of the time in the eastern cities. He writes: "Have met all classes of people, but I love the Southern Methodist preacher best of all. * * * My greatest desire is to attend the next Louisiana Annual Conference."

In the absence of Dr. Foote, Rev. F. M. Freeman, pastor of Parker Memorial Church of this city, was asked to serve as chairman of the Social Betterment Committee of the Ministerial Union in its recent activities concerning vice conditions in New Orleans. On account of the absence of a number of the members of the Committee, three other ministers were added to the Committee, among whom was Rev. R. H. Harper. Three Methodist pastors are thus members of this important Committee, which is still engaged in a campaign which promises good results. Dr. Foote has recently returned to the city and taken up his duties as chairman.

TRY THE COMBINATION.

The Conference for Social Workers will be held at Lake Junaluska, North Carolina, August 17 to 24. The Conservation Conference of the Centenary Commission will be held August 26 to 28. Combine attendance on these meetings, getting a full week or ten days of helpful conference in a delightful climate in beautiful surroundings at a minimum of cost. Board can be had at from $12 to $15 per week.

Or combine Conference for Social Workers with the Bible Conference, August 10 to 17, staying for both, or for part of both.

For information concerning the Conference for Social Workers, address the writer,

REPORT OF TREASURER OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL BOARD.

The following Sunday schools have remitted their Sunday School Day money since last report:

Scotland Charge, W. W. Nelson	$18.50
Union Church, J. W. Price	9.00
Homewood, W. N. Tadlock	2.35
Wesson, V. D. Youngblood	5.00
Fernwood, F. E. Enochs	24.52
Logtown, J. H. Winton	8.81
Meadville, W. B. Alsworth	13.00
Bolton, J. H. Foreman	4.50
Wiggins, C. Y. Higginbotham	20.00
Moss Point, F. Colmer	8.39

What is the matter with Sunday School Day this year? Up to this time last year 87 Sunday schools had reported. This year only 28 have reported. Besides the money raised on Sunday School Day, the object is to train the children, and get them personally interested in the work of the church. If the schools are not going to observe the day by appropriate exercises, let them at least take up a collection one Sunday for this cause. If not, the Sunday school work will suffer this year.

GOLDMAN SEIDEL, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Seidel, of Prudhomme, La., was born on August 20, 1909, and died on July 17, 1919. Everything that medical skill and loving hands could do was done, but to no avail. The father, mother, brother and his many friends who are left to mourn their loss, may look forward to the reunion in heaven. He was a kind, affectionate child, loved by all who knew him, both young and old. He loved Sunday school. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. B. Vandenburg at the Prudhomme cemetery and a gloom overshadowed the community as he was laid to rest. Dear mother, father and brother, do not be without hope, for we know where to find him. May God comfort the sad hearts.

HIS TEACHER.

Church Point, La., July 25.

MRS. A. GUISE was born on September 24, 1872, and died at her home in Hamburg, Miss., on July 9, 1919. She was happily converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the age of sixteen. When twenty years of age she was married to C. V. Guise, who died on October 8, 1905. Sister Guise had been in ill health for some time. But at all times she bore her suffering patiently, always submissive to God's will. As her pastor, I visited her often. She would usually request the children to bring the Bible, for us to read to her some of God's Word and have prayer. In this sweet communion my life has been made richer. The pastor being away at district conference, Rev. W. B. Alsworth, of Meadville, Miss., conducted the funeral service. Sister Guise leaves behind five children and two grandchildren to mourn their death. We pray that God's blessings may rest upon them in their sorrow.

W. P. BAILEY, Pastor.

Roxie, Miss., July 22, 1919.

WILLIAM FRED SCOB was born on June 11, 1850, near Roxie, Miss. He was the youngest son of Joseph Scob. At the age of twenty-five he was married to Isadora Combs. To them were born seven children—five boys and two girls. Brother Scob was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when he was about thirty years old. He was faithful to the church and trusted himself into God's care. Until about a year before his death he was strong and vigorous. The last few months of his life were spent in intense suffering. But through it all he showed the true Christian spirit. He often expressed himself as not dreading to die. In fact, he knew that death would be a relief. Brother Scob is at rest with the redeemed of the Lord. He leaves a brother, three sisters, seven children and a number of grandchildren to mourn their loss. Services were held in the Methodist Church at Roxie, conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. C. H. Herring. May the God of all grace comfort the loved ones. Some day we hope to see him again, face to face. His pastor,

W. P. BAILEY.

Roxie, Miss., July 22, 1919.

MRS. MOLLIE E. FOUST, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Hudgins, was born on March 10, 1842, and was reared near Oxford, Lafayette County, Miss. She gave her heart to God, and joined the Methodist Church when but a child, and lived a true Christian life. She was married to George Foust, on July 2, 1865. Ten children were born to them, all of whom are still living. As her whole life was given to God, so her symmetrical womanhood was given to husband, home and children. For several months she had been deprived the privilege of attending church because of ill health, but in all her sufferings she never complained. She died suddenly, on May 2, 1919, and was buried at Salem, on the Toccopola Circuit. Aunt Mollie—as she was familiarly called—was noted during her long life for her industry, neatness and piety. All of her children were present at her funeral except a daughter who lives in Oklahoma. She leaves an aged husband, who is awaiting the Master's summons, "Come up higher," ten children, a host of grandchildren, several great-grandchildren, besides other loved ones and friends to mourn her departure.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

Coldwater, Miss., July 20.

SUE ELIZABETH KILPATRICK was born in Alabama in 1859, and died on April 29, 1919. On January 14, 1879, she was married to James Thos. Young. Mrs. Young was converted at 13 years of age. She was the mother of four children, three of whom are now living. One of Mrs. Young's joys was to entertain those who love God. Her heart and her home were always wide open to her pastor. She was like Mary of Bethany—no one ever entered her home or sat at her table without her breaking the alabaster box of loving ministrations and happy hospitality. She was not counted among those women who longed to loom large in the limelight of the public eye. She was content to fulfill the humble and heroic mission of daughter, sister, wife, and mother in the home circle. While she was much alive to the signs of the times and took a deep interest in the great outside world round about her, her supreme delight was her home. Her tireless devotion to husband and children was beautiful and sublime. No duty was too great, no task too heavy, if it brought to them some comfort and happiness. She was one of those home makers and home keepers who always seemed to know just what to do to keep the atmosphere of the home ideal. Mrs. Young was a member of the Methodist Church at New Salem. I commend the bereaved family to God, who alone can sustain and keep them during this sad hour. Her remains were laid to rest in New Salem cemetery to await the resurrection morn.

C. A. NORTHINGTON.

Boyle, Miss., July 16, 1919.

WILLIAM ROSS DAVID was born at Dead Lake, Jackson County, Miss., on November 17, 1870. He was the son of Edwar David and Margaret Lyons. The family were pioneer Methodists and he was baptized in his infancy by the Rev. Charles C. Gillespie and in early life united with the church, being a member at Pine Grove, Mentorum Circuit, until his death. At this church, in 1904, he was converted, or reconsecrated his life to the Master's service, and remained a faithful follower, serving for a number of years as Sunday school superintendent and steward, devoted to the principles of Methodism, loyal and generous in support of its enterprises. He served his county as member of the Board of Supervisors and as Representative in the State legislature.

As I knew him, he was a friend worth having and his influence for good, especially among the young people, cannot be estimated. His own education was limited and self-secured, and he was one of the most persistent workers for better schools in the rural districts that his county had. In temperament he was altogether French, his grandfather, Edwar Batties David, coming directly from France in 1836. He had many friends in South Mississippi to lament his untimely death, which occurred on May 23, 1919. Besides, he had a great number of relatives, being one of twelve children, one of whom is the Rev. M. W. David of the Mississippi Conference. He was married in 1897 to Miss Mary M. Carter, and she, with four children, survives him.

His friend,

J. B. CAIN.

Lemons Beautify! Make Quarter Pint of Lotion, Cheap.
Here is told how to prepare an inexpensive lemon lotion which can be used to bring back to any skin the sweet freshness, softness, whiteness and beauty.
The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.
Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands, and see for yourself.

WHAT OF YOUR BOY?

His education and training, and the development of his mind, body, and character depends on you, his parent. It is a grave responsibility, for there are so many antagonistic influences that come into play in a boy's life. As every boy looks back over his education and training he can always point out some one influence, some one life that has had a more profound influence. To thousands of boys this influence has been the guiding spirit, the personal association and the inspiring character of Mr. Robert K. Morgan, principal of Morgan School for twenty-five years. He knows boy nature. The close personal associations which he has fostered between his boy students and himself, his carefully chosen faculty, his careful attention to the boy's work, his thoughts, his talents, and his special needs, have given great prominence to his school and have characterized the success that he has merited in successfully shaping the lives of thousands of youths at the shaping age.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school.

J. M. HENRY, P. E.

God is girding every man for a place and a calling, in which, taking it from Him, even though it be internally humble, he may be as consciously exalted as if he held the rule of a kingdom. The truth I propose, then, for your consideration is this: "That God has a definite life-plan for every human person, girding him, visibly or invisibly, for some exact thing, which it will be the true significance and glory of his life to have accomplished." Man persons, I am well aware, never think of any such thing. They suppose that, for most men, life is a necessarily stale and common affair. What it means for them they do not know, and they scarcely conceive that it means anything.—Bushnell.

The distinctive flavor of
Coca-Cola
The flavor of Coca-Cola is a composite of natural fruits so delicately blended that the palate is unable to distinguish any one of the component parts—the result is a distinctive flavor.
The art of compounding flavors has become a science which requires a lifetime to master. That is why it is so difficult to imitate the distinctive flavor of Coca-Cola.
The slightest deviation from the delicate balance of flavors reveals the imitation. When you ask for Coca-Cola demand the genuine by full name — nicknames encourage substitution.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI GROUP MEETINGS CALLED OFF.

Since a much larger scope, membership, and prepared program have been given these meetings it is necessary to make larger the publicity and larger the preparation for them, so that all pastors and local treasurers will hereby take notice that these meetings on dates given in last week's Advocate are annulled, and further notice will be given as to time and place later.

S. J. HIGH,
BEN P. JACO.

PRAYER.

By S. A. Neblett,
Intercession Secretary.

Right-minded people pray instinctively. The first thing a convicted sinner does is to cry out his penitence to God. We turn to God in joy and sorrow, in pleasure and in peril. We voice in prayer our gratitude for blessings received, or our plea for relief needed.

Prayer underlies the other means of grace. It enables one to get the most out of public worship. By prayer we are prepared to rightly partake of the Supper of the Lord. The Scriptures yield their choicest treasures to him who rises from his knees to search them. Good works unaccompanied by prayer are "dead works" or "vain works."

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." Jesus did not find it necessary, when planning for the evangelization of the world through human agency, to provide his disciples with material means for the accomplishment of the task. Prayer was their unfailing and sufficient resource. "Truly, truly I tell you, whatever you ask the Father, he will give you in my name." They were to be sorely tempted and tried, yet power to endure and conquer was to come to them through prayer.

The sense of a personal need often leads one to pray overmuch for one's self and to lose sight of the needs of others and of the wider reach of prayer. Selfishness at this point may dwarf the Christian life and defeat the very purpose of prayer. For prayer should enlarge our sympathies, increase our ability to serve our fellowman, rescue life from narrowness and littleness and cause us to grow more like the Master. Such will be the case if we are keenly alert to use this wonderful means of grace on behalf of others. "He who embraces in his prayer the widest circle of his fellow creatures," says Goulburn, "is most in sympathy with the mind of God.

The leaders of the church have squarely faced the fact that most of our failures in the past have been due directly to an inadequate prayer life. The Centenary message, therefore, to every individual member is, "First of all, pray." No man can live at his best spiritually who does not begin, continue and end every day, every activity, every enterprise in prayer.

It is by prayer that we come into direct communion with God and learn to appreciate things at their true value. Prayer, then, should be first of all because it makes us realize both our utter dependence upon God and the impotency of human plans that are not realized by prayer.

The slogan of the Centenary from the beginning has been, "Make God First." It has been well said that the primacy of prayer in any heart means the primacy of God in that life.

We do only the lesser half of the task when we collect men and mobilize men and women for winning the unsaved masses. The big thing is to literally envelop them in prayer.

In a very real sense we may actively participate through intercession in the work of a missionary on the field thousands of miles away. Our intercession releases divine power which clears away difficulties that have never yielded to human solutions. Prayer strengthens the hands of the worker for whom it is offered and saves him from discouragement. Constant daily intercession for specific missionary objects will soon dissipate the idea of distance and we will find ourselves thinking of them as close at hand.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality By Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 50c per bottle. —Adv.

MERIDIAN College and Conservatory

The views of student life illustrated afford a glimpse of the abundant out-of-door recreation given to our young people amid beautiful surroundings. The pictures by no means give an adequate conception of the merit and true worth of the institution. The ideal broad but Christian atmosphere encourages the development of all that is strong and noble in young womanhood and manhood, inciting the student to highest effort in securing a college education.

Located among the health-giving pine forests of Meridian, a more ideal spot with healthful surroundings would be difficult to find. Beautiful campus, modern buildings, 250-acre farm including parks, lakes, dairy farm, etc. Gymnasium, indoor swimming pool. Out-of-door life is possible the whole college year. Sane athletics are encouraged by the new administration. Hot and cold water in bed-rooms.

Regular fall term opens September 15th; offers a preparatory course and a standard college course leading to B. A., B. S., B. L., and B. Mus. degrees; special courses including domestic science, domestic art, painting, expression, oratory, and commercial courses, etc.

Special advantages in music and the pipe organ unsurpassed in America. Meridian strives to educate spiritually, intellectually, and physically. Early registration is urged. 575 enrolled last session. Write for catalog or illustrated bulletin.

GET A GOOD GRIP ON HEALTH

Look out for the unnatural weakness that indicates thinning of the blood and lack of power. It means that your bodily organs are starving for want of good nourishment; that the red corpuscles are fewer, unequal to demands of health. Hood's Sarsaparilla increases strength of the delicate and nervous, restores red corpuscles, makes the blood carry health to every part, creates an appetite.

If you need a good cathartic medicine, Hood's Pills will satisfy.

REV. THEO. COPELAND VISITS GRENADA, MISS.

Rev. Theo. Copeland of Texarkana, Ark., spent last Friday and Saturday in Grenada, a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dubard, on Third Street. Dr. Copeland had just concluded a ten days' revival meeting at Oakland and came from there to Grenada to renew old acquaintances and to look the church and parsonage over where he and his good wife spent some happy days, now seventeen years ago. Since Mr. Copeland's pastorate in Grenada, he has served some of the most important charges in Southern Methodism, among which are St. Paul and Cabanne churches in St. Louis, both of which he remained with for the full four years allowed under the laws of his church. From St. Louis, Dr. Copeland was sent to Hot Springs, Ark., where he remained another four years.

He is a unique character in many respects. He possesses some distinctive elements of character that set him apart from the average of mankind. He has the love of humanity deeply rooted in his being and has cultivated to a marked degree the habit of discovering the aroma and seeing the brightness in every life. He has chosen, somewhat after the life of the busy bee which sucks honey where the spider finds poison, to believe that there is a luxury of the better things in every life if it can find an avenue or field of activity. He learned long ago that only a small, a very small, per cent of men are swayed by cold logic or reason, and that the toughening of the tender cords of sympathy and companionship is far more potent in getting the confidence and the co-operation of men than these tools of the philosopher and the statesman.

Dr. Copeland has shown that he has the ability to fasten the learned and the great as well as the less renowned and the humble to him with hooks of steel. Men admire and esteem him for the melody and unaffected simplicity in his life and for the fact that he is able to think with them and get up or down with them and make them feel that he is a kindred spirit, regardless of life's condition. Taking the man's measurement as a whole, it is little wonder that great clergymen and renowned statesmen as well as the humble and the meek are glad to call him their friend and brother.

Grenada enjoyed Dr. Copeland's visit, and another one of the evidences of his graciousness and of his thoughtfulness was his visits to the homes that had been bereft since he was here and whose occupants he had the honor to call his friends.

What Is Rheumatism? Why Suffer from It?

Sufferers Should Realize That It Is a Blood Infection.

Doubtless like other sufferers, you have often asked yourself this question, which continues to remain unanswered.

Science has proven that Rheumatism is caused by a germ in your blood, and the only way to reach it is by a remedy which eliminates and removes these little pain demons. This explains why liniments and lotions can do no permanent good, for they cannot possibly reach these germs, which infest your blood by the millions.

S. S. S. has been successfully used for Rheumatism for more than fifty years. Try it to-day, and you will find yourself at last on the right track to get rid of your Rheumatism. For treatment of your individual case address Chief Medical Adviser, Swift Specific Co., Dept. 43, Atlanta, Ga.

Overworked Women

It is the never ceasing treadmill of household duties — washing, ironing, cleaning, mending, cooking; the house to keep tidy, children cared for and well dressed, church and social duties to perform — that so often overtax a woman's strength, and she falls a prey to those dreaded female ills.

How Mrs. May Recovered Health

Columbia, Pa.: "I was very weak and run down — backache and dragging-down pains. I could not get around and do my housework, and had to sit down and rest often during the day. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health and strength, and I want to recommend it to every woman who suffers as I did."

FROM THE FRANKLINTON CIRCUIT.

Dear Brother Carley: We have held two good meetings in the Franklinton circuit, at Zona and Bush. Brother A. I. Townsley helped me at Zona. We had a fine attendance from the beginning. There was a spirit of unity and Christian fellowship between tho Baptists and Methodists. All took part, and enjoyed it. There were eleven accessions to the church.

We closed at Bush Tuesday night, having run six days. The preaching was done by Brother T. D. Lipscomb, of Ponchatoula. All fell in love with him and want him back next year. We had sixteen accessions to the church on profession of faith, and 30 conversions, and reorganized the Sunday school.

When I returned home, I found a letter from Sister E. L. Corklin, of Zona, accompanied by a splendid pounding, consisting of all the good things one could mention, so you may know here is one happy preacher. She also stated that they had sent Brother Townsley eight chickens. Now, Brother Carley, I feel uneasy about Townsley, for it won't do for a city preacher to have eight fat chickens at once, these times, and I wish some of you brethren would go around and see about him.

Yours faithfully,
F. N. SWEENEY, P. C.

STATEMENT OF THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE OF AMERICA.

The 18th Amendment to tho Constitution prohibits the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation and exportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes. The Congress and the friends of prohibition have been seeking the enactment of a reasonable law enforcement code that would represent the average sentiment of the people of the country, to carry into effect the purpose of this constitutional amendment. We believe that the enforcement code just adopted by the House of Representatives, except in minor details, does represent this average public sentiment. Wo confidently expect that these details will be corrected in the Senate. The House of Representatives, in the face of the most determined opposition and widespread propaganda to misrepresent the provisions of the enforcement code, has discharged its costitutional obligation with credit to itself and fidelity to the nation.

Ugh! Calomel Makes You Deathly Sick

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you! It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

FROM MAIN STREET AND TAYLOR, WATER VALLEY, MISS.

The work of the charge is fairly good at this time, considering the sickness and hot weather. Our presiding elder came to us yesterday, 25th inst., and held the third quarterly conference, which was very successful.

We have held our meeting at Main Street church, with good results. Nineteen were added to the church and the whole membership greatly built up. The preaching was done by Rev. W. M. Young, our pastor at Pontotoc, Miss. Needless to say that it was up to the standard of gospel preaching. Brother Young is a prince among men, a preacher of power, and a very devout Christian. His messages were very much enjoyed by all who heard him.

Our Centenary quota and Conference assessments are all provided for in cash and subscriptions.

We hope to have a great report at the approaching Conference session at Aberdeen, Miss.

With every good wish for you and the readers of the Advocate, and hoping to see you at Aberdeen, Miss., this fall,

Yours very truly,
M. A. BURNS, P. C.

A FINE REPORT FROM OAK RIDGE, MISS.

Dear Advocate: A miscellaneous report from Oak Ridge might not be amiss right now. First, let me say the Centenary drive was a success viewed from any angle. We first undertook to raise the Centenary money only, but rains interfered and we decided, while we were collecting, we would take advantage of credits and get our Conference collections. The rains kept up and we kept collecting and the Lord kept blessing good! So, finally, we decided we would collect the Centenary and Conference collections all in full. The result: We have paid to Brother W. D. Davis every dollar of our Conference assessments, and the Centenary, in cash and pledges, is in full and a few dollars over; and we never did get around to the whole membership because of the excessive rains' delaying us till district conference and the revival season came on. The other money that comes in will take the form of a special. Our allotment was $4,900 for the five years: Conference assessments, $408; the present Oak Ridge work is assessed $379 more than last year for presiding elder and pastor, and this money is coming right along. Besides the money side of the Centenary, the spiritual blessings have been wonderful, I myself being more wonderfully blessed, surely, than any individual in the whole church. Amen!

A Young People's Union has been organized at Bovina church, and is doing splendid work among the young and old. Its work is practically the same as Epworth League work, but takes in all denominations. Since its organization, a prayer meeting has been started, and, mind you, all this religious work is being carried on by the young women and men. It makes our heart rejoice to see these young people carrying on the Lord's work so enthusiastically and so successfully. Our protracted meeting there will have closed before these lines are printed. The railroad engineer, from South Side Church, Meridian, has just closed two meetings on the charge, one at Porter's Chapel and the other at Flower Hill. He did good work at both places and is to be with me at Bovina if his strength will allow it. He sojourned ten days at the Centenary celebration just before coming to me, and the strain is telling on him, coupled with the unusual work it takes even to have a "protracted meeting" in this county. He is a walking demonstration of God's power to save and keep!

The Flower Hill people have organized a Sunday school this year that is doing good work, while the other Sunday schools on the charge are doing very little, because of some of the tireless workers' being kept away by sickness and for the lack of genuine leadership.

All and in all, we have no right to complain, over this way, but have so many thousands of reasons for rejoicing. The Lord is with us and some of our people are deeply interested in His work, and I look for some decided and specific progressive developments on the charge before Conference.

Cordially and brotherly,
J. A. WELLS, P. C.

P. S. — This railroad engineer's name is Rev. F. B. Gray. He is a local preacher, as well as an engineer for the last 29 years. He's fine—get him to wake up some of your dead churches.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

"LET THERE BE LIGHT."

In the beginning, the earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of the earth. But out of this chaos, God produced the cosmos, or beautiful world that we now inhabit. He said, "Let there be light"—and there was light. So we may hope that by the instrumentality of light, intellectual and moral, the present chaotic condition of the world will give place to a calm and peaceful order that will rejoice the heart of man.

"GOOD NEWS."

The modern English of "gospel," is "good news." Good news should be received gladly. We sometimes wonder whether the gospel as preached to-day is really "good news" to those who hear it, or whether it is a burdensome message that they listen to through the force of habit or a stern sense of duty. Perhaps we preachers should consider our interpretation of the gospel and our presentation of it to see whether or not we have caught its spirit. It may be that we have taken all the joy out of it by our crudeness in stating it.

DEATH OF ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Andrew Carnegie, retired steel magnate, after a short illness, died at his summer home, Lenox, Mass., at an early hour on Monday morning, August 11. He had accumulated one of the greatest fotunes in the history of America—perhaps of the world. He became famous a few years ago by declaring that it is a disgrace to die rich, and by proceeding to dispose of a large part of his wealth by establishing and endowing libraries, by establishing institutes for the advancement of knowledge, by providing an endowment for the pensioning of teachers under certain conditions, by promoting the movement for world-wide peace, by establishing hero funds in the United States, Scotland, France, and Germany, and by contributing liberally to many other causes that appealed to him as worthy of encouragement. We do not undertake to pass judgment upon the wisdom of all his benefactions; some of them we certainly could not approve unreservedly. But we do commend his professed belief that rich men are simply trustees of the wealth that has come into their possession, which is to be administered for the benefit of all men. His own words are: "The highest use of great fortunes is in public work and service for mankind. This is the true antidote to unequal distribution and would pave the way for the communist ideal in the yet unevolved future. He must consider his surplus trust funds as held for the community, and the best means of distrubution is by giving free libraries, parks, works of art, and public institutions of various kinds." Mr. Carnegie was born in Scotland in 1835. He came, with his family, to the United States in 1848, and began work in a cloth factory at $1.20 a week. His vast wealth was due to his foresight in developing the steel industry. His life is an illustration of the fact that material success is not conditioned upon favoring circumstances, but is dependent upon the man himself.

IT COUNTS.

We believe that no stranger or infrequent visitor should ever be allowed to leave a church where he has worshiped without having been spoken to cordially by at least four persons. It is a small thing, perhaps, but it counts tremendously in the impression the stranger receives of the hospitality and Christian fellowship of that particular congregation. We have had just a little experience in visiting churches where we were a total stranger. In some of them, we were soon made to feel at home; in others we never forgot that we were an alien. We have no idea that there was any thought on the part of anybody of being inhospitable; it was just nobody's business to look after visitors—they were supposed to be able to take care of themselves. So they are—but they generally prefer to receive a friendly greeting. If at least four people will make it their business to extend such greeting, they can change what appears to be a cold, formal, indifferent church into one noted for its cordiality. This applies to small churches as well as to large ones.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE PROFITEERS.

President Wilson addressed Congress last week in connection with the high cost of living. As was to be expected, he took advantage of the opportunity to advance some strong arguments for the immediate adoption of the plan for a League of Nations, but he dealt principally and forcefully with the need of measures to restrain the profiteers, who are piling up fortunes at the expense of needy and over-burdened consumers. Public interest is largely centered now in the control of food prices, to the exclusion of the League of Nations and all other subjects. So many ominous signs are appearing throughout the nation that all departments of the Government have at last begun to realize that something must be done for the protection of the people. Sometimes, wrong conditions right themselves, but human greed is a hard thing to deal with. Patriotism and business are as clearly dissociated as politics and religion used to be. We may misinterpret the signs of the times, but it seems to us that the patience of the American people has almost reached the breaking point. The disclosure of the fact that millions of tons of foodstuffs are being hoarded in cold storage plants for the sake of the inevitable rise in price, when thousands of people are actually suffering for something to eat, has aroused intense indignation throughout the country. The President has done well in calling the attention of Congress to the necessity of prompt and vigorous action. We hope his efforts will not be in vain. The time has come for definite measures of relief to supercede platitudinous words.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

We met at one of our city churches recently a splendid Methodist couple man and wife. They do not live in New Orleans, but were spending a few days here as visitors. The gentleman had been sick enough on Saturday to require the services of a physician—but on Sunday morning he was at church. It was a good example they set. It is too easy for many of us, when we are away from home, to forget our obligations to the church, or to allow some pretext to keep us away from the place of worship. "When in Rome, do as Rome does," is a poor excuse for neglecting a duty. We ought to go to church at home or abroad.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION.

A large building is to be erected just across the street from the Advocate office. As we sit at our desk, we can look through the window and see the work going on. But the workmen are not yet rearing the superstructure—they are digging away the dirt for the foundation. For many monotonous and weary days they have labored with pick and shovel, slowly and painfully, little by little, removing the soft surface of the ground that a firm foundation may be reached. After awhile, the beautiful and useful building will appear. It would be a great waste of time and money and energy to begin to build before the foundation is properly prepared. So it is with life. The superstructure of a beautiful character must be erected upon the broad and deep foundation of truth and justice and righteousness. Otherwise, there is danger of a fall—and how great that fall will be!

SIMPLE REMEDY.

According to newspaper reports, the governor of the Federal Reserve Board has proposed a very simple remedy indeed to relieve the difficulties connected with the present high cost of living. We quote from his statement as given in the newspapers: "The Federal Reserve Board believes any currency legislation at this time is unnecessary and undesirable, and would suggest that, whether viewed from an economic or financial standpoint, the remedy for the present situation is the same, namely, to work and to save; to work regularly and efficiently, to produce and distribute the largest possible volume of commodities; and to exercise reasonable economies, that money, goods, and service may be devoted primarily to the liquidation of debt and to the satisfaction of the demand for necessities, rather than to indulge in extravagance or the gratification of a desire for luxuries." We repeat that this is a simple remedy indeed. The only trouble with it, as we see it, is that it is utterly senseless. It is very much like telling a hungry man not to want food and he will not be hungry. It takes all the average man can earn to buy the necessities of life, working as hard as he can. He might be able to save something if he did not have to pay out all he makes for rent and food and clothes. It would have been very much more to the point if the honorable governor of the Federal Reserve Board had suggested some means by which those who are responsible for the present high cost of living could be made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains. If all men who are poor had saved enough money to make them rich, they would not now be poor. We submit that this is as good logic as is that of the above-mentioned governor.

THE NEW BIRTH

By Rev. John W. Langley

In the first chapter of St. John's Gospel there is recorded the interesting story of the meeting of two great teachers—Jesus and Nicodemus the ruler of the Jews. The question, "How can a man be born when he is old?" has provoked discussion and more or less controversy. Some Bible commentators assert, that in the light of the context the conversation of the night between Jesus and Nicodemus was not intended to be taken literally, but that the new birth was a figurative expression for the change of heart and life which should take place in the soul of the sinner when he accepted Christ as his personal Savior. Others, with equal positiveness, assert that the new birth is a literal experience, and that the conversation of the night between Jesus and Nicodemus was intended to be taken literally. Whether the new birth is literal or figurative, it is a fact that it is the most important experience that can come to the human soul. This statement would not be true if there were any other way by which the sinner could enter the kingdom of God. But there is no other way. Jesus said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." "Ye must be born again." Whether we accept the literal or figurative interpretation of the new birth, we must admit that it is the most important experience that can come to the human soul. This statement would not be true if there were any other way by which the sinner could enter the kingdom of God. But there is no other way. Jesus said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." "Ye must be born again."

Now, if we are to be born again, then we must know what is meant by the new birth. We must know what is the process of regeneration. We must know what is the work of the Holy Spirit in the heart of the sinner when he is born again sumes the holy vows and obligations of church membership; but still, with all her heart, she loves the vain pomp and glory of the world. The secret of the inconsistencies of such people is to be found in the fact that they were never convicted for sin.

Conviction for sin means something, and a change of heart has a profound significance for every heart and life. It means to be turned upside down, outside in, and inside out—a thorough renovation of the heart and life. This is what Jesus Christ meant when he said to Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again."

V.

The Manner of the New Birth.

How are we born again? Jesus Christ said to Nicodemus, "Verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." Nicodemus said, "How can a man be born again when he is old?" Jesus Christ said, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth," etc. Nicodemus said, "How can these things be? How can an old man, or, for that matter, any other man, old or young, be born again?" Herein lies the mystery of the New Birth. We can lead a man through the various steps of approach to God, but when he reaches the brink of this mysterious change of heart we can only watch him as he plunges in, grasp his hand upon the other side, and rejoice with him that he has been born again. But how, we cannot tell. We only know that "the wind bloweth," etc. "So is every one that is born of the Spirit."

VI.

Similitudes of the New Birth.

While we cannot understand the process of regeneration, the how of the New Birth, yet the Bible gives us similitudes illustrative of the operation of the Spirit upon the human heart. It is called, first, a new creation, having reference, possibly, to the creation of the world. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature"—or creation; "old things are passed away! behold, all things are become new."

It is called, again, a transformation. "Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed." etc. I hold in my hand an ugly seed; but when I plant it in the soil the sun warms and kisses it into life, and it continues to grow till it is crowned with a beautiful flower. Some morning, at an early hour, I see a dewdrop hanging upon a rose leaf. It is only a drop of water; but the rising sun pours into it all its rays till it reflects all the prismatic colors of the rainbow, and it becomes a sparkling gem—transformed into a thing of beauty. Thus, by the mysterious operation of the Spirit, the hearts of men are transformed. Some one has said: "Autumn is often a disappointment and winter seems like death; but life and sunlight touch the cold, dead clod and it responds with waving grasses and beautiful flowers." So the Spirit touches the cold, dead hearts of men, and the soul rejoices in the power of a new life.

"Come, Holy Spirit, come,
With energy divine,
And on this poor, benighted soul
With beams of mercy shine.

"O melt this frozen heart;
This stubborn will subdue;
Each evil passion overcome,
And form me all anew.

"The profit will be mine,
But thine shall be the praise;
And unto thee will I devote
The remnant of my days."

PROPAGANDA.

By Rev. John A. Rice, D.D.

We have at last discovered the power of propaganda. Armies have crumbled before it. Governments have risen and fallen by it. Public opinion has been changed, directed, created even. Good men and good causes have been ruined while bad men and bad causes have been carried to the fore. No man, no cause, is safe in a community where there is as much as one sinister person bent upon making trouble. The human mind is so constituted that it tends to act out any suggestions persistently kept before it. The up-to-date advertiser knows this and seeks so to frame his advertisements as to grip the mind and induce action. Foods are so described as to create hunger. Theatricals are so sketched as to stir the sensation to seek fuller gratification. The psychology of advertising is fascinating; the man who understands how to use it has already made his fortune. Publicity agencies are so numerous and available that, properly used, they could soon bring us to a body of opinion on almost any subject. Organized intelligence is in sight.

This highly complex piece of social machinery brings with it a menace as well as a promise. The Congressional Committee recently discovered how vast sums of money are paid to publicity men by big business; greater even, in some cases, than the highest salaries of administrative officers. The papers are full of columns of addresses to the "Dear Folks" intended to create sentiment favorable to certain interests whose ways are devious, whose profits are drawn from the pockets of the people by exorbitant prices, by crowding competing concerns to the wall, by low wages and intolerable working conditions for employees, by long hours and autocratic control, by manipulating legislatures, evading the law and using all the devices of inventive genius to give the least and get the most. We need to be on our guard against the rain of pamphlets, papers and books intended to mislead and capable of deceiving even the elect.

The worst of it is that the underdog has and can have no publicity agents. His story is never told. Money can, as never before, make the worse appear the better cause.

The church is, or should be, deeply concerned. The battle is on and threatens many an idea, many an institution, indeed, hitherto accepted as righteous, or at least tolerable. Whether she lines up on the human side of the fight and holds all life as her province, her parish, or dodges the issue with the self-complacent claims that labor, for example, is not a religious question, will determine her future. The old psychology which sought to cut the soul up into distinct apartments and assign one to religion is gone. All life is one. Whatever enters into or affects the remotest corner of the soul affects all the personality and issues in the whole life. Every human question is therefore a religious question. Wherever there is one person of any color, creed, kind or condition that is denied his right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, deprived of his human wants and without a chance to perfect his powers, there is the church's call. Her answer to that call will make her place in the new order of affairs in the world. She cannot stand by, therefore, while the people are being exploited by misinformation. Nor can she escape responsibility for those within the fold who hire themselves to conceal the truth by facile utterance or for those whose business lives by such deception. Nothing that is human is alien to her.

The making of millionaires by insidious propaganda suggests also an opportunity for the church. I was passing through a town on a belated train with one of our bishops one Sunday morning a year or so ago, when he, observing the crowd at the station, wisely remarked that we ought to have tracts and papers for distribution at such places. I have for a long time been wanting a series of booklets giving in brief compass the vital truths of the Gospel in simple, up-to-date English. I was glad to be backed by Bishop DuBose in an appeal for such a series. Here is a great opportunity for the church or for some person of means. Even our own people, to say nothing of the great outside, are ignorant of religious reality in terms of their personal experiences. Wesley knew how to meet this need. But we are, unfortunately, not Wesleyan, either in vision or spirit. If we were, we would take the world for Christ; rather we would take the whole Christ to the whole world, which alone is our mission. We would not be afraid of him, no matter how mercilessly he smashes our idols.

This is the method of Scriptural evangelism. Leaven-like, the gospel experience is to be spread by the contagion of life till it becomes all pervasive; like the mustard seed, it is to grow till it becomes all-inclusive. By propaganda the world is to be saved.

OUR BRAND-NEW GOD.

By Rev. Bob Shuler

The old fashioned God of early Methodism might be a very interesting study to many of the young people of our flocks. Before He became modern and reached that up-to-date altitude to which he has evolved, there were matters of vital interest that ought to be remembered, even if they are of no longer use, save as a matter of historicity.

First, the old-fashioned God of Methodism demanded that the people deny themselves, that they bear crosses, that they follow diligently in the very footprints of Jesus Christ. The fight was one against the love of the world, the lure of the flesh and the insiduous wiles of the devil. In the days before our Methodist women were among the first prize winners in social gaming, before our Methodist young people were leading experts in the cheek dance, before our Methodist men played Sabbath golf and "rooted" at baseball games on Sunday, the old-fashioned God demanded that His people be a separate, a distinct, a peculiar people, in whose nostrils the pleasures of the world were offensive and to whose tastes the sweets of fleshly lusts were bitter as gall.

Second, the old-fashioned God of the church of the Wesleys demanded a faith that brooked the impossible and boldly championed the cause of a supernatural divinity. Men were saved as by miracle. The power of God moved the people in an inexplicable and indefinable manner. In this day of Methodism's modern God, we hear and read much of the fact that the old-time revival is an impossibility. No more are we to see the fires kindle in the stubble and flame into a mighty conflagration. We are living in an age of sanity, they tell us. Ours is a scientific day in which we must evolve. Truth appeals no longer to the heart of man. Mind, as the self-termed female half of God has said, is everything. Men think to-day, and thinking is hard on the old-fashioned God, according to the modernist. Emotion is ruled out of court in religion. They had it in Europe and won the war with it. They win baseball games with it. They carry elections with it. They raise mighty collections for the needy with it. They court and marry by its help. It works well everywhere else, it would seem, but it is laughable in a revival. It makes a revival ridiculous, distasteful to scholarly culture, obnoxious to the wise, and there are multitudes of Methodists who have gotten wise, almost as wise as those who one-time builded a tower so much higher than God that the crash of its fall is still echoing over the earth

Third, the old-fashioned God of early Methodism insisted on the place of absolute authority and credit being given to Him. He was the same God who dried up a sea, brought water from a solid rock and turned the sky into a bakery that Israel might know her dependence upon Him. He was the same God who sent home the daring, boastful, self-sufficient warriors while He took a handful to the valley without so much as a shotgun and whipped a grass-hopper-like host "into a frazzle" without the firing of a single gun or the producing of one earthly hero. He was the same God who cured the blind by putting mud on their eyes, who drove leprosy away by causing the leper to dip in a mud hole, and who waited until a man had been dead for days and was partly decomposed in order that He might teach the people His power and sufficiency. Such was the old-fashioned God, before whom early Methodist preachers fell for hours, preparing their sermons by calling upon Him for an "infilling."

But to be sure, we have reached a new day in the progress of our church. We are educated to-day. We were not in the days of the old-fashioned God. We are rich to-day. We were the poorest of the poor then. We are cultured to-day. There

UNITY REQUIRED TO MAKE OUR COUNTRY GOD'S COUNTRY.

By Rev. T. J. Ogle.

"The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof" is the announcement of Holy Writ. In the earth is included our country. God made our country, and endowed it with unequaled wealth, and crowned it with unrivaled beauty. The fertility of its valleys; the grandeur of its towering mountains; the beauty and wealth of its forestry; the greatness of its well-nigh inexhaustible mineralogy are all manifestations of God's interest in its inhabitants.

These superior natural endowments make our country almost a veritable Eden, and many seeking wealth have been attracted to our shores and now that the World War has ceased, and the Peace Treaty of Versailles has been signed, no doubt many more will be attracted to our shores; so our ambition and effort should be so completely to set up Christ's kingdom here that the rich temporal endowments of our country shall not be the greatest attraction to immigrants and our posterity, but that these temporal things shall be overshadowed by Edenic innocence and purity and harmony. To do this will require unity—unity of churches, and unity of individuals.

That under the shadow of Calvary Jesus prayed that his people might be one. Why did he pray for this unity? Possibly he understood that increase of power results from the uniting of forces, as is demonstrated in his declaration "One shall chase a thousand, two shall put ten thousand to flight."

In the name of my Master, in the name of the church of which he is the sacred Head, and in the name of a common humanity, I plead for unity. I say a common humanity, for all individuals of Adam's race have been, for about six millenniums, linked together by the ties of a common origin, the obligations arising from a common interest, the care of a common Father, and redemption through a common Savior.

This plea for unity neither renders nor implies surrender of what any denomination or individual holds sacred, but does call for fresh loyalty to the organic union of any two or more denominations, but by perfect obedience of all to common ones.

It is thrilling to me to study the glorious benefits and unexampled sufferings of the victories of our own Methodism in the past, to enjoy the glorious prospects that shall yet be future to many a generation that shall live in this world, and to contemplate the glorious victories that the coming years will have in store to make this country God's country will be found many Southern Methodists with a history made resplendent by their unselfish devotion to God and immeasurable service for humanity.

Whether it was a real providence that drove the cleavage that caused the division of the great and growing Methodism of 1844, I shall not presume to declare, but it is with pride that I study the phenomenal growth of our side of the cleavage since the division, indicative of divine approval and divine blessing.

In the ante-bellum period, almost unrivaled prosperity, our membership grew from 687,000 in 1845, to 717,000 in 1860, an increase of 64 per cent, against an increase of but 14 per cent in the population of the country.

When the bloody war of the 60's stopped our country, it made heavy drafts on our slaves. Abraham Lincoln, though unreasonably partial, announced the sacrifice made and the service rendered by the Southern as well as the Northern branch of the church, when he said: "The Methodist Church sent more soldiers to the field, more nurses to the hospitals and more prayers to heaven than any other."

In 1870 our membership had sunk to 340,000, but that small force was as the gilded sentinel on the top of the mountain. Nourished by the dews of heaven and tended by divine power, it has grown till in less than half a century, we stand up nearly two millions strong. Surely, we can say with the Psalmist, "The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad."

Satisfied with these divine credentials of our origin and record, we ask no favors of the efforts or of the pretensions ecclesiasticism, but we recognize our inability to perform the Herculean task of making this country God's country, and if we felt that we were endued with the power we do not possess the arrogance or the exclusiveness to undertake a monopoly; but I am sure I voice the sentiment of my brethren when I say, the Southern Methodist Church is willing to join hands with her sister churches in the effort to bring our entire country under the dominion of the Lord Jesus in the unity of the Spirit of the Most High.

May we study some of the conditions that indicate the necessity of united effort? In the first place the magnitude, the difficulties, and the urgency of the task which is before us demand the most fruitful and effective use of all our resources. Our task is to carry the Gospel to two-thirds of the population of our country, and persuade them not only to embrace the truth, but to place themselves under the transforming influence of the Gospel. The task contemplates changing the opinions of men, not upon impersonal questions or matters of material interest, but upon matters of religion, the things of which men are ever most reluctant to think exactly, if indeed they think at all. The work involves not only the changing of men's opinions, but also the revolutionizing of their characters, and it does not suffice to do this in individuals only. That is fundamental, but through that, and beyond that, it is necessary to introduce new principles into society, and to drive out, as far as possible, all that is alien to the kingdom of God, and that will not be naturalized in his kingdom. This work is to be done, not only among one class, but among all classes, from the unlettered to the most enlightened.

This work must be done by purely persuasive and moral agencies. The inducements which commercial and political and military powers wield are not available. Men must be won to the truth by motives to which the [illegible] men will be moved. The task is so great and momentous, and requires so many and mighty agencies, it may not that we may [illegible] the work for God to achieve the impossible by the help of God. Without God's help, our work is necessarily unavailing, but that help will be available to us in our endeavors. We must not let [illegible] The [illegible] that the supreme [illegible] all our forces. The task is so great for any [illegible] of Christians to expect to accomplish it alone, and the slothfulness of any Christian body not able to accomplish the task alone from other Christian bodies is indefensible. Even one Christian body might hope to accomplish the work of making that God's country in fact in many generations were we to wait for it. We cannot afford to wait, for men are fast passing away and before they pass they are entitled to know the Lord who died for them, and who would be their light and life and to the body of Christians [illegible] the right to them the whole country as its responsibility and to ask the generations to wait till it can better them all into a denominational name.

In the second place the elementary needs of the people call for what is fundamental and essential in Christianity. The great evils of our country are the elementary moral evils of impurity, depravity and ungodliness. Our country does not know the character of God, therefore it is useless; our country does not know the love of God, therefore men are our brethren; our country does not know the life of God, therefore men despair and commit suicide. These three things—the character of God, the love of God, and the life of God—are not the things on which we disagree. They constitute the great fundamental and elemental things in Christianity, and it is for these, and not for any of the points about which we are at variance, that our people call. Our country wants Christ. If we bring it to Christ, he will take care of the complicated problems.

In the third place, we are already agreed on the intellectual basis of common faith which is necessary for unity. We believe in one God and Father of us all, and in one Christ who would be Savior of us all, and in one Holy Spirit, and in one Bible, and in one salvation. It is true to reach such a basis of agreement, we must go back beyond the origins of many of the denominations which separate us, but many are now ready to do that. We must go back, not simply to creed or confession or ritual, but to the New Testament. Here we have an adequate basis of intellectual agreement, and what more should we require? We differ as to the symbols in which Christianity expresses itself, and as to the institutional forms in which it is embodied, but we are all agreed as to the spiritual principles which are expressed in these symbols and embodied in these institutions, and surely that agreement in spiritual principles is the fundamental and essential thing. Even in a great united church, there is room for disagreement as to symbol and form.

We are sufficiently agreed in our intellectual convictions to make unity in effort entirely practical. We all agree that we have one common Lord, and each commends the other's love for him. Believing this, surely no one can say less than the Bishop of New Castle said in a conference at Nottingham, England, in 1907: "When men agree in love for a common Lord, and can thank him for admission into his kingdom on earth, and trust him for time to come, it is certain that this community of faith will find expression in ways which scarcely need to be classified as though else it would cease to exist. If they do not love one Lord, no unity of ecclesiastical organization will ever bring them together. If they do love one Lord, no difference of organization can really keep them permanently apart." As the good Bishop recognized the love of God as the bond of union for the Anglican Church more than twenty years ago, so we should recognize the love of God as our bond of union, and address ourselves in solid phalanx to the task of making this God's country in fact.

Now, having studied the conditions that make unity practicable and necessary, let us, in the next place, consider the degree and kind of unity to which these conditions summon us.

First, they call manifestly to a union that shall prevent waste and friction; for all waste is disloyalty to the world, and all friction is disloyalty to Christ. All friction is disloyalty to Christ, because it argues another principle superior to his principle of brotherly love and unselfishness; and all waste is disloyalty to the world because it denies to great masses of our fellowmen a Gospel that might be carried to them, if there were no waste and duplication and overlapping. I do not mean to say there is a great deal of waste and friction, but there is some, and any at all is too much. There is need and room for full and practical co-operation of effort that will make our work more powerful and fruitful. The considerations which we have just reviewed show how necessary and practicable that co-operation is.

Secondly, these considerations demand not only avoidance of strife and collision, but they command us to draw near, and march and labor together. The great things that are to be accomplished in the evangelization of our country cannot be done by companies of Christians who agree to differ. They can be done only by great companies of Christians who unite themselves for common and conjoined action. Not only do the existing conditions in our country demand that we should avoid, negatively, the things that impair the efficiency of our efforts, but they require also that we should provide positively the things that will make our efforts more powerful and more effective.

Thirdly, these considerations call not only for the external form of co-operation of which we have spoken, but they call for living and spiritual unity. We believe this, first of all, because this was the kind of unity for which our Lord prayed in his intercessory prayer to which we have referred. Our Lord did not pray that his people might be one as John and James are one, or as any other brothers are of one blood, or as two or more citizens are one in national preference and interests, but he prayed, "That they all may be one as Thou, Father, and I are one." Just as the Father and the Son are united in reciprocal fellowship, so should all Christians be united. We hold this as our ideal for Christian unity, because we believe that is the kind of unity for which our Lord prayed, and because any other kind of relationship among Christians misrepresents the Gospel of Christ. We cannot express God in divided effort.

The Gospel is a message of one God, of one Savior, of one human family, and until we have got all this embodied in human symbol that speaks of a unity as real and complete, we have not a symbol that represents correctly the great Gospel of the Savior of the world, and without this unity our Gospel can not put forth its full power. We must give Christ a body (and he says the church is his body) in which he can express himself to the whole human family that he came to save. We must give to the Holy Spirit a channel through which he can pour himself out over the whole race that he came to keep in the salvation and purity of the Savior. Until we have this oneness, our Gospel will go lame and halt, and cannot have the fullness of the divine power for the world's conviction which our Lord himself said it would have only when at last his people had arrived at a unity perfected into one as he and his Father are one.

With this conviction of ours, a quotation from the Sunday School Times agrees: "In common with very many of our brethren, both clerical and lay, we have had the conviction brought home to our conscience that the lack of visible unity among Christians is one of the chief hindrances by which all efforts to advance the Kingdom of our Lord are impeded. The faith that overcomes the world is a collective thing. It is only the full and solidary faith of a living church that can possess the secret and the command of these marvelous results which so far appear but sporadically and come and go like the wind. When the Spirit dwells in a sanctified and unified church as he dwelt in the holy Son of God in the unity of the life of the Godhead, then the church will be able to do the wonders that he did, the power of the highest will come upon her, and the world will believe that the Father sent the Son to be the Savior of all men."

The tasks before us are tremendous and require haste. We believe it is possible to make this to be God's country—that is, a Christian country in fact—in this generation, if we set ourselves to the task with devotion and energy. But in the undertaking we will need the backing and co-operation of the whole church. We must be one in spirit, one in aim, one in effort.

"Christ for the world," is our Gospel. The world for Christ is our mission, and our beginning is Jerusalem. That the whole of "Jerusalem"—that is to say, our country—may be leavened, and that right early, with the Gospel leaven, we invite a uniting in heart, if not in head, of Canterbury, Herrnhut, Geneva, Epworth, Zurich, Plymouth, and Port Royal under the leadership of the Holy Spirit.

And unto him who is able to do for us exceeding abundantly above that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, we will ascribe all the glory in the church, and in Christ Jesus unto all generations, being persuaded that eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, and neither hath entered into the mind of men, the achievements possible for them that co-operate in the spirit of unity as it is in Christ who is all and in all.

CENTENARY COLLEGE AND ITS PROSPECTS.

When I accepted the presidency of Centenary College in 1913, I felt what I interpreted as an unmistakable impression of divine leading. After the lapse of six years, I have returned to the pastorate with the same impression of providential guidance, and many circumstances indicate that the change has been made at the right time.

The Methodists of Louisiana should rejoice in the bright prospects that are now immediately before our institution. The generous removal by the donors of all conditions to the title brings us into undoubted possession of the splendid property which is constantly increasing in value and makes a great forward movement certain.

The Centenary Trustees deserve congratulation for their wise selection of President W. R. Bourne to preside over the Institution at this important time in its history. He is a young man of attractive personality, well equipped professionally for educational leadership, possesses a sympathetic understanding of the mission and character of the church college and has entered upon the work with great wisdom and earnestness.

The Trustees are planning big things and there is a note of confidence and expectancy throughout the city. Sexton, Drake, Scales and others are splendidly co-operating. Watch out for announcements from time to time that will surprise you.

Some of us have dreamed of this hour and prayed for the time to come when Centenary would be a really great institution, and our prayers are being answered. R. H. WYNN.

BETTS MEMORIAL FUND.

From the Dean of Trinity College

It will be read with much interest all over the church that Dr. A. D. Betts, a widely known and much beloved superannuate of the North Carolina Conference, who died at an advanced age last December, had been for many years sending annually to Trinity College a part of his meager income for the help of some young man preparing for the ministry. Without the knowledge of Dr. Betts, the college replaced his gifts from other sources, and allowed his donations to accumulate. It has been proposed to increase this sum by contributions and to establish out of it a memorial to Dr. Betts, to be known as the A. D. Betts Memorial Loan Fund, for the aid of young preachers at Trinity. Among the letters received along with contributions to the fund, there is given below one from a young minister and his wife which reveals a beautiful spirit of co-operation in a good cause and which is greatly appreciated:

Kannapolis, N. C., July 29, 1919.

Dear Dr. Few:

Mrs. Vick and myself have thought for some time that we would like to give something to Trinity College.

We have just read in the Advocate that you propose to raise a memorial fund to the great Dr. A. D. Betts, which is to be used to help young preachers in their struggle for an education. We are enclosing a subscription to this Memorial of $1,000. We wish that we could make it more and hope that we can in the future.

We feel that we want to leave some of the fruits of our labor upon earth to be a power in the world for good after we are dead and gone. The best way to do this, according to our judgment, is to leave something that will aid young men to prepare themselves for the ministry.

Then we want to honor Dr. Betts because he was so good to us and our parents.

Dr. Few, may the good Lord, who loves and keeps us, bless you in this new effort of yours to honor the saints and help mankind. We are

Your faithful friends,
(Signed) Mr. and Mrs. G. W. VICK.

PRIZES OFFERED FOR TRACT LITERATURE.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers of Tract and Evangelistic Literature held at the Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn., July 30, 1919, it was voted to offer a first prize of $25 for the best tracts on the following subjects:

First, for two evangelistic tracts, one describing the condition of an unsaved soul, the other setting forth the character and blessedness of a soul saved by Christ. These two tracts to be limited to 2,000 words each.

Second, two tracts for instructing applicants for church membership in their duties and privileges—one for adults and one for children. These two tracts to be limited to 1,000 words each.

Third, two tracts, one on Baptism and the other on the Lord's Supper. These two tracts to be limited to 10,000 words each.

All manuscripts submitted in this contest must be typewritten, and must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Board not later than December 1, 1919. The name of the author must be placed in a sealed envelope accompanying the manuscript but must not appear elsewhere. The Board reserves the right to purchase the second best manuscripts for the sum of $15 each. It also reserves the right to reject any and all manuscripts submitted. The Board would caution all contestants that while it values a scholarly presentation of Biblical truths, it must be borne in mind that these tracts are designed to convince men and women of varying intellectual grade, and that therefore the presentation must be mainly to the popular mind and buttressed by Biblical quotations.

Signed for the Board,
A. J. LAMAR, Chairman.
FRANK M. THOMAS, Secretary.

A REAL IRON TONIC.

It is good to know that there is today a truly effective preparation for the relief of those that suffer from nervousness, weakness, the effects of overwork, of care, anxiety and worry.

It is called Peptiron, and has many advantages as a preparation of iron in that it does not cause constipation, nor disturb the stomach, nor injure the teeth.

It is a real iron tonic, combining iron so as to secure the best effects of this great strengthener, with nux, celery, pepsin and other equally approved tonics and digestives. There is no extravagance, no overstatement in the claims that are made for it. There is no flambe key in its advertising. It is a product of the long-established and widely known C. I. Hood Company, and this fact is a guarantee of its superior worth. Peptiron is sold by all druggists.—Adv.

A SERMON ON PRAYER

By J. E. Wood

During the Centenary Celebration in Cincinnati I had charge of the building which housed the Latin America and European exhibits. In the Latin American section we had nearly a hundred workers representing the nine countries which are ours. There people from all parts of Spanish and Portuguese America with natives and missionaries were in attendance and wide-awake young Christian men from all parts of America. They had exhibits on the Missionary work in Colombia, the Republic of Panama, the country with Colombia the meaning of the war and on on, but the very heart of all subjects for them and the one on which their opinion was of the most vital importance, was the question of Christian education in America. The Christian and National way in which this must be accomplished in some Latin American countries, more than others.

The reason is not far to seek. An unenlightened race of good will toward the United States is in all Latin America. These countries do not look on ours as their friend. As a result missionary work is prosecuting beyond anything we have ever known. The doors are wide open.

[illegible] was discussing and agreed with what I have just said. If we are to win the rich Mexico and [illegible] means that our work should be done [illegible] will take Mexico also. In appreciation of one of the articles in the Advocate I wrote him. If I recall correctly it was New Orleans and in his reply was addressed from [illegible]

The Home Circle

AT SLEEPY TIME.

"Oh, dear!" the little Tin Soldier cried,
"I've marched this whole day long,
Though my gun is heavy and hard to hold
And my legs are far from strong.

"And now I should like to take some rest;
It certainly can't be right
To expect a veteran like myself
To stand on guard all night."

The little Toy Horse in great distress
Called: "Who will attend to me?
I want to be put in my nice neat stall
And be given some oats for tea.

"I've been to the market town and back
To-day at my fastest trot,
And now I am lying upside down
With my harness tied in a knot."

Cried Jack-in-a-Box: "I've jumped and bounced
Till I'm quite worn out to-night.
Will somebody please shut up my house
And fasten the roof down tight?"

"I'm hoarse as a crow," said the Barking Dog.
"I'm tired," sighed the Woolly Sheep.
"We are all of us that," cried the Jumping Jack.
"And we need some rest and sleep.

"We should like to go to our beds at once
And shut our eyes quite tight.
Will our dear little master please to come
And settle us for the night?"

But mother it was who put them up
In a row on the nursery shelf;
For never a word the master heard;
He was fast asleep himself.

"WHEN JOHNNIE WENT FISHING ON SUNDAY."

By Miss Virginia Bransford.

"How I wish I was not a Methodist!" Mother looked at Johnnie with dismay; father looked over his glasses at his young hopeful with a puzzled expression, while big sister plainly giggled.

"Mother, just lots of boys are going fishing today, and because I am a Methodist, I can't go," added Johnnie, while he stared out of the window at a lazy buzzard, flying high in the deep blue sky, and the warm air came in caressing touches on his flushed, unhappy face. Mrs. Burton was a wise mother. She didn't lecture, or as Johnnie termed it, "give a preachment." She just reminded Johnnie that it was almost church time, and he would have to change his collar and wash his face.

On the way to church, Mrs. Burton, in her most gentle manner, tried to show her boy the true meaning of the Sabbath and keeping it holy, and that Methodism and Christianity were synonymous terms.

Johnnie liked the minister. He was young, and strong, and out of the pulpit, he was real jolly—and Johnnie liked him much better out of the pulpit than he did in it.

Just about the time Johnnie's mind had gone back for the fiftieth time to a vision of the "Gang" on their way to the fishing hole, Mr. West's strong voice startled him with the words. "And Jesus said, 'Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men.'" Now this was the first text that ever held Johnnie's attention.

In graphic terms, Brother West pictured the scene of Peter's fishing trip; one could almost feel the air of the lake, and smell the fishy odor of the nets—it hadn't been long since Brother West was a boy himself, and he knew what he was talking about. Then, in simple language, so that even Johnnie could comprehend, the way was shown how Peter became such a successful fisherman for his Lord, that he caught many men for the kingdom of Heaven.

Going home from church, Johnnie was perfectly enthused with a new vision—he might become a fisherman like Peter. Why not?

The subject was broached timidly to his mother; she might laugh at him, and if there is anything on earth a boy dreads, it is to be ridiculed. No, mother had noticed his rapt attention, and fully agreed that he might start on his "fishing trip" that very evening. You see, Johnnie's mother was a wise "fisherman" herself; she wanted to put her active young son to work before his enthusiasm waned, knowing the good seeds sown in his heart should be carefully nurtured.

"But, mother, you forget," said he, "to-day is Sunday, and people shouldn't fish on Sunday." But mother explained the difference, and Johnnie was so relieved, for he was in real earnest. "Now son," said mother, "Do you like to fish for minnows, or big fish?" Johnnie eagerly replied, "Good sized ones, sure." "Well then," said she, "tell me some boy who you think is not a good boy, and you feel like he is worth catching."

Johnnie hung his head, for the first boy he thought of was Jimmy Crunch, the ring-leader of the "Gang," the one who had tried to entice him to go fishing on Sunday.

"Say, mother, I'd sure like to catch Jimmie; I wish he was—well, I wish he was—a Christian."

Mother smiled to herself. "Come, Johnnie, we will go fishing. If you will let me carry the bait, I will go too."

So Mrs. Burton fixed a nice lunch, and she and Johnnie "went fishing."

Johnnie and mother, with the bait, tempting lunch, waited under the shade of a big tree till Jimmy and his gang came along. Johnnie called Jimmy to come over, and mother seconded the invitation; the others, thinking Jimmy was in for a lecture, took to their heels, but Jimmy reluctantly came on over. Mrs. Burton invited him to sit down, and in her nice way, insisted he have some lunch with them.

Jimmy was ravenously hungry, just as Mrs. Burton knew he would be, so to save him any embarrassment, she walked away. While Jimmy ate, Johnnie talked about the pleasant morning he had spent, told Jimmy the interesting story his Sunday school teacher had told him, gave him a card with verses on it, and timidly offering Jimmie a lesson paper with the next Sunday's lesson on it, he extracted a promise that he would come over on Saturday and study it with him, adding that mother said if they would study together, she would always have a treat for them.

Summer gradually faded away, and Johnnie and Jimmy became good friends, under his mother's wise guidance. Two fish were caught, for she fully realized her own boy had been only nibbling at the bait.

With the ringleader interested in higher things than breaking the Sabbath, the "Gang" soon got tired of each other, and Johnnie, with Jimmy's help, brought many boys into the fold of the church, and Johnnie, even when a man, useful and saved into the kingdom of his Lord, laid it all to the time when he went fishing on Sunday.

Baton Rouge, La.

SPRING'S FIRST ARRIVAL.

The bluebird is among the first, often the first to arrive in spring in the northern part of the United States from the Southern States, where this aristocrat has been spending the winter, says the American Forestry Association, Washington, which is conducting the nation-wide campaign for the building of birdhouses by school children, who are showing great interest in this movement. Sometimes more hardy bluebirds will pass the winter as far north as southern New England. The bluebird builds its nest in bird boxes, or in crannies about buildings or in holes in trees, particularly orchard trees. It lines the bottom of its nest with grasses for the four or five blue-white eggs which it lays. The female is paler in color than the male bird. Exchange.

EATS A THOUSAND BUGS.

A cliff swallow will eat a thousand flies, mosquitoes, wheat midgets or beetles that injure fruit trees in a day, and therefore is to be encouraged, says the American Forestry Association of Washington, which is conducting the nation-wide campaign among school children for bird-house building. This bird is also known as the cave swallow because it plasters its nest on the ouside of a barn or other building up under the eaves. Colonies of several thousand will build their nests together on the side of a cliff. These nests, shaped like a flattened gourd or water-bottle, are made of bits of clay rolled into pellets and lined with straw or feathers. This bird winters in the tropics. Exchange.

I am inclined to think that as churchmen we are a little too much wedded to de luxe editions of whatever we undertake. I believe that Christ lived to sanctify the common things in ordinary life.—I. P. Johnson.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

GRATEFUL ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

We desire to make grateful acknowledgment of the kindness of Rev. R. H. Harper, pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city, for editorial assistance in bringing out last week's issue of the Advocate. His willingness to help a "brother in need" is exceeded only by his ability to do splendidly whatever he undertakes. We enjoyed our visit to other cities all the more because we knew that the editorial management of the Advocate was in good hands while we were away. Our readers will agree with us that he wields a facile pen.

IS IT TOO LATE?

Press dispatches on Saturday of last week announced that Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Secretary of the Board of Education, had gone to Lake Junaluska, N. C., to meet with the educational campaign committee of the church to plan for the campaign for $25,000,000 for the benefit of our colleges and universities early next year. It is well known, of course, that this campaign was provided for by our recent General Conference, though it was stipulated that it was not to take place until the Centenary campaign had been completed.

There can be no question as to the urgent need of more liberal provision for our colleges and universities, and this effort to add to their resources will meet with the approval of all those who are interested in the welfare of our educational institutions. And we predict that our people will respond generously to the appeals that will be made, and that the full sum asked for, even more, perhaps, will be given. It is of the utmost importance that we make adequate provision for the proper training of our young people in institutions that are specifically and directly under the control of the church, in order that they may have brought to bear upon their lives, in their formative periods, the influences of a sound Christian faith.

But we are thinking of another cause that is resting heavily upon the mind and heart of the church, and that must be fully provided for at no distant day. The demand for the proper support of our superannuate preachers, their widows and dependent orphans, is becoming insistent and urgent. We have a great department of our connectional activities devoted to the securing of adequate funds for this appealing cause, and the Secretary of that department is giving himself unreservedly to the work which has been committed to his hands. But by the action of the General Conference, no general campaign is to be undertaken for the support of this department during the present quadrennium, the Centenary movement and the educational interests of the church having been given right of way for four years. In the meantime, the cost of living has risen enormously, and many of the men who have given their lives to the service of the church are compelled to suffer under the constantly decreasing purchasing power of the pitifully small sum they have been receiving. We can wait two years longer to go to their relief—but they need that help now.

We do not wish to make any suggestion that is, in the slightest degree, out of order; nor do we wish to embarrass the Board of Education in its praiseworthy efforts to make adequate provision for the interests committed to its care. But we are wondering if it is at all possible to make any arrangement by which the educational campaign could be combined with a campaign for the superannuate fund in a way that would meet the approval of all concerned. Two things, at least, can be said in favor of a united campaign. One of these, the urgent need of our superannuate claimants, we have already referred to; the other is the practical wisdom of avoiding a succession of highly organized and intensively conducted appeals for large sums of money throughout the church. We do not suppose for a moment that our people gave to the point of exhaustion in the Centenary campaign; and we do not doubt their willingness to contribute liberally in the future to any worthy cause that may be presented to them. But the payment of the Centenary pledges, running through a period of five years, the payment of the pledges to the educational fund, running, presumably, through a similar period, to be followed by a church-wide campaign for the superannuate fund, will bring us face to face with practical difficulties that must not be underestimated.

There are some who believe, in the light of experience, that it would have been well to include all these claims in one great campaign, according to the budget system. The Southern Baptists are following that plan in their great movement to secure $75,000,000 for their work.

If it is not too late to do so, we hope this matter will be given serious consideration. If it can be done legally and equitably, we believe the campaigns ought to be combined.

HERE AND THERE.

I.

New Orleans—St. Louis.

We left New Orleans on Monday evening, July 28, at 7:30 o'clock, for St. Louis. The occasion of the trip, as we have previously indicated, was an invitation to take part in the discussion, at the Centenary conservation group meeting at St. Louis, of the question of the relation of the church paper to the Centenary conservation program. We fondly hoped that there would be some congenial acquaintance on the train to make the trip with us, but when we surveyed the occupants of the Pullman to which we were assigned, we saw not a familiar face. We resigned ourselves to our fate, read the late editions of the afternoon papers, glanced through a magazine or two, and at an early hour went to bed and to sleep.

When we awoke on Tuesday morning, we were in Memphis, Tenn. We felt very uncomfortable—it was too early to get up, and too late to go back to sleep. We compromised by stretching and yawning for awhile and then making our way to the lavatory for a refreshing ablution and a necessary but troublesome shave. An old-style razor is a thing to conjure with on a firm foundation; but on a rocking, swaying train it is a treacherous and dangerous implement. We managed, however, to escape injury for the time being. Pretty soon, Rev. J. M. Morse, presiding elder of the Jackson District, Mississippi Conference, made his appearance, having boarded the train at Jackson. His expressed belief was that Rev. J. T. Leggett, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, was also on the same train, hidden away somewhere, but that he would appear in ample time for breakfast. His belief was confirmed by the appearance of Brother Leggett on the scene in due season. The journey thenceforward was most enjoyable indeed in the company of these brethren.

We went to the dining car with exceedingly pleasant anticipations of what we fancied was in store for us. But when we glanced over the menu and noted the prices attached to the more appetizing articles of diet, our pleasant anticipations gave way to a forlorn feeling—a kind of combination of indignation, disappointed hope, and eager yearning. We would not state it as a fact, but we imagined that we could see on the faces of the apparently imperturbable waiters a leer of malignant glee as they watched us struggling with the problem of bringing a sufficient repast within the limits of a month's salary—more or less. Perhaps, though, they themselves were harassed by the fear that we would not have enough left for a tip after we had paid for what we had eaten. We ate lightly—breakfast is never a heavy meal with us—and tipped accordingly.

We have read more than one dissertation concerning the ways of profitably employing one's time. The most common suggestion is to read a good book. We ourselves have, on various and sundry occasions, advanced that very suggestion. But personally, we find most profit, when traveling, in looking out of the car window. In fact, we find it almost impossible to do anything else. If we had ridden up and down the land, and to and fro, as so many of our brethren have, we might be able to glue our eyes to a book, utterly unaware of the changing scenes through which we were passing. But being, as it were, a countryman traveling abroad for the first time, we must needs keep our eyes open to see what we may see. Our sorest trial is that we cannot look through the windows on both sides of the car at the same time. We always have a kind of uneasy feeling that we are missing something that we really ought to see—and we determine within ourselves that the next time we pass that way, we will sit on the other side.

From Memphis to St. Louis, about all we saw was corn in all stages of development, and garnered wheat fields. A drouth was upon the land, and the corn showed unmistakably the effects of dry weather. This condition was especially noticeable in Illinois. We read in the newspapers after we got to St. Louis, however, that rain had fallen sufficient to insure a good crop.

Of course we passed through many villages and towns, some of which the train stopped at, others of which it ingloriously passed by. We cannot imagine anything more depressing to the spirits of a proud and patriotic citizenship than to have a passenger train go rushing by without so much as a "by your leave." It is a magnified and intensified form of the "cut direct," which rankles in the heart for many a day. At Fulton, where the train stopped some fifteen or twenty minutes, we first put foot on Kentucky soil. The country is "bone-dry," the automobile has displaced the horse, and there were no women at the station, so we are not prepared to express an opinion as to the validity of Kentucky's claim to greatness. We saw some tobacco fields near by, however. At Cairo, Ill., we crossed the Ohio River on the great bridge at that place. We had to refresh our memory of the geography of the country to convince ourselves that it was not the Mississippi. Certainly it was wide enough at that point to be the "Father of Waters."

We were due at St. Louis at 4:45 p. m., and, mirabile dictu, we arrived on the minute. When we rolled into that great station, our first impression was that the whole city had a roof over it, and that all its streets were filled with trains. By proceeding cautiously, however, making inquiries at the information bureau, of policemen, and of taxicab drivers, and under the skillful guidance of Brothers Morse and Leggett, we arrived at the Maryland Hotel in a reasonable length of time. We found there Rev. W. B. Jones, presiding elder of the Hattiesburg District, Mississippi Conference, Dr. D. C. Hull, Mississippi Conference Campaign Director, Rev. T. H. Dorsey, presiding elder of the Corinth District, North Mississippi Conference, Rev. Ben P. Jaco, North Mississippi Conference Missionary Secretary, Rev. J. L. Neill, of the church at large so far as his work is concerned, but a member of the Mississippi Conference, and a host of other notables. We were assigned a room with Dr. A. C. Johnson, presiding elder of the Mexico District, Missouri Conference, whom we found to be a most considerate room-mate, and a charming gentleman withal. We got supper in the cafeteria connected with the hotel, rambled around the business section awhile in company with Rev. W. B. Jones, and then went to bed in the largest city we have thus far set foot in. Remember, we were a countryman abroad for the first time.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

We regret to learn that Rev. A. J. Gearheard, our pastor at Bogalusa, La., has been ill, though not seriously, for some time.

Rev. G. A. Klein, one of our general evangelists, will assist Rev. W. H. Lewis in a meeting at Brookhaven, Miss., beginning on Sunday, October 5.

Rev. W. A. Mangum, our pastor at Berniee, La., is rejoicing over the arrival of a fine young son in his home. The Advocate extends congratulations.

Under date of August 5, Dr. Theodore Copeland, of Texarkana, Ark., wrote that he was in the beginning of what promised to be a fine meeting at Muldrow, Oklahoma.

Rev. A. L. Davenport, of Corinth, Miss., recently reported the holding of a great meeting, in which the preaching was done by Rev. T. H. Dorsey, presiding elder of the Corinth District.

The meeting mentioned in the "Personals" of last week's Advocate as occurring at Roxie, Miss., where Rev. W. P. Bailey is pastor, was really held at McNair, Miss. We beg pardon of all concerned.

Rev T. M. Bradley and Mrs. Bradley, of Tupelo, Miss., are spending several weeks at Waynesville, N. C., through the kindness of their parishioners, who gave them a well-filled purse for a vacation.

Among the staff of operators for the stereopticons at the Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio, were Rev. W. W. Graves, of Hazlehurst, Miss., and Rev. N. E. Joyner and C. N. Joyner, of New Orleans, La.

Rev. W. H. Lewis, our pastor at Brookhaven, Miss., recently assisted Rev. D. P. Yeager in a meeting at Mallalieu Church, on the Pleasant Grove charge. Five persons professed faith in Christ and joined the church.

Mr. W. P. Bales has been secured as coach and athletic director by Millsaps College. Mr. Bales was, for two years, physical director of the Army Y. M. C. A. at Fort Oglethorpe, where he was eminently successful in putting out winning teams.

Rev. A. Inman Townsley, of Fellcity Church, this city, was engaged in a meeting at the Biloxi Wesley House last week. The interest was so great that the meeting will be continued for another week. Rev. M. L. McCormick is the pastor.

Rev. W. B. Hogg delivered his lecture, "Christmas on the Rhine," under the auspices of the Woman's Club at Gulfport, Miss., on Tuesday evening of last week. Brother Hogg is assisting Rev. A. C.McCorkle in a meeting at Durant, Miss., this week.

Our work is making progress at Brooksville, Miss., under the leadership of Rev. J. A. Goad. A good meeting was recently held at that point. The Sunday school is in good condition. Twenty-three members have been received into the church to date.

The Centenary conservation conference, held recently at St. Louis, adopted as a slogan, "No shrinkage, but a surplus," for the collection of the Centenary pledges. This slogan was proposed by Dr. H. A. Boaz, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension.

The following good news comes from Rev. F. N. Sweeney, of Franklinton, La.: "Closed a good meeting at Fisher, Franklinton circuit, last Sunday night (August 3). Eleven accessions on profession of faith. Rev. J. B. Fulton, of Franklinton, did the preaching."

Mr. C. F. Niebergall, an active member of First Church, New Orleans, and vice president of the Commercial Bank and Trust Company, has been appointed Centenary treasurer for the Louisiana Conference. He will be assisted in the work of the office by Mr. C. N. Joyner.

Rev. C. B. Powell, of Indian Bayou, La., was lately assisted in a fine meeting by Rev. H. W. Bowman, presiding elder of the Lafayette District. He says his presiding elder is one of the best. Brother Powell recently assisted Rev. S. S. Holladay in a meeting at Mitchell, La.

A personal note from President Watkins of Millsaps College informs us that work is proceeding rapidly on the new dormitories. One unit is expected to be ready for occupancy by the opening of the fall term, and another by January 1. The outlook for attendance during the coming session is encouraging.

We learn from a personal letter that Rev. A. B. Barry, pastor at South and East McComb, Mississippi Conference, has been transferred to the Northwest Conference, and that he will leave on August 20 for Milton, Oregon, to attend the sessions of that Conference. Brother Barry has done a splendid work in the Mississippi Conference.

Our church at Como, Miss., has suffered a great loss in the tragic death of Mr. R. M. Short, who was killed in an attempt to settle a difficulty that arose at the courthouse at Sardis, Miss., on the night after the Mississippi election. The funeral services were conducted at Como, Miss., by Dr. R. A. Meek, Rev. E. G. Mohler, and Rev. R. P. Neblett.

According to information received by us, the Senior Epworth League of Carrollton Avenue Church, New Orleans, is the only League chapter in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Tennessee to receive 100 points in the League standard of efficiency. Rev. Jno. F. Foster, a great lover of young people, is the pastor at Carrollton Avenue.

Our congregation at Pleasant Hill, Miss., has had the great misfortune to lose its church building by fire. As we understand it, lumber had been bought at a near-by mill to rebuild, when the mill burned with all but one load of the church's lumber, thus entailing a double loss. Pleasant Hill is on the Eden charge, of which Rev. A. S. Oliver is pastor.

Dr. G. D. Van Devender, editor of The Messenger, general organ of the Congregational Methodist Church, published at Ellisville, Miss., had his hand painfully hurt by its being caught in the printing press a short time ago. The injury was not sufficient to prevent his giving us a cordial handclasp, however, when we stopped off at Ellisville between trains one day last week.

Professor W. W. Moore, who saw overseas service during the war, has returned to his work at Centenary College, Shreveport, La. He is spending a part of the summer in canvassing for students, and reports encouragement everywhere he has been. Dr. W. R. Bourne, the new president of Centenary, is actively engaged in pushing the interests of the college in every way possible.

We regret exceedingly that typographical errors sometimes appear in the Advocate. We try to do our best to prevent them, but they will occur in spite of our efforts. The fault is sometimes our own, sometimes that of the writer of the manuscript. We especially regret that in the obituary of William Fred Seab, in last week's Advocate, the name was misprinted "Scob." Other errors are, we trust, self-explanatory.

Rev. R. H. Harper, the popular pastor of First Church, of this city, left on Friday of last week for an extended vacation at Lake Junaluska, N. C., and other points. He was accompanied by Mrs. Harper and their young son, Robert. The official board of the church generously made ample provision for the expenses of the trip. The editor of the Advocate had the privilege of preaching to attentive congregations at First Church last Sunday.

Rev. R. T. Nolen, of the Vardaman charge, North Mississippi Conference, has recently held two good meetings—one at Derma, and one at Atlanta—in which he was assisted by Rev. D. H. Crowson, of Potts Camp, and Rev. D. W. Babb, of Strongs. Rev. D. R. McDougal, of Calhoun City, preached one sermon during the meeting at Derma. The work of all these brethren was highly appreciated. Brother Nolen was assisted in a good meeting at Vardaman by Rev. W. M. Young, of Pontotoc.

Rev. J. Lambuth Evans, of Haughton, La., honored the Advocate office with a call on Monday of this week. Brother Evans is serving as one of the field agents to organize the campaign by which the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage is expecting to raise $250,000 for the enlargement of its work. He reports gratifying progress in the territory to which he has been assigned—the Florida parishes of the State. He is doing this work in addition to his duties as pastor at Haughton.

One of the great privileges the editor enjoyed during his visit to St. Louis was taking lunch with Dr. A. C. Millar, of the Arkansas Methodist, Dr. W. E. Arnold, of the Central Methodist, and Dr. Alfred F. Smith, of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. There was not a great deal of "shop" talk, but the fellowship was delightful. Dr. Smith is well known to the members of the Mississippi Conference, having formerly been pastor of Galloway Memorial, Jackson, Miss. He holds his Mississippi brethren in high esteem. This editor is especially indebted to him for brotherly courtesies while in St. Louis.

CHURCH EXTENSION HANDBOOK.

We are indebted to the Secretary, Dr. H. A. Boaz, for a copy of the Handbook of the Board of Church Extension for 1918-1919. It contains the thirty-seventh annual report of the Board, in addition to a great amount of interesting and valuable information concerning this great department of our church's work. It is handsomely printed and most conveniently arranged. Every pastor in the church ought to have a copy of it for reading and for reference.

WHITWORTH ENDOWMENT.

Without any special solicitation, the endowment for Whitworth Female College is growing. Brother P. H. Enochs, of Fernwood, Miss., has notified Dr. Cooper that he would contribute $25,000 to the endowment, probably specifying some particular chair in the college as the beneficiary. This brings the endowment up to $60,000 from three Methodist laymen.

The desired goal is $250,000, and the indications are that the goal will be reached within twelve months. The Methodists of the Mississippi Conference are asked to think of this much needed endowment as a great opportunity for the investment of their money. An endowed college for our girls is the imperative need of the hour, and Whitworth is the logical college. W. H. LEWIS

Freckles
The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.
Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful

SHERWOOD C. COWAN, the subject of this sketch, was born in Georgia on March 11, 1837. In his early manhood he moved with his parents to Louisiana, and settled near Lapine, in Ouachita Parish, and there lived the remainder of his life. Brother Cowan joined the M. E. Church, South, while young, and he lived as a faithful member until his tragic death on June 2, 1919. While returning with his daughter from the Lapine postoffice, their horse became frightened and threw them from the buggy. Brother Cowan was entangled in the buggy, and dragged a hundred yards. He died soon afterward. At the beginning of the Civil War, Brother Cowan entered the Confederate Army, giving four years of service to the cause he believed was right. Returning to his home in 1866, he became a farmer, and contributed a great deal to the reconstruction of Ouachita Parish. On November 11, 1871, he was married to Miss Margaret E. Rawls, who, with five children, is left to mourn her loss. Brother Cowan lived a long life of usefulness, and we feel that he is at home at last in "the Father's house."

W. B. INABNET.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN PACE, son of James Minor and Sallie Holliday Pace, was born on August 6, 1890, and died on February 19, 1919. He was converted July, 1907, joining the Methodist Church at Sharon, Miss., of which church he was at the time of his death secretary and steward. This briefly chronicles a few salient facts in the career of a splendid young man. There was no stain on his record. Honest in word and deed; conscientious, faithful, pure, genuinely religious, a good son to a widowed mother, loyal in his friendships, a faithful and consistent member of the church—all this, and more, can be said, without exaggeration, of our departed friend. He was my intimate personal friend. We were much together. When I told him of my plan to nominate him as steward, he replied, "I will do my best to make a good steward." That reply defined his characteristic attitude toward duty. He always attempted to give the best in him to the work in hand. His death was a tragic loss to a dear old mother and to his brothers and sisters. It was a great sorrow to us all, but the memory of his good life and the hope of seeing him again in a fairer land comfort us.

"This world is but the rugged road
Which leads us to the bright abode
Of Peace above.
So let us choose that narrow way,
Which leads no traveler's foot astray
From realms of love."

His pastor,
F. L. APPLEWHITE.

THOMAS WARREN HACKLER was born in Hinds County, Miss., on February 17, 1856, and died in Edwards, Miss., on July 1, 1919. In 1876 he united with the Presbyterian Church, serving as a deacon for a number of years. In 1890 he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in which church he served as steward during practically the entire time that he was a member. He was married to Miss Lily Sharbrough in December, 1877. To this union were born seven children, two of whom—Robert and Carroll—died in infancy. His widow, one daughter, Florence, and four sons, L. Percy Hackler of Amarillo, Texas, H. Leonard Hackler of Holly Bluff, Miss., W. Warren Hackler, and Earl S. Hackler of Edwards, Miss., survive him. This is in brief the history of a true, noble and honest man. His life was spent in the community where it came to a close, and he was known by every member of the community as a man whose hand was extended to help others, a man who loved peace and harmony. His was a life without guile, without hypocrisy. His friends knew they might rely upon him always. Known as "honest Tom Hackler," he has left to his children the inheritance of a good name. We pray that the survivors may love the God of their father, that the children may follow in his steps and be as true and noble as was he. In apparent good health, he had gone to a neighbor's when the message came to meet God. 'Twas midday, and as the sun reached its meridian the soul of this good man rode on, we feel sure, to where it is always high-noon.

G. P. McKEOWN.
Edwards, Miss.

The spirit of WILLIAM H. ROBINSON on the early morn of January 14, 1919, bade farewell to the flesh and this life, and awoke on the eternal shore to enjoy the light and presence of the Son of God. Brother Robinson was born on September 20, 1877, near Raleigh, Miss. On September 16, 1900, he was married to Miss Ellie Wicker. To them were born seven children, all living, who, with his aged father, one brother, one sister, many relatives and friends, survive to mourn their loss. He possessed many noble traits of character, had a very congenial spirit, and was a neighbor and fellow-citizen whose place cannot be filled. He served his community in various public interests, and at his going left an unexpired term in the office of county assessor. He was a tireless laborer in all walks of life. He joined the M. E. Church, South, at Boykin's Chapel at the age of 17, and in 1906 became a charter member of the Burns Methodist Church, where he lived and served the rest of his life. During the last few years he was greatly devoted to the church and was a very efficient Sunday school superintendent. He was a conservative, but a progressive man along all lines, very much interested in the welfare of his church and community, and took active interest in the education of his children. He was a kind, loving father, and devoted husband. One of the mysteries to the human life is, why a strong, young man, as he was, just in his prime, should be taken from a church and community that so much needed him, and from a family so dependent upon him, and whose devotion to him was so beautiful, but the Heavenly Father knows. The writer counts it a great privilege to have been his pastor for more than three years, and recalls many a time where we enjoyed the rarest Christian fellowship. His funeral was preached by Rev. W. L. Linfield, his presiding elder, in the church at Burns on May 11, before the family and a large gathering of relatives and friends. To the bereft loved ones permit me to say, only God can ease and calm the disturbed soul amidst such sorrows in life. To Him I commend you, and pray that there may be another family reunion some day—a day which is not followed by night, and a coming together never to be separated one from the other.

His pastor,
T. B. WINSTEAD.

On the morning of July 21, 1919, ere the light of day had dawned, that peaceful sleep fell upon Brother R. BASKERVILLE HARDY which "kissed down" his eye-lids in death. He came to Mississippi from Virginia, his native State, having been born in Ludenburg County some 59 or 60 years ago. He became a citizen of Lowndes County, and a useful and influential one. He married Miss Lucy Bailey, and the union was, indeed, a happy one in every way. God blessed their lives with happiness, and their home with children. Three children, two sons, John and Robert, and a daughter, Sarah, together with his wife, are survivors left to mourn their loss. He was a planter in the prairie section, a very successful one, indeed, and enjoyed the blessings and comforts of prosperity. He loved his State, and desired her government to be of the finest type; he loved his county, and sought to make it progressive; but politics had no charms for him—his other interests at home were too great. No one who knew him as he really was is surprised to find that every friend and neighbor of his mourns his loss in his departure from their midst in life. He was a devoted husband, a tender father, an affectionate brother; he was a lover of righteousness, a friend to the friendless and a lover of his neighbor and fellow-men. Being naturally adapted to society, he was a leader among men. But in the midst of the vicissitudes of life, he saw the church of Christ, which institution he loved and to which he gave liberal support. No earthly business and thoughts led his mind away from the church in which he so frequently worshiped. It does seem, to one who knew him well, that he did "seek first the Kingdom of God;" and most certainly the blessings of this world were added to his life. Bereaved ones, I commend you to our loving, Heavenly Father. He knows your sorrows. He knows one's needs in life. "Ask and ye shall receive."

"Life, we've been long together,
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather,
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear;
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;
Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time;
Say not 'Good night,' but in some brighter clime,
Bid me 'Good morning.'"

His pastor, WM. I. WHITE.

THE GOLDEN KEY.

It is very difficult to realize it sometimes, and again it is very hard on our pride to admit it when we do realize it, but it is a fact nevertheless, and a fact that we should let get hold of us, and stay with us—that the joy and happiness and satisfaction of our lives depend very much more upon ourselves and the kind of people we are than upon the kind of things that happen to us. It is the kind of will I carry around with me, and the attitude of my mind and the temper of my spirit that decide whether my life shall be happy and hopeful, and not the things that come to me. Given the right kind of will, the sane attitude and the wholesome temper of soul, and I will be able to adjust myself to life, with some comfort and satisfaction, no matter what its accidents and incidents are, but without these it is absolutely hopeless to attempt to improve the accidents and incidents until they become quite satisfying. I carry the key of my own happiness myself and no one can give it to me or take it away.—Christian Guardian.

IS YOUR BLOOD HUNGRY FOR IRON?

Modern Methods of Cooking and Living Have Made An Alarming Increase in Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women

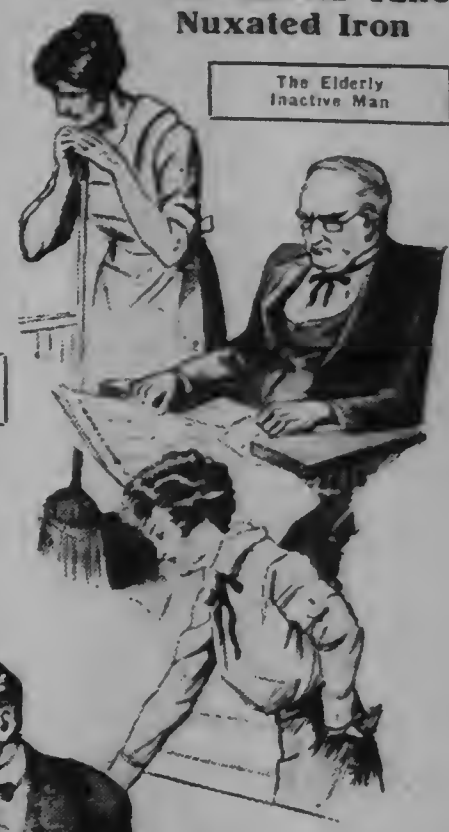
NUXATED IRON Helps Make Red Blood

The Kind That Puts Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Force Strength and Courage Into Veins of Men.

"Is your blood starving for want of iron? Iron is red blood food. If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally go hungry for want of iron—iron that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. But in my opinion, you can't make strong, sturdy men and women by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron. Nuxated Iron before it can be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all [illegible] been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular kind (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have increased their strength and endurance in two weeks' time while taking Iron in the proper form.



Who Should Take Nuxated Iron
The Elderly Inactive Man
The Tired Nervous Housewife
The Exhausted Business Man
The Run-down Business Woman

A PSALM OF THE HELPERS

The ways of the world are full of haste and turmoil,
And will sing of the wine of heaven who love Jesus.

He that turneth from the path to seek another
Turneth toward his grave
He shall arrive in the time of the judgment a beggar
But will be in the grave.

He that hasteth in the byways of the morning
Lighteneth the day coal
The almighty will put his arms underneath him.
He shall lean upon the Lord.

He that speaketh unfavorable words of another
Speaketh as evil spirit
In the time of need they shall return to remembrance
And will be vain for him.

He that cometh for the sick and wounded
Visiteth my alone
There are three in the darkness together
And the third is the Lord.

Blessed is the way of the helpers
The companions of the Christ.

Mosquitoes Meet Their Master

SWEET DREAMS TEACHES THEM THEIR LESSON QUICKLY

Did you know that a thousand men will sing where one whistles? So you may be will in the minority—but how can it matter. It's part of the fun.

Even when the mosquito does "the song of destiny" around your head, it's quite possible you will regret your decision not to use Sweet Dreams. But it's never too late to learn.

If the mosquito that "bit the hand that made" Benjamin Franklin could only have tasted Sweet Dreams, he would have died then and there.

Therefore it is urged that when mosquitoes sing some bewitching lullaby to you, you answer Sweet Dreams. Then and there.—adv.

PROGRESS IN THE NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT

I was the aim of the New Orleans District to have the dues and pledges on the first six months paid to date before the general going over time. Just a little figuring and you will see how we came out with this plan. We have fifteen auxiliaries and three mission and twenty-three members. Our treasurer does splendid work. We have paid to date $[illegible]. Our undirected pledge this year is $[illegible]. We have paid to date $[illegible]. These figures are encouraging and we feel sure that the dues of the year will find all finances in full. Louisiana Avenue has paid the pledge in full and has planned for still greater things this fall. First Church has just raised a scholarship in the Saltillo School. Mamie it is given as "The Mary Keener Scholarship," in memory of one who lived and worked well in the world of missions. It seems that the whole world must be aroused ready for "Forward, March." We see this one of the Lord's work when we read of that splendid scene in Jerusalem as follows:

"The response of the young people to the sermons for life service was one of the great outstanding features. The high water mark of the Jerusalem was reached on Sunday, July 2 when Bishop Henderson put three propositions to the young people, asking them to respond by coming forward to the platform. The first call was for those who knew that it was the will of God's will they would be let to the foreign field. The second was for those who were willing to respond if it should be God's will for them to serve in the home land. The third was for those who were willing for God to direct their lives and whatever channel he might choose. The response was spontaneous and at each call masses of young people flocked forward without a moment's hesitation until the platforms and the adjoining aisles were filled. The number that came was between four hundred and fifty and five hundred young people."

We have been purposely silent concerning the work with the young people and the children in the district, but the telling of this incident is a challenge to the superintendents of these departments.

Remember, let us keep before us page 7 of our Annual Minutes with the heading "HOW TO ORGANIZE A MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

Mrs. J. E. Hall,
New Orleans District Secretary.

FROM GREENWOOD SPRINGS, MISS.

Dear Sister Carter, Will you give me space to report my services? I began at Greenwood Springs with Brother J. L. Martin doing the preaching. He surely gave us some strong sermons that will long be remembered by all that heard them. We had about fifteen conversions and united with the church. From here we went to Pascagoula and Brother J. E. Thomas gave us some of those fine sermons that have lasting results. Only four united with the church, but I am sure much good will follow. From here we went to New Hope and met with Brother E. F. M. Bullard. He won the hearts of the people from the first service, and much good was accomplished. Family altars were erected and Bible reading began with interest. Only one united with the church, but I know that results will follow in the near future.

I am with Brother L. F. Ford at Beauvoir. All this week and much interest is being manifested, and we hope to have several souls converted before we close.

With best wishes to you and the Advocate, I am yours truly,

L. F. Threadgill, P. C.

A CALL TO PRAYER.

I put more value on prayer which is the work of all the Christian in devotional world, consecrated all our activities to the service of God, to minister which makes it more a joy because and it our actions to every human which makes it real to all the world. It includes every which makes us dear to all times that it includes ministry, literally virtues which is our every at most ground and are more valuable to use. And these more specific virtues are a little dangerous because they militate great more against the necessity which is the true touch of all the virtues.—St. Francis de Sales.

BUILD YOURSELF UP SO AS TO FEEL BETTER

Eat and sleep better, as well as look better, by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is an all-the-year-round medicine, good in all seasons.

It purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood, creates an appetite, aids digestion, so that all the nourishment of the food you eat, and good health, builds up the whole system. In many cases it succeeds where other medicines fail to do any good.

If you need a mild effective cathartic, get Hood's Pills.

Sunday School

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Have you observed Sunday School Day? Some of the schools have observed the Day, but have not sent their offering to Mr. D. S. Harmon, Poplarville, Miss., yet. Please attend to this at once.

Make a display of the 11 charts sent with the programs. These charts are fine and will call attention in a most striking way to each department of the Sunday school.

First Church, Laurel, has ordered 15 teacher-training books. They are beginning at the right place for the future of the church.

Last Sunday was spent at Pelahatchie and was very much enjoyed. One Senior Wesley Bible Class was organized. There are many complimentary things that can be said about this loyal people. Their church is way above the average for the size of the town. They are using graded literature and there are many other fine things.

Brookhaven District, take notice: September 9 and 10, the District Sunday School Institute will meet at Brookhaven. Rev. S. U. Turnipseed, of the Alabama Conference, will be with us. I hope each pastor will try to have a representative from each school present, especially for the day of the 10th.

Pray for the work and the workers.

THE MISSIONARY CENTENARY CELEBRATION.

I attended the Methodist Missionary Centenary Celebration at Columbus, Ohio. I was there twelve days. I had attended two world fairs in years gone by. I felt while I was at Columbus that the Celebration was the greatest thing I ever attended. I have had thirty days to consider it, and I still believe in its greatness, for it grows greater the further removed I get from it. I tried to keep my old mossy-back ideas hid, but they would crop out occasionally. I rubbed up against some of those big fellows that had a broad vision, a big heart, and lots of pep about them, and I feel that I am a Methodist with a larger vision than ever. It was no place to carry a dirk under your clothes, or a chip on your head, or old ante-bellum (civil war) notions. It was a place to make you think that "a man's a man," and it was the business of the Christian to reach, save, and edify the man—wherever you found him, whether he wore clothes like you or a skin like you. Sometimes I would get so happy I would feel like shouting. Almost everybody seemed in a good humor. The fellowship was so pleasant I said, "I can understand Heaven better." I never heard a word on those grounds that could not have been uttered in the presence of any refined lady. When I saw the extent and fully understood the meaning of the Celebration, I thanked God for two things: first, that I am a Christian, and, second, that I am a Methodist. Since going there I can never think of two Methodisms. It will forever be in my mind, Methodism. Let us not talk about any North or any South, but talk in terms of our illustrious founder, John Wesley, of a world Methodism. Methodists, the world is our parish!

The Celebration was observed on the Ohio State Fair Grounds. There was ample area and plenty of commodious buildings. The buildings were all marked: Office Building, Administration Building, Asbury Building, China, India, Europe, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Philippine Islands, American Building 1 and 2, Africa.

In the Office Building were the Postoffice, Telegraph, Ticket, Information Bureau, R. R. Information, Employment Offices, and a time table, giving London time, New York time, Columbus time, Denver time, San Francisco time.

The Administration Building was used by the two churches as headquarters for their different Boards, etc.

The Asbury Building was the home of the Stewardship Hall, Book Concerns of both churches, American Bible Society Exhibit, Sunday School and Epworth League Exhibits, W. C. T. U. Headquarters, St. Luke's Hospital Unit, Lecture Hall for prayer, preaching, etc.

The building marked for each nation emphasized the religion, the education, the home, and the products of that country or nation.

There were men and women to explain every feature of every country. They would explain the religion and the home life, and there were schools taught in these buildings to show how these people were instructed. Their marriages, their funerals, etc., were explained by illustrations. They showed how they beat the devils out of a fellow.

The big Evangelistic Tent was a great feature, and Bob Jones, of Alabama, preached there every night to thousands of people. In almost every building there were from two to five lectures or religious services telling the needs and possibilities of the people of that particular country. It seemed to me like a great world fair—with the Macedonian there to call us to his people. The whole thing had an intense religious meaning, and a religious feeling seemed to predominate and direct the daily program. I came away wiser, broader, I believe a better man. It had to be seen to be fully appreciated.

A GOOD MEETING AT PONTOTOC, MISS.

Dear Mr. Editor: Our meeting at Pontotoc began on the second Sunday in July. Our presiding elder, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, preached for us, in the morning, a most appropriate sermon. Then Brother E. R. Smoot, of Amory, took charge in the evening service, and day and night he preached for ten days. All the sermons were of a high order, thoroughly evangelistic, and some of the sermons no less than great. Our people feasted on a high class of Gospel preaching in the power of the Holy Spirit. Much real strength came to the believers of all the churches. But one of the strange things that seems unreasonable, the sinners and unbelievers did not hear this Gospel; they seemed determined not to hear. In this way, an ingathering was defeated. My church was greatly benefited and stimulated, but not all. Has anybody else such experience? W. M. YOUNG, P. C.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

AWAY WITH THE DANCE!

Dear Brother Carley: I am so glad to see some of the brethren come out in the paper against the dance. There can't be a bigger curse in the world than the dance. It wrecks religion and morals wherever it is practiced. The dance destroys all consciousness of true virtue, and forever destroys modesty and respect. I think the time has come when we should cry aloud and spare not. Our young people are being swept off their feet by the thousands. The most heart-breaking thing I have ever seen was a mother going to the dance and her daughter of about sixteen following her; she seemed to be in a great hurry—I guess she was afraid they would get the fiddle tuned before she got there. God pity such a mother, if I should call her a mother.

What are we to do when a great majority of our church members are regular dance-goers, and worse, still, they are teaching our boys and girls in the Snnday schools? Where can we expect them to land, sailing on that kind of a boat? "If the blind lead the blind they both shall fall into the ditch." I don't understand how people can feel that they are religious, and dance, or believe they are in favor with God. I suppose their conscience has not been awakened to the fact that dancing is a sin and the means of damning thousands of souls and blocking the way into the kingdom of God for others. I asked a young man the other day to become a Christian. He said, "I have a desire to, but I can't see any difference in church members and others, and for that reason I have been unable really to see what Christ means in the life of a man." He said, "They all dance and curse and play cards; I see no difference." This is a sad state of affairs. "If the light which is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness." I said the other day in a sermon, "If these bucks will go out and dance by themselves twice a week for six months, they might make me believe there is some pleasure in dancing."

The Gospel made the devils tremble in the days of Christ, and it is the same Gospel to-day. I would to God that more of them could be made to tremble. God help the preachers of to-day to cry aloud and spare not. God help us to realize that we are the "watchmen on the tower," to give warning of approaching danger. May the Lord bless us. R. T. WARE.

NOT EQUIPMENT, BUT THE MAN MAKES THE DIFFERENCE.

Every great school, college or university has been built around the personality of some one man. The educated men of America who have accomplished great things and who stand well in professions look back on their college training and attribute much of their accomplishments to the dominating personality of the school in which they were educated. The dominating personality of Morgan School is that of Professor R. K. Morgan. His influence for good and better things does much toward the moulding of morals and stimulating of broader ideals in the students who are so fortunate as to attend Morgan School. Mr. Morgan has devoted his life to the training of boys.

The thoughtful, considerate parent feels that the school to which he sends his son must be equipped and its faculty chosen with the primary end of training the boy to become a man—to teach true Christian faith, to develop manly independence and self-confidence, to inspire high ideals of life and service, to strengthen and develop mind and body alike.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, which has been built up around the Christian character and wholesome, inspiring personality of Robert K. Morgan, who has been principal for 26 years.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalog and full information about this school.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE HOPE OF THE WORLD.

We are not blind to the dangers that threaten us to-day; but we are not pessimistic as to the final outcome of things. There is a God over the universe that humanity can trust. He is a God of love, of power, of wisdom, and of ceaseless activity. From the dawn of history to the present time, he has revealed himself in numberless ways, all of which have been for the betterment of mankind. And he is dealing with a humanity that is conscious of moral law, that is subject to conscience, that is responsive to the call of duty, and that aspires to that which is high and holy. All these things work together for righteousness. The coming of the kingdom of God is no idle dream.

PROHIBITION AND WORLD TRADE.

So far as we know, Col. E. M. House, President Wilson's confidant and adviser, is not especially noted for his interest in temperance reform. But, according to recent newspaper reports, he is not unobservant of the meaning of prohibition in its larger aspect of economic efficiency. We quote from a letter he is said to have written from England to a friend in America: "Prohibition in America will mean prohibition everywhere, sooner or later. Europe will not be able to compete with us under such a condition. The British press does not represent the real feeling here. There is already a strong sentiment for prohibition among the young men, and this will grow as the experiment proves successful with us." We are glad to note, also, that our American newspapers, with comparatively few exceptions, seem to be willing to recognize the fact that prohibition has already demonstrated its value in promoting the industrial and moral welfare of the country. We confidently expect to see a "dry" world in the not distant future.

THE SHANTUNG AGREEMENT.

One of the most serious objections urged against the peace treaty is the provision by which Japan is given control of Shantung, a part of Chinese territory which Germany had acquired. The Chinese delegates to the peace conference considered it so great an injustice that they refused to sign the treaty. The moral sense of a large part of the American people has been shocked by the provision. In defense of the action, it was stated that momentous issues depended upon the concession to the demands of Japan, and that Japan had definitely agreed to restore the territory to China in due time. In a recent statement, the Japanese authorities renew their pledge to restore the territory; but they state that "the length of time required for such arrangements depends largely upon the attitude of China." Since Japan will insist upon being the judge of China's attitude, we presume that her declaration is merely a diplomatic way of saying that she will return Shantung when she gets ready. Poor China!

SALARIES OF TEACHERS AND PREACHERS.

The Progressive Farmer, one of the most ably edited and widely circulated agricultural journals in the country, has, more than once, given attention to the necessity of better salaries for teachers and preachers if the highest welfare of the people in our rural communities is to be maintained. In its issue of July 5, it returns to the subject in the following ringing editorial expression: "There is not much hope for developing a really satisfactory rural civilization in our time unless we actually double teachers' and preachers' salaries. We say double and we mean what we say. Little piddling advances will not suffice. We might as well face the fact that these salaries must be actually doubled—and the communities that get and keep the best teachers and preachers will be those that have the grit and grace to act first in this matter. And these, too, will be the neighborhoods which will most easily attract settlers and laborers and renters, and where land values will advance most. People worth while will go where they find good schools and churches, good teachers and live preachers. And people will move away from communities where their children must go to school to scrub teachers and where churches and other civilizing agencies are most poorly supported." We have given this liberal extract from the Progressive Farmer for the purpose of calling attention to the fact that better support for teachers and preachers is not merely an academic issue. It is a question that must be faced fairly and squarely, and dealt with justly.

HE LOST ALL.

We have heard of a man who allowed the love of money to become the absorbing passion of his life. At first, he was merely economical in his expenditures; but as he grew older, he became stingy. Constant questions with him were, "What does it cost?" and "Shall I have to pay?" He was able to live comfortably, but he deprived himself of many of the necessities of life. He sought eagerly for bargains when he made his purchases, being much more concerned about price than he was about quality. He would walk half a mile to save five cents, though time was an important consideration in the conduct of his affairs. He was always willing to receive social courtesies that involved considerable outlay, but he learned to avoid his friends for fear he might feel called upon to reciprocate their conventional favors. His friends at first smiled at his penuriousness, and then became scornful. Their liking for him changed to bare tolerance. But he was so absorbed in his pursuit of gain that he failed to notice that he was avoided by all except those who had business dealings with him. Yet he spoke beautifully of friendship, and he really longed for companionship. He cut himself off from the interests of his fellow-man because he was not willing to pay even a small sum for the privilege of identifying himself with them. He thought only of the time when old age would come upon him and he would have to depend upon his investments for his living. But in the end, his investments turned out badly, and his old age found him reduced to poverty. He had acquaintances, but no friends. In bitterness of spirit he bewailed his fate, charging his misfortunes to the ingratitude of men and the harsh dealings of a cruel Providence. In laying up for himself treasures upon earth, as he thought, he lost all that makes life worth living. So it is with many.

WHAT THEY WERE ELECTED FOR.

A dispatch from Washington, D. C., last week, stated that so many members of the House are absent from their places that the majority and the minority leaders have issued instructions for them to return in order that legislation dealing with the high cost of living may be taken up at once. Fewer than 100 members were in attendance at the session of the House on Thursday of last week. Our general impression is that members of Congress are elected to attend to the business of the people in Washington; if they prefer to stay at home, they can doubtless be elected to do that, also.

GETTING READY FOR WAR.

Along with the movement to make future wars impossible, most of the nations of earth seem to be making every effort to be fully prepared for the next one that happens along. Our own country is considering a bill before Congress for the maintenance of an army of 576,000 men, with a provision for compulsory military training for a period of three months for all young men in their nineteenth year. The chief objection to the plan on the part of our military authorities seems to be that the army will be too small and the period of compulsory training too short. A mere civilian might add that the expense of the proposition something like $900,000,000 a year, is worth considering. We do not believe that the majority of the American people are in favor of a militaristic program.

WHAT WILL HE DO WITH IT?

Our readers will probably recall that Mr. Henry Ford brought suit for damages several weeks ago against the Chicago Tribune for having referred to him as an anarchist. After a lengthy trial, the jury last week awarded Mr. Ford damages to the amount of six cents. Mr. Ford claims that the verdict has vindicated him, while the Tribune declares that it has, in reality, won the case. We presume the opinion depends upon the point of view. But we are wondering what Mr. Ford will do with this addition to his already large fortune. It may "come in handy," since we read recently that Mr. Ford has lately spent $300,000,000 in buying up the stock of his automobile company owned by outsiders.

FAITH.

By Willie Conger Page

No matter how heavy the burdens,
Or the duties that press and throng;
No matter how rugged the pathway,
Or if the night be weary and long;
Look up with a psalm of thanksgiving,
For Love, Truth, and Right will prevail.
Be cheerful, be glad, and be happy;
Know that God's love does not fail.

THE LIFE-SAVER.

By Wm. C. Allen.

Years ago the writer was on a ship that had just left the river Clyde for America. The increasing motion and tumultuous swash of white-crested waves against the sturdy sides of our vessel indicated that the broad Atlantic had been reached. Night had fallen and the mist-robed shores of old Scotland had disappeared from view. Suddenly a sailor fell overboard. A life-buoy—one of the kind that automatically ignites when it touches the water and sends a flaring flame across the sea—was immediately thrown after him. A boat was launched and, guided by the clear and steady light which by that time was left two miles astern, the men pulled over the dark and heaving waters for the life-buoy. They were assured that if their unfortunate comrade would swim to it as his only hope he would be safe. He did so and clung to it until deliverance came. When the little boat regained our ship we were all very happy because a life had been rescued from the greedy sea.

Do we realize how many men and women are daily submerged in the waters of wickedness and sorrow? Sometimes they become willful or reckless, often we cannot accuse them of evil intent, frequently they are victims of heredity or circumstances beyond their own control. The sullen sea of despair threatens them. They feel that it is useless to struggle toward any place of safety because so few human hands are extended on their behalf. Our great cities supply many of these moral unfortunates, the countryside contributes its unseen quota, they represent all classes of the social world.

May not the life-buoy be considered an imperfect type of the Son of God? Over the troubled ocean of human agony and waywardness He sends forth a beam of hope to the spiritually drowning children of men. He, our Savior, and His cause, too often seem tossed upon those waters as He partakes of the common lot. Can He deliver? He does. The splendor of the light He offers shows where He is to be found—on the cross and in the human heart—and how succor may be obtained. Is this just a beautiful fancy? No—we are speaking of verities testified to by generations of unnumbered men. We are wise if in time of extremity we, like the sailor I tell about, buffet the raging sea of difficulty and, with uplifted face, swim to Jesus and cling to Him.

In soul-saving as in life-saving the willing hands of men become the instrument of rescue—human participation is part of the glorious way of God. Why do not we who know these things enter more gladly into this superb service? Is it because with too many of us the faith of Jesus is simply a religion and not a matter of daily life? Are our lives too often inconsistent with His commands? Is it possible that because we personally fail in self-sacrifice we are unable to hold aloft the Light of Life to others? Are unhappy people around us, for these reasons, lost in the blackness of a dreary night? If so, God pity them and us; but will not we who have neglected to search for others need His forgiveness more?

It is the privilege of those who are almost hopeless in the billows of suffering and sin, and those who want to save them, to hasten together to the Beacon Light, the rays of which are shed abroad for the deliverance of sinking men. There, surrounded by darkness but where Jesus is, the nearly lost, the brave rescuers shall meet with joy. As is the romance of the sea, so is the grand old story of the soul—the seekers and the found rejoice together in the Lord. To all of us He calls across life's restless waters, "Come, come to Me, I am the Light of Life!" Shall we go? Are we longing for deliverance? Are we willing to save men for Jesus Christ?

THE SHORT CUT.

By Leon C. Prince,
Professor in Dickinson College.

Something over four hundred years ago an Italian sailor in command of a small Spanish fleet—the largest vessel in it not much larger than a trolley car—started on the most memorable voyage ever undertaken by any navigator, with the possible exception of Noah. Columbus was looking for a new way to reach an old place. The old way, which men had traveled ever since the crusades had made India the trade center of the world, had been overrun and shut off by the Turks. A new route had been promptly found by an enterprising Portuguese, but it proved too long and too slow for an age that was beginning to demand speed. For two centuries the nations of Europe followed the lead of Columbus, trying to find a short cut to the East by sailing west. But they never found it. They found other things much more valuable, but they never found what they were looking for. There was no such thing.

It is characteristic of mankind to want to get to the point of destination by the quickest and shortest route. That is the motive and the mainspring of all discovery, all invention, all improvement. That is what Columbus was looking for when he stumbled across a continent. That is the reason the locomotive superseded the stage coach and the reason electricity is superseding steam. That is the why and wherefore of harvesting and linotype machines, of airplanes, submarines and forty-two centimeter guns. It is better to tunnel a mountain or bridge a chasm than to detour for fifty miles in order to get around them; better to save your energy by taking an elevator than to climb stairs.

But there are some things which cannot be reached or realized by the method of abbreviation. We must distinguish between the short cut which brings us to an actual goal, with a real economy of time and labor, and the short cut which connects nothing and gets nowhere; the short cut which defeats its own end by eliminating the only means by which that end can be safely and profitably attained.

Cutting Corners.

We are seeking to reach speedily and without labor a goal or a possession which only effort and struggle can realize or make of any value. We are hunting for a short cut to about everything that is worth while and to a good many things that are not: a short cut to wealth for the man who does not want to work, by way of stock gambling and speculation; a short cut to health by way of fake sanitariums and patent medicines for the man who thinks he can violate the laws of nature and escape the inexorable penalty, a short cut to knowledge by prodigested substitutes for the difficult and disagreeable process of concentration; a short cut to good government by the initiative and referendum, the direct primary, the popular election of senators, and a hundred other inventions of a lazy citizenship to annul the irrevocable law that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty;" a short cut to the millennium by reform bills and social legislation; and, finally, a short cut to heaven—which we are not quite sure exists, but which we want to make in case it does—by scalper's ticket or a free pass. In brief we are looking for a short cut not only to the benefits and enjoyments of this world, but to the blessings of the next.

Our newspapers and magazines abound and our mails are swollen with advertisements of commercial schemes which bear upon their face the palpable stamp of fraud: corner lots on the "lake front" that prove to be twenty feet deep in the Florida Everglades; gold mines and oil wells guaranteed to pay a hundred per cent dividend the first year. Officials of the United States post office have estimated the annual losses of the "unsuspecting public" who invest in this species of short cut alone at sixty-five million dollars.

Here is a young bank clerk, living beyond his income. He has a small salary and an extravagant wife. Or, not to lay all the blame on his wife, who may be the old-fashioned, home-loving sort—though the probabilities are she is nothing of the kind—he wants an automobile or a new house, when he has not money enough to buy a lawnmower. What does he do? Work hard and save? Not at all. That is too slow, too "old-fashioned." He thinks he will play the stock market. Most every one who tries that game fails, and fails disastrously, and the young man knows it, but he thinks he is going to be the exception. He is "lucky" and the ordinary risks do not hold for him. He will succeed where others failed. He has no capital, but that does not worry him—the bank has. He has no credit, but that worries him still less—he does not need any by the method he proposes to employ. He borrows from the bank, without security and without saying anything to the directors, but fully intending to pay it all back as soon as he has turned the trick, and buys Reading or Steel on margin. And as soon as he buys it, it drops. He borrows more to cover. It drops again, and he borrows still more. In a few days he has borrowed and lost twenty thousand dollars of the bank's capital. He is a defaulter, with a sensational exposure and a prison sentence staring him in the face.

Now, reverse the hypothesis, and suppose the young man wins. He pays the bank what he borrowed, secretly, of course, just as he took it. He stands a winner by twenty thousand dollars. Nobody is the wiser and the bank has not lost a cent. He pats himself on the head and makes up his mind to try it again, not for a petty twenty thousand, but for a hundred thousand. He repeats the process and loses. And he is bound to lose in the long run.

The Ultimate Effect.

The short cut in finance has made some men rich, but that is not the point. The ultimate question is not, What is going to be the effect of your method of making money on your fortune? but What is going to be its effect on you? The young man who tries the short cut described and loses is ruined. If he wins, he is even worse off than if he had lost, for he is lulled into a false security because he has "got away" with a dangerous game. He has made money which he did not earn, and by a method which, had it failed, would have involved a criminal prosecution and public disgrace. He has become confirmed in the pernicious doctrine that the penalty and obloquy of wrongdoing attach not to the wrong act, but only to its detection and exposure. In justifying his course by its success he has blinded his moral perceptions and in making his excuses pass currency with his conscience he has deprived himself of all protection against future temptation. There is a great difference between making a living and making a life. The short cut to building a fortuune is all right provided it does not defeat the paramount task ol building a character. You can make the process of getting a living minister to the aim of building a life, but I leave it to you whether most methods of getting a living without work will bring you very far toward the goal of character.

Now and then something occurs which passes for "luck" and which seems to open a short cut to an otherwise distant goal, but it offers nothing reliable by which we may safely and surely shape our course. A poor man may once in a lifetime pick up a coin of value in a place where such things are not usually discovered, but the profession of scrutinizing sidewalks and floors for chance coins would not be a paying business. A four-leaf clover is a "lucky" find, but the vegetation that colors the landscape and feeds the herds is the ordinary grass and herbage. There are a few men in every generation who are exceptionally well endowed, just as there may be four-leaf clovers in every lawn and hayfield and an occasional five-dollar gold piece turning up in unexpected places. But the work of the world is not done in the main by the genius; it is done by the average men, of indusirious plodding habits and toilsome accomplishment. Even men of acknowledged genius attribute their success principally to hard work.

When Theodore Roosevelt entered Harvard College he was an undeveloped youth of feeble health and frail physique, a capital subject for tuberculosis. He became one of the "seven wonders of the world" for physical stamina and endurance. How did he do it? Did the proverbial "Roosevelt luck" uncover some magic elixir, hid from the foundation of the earth, awaiting the advent of America's favorite son? Quite the reverse. It was the slow and painful product of laborious effort, of systematic cultivation, of self-restraint when others gave free rein to the riotous impulses of youth. Theodore Roosevelt found no short cut io health. It was all a matter of method and not at all of magic.

One day when Edmund Burke had overwhelmed Parliament by his eloquence, his brother Richard, amazed and bewildered, stood alone in a revery and was overheard saying to himself, "How on earth has Ned contrived to monopolize all the talent of the family? O, I think I see it. While we were at play he was always at work. I shall rival the ease with which he seizes immortality by the certainty with which I shall seize oblivion." Edmund Burke found no short cut to statesmanship and power. He invoked the law of patient endurance.

Darwin labored for twenty-two years on the Origin of Species, which revolutionized the world of science. Darwin found no short cut to scientific knowledge. He followed the beaten course of concentrated purpose.

The school and the college are famous for the short cut, sought by tho lazy, who lack ambition or the ambitious who lack persistence. You can get your degree—if the degree is all you want—with a minimum of study and application; by cheating, if you are clever enough, or by bluffing, which is a sort of first cousin to cheating, but you will never gei an education that way. To get the diploma or the degree without the education is like having a bankbook with nothing on deposit or a check book with nothing to draw. The knowledge that is power is more than information, more than the mere accumulation of facts. It means the ability to ihink and to produce with the independent stamp of your own mind and individuality. These things are not the sole property of genius, certainly they are not in any sense the possession of the cheat or the bluffer. They are the natural return of consistent intellectual toil.

New Paths in Religion.

Old-fashioned Christianity is a pretty hard thing to live. It is not easy to love your neighbor as yourself. It is not easy to encounter reverses, disappointments, ingratitude, misfortune and keep the spirit sweet, the mind charitable and faith unshaken. It is not easy to meet prosperity or possess power and keep the heart humble and the life uncontaminated. If anybody has not found these things hard, it is probably because he has not tried them. What an inviting field for the short cut! What is more desirable than heaven, and what is more difficult than getting there? So we invent a new cult. We take the words of Jesus and carefully prune them; leave out all His hard sayings; take the backbone out of His scathing denunciations and the bite out of His sarcasm; take the virtue out of faith and the inspiration out of sacrifice and struggle; borrow a pretty sentiment from some pagan poet, a few moral precepts from Confucius and a handful of intellectual fog from Buddha; shake them together and label the mixture "New Thought" or "Christian Science" or "Ethical Culture." It sounds elevated and religious and at the same time lays no burden upon the conscience and exacts no tribute from our jaded intellects and enfeebled wills.

If the world were made up of the same people who lived on from age to age, it would learn its most important lessons after one hard course in the school of experience. But it is not. It is a new world every thirty or forty years and each generation begins and ends at the same place. By the time one has paid the price and learned its lesson it is too late to profit by it because the time is all used up and the next simply repeats the process. Perhaps bye and bye we shall reach the point where we shall be ready to heed the warnings and apply the wisdom of competent tutors. When we do we shall hit a faster pace.

Now and then a bad man seems to reform by an instantaneous conversion. But he really does not. He only starts to turn around. The reformation of character, like the formation of character, is a long and toilsome process. You cannot sow wild oats, wallow in the mire of vicious indulgence, systematically neglect your higher interests for the best years of your life, and then in some sudden spasm of emotion begin all over again and strike a short cut to sobriety, virtue and saintlhood. Possibly some one is mentally asking the question, How about the Prodigal Son, didn't he strike a short cut? No, he did not. He found his way home, but it was a long, hard, rough road and he traveled it on foot. He was welcomed back and he probably lived a respectable life afterward, but he was never the man he would have been had he not wandered to the "far country" and lived with the harlots and the swine. No short cut here—only the slow, remorseless grinding of the mills of God.

The essential thing, the permanent thing is always the impulse, the motive, the purpose, the ideal which lies back of every act and directs and individualizes every achievement. Whatever we may be striving for—whether it is wealth, or knowledge, or power, or a plain, simple living—the essential thing, the thing that counts, is not the dollar, not the diploma, not the title, not even the livelihood, but the honesty of the aim, the persistency of the effort, the nobility of the struggle, the courage with which we meet disaster and defeat, the earnestness and self-abnegation with which we turn talent and opportunity to the God-like purpose of helping mankind.

The goal of true leadership, the path of true achievement, the accomplishment of true usefulness all lie the way of effort and struggle and sacrifice. Only as we apprehend and accept the stringent demands of this immutable law of spiritual development shall we attain the rugged proportions of strength and power. For there is no short cut to character.—The Christian Advocate (New York).

OPENING OF CENTRAL CHURCH, MERIDIAN, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: Sunday, August 10, was a great day for Methodism at Central Church, Meridian.

You know, of course, that our old building was burned six years ago; and that since that time, as our pastor expresses it, we have been "dwelling in the wilderness," worshiping part of the time in the old City Hall, and the rest, more than four years now, in the County courthouse. We reached "the Promised Land" Sunday (I speak reverently) in the opening of our splendid new church now completed at a cost of about $80,000.

We have passed through fires of difficulty in getting the task done. Almost ready to build five years ago, we were compelled by the outbreak of the war and the coming of the tropical storm, which devastated our section, to postpone. But in January of last year the spirit of determination which had been long gathering burst into flame; and in spite of war times and war prices, the campaign for funds was launched. In April of last year the contract was awarded; and without an interval from the time ground was broken until the task was done the work went forward, resulting now in a building of which any congregation in any city, even much larger than Meridian, might well be proud. I have nowhere seen a more complete or more practical Sunday school equipment, or a more beautiful and satisfactory auditorium, seating, as it does, about 1,400 persons, with acoustic properties practically perfect.

Credit for such a task cannot be localized. It is due to the whole working organization of the church, co-operating in as complete and beautiful harmony as ever delighted the heart of a pastor on an official board. Mention may be made, first, of the generous spirit of the members and friends of the church, who so cheerfully provided the funds; secondly, of the building committee, who planned and supervised the construction, especially of its chairman, Mr. C. W. Cochran, whose large gifts of time and of money meant much to the realization of our hopes; thirdly, of Messrs. Hancock and McArthur, the builders, whose integrity, ability, and courtesy made the committee's work a pleasure; fourthly, of the tact, untiring energy, patient devotion, and wise leadership of Rev. Herbert B. Watkins, the pastor. Over all and through all was the Father's blessing, hearing our prayers and leading us to victory.

The great auditorium was taxed to its capacity Sunday morning by the people of all the churches who came to rejoice with us. We are looking forward eagerly to the coming of the Conference in December. Dr. A. F. Watkins, of Millsaps, who was here Sunday, was heard to remark, "What a splendid place for a session of the General Conference!" Why not?

Very cordially yours,
D. C. HULL, Chairman,
Board of Stewards.

Meridian, Miss., August 12.

LET US ORGANIZE SOMETHING.

By Rev. Jno. W. Hoswell, D.D.

Dear Brother Carley: I join you in the desire to "organize something," but am a little surprised that you "cannot think of a single thing that has not already" been organized and fully officered. What about organizing an Anti-Unification Society? For fifty years and more I have religiously kept out of all kinds of organizations and societies except the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and a temperance brotherhood—the latter long out of existence—but I am ready to join a body of respectable men and women who will throw themselves in the way of the unification of Methodism such as now threatens to blot out our church.

For the purpose of rallying the forces of Southern Methodism, and solidifying them into a compact and permanent organization, I hereby nominate the following officers: For President, Dr. C. W. Lovett, of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate; Vice-President, Rev. T. B. Holloman, of the Mississippi Conference; Secretary and Treasurer, Dr. S. A. Steel, of the Louisiana Conference, with the understanding that he is to do the talking for the organization; to collect his salary and traveling expenses—all surplus funds to be applied in reimbursing him for raids on his watermelon patch during his campaign.

Seriously, Brother Carley, is it not time that something was being heard from the "rank and file" of the church on this great matter, which, not very far in the future, is destined to agitate the church and create divisions? The unificationists and unionists for a long time have had everything their own way; and as far as I know nobody except Dr. Steel and Dr. Lovett has lifted a voice in opposition. We have been so quiet that north of Mason and Dixon's line the opinion prevails that nothing remains but to put on the finishing touches. South of the line it is said that nine-tenths of the people favor the project. I have not the figures in hand to disprove the statement, but I do not believe it.

When unification was first proposed, and a plan set forth by our General Conference, I favored it. I thought I saw in it the re-adjustment of certain things, and the bringing about of better conditions without destroying the identity of our church. But, in about a year, I discovered that the removal of difficulties, getting rid of irritations, eliminating the waste of men and money, etc., were not the chief ends in view. The goal was organic union. As well as I remember, Zion's Herald, of Boston, was the first to intimate such a thing. The Herald persistently clings to that idea. And the Herald knows as well as anybody that organic union, or unification if adopted as the matter now stands, means one of two things: Southern Methodism will be absorbed, or the negro element in the General Conference will hold the balance of power. I would not turn around for the difference.

Sentimentalism rather than reason influences too many. "Brotherly love should prevail," they say. That is true. But I can love my neighbor without moving into his house or inviting him to move into mine. "We would be stronger if united." So it is said. But in what sense? If the Methodists, North, should unite with the Methodists, South, we would be nearly three times as strong as we are in numbers and material resources. The Methodists, North, would be mightily strengthened if the Methodist, South, would go over to them in a body. But the union of the two churches under a different name would not be a particle stronger than the two churches are now, each working as a separate organization, maintaining fraternal relations with each other, and presenting an unbroken front to the common enemy. No sort of argument can change this. The only damper is the fact that our Northern brethren have entrenched themselves in the South, often in places where Southern Methodism is established and fully able, so far as men and means are concerned, to take care of the situation. For this state of things Southern Methodism is not to blame.

Again, it is said, "There are no difficulties separating us which the world respects." But we are not discussing our differences for the benefit of the world—neither the world of sinners nor the world of Christians outside of Methodism. The world does not know what our differences are. The world thinks that only the negro stands in the way of union. This is as far from being true as the oft-repeated saying that the negro caused the disruption in 1844. The negro was only incidental. The cause was found in the violation, on the part of the majority of the General Conference of 1844, of one of the essential principles of Episcopal Methodism. The violation of this principle the Northern Methodists have never acknowledged.

This is one of the "by-gones" unificationists North and South wish us to forget. Personally, I believe our Southern delegates in that great struggle were right, and I would not feel true to my convictions, nor true to the fathers of the church, were I to ignore the violation of that principle which resulted in the unrighteous and unlawful condemnation of Bishop Andrew. Besides this, the "Plan of Separation" overwhelmingly adopted by the General Conference of 1844 was repudiated by the Northern General Conference of 1848. This was a virtual declaration that the property of the church, houses of worship, publishing houses, the chartered fund, etc., was still the property of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It was doubtless with this thought in mind that Bishop Ames took charge of our churches in the South and appointed his preachers to them. Has the Methodist Episcopal Church ever repented of these acts? As far as I am personally concerned I am ready to forgive. It is not so easy to forgive the wrong done my church.

All this we are informed is "ancient history." So it is, but it is history of unrepealed acts—acts that form an insuperable barrier to the organic union of the two branches of Methodism.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS AND PASTORS OF LOUISIANA.

No doubt every young person in our State who is interested in the forward movement of our Epworth Leagues has noticed in print, or heard from the lips of some friend, enthusiastic words about our "First Annual Assembly," held at the Mansfield Female College, Mansfield, La., in June. The Lord wonderfully blessed the Assembly and it was indeed a success. I will not go into detail about the program, for in this paper, under date of June 27, Mrs. R. H. Wynn gave a very fine report, which I hope every Leaguer and pastor of our Conference has read.

I would like to ask just here that every League get a copy of this item and post it on its bulletin board in the lobby of the church. If there is no League in your church, don't let that stop you, but post the article anyway, for some others may be interested.

For some time past I have been trying to figure out a way by which our State organization could get information direct to the individual League otherwise than by correspondence. A large number of "ways" have been suggested to me, but very few "means," therefore I have not been able to connect "ways and means" in every case. But I have in mind one "way" by which I am sure the "means" will be cared for.

The Editor of this paper, which as you know, is our Conference organ, has very kindly offered to give space for articles of interest to the Epworth League, and it is possible that, in connection with the Mississippi and the North Mississippi Conferences, we might arrange for a regular department, like the Sunday school and other departments of our church have, for our Leagues are at present entering upon a new era and it is very important that we keep in close touch with each other. It is true that we will depend largely on our district secretaries to work out details with the local chapters, but why not a general message, so all Leaguers may see what is doing in every chapter?

Now the question comes up, "How many Leaguers read the Advocate?" Well, I do not know, but I do know how many should read it; and to start the movement, why not do this? Let every League cabinet in the Conference vote to take one subscription to the paper, and have it mailed to the corresponding secretary or secretary of the League. Then let this officer clip the article and tack it on a small bulletin board which each League should have for this kind of publicity. Then let the Era agents sell as many individual subscriptions as possible.

We must educate our young people in keeping in touch with these messages from time to time. So why lose any time? Start now. You may send your chapter subscriptions direct to the New Orleans Christian Advocate, or to our State Era Agent, Miss Julia Reid, Lake Charles, La.; but do it at once and I am sure you will gain by it. Let no chapter in our State be without a subscription. Get your bulletin board ready and post this article at once.

Louisiana Epworth Leaguers must be in the first ranks. Yours for a greater League,

JAS. B. GRAMBLING, President,
Louisiana State Epworth League Conference.

THE BRIDLE OFF—ON A LARK.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

For the first time in my life, the fetters and all restraints having been removed, I am on a lark. At McComb, last December, the brethren took the harness off and sent me forth to roam—at large. Finding my bearings, and adjusting myself to new conditions was no hard task. Why, yes, the soil was the same and old Beck gee-hawed just the same as in the earlier days, but, somehow, the rows were longer and the sun delayed her setting and my feet grew heavy earlier than in those days of the long ago. That legislation at Washington didn't make the evenings one bit shorter and my Waltham refused to make up the difference. So that when I received that check with instructions to go to the great Centenary, I said, "Clear the tracks, ye old fogies (P. C.'s), we hows hold the reins."

And that was a grand occasion, which will stimulate thought for years to come. Twenty days might have been profitably lengthened into as many weeks to gather fully all of its lessons. It recalled Pope's, "Drink deep or taste not of the Pierian spring." Marvelous? Yes. Big? Yes, and some more. Instructive? Yes. And talks! Well, it was a time to sympathize with the Chinaman who said, "Talkee, talkee, too much."

But the bridle was off—no three weeks' vacation, no apprehensive telegram calling back to the flock, menaced our days. For one time the pocket-book alone set the limit, so I said to myself, "Eat, sleep and be merry; the harness is off." Now, as I study quietly the great Methodist Exposition, I am reminded of the average visitor, who halts in his efforts to tell and says, "Oh, you just ought to have been there!"

Impressed that there is a time for all things, my face is turned toward the land of the cotton and the cane, and here I am in the heart of the wonderful Mississippi Delta, playing hide and seek with the graudies. A short visit to Memphis, where one of the tribe is located, gave opportunity for observations. What possibilities are here! What rapid developments! What allurements! What temptations! What will be the output of this section a hundred years hence? To-day it is the home of the negro and the mule, the cotton king and the automobile. Of the last, the master and the tenants enjoy alike. Crops in this section are late and small, corn "firing" for lack of rain, cotton just beginning to put on its covering of white and pink.

While waiting for connections, I heard this (nonsense) from one colored citizen to another: "Why, man, you look so indifferent I didn't know you," which recalled one of Luther Manship's quotations, when one said to the other, "You look so simmerly like, I liker not to know you."

Memphis boasts of being a Mississippi town, and many there are from "Ole Miss" in all the walks of life, and leaders in their professions, too. A few minutes with Hal Spragins was all of the clerical force that I met. First Church folks report well of this Mississippian and Madison Heights says Tom Lewis can't be beat. Coleman is holding St. John's down.

And here I am ready to go back to the eternal hills and not a fish-line wet.

THE DREAMER.

The world needs men of action, men of intensely practical nature who can do the things that need to be done; but the world needs also the dreamers who can dream beautiful dreams that will be so beautiful and so entrancing that they will kindle the imagination of men and so will make possible things which merely practical men would have pronounced impossible. Long ago it was said that when the Spirit of God rested upon men they would see visions and dream dreams; and to-day the same Spirit inspires the dreams which are needed to uplift our race and create a new world.

But our age is a very matter-of-fact and exceedingly business-like age, and there is a tendeney to tone our visions to meet the criticisms of "praetical men," with the result, as one writer recently put it, that "our Utopias are not nearly Utopian enough." This means that the appeal to the imagination of men is weakened to such a degree that our Utopia becomes so much like the world we know as to lose its attractiveness; and this means that the dreamer has falled in his mission and his dream has lost its power.

We need to remember that even the most stolid humanity has its visions, and even the men who sneer at the dreamer are often caught by the beauty of his dream. The world's history is made memorable by the fulfillment of great dreams. Emplres were founded, new worlds were discovered, and the race was helped to a higher plane by the men and the women who persisted in dreaming noble and inspiring dreams, and who were not ashamed to face laughter, scorn and persecution in trying to make those dreams come true.

And now men are dreaming again, and the dreams are more marvelous than any that our fathers dreamed. They are dreaming of a conquest of the air as complete as the conquest of the earth; they are dreaming of the mastery of disease and of a new era in the physical life of man; they are dreaming of a warless world, of the abolition of poverty, and of the inauguration of an era of equality and brotherhood; they are dreaming of a new church without "isms" and without bigotry, to which men shall turn as naturally as a child to its home; they are dreaming of a Utopia such as was never conceived before; and the world is the better for these dreams.

In all ages wise men have taken great pleasure in puncturing what they deemed the airy bubbles of a superheated fancy, and wise men have always prided themselves upon their practical common sense and their ability to decide upon the practicability or impracticability of any new scheme; and yet the wise men have blundered and the fools have been crowned. The wisdom of God is wiser than man, and God-inspired dreams have a singular habit of confounding us all with their marvelous and seemingly impossible fulfillments. God laughs at impossibilities, and the things which we refused to believe possible spring into being before our eyes. The dreamer surely has his day, and the dreams which God inspires are sure to come true.

The pessimist has his day; the praetical man has his; and the dreamer also has his. There are few things to-day that can move and sway men more than some magnificent dream; and even the money-loving, intensely practical manufacturing peoples love to listen to some great dream. Despite the cynic and the scoffer, despite the incurable pessimist and the pronounced sceptic, the world to-day is cherishing its dreams as never before. The "new heaven and new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness" seems nearer than ever before, and even the present state of well-nigh universal flux, when Governments and dynasties, national boundaries and economic theories, prejudices of caste and race and religion, forms of church government and creed, methods of church activity, and all that concerns the life of men are facing an unknown future, even amid the unrest necessarily involved in these stupendous changes there stands out more clearly than ever before in the world's history the dream of a universal brotherhood inspired by the Spirit of Christ. The dreamer is dreaming still. Let him not be ashamed nor afraid to tell his dream, for these God-inspired dreams are helping to transform the world.—The Christian Guardian.

HELP THE ADVOCATE!

READ THE FOLLOWING PROPOSITION.

To the Pastors of Mississippi and Louisiana:

Dear Brethren: We will give you or any member of your congregation a Teacher's Bible if you will send us 10 new or renewal subscriptions to the New Orleans Christian Advocate by November 10. This Bible is one of the best made, and retails at $3.50. It is bound in genuine leather and has a concordance and all the usual helps in a Teacher's Bible; it is printed with large leaded-type, and is fit for a queen. In asking persons to subscribe, just tell them that you are trying to get a club of ten subscriptions for the Advocate for the express purpose of getting one of these nice Bibles, and this will help you persuade them to subscribe. If you will not yourself undertake the job, please get some winsome lady or tactful layman to work up the club. The subscription price is $1.50 a year. Ten subscriptions at $1.50 each will earn the Bible.

If you fail to get 10 subscriptions, we will give you a $2.00 Bible for seven subscriptions. This Bible is bound in genuine leather also, and is a nice book.

If you fail to get seven subscriptions, but secure five, we will give you a copy of "Alpheus W. Wilson—A Prince in Israel," by Rev. Carlton D. Harris. This book contains the life and labors of the late Bishop Wilson. It is bound in cloth and has 210 pages.

The Advocate has always been supported by the efforts of the preachers in Louisiana and Mississippi. We are about to lose nearly 1000 subscriptions, most of them in arrears to the amount of $1.50 each, and consequently we are compelled to devise some way of stimulating interest.

If you will take this matter up for us, and work this plan, or find some one to work it with your assistance and encouragement, we will be greatly helped.

This offer will hold good until November 10 after which date it will be withdrawn.

AND GET READY FOR METHODISM'S NEXT TASK

A Church-Wide, Spirit-Led Revival

Soul Winning

METHODISM'S chief objective is not dollars but souls. To this end the Centenary has issued a call for soul winning. All the force and machinery of the great Centenary organization will be used to put over the greatest soul-winning campaign America has ever known. A Million Souls for the Kingdom of God is the goal.

Pray

How to Do It

PRAYER is the one force that removes all barriers, overcomes all obstacles, brings desired results. Prayer Gets Things Done. Because somebody prayed the destiny of a world was fixed and nations were brought nearer to the feet of God. As prayer helped to win the battles of the earth so, too, prayer will bring the spiritual victory.

Without

Who Will Do It?

METHODISTS everywhere should heed this call to prayer in behalf of the great revival. Let every Methodist observe the Day of Fasting and Prayer. In the morning, at evening, in the Church, in the family circle, in the secret place pray in earnestness and faith for such an outpouring of the spirit and such a turning of men to God as has never yet been witnessed.

THE AFTERNOON TEA.

Betty McGee to an afternoon tea
Invited my dolly, my kitty, and me.
"An afternoon tea, in the morning at nine,
And please to be prompt in the rain or the shine.
The tea will be cocoa, of course, you must know,"
Said Betty to me; and I promised to go.

An afternoon tea is the stylishest thing!
I put on my prettiest necklace and ring,
And mother's long skirt, and a bonnet of red,
And did up my hair on the top of my head.
I made dolly sweet in a blue kimono,
And dressed kitty up in her very best bow.
Then I took sister's cardcase, with cards for us three.
I know how to act at an afternoon tea!

But what do you think? When the morning had come
And we asked if Miss Betty McGee was at home,
They giggled and said she had "gone out to play;
She must have forgotten that this was the day!"
Forgotten her guests, though the clock stood at nine,
And we were all ready for rain or for shine!

Forgotten the cocoa—forgotten it all,
While she was unstlyishly playing at ball!
"Please tell her," I said, in my haughtiest way,
"It was very bad form!" Then we bade them good-day.
And that was the end of the afternoon tea
For poor little dolly and kitty and me.

THE BLUE DAY.

Freddie glanced up into his mother's face as she came down the stairs and he saw that her eyes were tired and that she looked hot and weary.

"Father is so ill, dear," she said, "and I have so much to do. Could you take this prescription downtown for me? Oh, dear, it is such a blue day!"

"What is a blue day, mother?" asked Freddie.

"A blue day, dear, is one when everything goes wrong and it seems as if they would never be right again, and when you are tired and when—oh, when everything is topsy-turvy, as it is here just now!"

"But, mother dear, the sun is out and the birds are singing and the sky is so blue—not that kind of a blue at all—so why should you be blue?"

"Why, indeed!" said his mother, as she looked down into his merry face where the dimples in his cheeks were playing hide and seek with each other.

After he had brought home the prescription Freddie went to school. He carried a rosy-cheeked apple in his pocket which he thought he would eat at recess, but when the time came he noticed that the teacher leaned her head wearily against her hand as if she were very tired, so he went up quietly and laid the apple on her desk with a beaming smile.

"Oh, thank you, dear," she said, and as she ate it her face brightened.

"Is it a very blue day?" Freddie asked.

Smiling back into his eyes, she said: "It was—but it isn't now."

Skipping out into the yard, he remembered the lolly-pop that his father had given him because he had helped pick up the apples, so he took it out and sucked it happily until he spied little lame Peter standing all by himself in a corner of the yard watching the other boys play marbles. Freddie ran over to him.

"Want a lick?" he said, holding out the lolly-pop.

Peter's eyes sparkled as he took several good licks and then handed it back to Freddie.

"Good, isn't it?" said Freddie; "It's peppermint."

"Thank you," said Peter. "I haven't tasted a lolly-pop in a long time."

"Haven't you?" asked Freddie. "Well, we'll take turns. You take a lick and then I will."

When they had finished and there was nothing but the stick left, he said:

"Does your leg hurt you very much to-day."

"It did," said Peter, "but it doesn't seem to now."

When Freddie was on his way home from school one of the big boys passed him running.

"Better hurry, Fred—it's going to rain," he said.

Fred laughed as he replied, "Why, that's funny, I thought the sun was shining!" and he hurried home to get there before the storm.

When he reached the house he saw his mother sitting quietly on the porch sewing.

"Father is better," she said, "and the work is all done and it's been such a nice day after all—so bright and sunshiny and pleasant."

"Why, mother," said Freddie, laughing, "don't you know that it is raining right now?"

"Why so it is," she replied, as she hugged Freddie up close; "but look! See that beautiful rainbow over there?"

"There is always a rainbow when there is sunshine in our hearts, Freddie," she added.—The Christian Work.

HOW A BABY ELEPHANT WAS TAUGHT MANNERS.

In a recent exchange it is stated that elephants are amazingly like human beings in the way they discipline their young. In proof, it tells an amusing incident seen by a French traveler in an extensive lumber-yard in Burma.

While the adult elephants were faithfully at work, the youngsters played about the yard. The elephant that attracted the traveler's particular attention was hauling, in her chain harness, huge tree trunks from the bank of the river. She had a heavy load, a fact that her offspring did not realize. Bent on playing a prank, he wound his little trunk about one of the chain traces and pulled back with all his strength.

Conscious of the suddenly increased weight, the mother stopped and looked around. She saw the youngster back there, and shook her head solemnly, but paying no further heed to his teasing, bent again to her work. Meanwhile, however, the little rascal with his mischievous trunk had loosened the ring that fastened the traces to the load.

While the mother was straining to set her burden in motion again, her rascally son pulled with all his might against her, and pulled so sturdily that she was quite unaware that she had been disconnected from her load. Then, suddenly, the youngster let go. Naturally enough, the mother was thrown to her knees, and her driver hurled in a wide circle from her back.

The culprit sought a huge wood-pile that seemed to offer him at least a temporary protection. His mother, however, was soon in pursuit, and he had to flee. Round and round the wood-pile he dodged, but his mother, with her iron harness clanging noisily behind her, kept close at his heels.

Although the little one's greater agility gained some space for him at the corners, his mother eventually overtook him. The first blow of her trunk drew from him a bawl of pain. At the second he sank, quite humbled, to his knees; and then he endured without a murmur, although with many tears, a sound thrashing. Finally the mother let him up. With tears still streaming and with drooping trunk, he took his disconsolate way out of the yard.

The little fellow had won the complete sympathy of the observer. Consequently, he was overjoyed to witness during the noon hour a touching reconciliation. The mother did all she could to comfort the penitent little sinner; she caressed him with her trunk, cuddled him up against her, and looked at him as if to say, "You still have a mother who loves you." -Our Dumb Animals.

HE NAILED IT TO HIS BUNK.

A sailor lad just after his conversion went to a Christian man and said: "I want you to write some words for me on a card. You can do it better than I."

"What shall I write?"

"Write these words, sir. 'I love Jesus; do you?'"

The gentleman wrote them, and then said: "What are you going to do with the card?"

The sailor replied: "I am going to sea to-morrow, and I am afraid if I do not make a stand at once, I may begin to be ashamed of my religion, and let myself be laughed out of it altogether. Now as soon as I walk on board I shall go straight to my bunk and nail up this card on it, that every one may know I am a Christian, and may give up all hope of making me ashamed or afraid of standing for Christ."

The young man and his card won ten others to Christ on that voyage. Review of Christian Work.

The large liberty of others displeaseth us, and yet we will not have our own desires denied us. We will have others kept under by strict laws, but in no sort will we ourselves be restrained; and thus it appeareth, how seldom we weigh our neighbor in the same balance with ourselves.—Thomas a Kempis.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

A SPECIAL OFFER FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS.

On another page of this week's Advocate will be found a special offer concerning the securing of new and renewal subscriptions. This offer is special in the sense that we cannot afford to make it as a standing proposition. But at this season of the year, when our receipts are considerably below what they are at other periods, although our needs are just as great, it becomes necessary that we do something to stimulate the work of securing subscriptions. The Bibles, and the Life of Bishop Wilson, which we offer as an inducement to our friends to help us maintain our subscription list at a creditable number, are worth having. They are standard editions, and sell for the full price put upon them. Yet they may be had upon the terms laid down in our special offer without any expense whatever, and with only the comparatively small expenditure of time and effort necessary to secure a club for the Advocate.

Unless we receive their renewals, we shall have to drop a considerable number of names from our files in a short time. A personal appeal by the pastor or by some one appointed by him, would probably secure these renewals. And with the coming in of the fall crops, it will be possible to secure many new subscriptions. This offers a fine field for those who would like to get a fine Bible for themselves or for somebody else, or who would like to read the Life of one of the greatest of our bishops. Now is the time to act.

We must call attention to one thing especially: This offer is good only until November 10. After that date it will be withdrawn.

THE FOURTH QUARTER.

The announcement of the fourth round of quarterly conferences reminds us that the Conference year is rapidly drawing to a close. This has been an unusual year for Methodism thus far. The Centenary movement has overshadowed everything else in interest, and most of our energies have been concentrated on securing our quotas in the "Big Drive." But all along, there has been the feeling that the year should be marked by great evangelistic efforts. The reports that have come to us from various meetings indicate that there has been much good accomplished. In some places, there has been a genuine revival of religion—not merely a religious revival.

While the Conference year is drawing to a close, there is still time for the holding of meetings and for a great ingathering of soundly converted people. We should not allow anything to interfere with our main business of preaching the gospel of salvation to a world that is in need. There are certain items of business that must be attended to during the fourth quarter that need not be neglected; but with increased intensity we should be concerned for the souls of men. It is a great thing to go to the Annual Conference with all our financial claims met in full; but it is a greater thing to be able to report that the Lord has added daily to the church multitudes that were being saved.

We should pray that our Annual Conferences this year may be seasons of great spiritual profit to the preachers and the laymen who attend them, and to the communities in which they are held. It will mean much to the work of the church next year for us to go away from our annual gatherings with the consciousness that the Lord has met with us and blessed us in all spiritual things. We want a great revival to sweep over the church, and we are expecting to see it; but it is not necessary to wait until next year for it. It may come, if we will it so, during the closing quarter of this year.

THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE DOUBLY BEREAVED.

The North Mississippi Conference has been doubly bereaved within the past week by the death of two of its honored superannuate members—Rev. J. H. Mitchell, who died in a sanitarium at Jackson, Miss., on Sunday night, August 10, and Rev. T. G. Freeman, who died at Grenada, Miss., on Wednesday, August 13. Both of these brethren had rendered distinguished service to the church during their pastorates of more than forty years each, and their going away will be felt throughout the bounds of the Conference. Our heart goes out in sympathy to those who are in sorrow because of the death of these good men. We have the promise of suitable memoirs in due time.

HERE AND THERE.

II.

St. Louis—Cincinnati.

The two days we spent in St. Louis were practically all taken up with attendance upon the sessions of the Centenary conservation group meeting. The meeting was held in Centenary Church—a church famous in Methodism for its success in dealing with the problems of the down-town population. It is a substantial building, but not especially attractive to the casual visitor, we should say, either from the exterior point of view, or on the interior. Some repairs were being made on the auditorium, which necessitated the holding of the Centenary meeting in the Sunday school room. The Sunday school room is not a basement affair, as too many of our Sunday school auditoriums are, but it has a kind of basement effect, which is not altogether inspiring. A more modern building would probably be somewhat differently planned for the accommodation of the work in what we presume is an especially difficult field.

The hours of meeting for the daily sessions were: 9:30 to 12:30; 2:30 to 5:30; 8 to 10. These hours are merely suggestive of the intensiveness of the program that was carried out. Every item of importance was taken up in due time, discussed by speakers who were thoroughly prepared, and disposed of in a way that seemed to be satisfactory to the meeting as a whole. Opportunity was given for the asking of questions, and it was noteworthy that practically every difficulty had been foreseen and provided against. Our very definite impression during the meeting was that the Centenary Commission has worked out a comprehensive, necessary, and reasonable conservation program which will have back of it the same enthusiastic efforts for realization that made the "Big Drive" so successful.

There was very little opportunity for sightseeing, as can very well be imagined. By missing dinner on Wednesday, we found time to make a visit to St. John's Church, of which Dr. Ivan Lee Holt is pastor, and, by missing supper, we got to spend an hour or two at Forest Park, one of the beauty spots of St. Louis. St. John's is a magnificent building, although it was planned long enough ago to make its provisions for Sunday school work inadequate for the demands of the present.

We had planned to go from St. Louis to Chicago, but the newspaper reports of the strike of the street car conductors and motormen were such as to convince us that the one day we could spend there would be very unsatisfactory; we changed our plans, therefore, and left St. Louis for Cincinnati at about 9 o'clock Thursday p. m. We are perfectly willing to admit that New Orleans is a rather warm place in July and August; but we have never seen it as hot as it was in St. Louis on that Thursday night. When we got on the Pullman, the berths had been made down, there was no breath of air stirring, and the best we could do was to keep from suffocating. We had to do some writing—but it was done under difficulties. In the sweltering atmosphere of the berth, with a suitcase across our knees for a table, with considerably more of perspiration than inspiration, we labored with "Editorial Comment" in a most uneditorial frame of body and mind, while the train lunged on toward Cincinnati. In due course, our "comments" were made and we proceeded to do what probably many of our readers commonly do after a season with the first page of the Advocate—go to sleep.

Cincinnati is a hilly city, as hilly as Vicksburg, except more so in some of the principal residence sections. It is a beautiful city, however. Some of the scenes from the summits of the surrounding hills are worth going many miles to see. The best view of the surrounding country, though, is to be had from the top of the Union Central Life Insurance Company's building—said to be the highest building in the world outside of New York City. We stood 450 feet above the street, and then were 85 feet from the summit of the tower, where visitors are not permitted to go. Fountain Square is to Cincinnati what Canal Street is to New Orleans—a kind of starting point for trips in various directions, and a meeting point for visitors and tourists. Practically all the street cars of the city run into Fountain Square.

Cincinnati was baseball mad just at the time we were there. For the first time in fifty years, according to the newspapers, the Cincinnati team has a chance to win the pennant in the National League and to contest with the winner in the American League for the championship of the world. The New York team was in the city for a series of three games, and the outcome of the race was felt to depend largely upon the result of those games. Cincinnati won two out of the three, and joy was unconfined. The attendance at the games ranged from 16,000 on Friday to 33,000 on Sunday, according to the figures furnished the public.

There are many things worth seeing in Cincinnati, but we had our hearts set on two especially—the Muscum of Art, and the "Zoo." We saw both of them. The Museum of Art is a wonderful collection of statuary, paintings, and other things that appeal to the esthetic sense of those who are sufficiently trained in the technique of art to appreciate them. Our training in such matters is elementary. We could, perhaps, find some ecstatic expressions to describe what we saw, but we should be very much like the man who is "carried away" with a program of classical music although he does not know the difference between an overture and a chandelier. But no visitor to Cincinnati should fail to see the Museum of Art!

We spent several hours in the "Zoo," and would have spent more if we could have controlled the time. Something can be said, of course, against the custom of confining wild animals merely for the purpose of exhibition; but when we remember that they are well provided for, and that they furnish entertainment and instruction for thousands of people who, otherwise, would never have the privilege of seeing many of these wonders of nature, we are not prone to press the argument too far. We believe that a first-class zoological collection is a real asset to any city.

Of course we called at the office of Dr. E. C. Wareing, editor of the Western Methodist. We were disappointed in finding that he was out of the city; but the assistant editor, Dr. S. W. Wiant, showed us every brotherly courtesy and brought us under lasting obligations for his kindness in conducting us through the Cincinnati plant of the Methodist Book Concern, one of the largest publishing houses in the land. All the Sunday school literature of the Methodist Episcopal Church is printed in the Cincinnati plant, the output running into the millions of pieces. We judge that it is a model institution of its kind.

On Sunday morning, we attended the service at Trinity Church, a downtown church confronted, we presume, with all the problems and difficulties of such situation. The pastor, Dr. S. Clark Riker, preached a fine sermon. There was no attempt at oratorical display, but for helpfulness of theme and suggestiveness of treatment the service was thoroughly worth while. The attendance was not more than seventy-five—the summer slump was on, as it is in all cities so far as we know. We have thought of the 33,000 attendance at the baseball game that afternoon, and wondered if all the non-church-goers stay at home during the summer, while the church-goers take a vacation. We met Dr. Riker after the service, and found him to be as pleasant in personal converse as he was helpful in public discourse.

On Sunday evening, we attended the service at Wesley Chapel, the famous tithing church of Methodism, of which Rev. Gervaise Roughton is pastor. This is the mother church of Cincinnati Methodism. The present site has been occupied since 1806, if we recall correctly, and the present building was erected in 1831. It is a small building now—but when erected, it had the largest seating capacity of any building in the city. It was in the suburbs of Cincinnati then—now it is in the heart of the business section of the city. The congregation on Sunday evening was small; and again we wondered if the church-going people were taking a vacation. We did not have the privilege of meeting Dr. Roughton, but Mr. C. Ed. Winkle, a steward and teacher of the Young Men's Bible Class, very kindly gave us several items of interesting information.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. J. L. Williams, of Shreveport, La., favored the Advocate office with a call on Monday of this week.

Rev. A. S. Brisco, of Duck Hill, Miss., writes that he is having some good revivals on his charge.

A fine son was born to Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Purcell at Crystal Springs, Miss., on August 17. The Advocate extends congratulations.

Rev. F. M. Freeman, of Parker Memorial Church, this city, will assist Rev. W. W. Holmes in a meeting at Lake Charles, La., early in September.

Rev. F. N. Sweeney has just closed a good meeting at Sun, La., where he was assisted by Rev. J. E. Selfe, of Covington, La. There were three accessions to the church.

Rev. H. W. Van Hook, president of the Seashore Camp Ground School, will occupy the pulpit at Bogalusa, La., on August 24, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

Announcement has been made that a new volume by Dr. Edward Leigh Pell, "How Can I Lead My Pupils to Christ?" is in press. Dr. Pell is the author of some thirty volumes, of which this promises to be one of the most helpful.

We have received a copy of the Methodist Bulletin, the organ of our church at Okolona, Miss., where Rev. J. H. Brooks is pastor. Among other interesting matters, it contains an exhortation in behalf of the Conference organ, which ought to be fruitful.

Rev. T. M. Bradley has sent us a beautiful post card view of a night scene on Lake Junaluska. We know he is enjoying his stay there—we almost envy him the joy of those cool nights in the mountains of North Carolina. New Orleans is a hot place in August!

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, whose illness we made mention of last week, has recovered sufficiently to be able to carry forward vigorously the work of the church with which he is entrusted. He is assisting Rev. J. F. Waltman in a meeting at Mt. Hermon this week.

The Texas Christian Advocate has entered upon its sixty-sixth year. It serves a great constituency and serves it admirably. We congratulate the brilliant editor, Dr. A. J. Weeks, upon the success that has attended his labors in the difficult field of church journalism.

Felicity Church, New Orleans, has not only paid the first installment on its Centenary pledge, but it has also recently raised in cash the second installment, which is not due until January of next year. Mr. Van Carter was the efficient local campaign director, and Mr. James T. Monroe is the local treasurer.

We learn from "A Member" that a splendid meeting was held in Carpenter, Miss., beginning on the first Sunday in August and continuing through the following Thursday, in which Rev. M. L. Burton did the preaching. Two members were received into the church, and much lasting good was accomplished.

Rev. Leland Clegg, of Zwolle, La., assisted Rev. P. O. Lowrey in a good meeting at Marthaville, La., recently. Rev. H. N. Harrison will assist Brother Lowrey in a meeting at Robeline, beginning on the fifth Sunday of this month, and Rev. C. E. Fike will assist him at Williams Chapel, beginning on the second Sunday in September.

It was only recently that we learned that Rev. P. O. Lowrey, our pastor at Pleasant Hill, La., delivered the alumni address at the commencement exercises of Hiwassee College this year. We do not know the subject of the speaker's address, but we venture to say that this worthy son of a noble Alma Mater delivered a thought-provoking discourse.

Miss Wessie Tilley Barry, daughter of Rev. A. B. Barry, of McComb, Miss., was married to Mr. T. K. Barefield, of Meridian, Miss., at the South McComb parsonage, on Sunday evening, August 17, Rev. J. Loyd Deceli officiating. This fine young couple will make their home in Meridian, Miss. We pray that Heaven's richest blessings may rest upon them.

Rev. A. F. Vaughan, recently released from duty as chaplain with the overseas forces of the U. S. Army, and now engaged in the campaign to raise $250,000 for the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, at Ruston, La., desires us to announce that his post office address is Abita Springs, La. Brother Vaughan is away from home a good deal of the time in connection with his work, but mail addressed to him at Abita Springs will reach him promptly.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Elston, of Shreveport, La., have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Julia Moore, to Professor Buford Dean Battle, at the First Methodist Church, Shreveport, on Wednesday evening, August 27, at six o'clock. Miss Elston is a charming young woman, member of one of the most prominent families of North Louisiana. Professor Battle is a popular member of the faculty of Centenary College, and a brother of Rev. C. A. Battle, of First Church, Baton Rouge.

Port Gibson Female College will open its fall session on September 3. The buildings have been thoroughly renovated, new bath-rooms and sanitary fountains have been added to the equipment, and several additions have been made to the faculty. Indications are that this historic institution has entered upon a new era of prosperity and usefulness. It has developed that the four prizes to be awarded for proficiency in Bible study are gold medals. Dr. Roife Hunt is the president of the college.

Rev. John W. Ramsey, of the Daleville charge, Mississippi Conference, has already held two revivals, one at Andrew's Chapel, where he was assisted by Rev. W. E. Dickens, who did excellent preaching, winning the hearts of the people, and the other at Linwood, where the pastor did the preaching. At the latter place, there were four accessions to the church and a deep work of grace was wrought in the life of the community. Brother Ramsey began a meeting at Souie's Chapel last Sunday, doing the preaching himself.

Dr. E. L. McGehee, Sr., one of the best known physicians in Louisiana, and for many years an active member of the Methodist Church, passed away at his home in Hammond, La., on Wednesday of last week. He was a native of Mississippi, in which State he had many relatives and friends. He was, for a long time, president of the board of trustees of the Seashore Camp Grounds. He is survived by his wife and five sons. Four of the sons have achieved success as physicians, and one is a prominent lawyer. The Advocate extends sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

The Advocate office was honored on Monday of this week with a call from Dr. Elbert E. Satterlee, who is one of the field secretaries assisting in the campaign to raise $250,000 for the erection of a Soldiers' Memorial Building at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas. Dr. Satterlee preached on Sunday morning at Rayne Memorial, and on Sunday evening at First Church. He will spend the remainder of the month of August in Louisiana in the interest of his work, visiting Baton Rouge, Alexandria, Monroe, Shreveport, and perhaps other points. Sunday, August 31, has been designated as Memorial Day, at which time all pastors in the territory of S. M. U. are expected to present this matter to their congregations. Dr. Satterlee stated that much interest is being taken in this movement to provide our great university with a building that will be a worthy memorial to Methodist boys who had a part in the great war.

TWO YOUNG MEN LICENSED TO PREACH IN ABERDEEN DISTRICT.

At a meeting of the Licensing Committee Thursday, August 14, at Amory, Miss., two splendid young men were examined and given license to preach. Connie Mattox, of Fulton circuit, and Leonard Betterton, of Vardaman circuit, both passed a creditable examination and gave evidence of a clear experience and definite call to the Christian ministry. We bid them God speed in their work and pray that they will be soul winners for the Master.

Freckles
The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.
Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful Death has closed the eyes of our dear brother, J. BYRD FELDER, to this world, upon which he had appreciatively looked for 61 years and 2 months. He first beheld its light April 20, 1858, and viewed its beauties last on June 19, 1919. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the age of 12 years, in which he lived until God called him into the church triumphant. Brother Felder was twice married, first, to Miss Dollie Jane Greer, to which union were born six children, three of whom, with their mother, preceded him to heaven; the other three, with his present wife, who was Miss Lenora A. Fail, were left to mourn his going. He also leaves one brother and sister, who are sad and lonely for his going. Brother Felder was a member of that large and commendable family of Pike County. He was a loyal citizen, a faithful father and husband, and a Christian gentleman. We laid him to rest in the Topisaw Cemetery on the evening of June 20, his pastor, Rev. H. C. Castles, and Rev. J. L. Decell assisting.

P. H. HOWSE,
Former pastor and true friend.
Ellisville, Miss.

WILLIAM FRED SEAB was born on June 11, 1850, near Roxie, Miss. He was the youngest son of Joseph Seab. At the age of twenty-five he was married to Isadora Combs. To them were born seven children—five boys and two girls. Brother Seab was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when he was about thirty years old. He was faithful to the church and trusted himself into God's care. Until about a year before his death he was strong and vigorous. The last few months of his life were spent in intense suffering. But through it all he showed the true Christian spirit. He often expressed himself as not dreading to die. In fact, he knew that death would be a relief. Brother Seab is at rest with the redeemed of the Lord. He leaves a brother, three sisters, seven children and a number of grandchildren to mourn their loss. Services were held in the Methodist Church at Roxie, conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. C. H. Herring. May the God of all grace comfort the loved ones. Some day we hope to see him again, face to face. His pastor,

W. P. BAILEY.
Roxie, Miss., July 22, 1919.

FESTUS DUDLEY, son of Ira P. and Sophronia C. Beasley, was born on November 4, 1854, and died on March 13, 1919. He was baptized on August 7, 1859, by Rev. A. J. Foster. At a later date he was formally received into the Methodist Church, South, and continued a faithful and appreciated member of the same until death. Being reared by devoutly religious parents, he grew from childhood in love to God and man. His faith in Jehovah and his truth was beautiful. During many of his last years he was a great sufferer. This he endured with becoming patience, seldom speaking of his afflictions, even to his most intimate friends. He was never married. After the death of his parents he continued to live at the home of his boyhood, with his sister, Mrs. T. A. Alexander. He enjoyed a good degree of material prosperity, which he used freely in the interest of suffering humanity. He was truly a good man, of whom those who knew him best say, "He was the best man I ever saw." In a conscious interval before he passed to his reward he desired that some of his favorite songs should be sung, in which he joined with his own tremling voice. Later, with triumphal faith, he said, "It shall be glorious when I sing in my Father's house." May peace and blessings abide with his loved ones left behind.

W. L. GRAVES.
Montpelier, Miss.

T. J. BRATTON was born on February 5, 1846, and departed this life July 22, 1919. He sprang from a hardy, rugged race in the commonwealth of Tennessee, whose physical sturdiness he inherited, and which enabled his life to pass the distant milepost of three-score years and ten.

While yet a young man, he became a Christian convert and member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. For nearly half a century he walked in the fellowship of the sons of God. His contemporaries loved him well, and reverenced him for his godly life. His excellency in the sight of God and what distinguished him from many, was his purity of character. His friends were as numerous as his acquaintances. They were fastened to the man as hy hooks of steel. He left behind him no triumphant record of startling deeds; he builded for himself no monument of vast wealth; he left the pleasant memory of what he was. He went his own quiet way without a show of pride or unholy ambition, a humble convert to the philosophy of life taught hy the Master: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighhor as thyself."

His death was not unexpected; it was prepared for. As the "dusky harge" hove in sight there was no stir of hasty preparation; he had expressed himself as "ready." Entering the waiting craft, he set sail as one returning to his native shore when the task he set out on is accomplished. Funeral services were conducted by the writer at Spring Hill church, Grenada County. A host of friends were in attendance. While sorrow was manifested, there could be no place for lamentations, for God permitted him to live a long life, which was crowned with beauty and righteousness and honor.

S. CURTIS YATES.
Holcomb, Miss., July 24, 1919.

JOAN VIRGINIA (ELLZEY) RATLIFF was horn near Providence Methodist Church, in Pike County, Mississippi, on Sunday, March 10, 1844. At the early age of thirteen she united with the Methodist Church and for 62 years, 1 month and 27 days she remained within its pales and walked faithfully and consistently before God and the world. On Nov. 8, 1865, she was married to S. R. Ratliff, and for nearly fifty-four years they "twain were one", and side by side they shared life's sorrows and victories. Their home was one of simple goodness and generous hospitality. To live near them was a privilege. To this union there were born nine children, three of whom preceded her to the grave; Mrs. T. S. Conerly, Mrs. A. B. Conerly and Dr. W. D., of Lucedale. Those who yet remain are her devoted husband, who waits in the "light at eventide," and T. R., M. S., Dr. R. F., Dr. S. R., Mrs. D. M. Holmes, and Mrs. J. H. Lampton. For the past few years Brother and Sister Ratliff made their home in McComb and were members of the East McComh Methodist Church. Sister Ratliff loved her church and delighted in its services. Her life was a witness of her readiness to meet God, yet her testimony was always ready. Her last days were spent next door to her devoted son, T. R., who, with his good wife and two sons, was always pleased to see that father nor Mother Ratliff wanted for anything. Sister Ratliff went to heaven just at the dawn of that beautiful morning, May 7, 1919, and the next morning, after services in the Centenary Methodist Church, of which her son, T. R., has long been an efficient steward, her body was laid to rest at McComh to await the resurrection. May God sustain and bless the father and each child and hring them all with mother to the heavenly home above.

Girls! Use Lemons! Make a Bleaching, Beautifying Cream
The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a hottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should he taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.
Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is simply marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.—Adv.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator

Senna—a prompt, efficient vegetable cathartic.

Rhubarb—a rejuvenator of digestive action.

Sodium Citrate—an effective regulator of the bowels—used frequently with other ingredients by learned doctors in treating colic and diarrhoea.

Sodium Bicarbonate—highly valuable in treating severe gastric indigestion in children.

Oil of Anise, Fennel, Caraway, Coriander, Glycerine, Sugar Syrup, all of which help to make this formula the very best that medical skill can devise. If it were possible to improve this formula it would be done regardless of the fact that a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Syrup now costs twice as much to make as any other similar preparation. Yet it costs you no more than ordinary baby laxatives.

HOW SHIVAR MINERAL WATER RELIEVES RHEUMATISM.

According to the standard medical books, Rheumatism is not a germ disease but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart and other organs. To relieve Rheumatism it is therefore necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer from rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder or liver, uric acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter then sign it, enclose the amount and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Shivar Spring,
Box 17 A. Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial in accordance with instructions contained in hooklet you will send and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

RAMON'S LIVER PILLS

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Sunday School Day has not heen observed in your charge this year? It is not too late. I know it is hard to get some one to attend to the training of the school in this program. We must not give the devil one inch of ground. We are in danger when we yield one day to him. Ohserve the day the best you can as soon as you can. When you say you can't, you have made a mistake, hut when you say you can, you have told the truth. What do you say? Rev. J. E. Stephens, New Alhany, is the treasurer of the board.

We had seventeen people to take credit work at Lake Junaluska this summer: Mrs. Alma Coker, Mrs. J. C. Donald, Mrs. Victoria Hoyle, Mrs. L. L. Scruggs, Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, Misses Ione Mansker, Lillie Mullins, Mary Ross, Minnie White, Wylodine Gabbert, Mildred Gabbert, Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Mrs. L. G. Fant, and R. H. B. Gladney. A few others thought it best to hear different specialists and did not take credit work. I believe the people who knew most studied hardest.

The following have earned credits by studying at home: Mrs. R. R. Scott, of Horn Lake, has earned a Blue Seal Diploma; the same can he said of Mrs. J. W. Belk, Miss Mary Laudin, Miss Julia McCrary of West Point, Misses Lizzie Horn, Katharine Tucker, Heard Lawrence, Louise Stokes, Ruth Stokes, and Thelma Horn of Grenada, two units each, on Life in the Making. Thus the good work goes on slowly. There ought to be ten times this number who take the work of teaching religion seriously.

On August 11, we held the Corinth District Institute at Ripley, Miss. Seven schools were represented. The people at Ripley did their full share to make the day a success. Rev. J. E. Stephens and Mrs. Beulah Boswell, two of the district officers, did most excellent work. They worked for and ohtained results. The day was hot, some people were away for the summer, meetings were being held all around, other things happened, but the institute was held and good was accomplished.

When dates and places are settled upon for the other district institutes, I can arrange for help from Nashville and can have time to advertise. Let the men to whom I have written settle upon the date, so necessary arrangements can be made to accomplish the most good. Some things can be accomplished at a district institute that can not be done at any other meeting. The law of the church says hold them, and we will. Do not think that the same thing that you already know is to he thrashed over again; we mean to put your school at work it has not done as well as it ought to be done.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"If you keep your soul down to peck size don't 'spect God to put a bushel o' hlessin's in it at one time. Us teachers ough'to be growin' bigger souls all the while."

"When young folks quit Sunday school in their teen-ages they go out with idees of God an' his religion as crude as their idees of other things at that age, an' if they don't study Scripter any more they're not likely to become hright and shinin' lights in the church."

"Yes, I been over to the Lake Junalusky trainin' school, an' I certainly do feel sorry for you folks what couldn't go. It's better'n any farmers' institoot I ever seen. In my humble 'pinion it's the most constructive single piece of work our church is doin'."

Here is the beauty and glory of Christ, as a Redeemer and Savior of lost man, that He goes before, always before and never hehind His flock. The works of love that He requires from us in words are preceded and illustrated by real deeds of love, to which He gave up all His powers from day to day. He bore the Cross Himself that He commanded us to take up and bear after Him. Now Is a Good Time To Drive Out Catarrh

The Trouble Is in the Blood.

Summer catarrh, with its nauseous discharge, stuffed up glands, difficult breathing, and summer colds, is bad enough, but the worst of it is yet to come if you neglect to check the growth that is forming to attack you with ten-fold greater power during the winter.

That's why it is so important to treat catarrh with S. S. S. during warm weather.

It is now an established fact that catarrh is due to impure blood and that lotions and salves do not give relief. The experience of others has proven that S. S. S. strikes at the root of the trouble by its action upon the blood. Waste no time in this matter, for it is of the utmost importance. S. S. S. is a splendid system cleanser; it is not sold or recommended for venereal diseases. Write to our Medical Advisor about your case. Address Swift Specific Co., Dept. 53, Atlanta, Ga.

"TO TOKYO I WANT TO GO."

When the International Sunday School Convention was held in Buffalo last year, a badge was distributed in the exhibit room of the World's Sunday School Association bearing the words "TO TOKYO I WANT TO GO." These words express the sentiment of a large number. Though the eighth Convention of the World's Sunday School Association will not be held until October, 1920, many are now applying for credential blanks that they may become delegates to this world gathering of Sunday school workers in Tokyo. Bulletin No. 1, giving suggested routes and rates, has been distributed to many inquiries. Copies can be had upon application to the World's Sunday School Association, 216 Metropolitan Tower, New York City. Since the number of delegates for whom accommodations on Pacific Ocean steamers can be obtained is limited, it is important that early application should be made to the World's Association by all who purpose attending this Sunday School Convention in the Far East. The Committee has arranged for one thousand reservations. At least ten different tours have been outlined by the Transportation Committee and an additional tour, which goes around the world, will be announced as soon as arrangements can be made. The entire space on one steamer has been reserved for Tokyo Pilgrims. Including the time at the Convention in Tokyo, three weeks will be spent in Japan. The ship used is the "Empress of Japan," starting from and returning to Vancouver. This trip will occupy 49 days. Other tours will extend to Korea, China or the Philippine Islands.

THE MEETING AT VARDAMAN.

We began a meeting with Brother R. T. Nolen at Vardaman on the fourth Sunday in July, and preached a week in the hottest weather I ever experienced in a meeting, save one other at Sardis, when I helped W. S. Shipman there. We had a good meeting for the church, with only one converted, a lady who joined the church. We have here what so often happens: the last service gave promise of a great meeting, but as a pastor already one Sunday out of my own charge, I had to leave.

Brother Nolen is a choice spirit to work with, a man of energy, zeal and enthusiasm. Two sons from Chicago were visiting the home-folks, which added to the joy of parents and little sister.

Brother Nolen has an unusually large circuit for a man of his age. He has been untiring in pastoral visiting. Vardaman charge is getting ready to rebuild the parsonage, which will add greatly to the convenience and comfort of the pastor.

The One Great Mosquito Remedy ---Sweet Dreams

Sweet Dreams is called a great mosquito remedy because it does a great service to a great degree of satisfaction.

All over Dixie it works continuously and tirelessly every night. For the sick, the well, the old, the young, the weak or the strong; Sweet Dreams works, works, works.

For the rich or the poor, Sweet Dreams works just the same. No favoritism is displayed at any time or place.

Can't you allow Sweet Dreams to become your mosquito remedy

It keeps mosquitoes off to a great degree of satisfaction.—Adv.

Thin People Should Take Phosphate

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people plump and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance, the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.—Adv.

A Famous Medicine

A visit to the laboratory at Lynn, Mass., where this successful remedy is made, impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually, and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation, which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

THE CENTENARY "CARRYING ON."

The following letter from Mrs. M. L. Hargrove contains a message to every woman in the Woman's Missionary Society. We urge, therefore, that same be read carefully by every member.

My Dear Co-Workers: At the beginning of our Centenary Year of Conservation or "Carrying On," I come to you with another letter of instruction and I trust also of inspiration.

The Centenary Millions have been more than subscribed; but now we come to the stabilizing the work already accomplished, to the vitalizing of the spiritual life of our church that God may have an instrument meet for His use in the immediate effort to bring the world to the feet of its Redeemer. Four lines of Spiritual Service will be specially stressed during the Conservation Year—Intercession, Stewardship, Life Service, and Evangelism. Each of these has its special time on the calendar for the coming year.

Intercession, as hertofore, comes first—"First of all, Pray." The month of August has been set apart as the time for the campaign for signers to the League of Intercession. I realize that this will be a hard month in which to accomplish much in our city churches; but it is the time of all others to reach the rural charges. I am earnestly longing to have our missionary officers set as a goal, every member of our Auxiliary a signer to the Intercession Covenant, and to work during the month of August to accomplish this result. Divide the members of your Auxiliary who have not as yet signed the Intercession Covenant, into groups of five and give each of the lists to some earnest member who is an Intercessor, furnishing her with Intercession Blanks and asking that she return those signed, at the monthly meeting of the Auxiliary in September.

The week included between August 24-31 has been set apart as "Intercession Enlistment Week" for all the churches of Southern Methodism and I want to urge every member of the Woman's Missionary Society to render her pastor all the service possible during this week, so that every church may make a great forward movement in Intercession—"The more people a pastor has in his congregation pledged to pray, the better armed is he for the work of the Kingdom." Eight hundred thousand Intercessors enlisted during this week, August 24-31, is the desired goal for Southern Methodism. Do your part faithfully that you may merit the Master's plaudit, "Well done."

August 29 has been appoinied as a day of fasting and prayer for a church-wide, Spirit-led revival. See that this is stressed in every Auxiliary, and women pledged to abstinence and prayer for that day. Read Matthew 17:19-21, and see the marvelous promise Jesus gives to the observance of fasting and prayer. Enter into true observance of this day and claim the Master's promise for our church, our country, and the world. May God make the month of August a month of greatest power in our church, and may we all have a part in the earnest work required!

The month of September will be used to stress the taking of Specials by churches, Sunday school classes and individuals, that is, directing the subscriptions made during the Eight Day Drive for the support of some special feature of missionary work. September 21-28 will be "Assignment Week" all over Southern Methodism, for the placing of the Specials asked for in the Centenary booklet, "Carrying On." Let me repeat here what I have already striven to make clear to you in a communication from Mrs. Lipscomb and myself sent out last spring—The Auxiliaries of the Woman's Missionary Society must not confuse their contributions to their regular Missionary Work and the subscription made as individual church members during the Eight Day Centenary Drive. All the dues and pledges of the Auxiliaries go to Mrs. Ross, Treasurer of Woman's Missionary Council, and the individual Centenary subscriptions must be paid to the local church treasurer of the Centenary Fund. Your Council Leaders strongly insist that Auxiliaries, as Auxiliaries, shall not take any of the Centenary Specials. Nor shall they, as Auxiliaries, assume any part of one of these Centenary Specials, for this will make for the confusion of funds. As individual members of the local church or as teachers of Sunday school classes, or Epworth League workers, they have full liberty to take any part in Centenary Specials they may deem wise; but as Auxiliaries, their funds must not be diverted, but must be sent to Mrs. Ross. Please heed this admonition, for any other course will bring about a very undesirable confusion in the funds contributed by our women.

My prayers ascend daily for the Christian women of our church.

Your Co-Worker for the Master,
MRS. M. L. HARGROVE.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

ST. MARK'S HALL.

Bulletin for July, 1919.

There has been no relaxing of effort at St. Mark's Hall during the month, but rather an adaptation to the vacation opportunity which is a most favorable one.

Deaconess Bertie Breeden of Roanoke, Va., has come to take charge of the Boys' department. She has specialized in manual training and athletics. Every kind of boys' work appeals to her and she has already met with excellent response. Miss Breeden is asking for a tennis or volley ball net. Can you send one?

Summer School.

The Vacation Bible School seems to go by its own momentum; in reality much thought and work have been put into it. The enrollment is 157. Our new resident worker, Miss Breeden, brought some new ideas from the Vacation Bible School in Louisville, Ky., which we have used to fine advantage.

We feel that we are filling a long-felt need and that the Vacation School is one of the most successful features of the work we have ever launched. Our record-breaking attendance was 103. Come to visit us on Monday, Wednesday, or Friday from 9:30 to 11:30. Our greatest need is volunteer teachers. Phone Hemlock 1458 and tell us you can come.

We are trying to fill a pint bottle with pennies for war orphans. First the pennies must reach the top of a red band at the bottom of the bottle, then a white band is placed above the red, and later a blue band is used. The children watch the bottle daily and we have a wonderful response.

Our Guests.

We have had some interesting guests this month, foremost among whom was Mrs. J. H. McCoy, the new Secretary of Home Missions of the Council. She takes Mrs. R. W. McDonell's place. Deaconess Maude Fail of Mobile, Ala., two missionaries from Chihuahua, Mexico, Miss Ethel McCaughan and Rebecca Quixoaces. Mmes. J. B. Parker, C. F. Niebergal, and H. F. Baldwin, were also among our guests. Miss Amy Hamburger of Boston spent two weeks at the Hall studying foreign groups for a New York organization which is financed by the Carnegie Foundation. They will soon publish a report with recommendations for better co-operation in the work of Americanization.

Boy Scouts.

Two Scout troops meet each week and are quite active in summer plans Prof. Russ and wife dined with us recently. We believe he is one of the best Scout Masters in the city and the boys agree with us.

Supplies.

Supplies have come from the following: Auxiliaries — Mansfield Adult Mansfield Young People, Carrollton Adult, Grand Cane; Individuals—Mrs Lewis Clarke, Mrs Bamburger, Mrs H. F. Baldwin, Mrs. J. B Parker, Mrs. W. J. Helmke.

Statistics.

Number of visits made, 209; number of visits received, 419; number of visits to institutions, 18; number of letters and cards written, 23; number of clinics held, 8; number of new patients, 122; number of old patients, 107; total number of patients, 229.

Coca-Cola

Why Coca-Cola is so refreshing

The refreshing quality of Coca-Cola, which has made it a favorite with the millions, is the result of three factors which are entirely natural and wholesome.

First—Coca-Cola is prepared with cold, carbonated water, which alone is quite refreshing.

Second—Coca-Cola contains natural fruit flavorings, which, with pure sugar, are very refreshing.

Third—Coca-Cola contains a purified extract from tea, called caffein, which is both wholesome and refreshing.

Coca-Cola may therefore be described as "a cold, carbonated, fruit-flavored improvement upon tea, of approximately one-fourth the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

Coca-Cola is entirely wholesome, delicious and refreshing.

A LETTER FROM REV. W. B. WALDROP.

Dear Brother Carley: This is the first time I have tried to write anything to the members of the Mississippi Conference in over three years. On account of bad health, I took a supernumerary relation when the Conferencc met in Jackson, Miss., December, 1916, and for the past two ycars I have been in the Seashore District with Brother J. R. Jones as my presiding elder, and at Pascagoula with Brother W. G. Forsyth as my pastor. I have not been physically able to do all there was to be done since I located. I have lived in hopes of an early recovery, but in some respects I have failed to improve, and, at this writing, I am making preparation to go to the hospital in Mobile, Ala., for an operation, which I trust will be the turning-point for the better.

I suppose I should have written earlier to the Advocate, but I am constitutionally afflicted with a certain amount of timidlty about my own doings; and what I have done for the church seems to have been so little that I fcel very hesitant to write. My heart is in the right place, as ever, and why not? Should wc not be even more subservient in our wills and disposition to the Lord when we are under the lash of affliction? None can ever know some of the suffering I have gone through in the last eighteen months, except myself and family and Brother Forsyth, who has had opportunity to know. At one time it certainly appeared that I could not endure much longer. Yet I am still here, and hope, not for my sake, but for my family's sake, and the church's, to be able again to announce at the roll call, "Here, Bishop." And by God's grace I will. I have felt lonesome for these nearly three years. No one knows what it means to be cut off from that active relation to that department of God's kingdom that forges ahead more than does the preacher who sustains that relation and is forced by circumstances to stop.

Pray for me, brethren. I have not forgotten you. It may be that when you get this message, I'll be under treatment in Mobile, but pray that I may successfully pull through.

As ever your brother in Christ,
W. B. WALDROP.

REVIVAL AT PLEASANT VALLEY, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: The Bayou Pierre charge consists of four churches, and three of them are on good roads and only five or six miles apart, with Pleasant Valley in the middle. This year we built a brush arbor at Pleasant Valley and held a meeting there for the Sweet Water, Center Point and Pleasant Valley churches. We secured Rev. D. E. Kelly to hold the meeting. We had what many claim to be the best that has been here in years. It ran from August 3 to August 10. Some of the results were sixty professed conversion, thirty agreed to hold family prayer, and sixteen joined the church. The churches are very much revived.

This is an historical place in Methodism. About one hundred years ago the Mullens, Millsaps', Decells, Thompsons, and Wheets moved in here and organized the Millsaps church. About the same time the Sweet Water church was organized on the Homochitto River. Several families moved away and so weakened the churches that they decided to consolidate, which they did in 1845, and in the next two years they sawed the lumber by hand and built a church in a beautiful little valley and named it Pleasant Valley. The pastor was H. J. Harris. In 1848, S. L. L. Scott held a meeting that ran for twenty-eight days, and it is said that there was not a person in ten miles of here that was not converted. The revival lasted till the breaking out of the Civil War. They would have prayer meeting or class meeting somewhere nearly every night. At that meeting twelve young men were called to preach. Among them were the two Wheets, three Millsaps', Elijah Mullens, and J. Smiley. Several laymen were converted that have been felt in the church, such as Maj. R. W. Millsaps, Ruben W. Millsaps, and Billie Mullens. One negro, Abe Vencint, lives near the church and claims to have been converted at that meeting. He is now at death's door and seems to be ripe for eternity.

Many people remember Dr. Wheet. He soon began to preach after the meeting and held the Dudley Bond Camp Meeting in Amite County. Dudly Bond was a local preacher and had an Irish overseer by the name of Dan Kelly, who was converted at that camp meeting and lived a consistent Christian life till he went home to glory a few years ago. He was the father of Rev. D. E. Kelly, one of the best and safest evangelists in our church. D. E. is the product of that great Pleasant Valley meeting, and seventy-one years after the meeting he holds a great meeting on the same spot and the people of this community are reaping the benefit of it. He would not be the preacher he is had he not had the Christian father he had.

Respectfully,
W. W. MURRAY.

Giancy, Miss., Aug. 12, 1919.

A GOOD MEETING AT DAVIS SPRING, LA.

On July 27, 1919, our revival meeting began at Davis Spring, and I am glad to say that the Lord came down in mighty power. He was with us in every service. The church was greatly revived. Brother H. B. Thomason, our pastor, did the preaching. He did not have any other ministerial help. He didn't need any help. He surely did some good preaching. This is the greatest meeting we have had, except one, in twelve years. There were four bright conversions at the altar, and eight additions to the church. May God bless Brother Thomason in this good work wherever he goes, is my prayer.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine. It is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

Calomel Salivates and Makes You Sick

Acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver and you lose a day's work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

Biliousness

WHEN you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. There is nothing better.

Meridian College

And Canservatory of Music

Meridian College is located among the health-giving pine forests of east Mississippi; a more ideal spot with healthful surroundings would be difficult to find; 150 miles from the Mississippi River; beautiful campus; hot and cold running water in the bed rooms of the main dormitory; 150 acre farm; gymnasium; swimming pool. Outdoor life is possible the year around; physical culture teacher for young women; coach for young men: R. O. T. C. established by the Government.

No college in this country has a stronger literary faculty. The Conservatory of Meridian offers advantages unsurpassed by any conservatory in the South. Among the teachers of the musical faculty are: Mr. Maurice G. Beckwith, who has had training in the leading conservatories of America and Europe; Dr. J. E. W. Lord, D. M., F. I. G. C. Dr. Lord's compositions have been played at practically every organ recital in the United States; Paul Verpoest, violinist, who received his training at the Royal Conservatory, Ghent, Belgium; Miss Nina Jeanne Ridgell, M. Mus., has received training in America's greatest conservatories. The other departments of Art, Expression, Home Economics, Commercial, etc., are as strong as the very strongest.

Through the generosity of two friends of the college, thirty scholarships are available; also an opportunity for thirty young ladies to pay a part of their expenses by doing light work.

No college has made more rapid progress than Meridian College. Five hundred and seventy-five students were enrolled last year. More students are now enrolled than ever in the history of the college on this date. For catalog and view book, address,

SPIRITUAL VISIONS.

To the natural eye, visions of beauty are always delightful and inspiring. So to the eye of the soul, spiritual visions become like Bunyan's Delectable Mountains—they charm and rejoice the heart and lift the soul heavenward.

THE LESSON OF THE PILE DRIVER.

We have been watching a pile driver just across the street hammer home the long piles for the foundation of a great building. It does its work by dropping a heavy weight repeatedly upon the pile to be driven down. The weight does not vary, and the length of the drop is practically the same every time. But its action is steady. Sometimes an obstruction is met, but the driver hammers away, and soon the difficulty is overcome. So it is with our work. Steady effort, directed in one direction long enough, will inevitably produce results. There is sound wisdom in the suggestion to "hammer away" at a thing until we get it done.

PREVENTABLE DEATHS.

Recent statistics show that at least 150,000 deaths occur in the United States each year from tuberculosis. If this terrible disease were beyond the reach of medical science, unknown as to origin and uncontrollable as to its spread, we should simply record and lament the fact. But it has been demonstrated that tuberculosis is a preventable disease; hence, these deaths—150,000 of them—are unnecessary. They are not only a serious drain upon the economic resources of our country, but they are also a sad reflection upon the intelligence and wide-awakeness of our people. Of course, it is no easy matter to control the ravages of this insidious disease. But by intelligent care and unremitting attention, it can be done. Enough of our people die of unpreventable diseases; it is a pity that so many of them should go down to untimely graves.

THE REAL TROUBLE.

We have followed with great interest the steps that have been taken by Congress and other agencies to fix the responsibility for the present high cost of living. We confess that we have not learned very much. Various investigations have been ordered, and many "hearings" have been held, but the real culprit is hard to discover. We have just about come to the conclusion that the real trouble is that every kind of business that is under suspicion is so afraid that its unusual opportunities for making gain will be interfered with, that it does all it can to make it appear that no kind in particular is responsible for the present exorbitant prices. In other words, there seems to be a kind of "gentleman's agreement" to keep the public mind befuddled just as long as possible. And in some instances, the investigators themselves do not seem to be especially anxious to place the blame.

FEED THE CHILDREN.

We are all more or less familiar with the tragic conditions in the Far East, as a result of which thousands of children are actually starving to death, and the sympathy and financial help of the American people have gone out to them in large measure. But perhaps we are not so familiar with the fact that in our own country from three to six million children are not getting enough to eat. Our authority for this statement is a bulletin issued by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor. Parents and teachers of these children often speak of them as "delicate," or "ailing," or "lazy," when the plain truth is, they are suffering for the lack of food. There are various causes of this condition. In some cases, parents are not able to buy a sufficient amount of nourishing food to sustain their children. The high cost of living has made it impossible for them to secure more than enough merely to keep soul and body together. In other cases, mothers do not know how to spend their money to get the best return in food values, or how to plan healthful, nourishing meals for their families. In still other cases, parents have not sufficient control over their children to induce them to eat the right things and to take the sleep and rest necessary for proper development. Be the cause what it may, it is a tragedy that we are rearing a generation of undernourished children, whose physical shortcomings will be reflected in our standards of life in years to come. We shall do well to give serious attention to the proper feeding of our children.

A BIG PRICE FOR SPEED.

It is a well known fact that the development of railroads has practically destroyed transportation by boats. During the war, it is true, the Government, having taken over the railroads, seemed to be willing to make use of the rivers of the country, especially of the Mississippi River, to relieve the congestion of traffic on the railroads that made the carrying out of war measures a difficult matter. But the railroads, which will probably soon be returned to private ownership, have always been the enemies of river transportation, and it is reasonable to suppose that they will do all in their power to prevent a further development of this slow but cheap means of transportation. Freight rates play a large part in the cost of living. Goods can be profitably shipped by water much cheaper than by rail. If the representatives of the people in Congress would set themselves to the task, they could probably do much to relieve many of the hardships of the consumer by the encouragement of inland waterways transportation systems. The mere fact of competition would probably force a lowering of railroad freight rates, and there would be a cheapening of commodities all along the line. But we want our freight in a hurry—and we are willing to pay whatever the carriers demand for quick service. Even then, we do not always get it.

THE VALUE OF MISTAKES.

We suppose there is not a man living who would deny that he has made mistakes, some of them serious, during the course of his life. The only kind of being that we can imagine would not make mistakes, is one with an infallible judgment—and men have not yet become infallible. The value of mistakes lies in the use we make of them. If we let them teach us what not to do the next time, they have served a good purpose; if we make the same mistakes again and again, we are poor students in the school of experience.

NOTHING TO BE AFRAID OF.

Newspaper dispatches from a neighboring State report that the citizens of a small town have been greatly terrified by strange noises heard from the neighboring woods. Tracks, as of some strange animal, were reported to have been seen, and some people asserted that they had caught glimpses of the animal itself—a monster to be dreaded. Houses were locked early at night, and people were afraid to leave their homes except by daylight. But an investigation revealed the fact that the terrifying noises were produced by a drum and a rosined string in the hands of some boys. This incident, while trivial, is illustrative of a trait of human nature that we see almost every day—a tendency to lose heart before a big noise. Many of the things we are afraid of are no worse than a drum and a string!

POOR COMFORT FOR THE ANTIS!

We have heard a good deal about the attitude of the returned soldiers toward the enactment of the national prohibition amendment. The effort has been made to show that the great majority of these returned men resented vigorously the adoption of the amendment, and that they would take an active part in bringing about its repeal or in destroying its effectiveness. We have never felt that they were properly represented in the statements we have seen. We take great pleasure, therefore, in reproducing a recent statement of the chairman of the executive committee of the American Legion, the organization of the American veterans of the world war. In answer to an inquiry from the New York State Anti-Saloon League, Henry D. Lindsley, the chairman of the executive committee of the Legion, wrote: "I beg to advise that neither the Paris convention nor the St. Louis convention of the American Legion took any action relative to prohibition, nor has the national executive committee of the American Legion taken any such action. Furthermore, the question of committing the Legion either against prohibition or for prohibition never has been discussed, either at the conventions stated, or by the national executive committee of the Legion. I believe that I correctly represent the views of the members of the American Legion in stating that, as an organization, it will take no part in any movement either for prohibition or against prohibition." The anti-prohibitionists are entitled to such comfort as they can get from this statement.

THE CITY OF GOD.

By Wm. C. Allen.

He looked for the city that hath the foundations whose builder and maker is God. Hebrews xi: 10, R. V.

What lifts thee up? What shakes thee? 't is the breath
Of God. Awake, ye nations! Spring to life!
Let the last work of His right hand appear

—Walter Savage Landor.

When in the year 409 the Visigoths entered ancient Rome the Christians of that era were sorely puzzled and distressed by the momentous fact that for the first time in nearly eight hundred years her enemies had taken the proud city. Just as the twilight of the ancient heathen gods had come upon them and civilization had adopted the glorious light of Christianity, the city fell before the onslaught of the barbarian hosts. To those early believers it seemed as if civilization and the fruits of generations of wealth and art were destroyed forever. In their agony they sent word to the venerated Augustine, bishop of Hippo, asking for his thought regarding the great political cataclysm.

Augustine in his reply did not attempt to belittle the sorrowful circumstances and test of the church's faith. He admitted the truth of all that they presented. But he told his people that they must look beyond present conditions. True, "the city" had fallen. But meanwhile the spiritual city of God—of which they were citizens—was to last forever. The conception he presented to them was known as Civitas Dei, or the City of God.

We moderns can also appropriate to ourselves the great truth that the eternal realities, the things that endure—the things that consequently are of most importance—are not the material things, but the spiritual. Cities may fall before the forces of nature or the sins of men. Governments may go down. Politics will change. Wealth may be depreciated or squandered. Human ambitions may collapse. The pride and strength of men will become exhausted. Beauty will perish. But Christianity is not founded on transitory things. The follower of Jesus not only has the glorious traditions of the past, but possesses the ideal, the hope and the realities which, generation after generation, have grown more luminous and inviting to His people, and which can never fade away. His city, the realm to which He belongs—the Kingdom of Heaven—grows every year. It is a kingdom not of this earth. "My Kingdom is not of this world," said the Savior to Pilate, "else would my servants fight." So the city in which Christ's people dwell is not only impregnable and glorious, but it is also a place of peace. Earthly vicissitudes cannot rob Christians of their inheritance. One of their early apologists most tellingly explained its nature, in the first century, when he wrote of his fellow-believers, "We live on the earth, but our citizenship is in Heaven."

Do we belong to the beautiful City of God? Are we trusting in the spiritual things that will endure forever? Is our availing hope centered in the gold of this world, or on Jesus Christ? In the tumult and dangers of the present era shall we not look beyond the shaken things of earth up to the spiritual and eternal city whose builder and maker is God?

San Jose, Cal.

THE UNRECOGNIZED CHRIST.

By Rev. J. D. Jones, D. D.

(Dr. Jones is recognized as one of the foremost English preachers of to-day. He was one of the speakers at the recent General Conference of Christian Workers at Northfield.—Editor).

That was Christ's fate all the way through life—He was unrecognized. That statement which John makes in the preface to his Gospel will serve as a sort of summary of our Lord's earthly experience: "He was in the world * * * and the world knew Him not." No one knew Him at His birth. No one knew who the little babe was who was born in Bethlehem's town. Caesar did not know; Herod did not know; the chief priests and scribes in Jerusalem did not know. No one guessed that Mary's little son was He of whom prophets dreamed and poets sang.

No one imagined that the little child, to whom His parents gave the name of Jesus, had already been named by Isaiah: "Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." So ignorant were the people of Bethlehem of His true estate that there was no welcome for Him when He came. Mary brought forth her first-born son amid the beasts of the stall, and they laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn. At His birth He was the unrecognized Christ.

Unrecognized in Nazareth.

No one knew Him during those silent years at Nazareth. Mary may have pondered certain things in her heart. Nevertheless, it is true to say that no one knew Him. No one knew Him during His years of school life. His schoolmates sat by His side and played with Him—with a sense of His goodness, no doubt, but with no idea of His greatness.

The townspeople did not know Him during those years of humble service in the carpenter's shop. They thought of Him as the village joiner, and nothing more. "Is not this the carpenter?" they said. They classed Him with the other members of His family. "Is not this," they said, "the son of Mary, and brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon? And are not His sisters here with us?" They never dreamed that in the person of this carpenter, who mended their plows and chairs, they had in their midst the only begotten Son of God. During all His years in Nazareth He was the unrecognized Christ.

No one knew Him during his brief years of public ministry. He did His works of grace, and spoke Hs words of wisdom and truth, but no one seemed to realize that God was in their midst. Some said He was a good man, and some said He was a prophet; but others thought He was a deceiver of the people, while the Pharisees and scribes did not hesitate to call Him "drunkard" and "glutton," and declared that He accomplished His mighty works only by an unholy alliance with Beelzebub.

The crowning evidence of the failure of the people to recognize Christ was the cross. Far from realizing that He was the Prince of Glory, they thought Him a more dangerous malefactor than the robbers who hung one on either side. From cradle to cross, He was the unrecognized Christ.

Even His Disciples Knew Him Not.

But the most amazing thing of all is that even His disciples—the chosen and favored Twelve—did not recognize Him. The indiscriminate multitude only heard some of His wonderful words, and saw only some of His deeds of love and grace. But these twelve who were chosen to be with Him saw and heard them all. The effect of the hearing of one solitary sermon, and the sight of one solitary deed of power might be only to startle, but one would have expected that the cumulative effect of the Christ's sermons and miracles would have been to produce conviction.

Occasionally in a moment of high vision one of them, like Peter, would rise to the recognition that He was more than a prophet; but as a rule their eyes were holden that they should not know Him. In the circle of His intimates Christ was the unrecognized Christ. "Have I been so long time with you," He said, on His last night on earth—and there is disappointment and something like heartache in the reproach—"and dost thou not know Me, Philip?"

Unknown to the World of To-Day.

And the same sort of disappointment must fill Christ's heart still, for to a large extent He is still the unrecognized Christ. He has been in our world a long time now. For nineteen centuries men have been familiar with Him, they have heard His words, they have seen His works, and yet they do not know Him.

The great multitudes do not know Him. That any one should ignore and reject Christ is always an astonishment. For Christ is the gladness of life. He is our best Friend, our Mighty Helper, our Great Deliverer. For all who receive Him, He does still what He did for the wedding feast in Cana long ago: He turns the water of life into wine. And yet the amazing fact stands—there are thousands and tens of thousands who ignore and reject Him. There are some who regard Him with a kind of furious hate.

"There is one good thing this war has done," said a workman in one of the London shops to a good Methodist who happened to be at the next machine—"it has put an end to your Jesus." And I can imagine Christ looking down upon this indifferent, not to say hostile, multitude, and saying, with a touch of heart-break in His tone, "Have I been so long time with you and you do not know Me?" For the indifference and the hostility are inexplicable except on the score of ignorance. No doubt they ought to know Christ better. He has been a long time in the world. All these generations He has been lifting up the poor out of the dust, and the needy from the dunghill. He has been the Friend of the outcast, the Helper of the tempted, the Comforter of the sad. He has proved Himself the Giver of Life and Strength and Joy. He has transfigured life for multitudes; and yet, somehow, men treat Him as if He were not a benefactor, but a foe. As far as the great multitudes are concerned, He is the unrecognized Christ.

Correct Views But Not Knowledge.

But, more amazing still, He is the unrecognized Christ amongst His own people. We have correct views about Him, but we do not know Him. Is it to be harsh and censorious in judgment to say that there are multitudes of nominal Christians who simply do not know what Christ stands for, who have no inkling of His fundamental principles, who do not in the least share His outlook on life? The lines on which society is run, the principles on which our individual lives are based, are really not Christian at all.

When we compare our lives, seriously and honestly, with the sort of life pictured for us in the New Testament, is it the likeness that strikes us? Is it not the contrast rather? Take a word like this: "Whosoever would save his life shall lose it, but whoso loseth his life for My sake shall find it." Is that our notion of living—to give life away? As a matter of fact, is not self-seeking rather than self-sacrifice the rule of life for us?

How reluctant, for instance, Christian parents often are to give up their children to the mission field! If a boy decides to stay at home and make money, parents are gratified; if he listens to the call of Christ, and resolves, like Henry Martin, to burn himself out for God, preaching the Gospel in some heathen land, they are disappointed and mortified. They are Christian people, in a sense, but they simply have not begun to understand Christ.

Much the same kind of thing can be said about the lines on which our modern society is run. No one can read the New Testament and believe that unlimited competition is the Christian scheme of things; no one can believe that to buy in the cheapest and to sell in the dearest market constitutes the whole duty of the Christian man; no one can believe that in the realized Christian society the ghastly extremes of frantic luxury and abject poverty which characterize our twentieth-century English society will have any place. But Christian people defend these things, and all of us settle down quite placidly and comfortably in face of them.

It requires no stretch of the imagination to conceive of Christ looking down upon this society of ours, based upon self-interest, and upon us as individuals, living lives in which self-sacrifice has so little place, and as He sees us acquiescing so contentedly in all this, not realizing that it clashes with everything He had come to teach—I say it requires no stretch of the imagination to think of Him as looking down upon us and saying, "Have I been so long time with you and do you not know Me?" Even amongst His disciples He is the unrecognized Christ.

How long is Christ to remain disappointed? How long is He to be in our midst, unacknowledged, unrecognized? This is our most urgent need—as individuals, as churches, as nations—to understand Christ, to get His point of view, to share His spirit, to become more simply and truly Christian. When we as individuals know Christ, our lives will commend His Gospel; when the church knows Christ, she will become His real and glorious body; when the nations know Christ, there will be peace on earth.—Zion's Herald.

IN MY NAME REBUILD THE WORLD.

By W. W. Pinson.

The significance of this topic lies in the two facts—That the world is to be rebuilt, and that if it is to be rebuilt securely, it must be done on the foundations of Christianity. The world is in ruins and the name of Christ is its only salvation.

The need of a reconstructed physical and social order from the top to the bottom is evident to all thinkers. The ideals of international relationships which have prevailed in the past mean conflict and war, as has been clearly demonstrated. The persistence of these ideals has been manifested in recent months to a marked and discouraging degree. The substitution of new ideals rather than reliance on new forms is a necessity that wise men everywhere recognize. The same thing is true of the social and industrial life that underlie national life. A new spirit of brotherhood must be introduced. The conflict and antagonism between interests and classes must be eradicated, not by force but by the substitution of the spirit of brotherhood for selfishness and greed. Unless this is done, the most stupendous structure of civilization that can be built by human genius and toil will in the end crumble and leave the world in blood and tears.

There is not only need for rebuilding civilization. There is such an opportunity as never before existed. The whole world is humble and plastic in the presence of the awful catastrophe that has just befallen it. Men are crying for light as never before. The things on which they have depended have fallen in a heap of ruins at their feet. They are trying to find a way out, and all human ways seem vain and insufficient. There is only one teacher who stands unchanged and unchanging at the cross-roads of history pointing the way to safety. That teacher is Christ.

Christianity alone has come out of this war resplendent and strong, stripped of the mere external forms in which men have clothed the Gospel in the easy-going times of peace, and breaking forth upon the world in her spiritual strength and glory as its only help and hope in its darkest hour. Christianity has had a sort of rebirth to the faith and hope of mankind. This is true, specifically, of Protestant Christianity. Romanism had a great opportunity. There was a revival of faith in her leadership at the beginning of the war, but the vacillation and uncertainty in the attitude of the Vatican shook this confidence later, and finally, the very definite indication of the sympathy of the Vatican for the Central Powers caused a depressing reaction. Once again the Vatican threw its shadow on the church. Now that Germany is defeated and utterly discounted among the nations of the earth, and Austria dismembered and reduced to an uncertain, even negligible factor, France more resolute and determined than ever against the temporal power of the Pope, and Italy having learned her lesson in the bitter hours of the war, the church of Rome is not in a position to take even the share she might have been expected to take in world reconstruction.

The Greek or Eastern Church, whose chief stronghold is in Russia, is unfortunately more allied with the ruling dynasty than with the masses of the people. It was connected in the thought of the people with the government now so thoroughly discredited.

Unfortunately the church was thrown into the scrap-heap along with the old regime so utterly despised by the people. In the midst of their confusion and disorder, unfortunately the church had no message of restraint and carried no steady light of guidance. It found itself without any adequate voice of command or comfort. This leaves many millions of people, who still believe in Christ and who still hold fast to their traditional mysticism, without religious guidance that they are willing to trust.

Mohammedanism, which has lain as a menace across the path of Christianity, has been smitten with a deadly blow. The Turk has been driven out of Europe. His Empire disintegrated in the East. He has lost Arabia, Mesopotamia, Syria and Armenia. Its horrid threat is no longer held over the heads of millions of Christians. Its numbers are reduced to a mere handful. It is no longer a power to be dreaded. Likewise Mohammedanism lost its dominance over its own people. The shock of a great world tragedy loosened its grip on Egypt and India that not only made a holy war impossible, but brought millions of Moslems to the side of the allied Christian nations.

Thus the pathway to the East is cleared of this great obstruction. Let it be remembered that the nations that won in this war were Protestant nations; that the strength and capacity of these Protestant nations has been thoroughly demonstrated; also that by every token of the hour the hope of the future lies in Protestant Christianity. The United States, England, Australia, Canada, English-speaking Protestant peoples, face an unparalleled responsibility. The war-stricken nations of Europe, crushed and torn and weakened, cannot be counted on in any large way. Among them all, the United States of America is the only nation which stands out as the hope for leadership in world reconstruction. Her losses in the war, compared with those of the other allies, were negligible. Her war debt is proportionately not more than one-eighth that of France or Italy. She was spared the destruction of her young men and boys, while the other allies sacrificed their young manhood on the altars of liberty. We have grown immensely in our commercial power in the world, and are in a position to maintain our commercial supremacy. God has in His providence put us as a people in a position to finance the Kingdom in a large way without heavy sacrifice. The hour is such as to call for any sacrifice which men can make. Our young men are filled with the ideals of service, the war has glorified the spirit of sacrifice. It will no longer seem a hard and unreasonable thing to ask men to devote their lives to preaching the Gospel in foreign lands. Volunteers are crowding to the front. If ever in human history a nation was called upon to stand for God and His Kingdom, it is this nation at this hour. If the Christian church in America falls, then by all human indications the cause fails. If we rise to our duty, it is possible to rebuild the world in the name of Christ.

All this for Methodism has special significance. In the very moment of this great world catastrophe and awakening we are celebrating our Missionary Centenary. Methodism has rediscovered her power. She has reassessed her responsibility, and has been thrilled by a new world vision. It is as if the Master had laid upon her special responsibility and entrusted her with the measureless honor of a great opportunity. Will Methodism respond? In the answer to that question lies the whole future of the church. Answered in the affirmative, it gives to Methodism an honorable place among the forces that count for the world's redemption. Answered in the negative, it will leave Methodism a discounted and dishonored church whose shame will be proportioned to the magnificent and compelling call which is now ringing in her ears.

THE MINUTE MAN AND THE ENLARGED PROGRAM FOR THE LAYMAN.

W. B. Beauchamp, General Secretary, Laymen's Missionary Movement.

The financial results of the Centenary drive went beyond the calculation of those closest to the movement. Not only is this true of the financial part of the Centenary, but the Centenary revealed to the church some facts which we must take into consideration in our future plans. We have said from time to time that in the laymen of the church we have a great latent force. The Centenary Movement put into activity this latent power. The laymen came into place of leadership in every phase of the Centenary program. More and more this lay-force must be utilized in all of the program of the Kingdom of God.

The Minute Man or Lay-Messenger.

One of the most striking factors of the Centenary Movement was the Methodist Minute Man. Into every church in city and country he went carrying the message of the Centenary until the message had been delivered over and over again to our people everywhere. This made possible the actual Eight-Day Drive.

The Minute Man, or Lay-Messenger, must be made a permanent part of the program of Southern Methodism. We ought to be able to carry every Sunday to every church at least one message. In other words, every church ought to be open at least for one religious service every Sunday of the year. The Lay-Messenger is the solution of this problem. Not only can he carry effectively and pointedly the message of the Conservation program to the church, but at the same time it is enlisting in service thousands of our laymen who stand ready to give a definite portion of their time to the service of the church.

Lay-Messenger to Become Part of Program of the Laymen's Missionary Movement.

In order to get up effectively the Minute Man program and to perfect the organization for the most efficient service, Mr. J. M. Way has been brought in as associate secretary in the Laymen's Missionary Movement to have charge of the Minute Man department. Brother Way has had large experience in the Sunday school work in holding conferences of teachers, set-up meetings for conference, district, et cetera. He has had just the training necessary to do the work which is now proposed. He brings to his new work great confidence in the Laymen's Missionary Movement and a burning passion for missions. During this Conservation year he will meet in groups the District Minute Men Chairmen and carry to them the plans and program for this year's work.

No department of the Centenary has awakened greater interest throughout the church than the Minute Man. The Commission and executive committee of the Laymen's Missionary Movement feel confident that this permanent program for the laymen of the church will bring to the service of Southern Methodism a multitude of finely equipped laymen ready to carry the message of the Centenary and the church to our people as the program and plan of the organization will demand.

We earnestly request the heartiest co-operation of pastors, presiding elders and all forces of our church in this very vital department of our Conservation program.

THAT DAY OF PRAYER AND FASTING.

By O. E. Goddard.

Let no church and individual forget that day. Friday, August 29. Every church is urged to observe it in its own way. Have the service at such hour as will best serve the interests in your community. One of the best hours will be sunrise for town and city churches. Rural churches might have it at 11 o'clock in the morning. On circuits, the live pastor will have appointed leaders for all the classes which he cannot reach. Life in city or in country should not be so strenuous that we cannot pause for this day of prayer and fasting. Southern Methodism is facing the largest, the most important and the most critical undertaking in her history. Our church is worldly, money-loving, pleasure-loving. To revive such a church and make it what a New Testament church should be, is more important than any other campaign ever launched in our history. If we do not have vital godliness in the church, we might as well have no church. Can Methodism be revived? Can we have such a turning to the Lord as has not been seen in our day? Let every soul which yearns for a genuine heaven-sent revival spend this day in prayer and fasting.

THE FIRST MEETING OF THE EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN COMMISSION.

The Educational Campaign Commission provided for by the Board of Education held its first session, beginning August 12, at Lake Junaluska. The Commission organized by electing Bishop James Cannon, Jr., President; Dr. J. H. Reynolds, Vice President; Dr. H. N. Snyder, Secretary; Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Treasurer. These, with Drs. Paul H. Linn, A. F. Watkins, and C. C. Weaver, were constituted its Executive Committee.

The following is a statement of the most important items of business transacted by the Commission at this session:

First—The time for beginning the educational campaign was fixed as May 1, 1920, and the time of the financial drive was fixed for April or May, 1921.

Second—The method of financing the campaign was determined upon, the basis of which is that the expenses incident to the campaign shall be borne by the institutions participating in the campaign in proportion to the approved askings of said institutions.

Third—The committee labored faithfully to adopt a method by which the campaign for the universities and the campaign for the schools and colleges might be merged in a way satisfactory to both classes of institutions. While the Commission found very real difficulties in finding a method just and equitable to all interests concerned, it took the position unqualifiedly that the colleges and universities are under the compulsion of a high moral obligation to conduct but one campaign of such character as to absorb the whole energies, and all the forces, of the entire church for the realization of the complete educational program, and in which no beneficiary institution should have agents in the field making appeals for its special interests, and that the campaign should be popular, intensive, church-wide, for the whole budget. Involved in merging the two educational campaigns are the two important matters (1) of determining the askings of each institution, and (2) the apportionment to each Annual Conference of its share of the whole amount. The method so far as developed by the Commission for accomplishing these two important results is as follows:

1. The Executive Committee was instructed to give careful consideration to the askings of the institutions of the church for the purpose of making such adjustments as seemed advisable and necessary. These adjustments are to be made on the basis, approximately, of the total figures approved by the General Conference for the schools and colleges and for the two universities.

2. When the allotments have been made by the Executive Committee to the several institutions concerned and reported to them, each institution shall then have opportunity, if desired, to discuss its askings and needs before the Executive Committee.

3. The Executive Committee will prorate the total amount of the askings when approved by the Commission among the various Annual Conferences on an equitable basis.

4. When the askings of the several institutions have been determined by the Executive Committee and the apportionment of the whole amount to the several Annual Conferences made, the Executive Committee will report to the Campaign Commission for its approval.

Fourth—The Commission expressed its appreciation to the Sunday School Board for its cordial and genial offer of co-operation made through Dr. E. B. Chappel, and the Executive Committee was instructed to take up with the Committee of the Sunday School Board the matter of the most effective method of co-operation.

Fifth—Action was taken relative to the establishment of an "A" grade college in the State of Oklahoma.

Sixth—The Commission endorsed the evangelistic campaign now being carried on by the Centenary, and pledged the cordial co-operation of the educational forces of the church.

HELP THE ADVOCATE!

READ THE FOLLOWING PROPOSITION.

To the Pastors of Mississippi and Louisiana:

Dear Brethren: We will give you or any member of your congregation a Teacher's Bible if you will send us 10 new or renewal subscriptions to the New Orleans Christian Advocate by November 10. This Bible is one of the best made, and retails at $3.50. It is bound in genuine leather and has a concordance and all the usual helps in a Teacher's Bible; it is printed with large leaded type, and is fit for a queen. In asking persons to subscribe, just tell them that you are trying to get a club of ten subscriptions for the Advocate for the express purpose of getting one of these nice Bibles, and this will help you persuade them to subscribe. If you will not yourself undertake the job, please get some winsome lady or tactful layman to work up the club. The subscription price is $1.50 a year. Ten subscriptions at $1.50 each will earn the Bible.

If you fail to get 10 subscriptions, we will give you a $2.00 Bible for seven subscriptions. This Bible is bound in genuine leather also, and is a nice book.

If you fail to get seven subscriptions, but secure five, we will give you a copy of "Alpheus W. Wilson—A Prince in Israel," by Rev. Carlton D. Harris. This book contains the life and labors of the late Bishop Wilson. It is bound in cloth and has 210 pages.

The Advocate has always been supported by the efforts of the preachers in Louisiana and Mississippi. We are about to lose nearly 1000 subscriptions, most of them in arrears to the amount of $1.50 each, and consequently we are compelled to devise some way of stimulating interest.

If you will take this matter up for us, and work this plan, or find some one to work it with your assistance and encouragement, we will be greatly helped.

This offer will hold good until November 1, after which date it will be withdrawn.

Do justice to your brother (you can do that whether you love him or not), and you will come to love him.—Ruskin.

"EFFECTIVE PRAYING."

By H. F. Lewis, Jr.

Our church leaders are feeling greatly the need of prayer to carry on the program mapped out for the Centenary Movement. When the Centenary was planned, the first call was for a league of intercessors from all over the church for its success. And that call was stressed up to the time set for the great drive for $35,000,000. But out of a membership of over 2,000,000 only about 10 per cent responded to the call. Why?

On my own charge I laid the call before every member time and time again, both publicly and privately, and out of a membership of over 300 secured only 44 signers. Why would they not sign? I can think of only two reasons: either indifference, or a feeling of unworthiness to assume the responsibility of doing the praying that the church and times demand.

But now, in light of the great success of the financial drive for $35,000,000, the hugeness of the task before the church, and the spirit of the times, our leaders are feeling more than ever the need of much prayer on the part of the whole church.

It is not an easy thing to do effective praying. It requires much study of the Word, heart-searchings, confessions both to God and man, straightening up of the life, humility, willingness to do or go, and taking the burdens of lost souls on one's heart.

There is a vast difference between real praying and saying prayers. Most of us have been taught to say prayers, and it is a good habit to have; but real praying is far more difficult and requires a far greater effort of heart and mind.

When the sinner really prays, he feels the deadening weight of his own sins, and is made to cry like David, "Against thee, thee only have I sinned," or like the publican, "God, have mercy on me, a sinner."

Real praying will lead men to come clean with God. One reason many prayers are not answered is found right here. Too many to-day are like those described in Isaiah 1:10-15. God is eternal and unchangeable, and will not hear and answer prayers from hearts that will not get right with Him.

Right praying is backed up by right living, and will get men in time with God and His ways for doing His work, as was the case with Isaiah in the 6th chapter, and the disciples on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2), and later when persecutions arose (Acts 4:23-30). How many Christian workers can recall the time they fought out with God and themselves God's call to the work He would have them do? And to most of us it was no easy matter. Pride, self-will, worldly ambition, shrinking from the hardships of real Christian service, and every imaginable objection the mind and flesh brought up, had to be laid on the altar and all surrendered to the Divine will.

Real praying on the part of one who is willing to carry the burden of lost souls on his heart, will bring conviction that will melt the sinner's heart in most cases and cause him to come to Christ. How many of your sinner friends know that you are carrying the burden of their souls on your heart? How great is that burden on you? Is it as intense as Daniel's was for Jerusalem? (Dan. 9). Is it as desperate as was the prayer of the woman of Canaan for her daughter? (Matt. 15: 22). Intense earnestness, willingness to fast and pray, and that for the unrighteous and unlovely all about us, is a condition of "effective praying."

Brother Minister, have you ever thought what it cost the prophet Elijah to pray the prayer that shut up the heavens so that it rained not for three years and six months? Then, of the intenseness of the prayer that brought again the rains? God and the church are on the lookout for those who will do real effective praying. (II. Chr. 16:9).

"The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

THE WHIRLWIND.

By Lucien Clark, D.D.

Many cities have been suffering recently from a wave of crime. In Washington it has been a whirlwind, reminding one of the saying of the prophet Hosea. "They have sown the wind and they shall reap the whirlwind." Many have been doing the sowing who would not be willing to acknowledge their share of the blame. Some say it is an after effect of the war, and there is truth in what they say. Others say the high cost of living is responsible for this unhappy visitation, and there may be some truth in that also. Some believe that there are not enough policemen and that those we have are not adequately remunerated, while others attribute it to race prejudice.

Whatever truth there may be in these explanations, they do not sufficiently account for the existing conditions. There are two prominent facts which must not be overlooked if we are searching for a satisfactory account of this overwhelming calamity.

Lax Administration.

Laxity in the administration of law must be taken into account. Those whose business it is to enforce the law are not at all alike. Some of them are just judges and conscientious servants of the people, and some are not. We are informed that certain judges will not enforce the law against criminals in cases where they do not approve the law themselves. Policemen have complained that when they arrest an offender and try to bring him to justice the case is summarily dismissed because the judge does not happen to like the law. The proof of guilt may be ever so clear, but the criminal knows he will not be punished.

If one judge may treat with contempt one law which he does not like, another judge may act in a similar way with another law, and then where is justice? It is fallen in the streets, as the prophet said. If a judge tramples on the law with scorn because he does not like it, has not a criminal or a man with criminal instinct a right to do likewise? This is a sure way to teach men to despise government. In his second epistle Simon Peter condemns in strong terms those who "despise government." When the judge himself despises it, may we not expect the people to follow his example? There is no surer way to encourage crime. Such a judge is on a par with the criminal.

Can we expect policemen to continue to arrest violators of the law when they know from experience that they will be allowed to go free? Such conduct in the judge is a silent but effectual rebuke of the policeman for making the arrest. We have heard that policemen have boldly given this as a reason why they do not arrest certain criminals.

It is well known that in some cities criminals enter into a bargain with the officers of the law, agreeing to share the booty and plunder with them if they will not disturb them in their wickedness. And so it has come to pass that America has an unsavory reputation in all the world because she does not rigidly enforce her own laws. One result of this criminal negligence is an alarming increase in the number of crimes committed every year. The most thoughtful citizens have become alarmed at the statistics showing the constant increase of crime. It is not altogether an after effect of the war. The ugly business of systematically growing crime began before the war began. It is not a temporary visitation which will soon come to an end when things settle down.

Of the multitude of criminals only a small proportion are detected; and of those arrested and brought to justice only a small proportion are convicted and punished; and of those convicted a large proportion are pardoned out of prison after a few months, and sent about their terrible business again.

Crime receives strange encouragement in these days. Young men and boys with criminal instincts are led to hope that since most criminals escape punishment they may expect to escape also; and they do expect it. The large volume of crime is not due altogether to greater wickedness in men. It is partly because government is inefficient. There is too much partisan politics and too little justice; too much graft and too little sense of duty.

The Church Delinquent.

Let us not excuse the church altogether. It is easy enough for ministers of the gospel to cry out against crime when it is too late to do any good. The church is largely responsible for the moral character of the people. It is the business of churches so to represent God and His truth as to create moral sentiment, moral conviction and moral fiber in the masses. "Ye are the salt of the earth." When the life of the people becomes abominably corrupt there must be something lacking in the salt.

Have ministers of the gospel been preaching a genuine, unadulterated, whole gospel during the past twenty-five years? Have they eliminated nothing? Have they sounded out every note clear and strong? Has not the pulpit imitated the courts in picking and choosing? Some pulpits, at least, have been very eloquent on sociology, social religion and social salvation, and quite dumb on "the weightier matters of the law." Much has been said about the love of God, but very little about the justice of God. The tender mercy of God is an attractive theme. We all like it. It gives a preacher unspeakable delight to tell the people that God never despises any one, no matter how bad he may be. He does not despise the prodigal, the criminal, the thief nor the harlot. He dearly loves them all. This is a true doctrine and should never be overlooked by the preacher; but it is not the whole truth. It is also true that "the wages of sin is death," and that "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

The pulpit once appealed to fear with powerful effect, but the reaction is proceeding to a dangerous extreme. If a preacher should now dare to make a strong appeal to the fears of sinners, some of his people would not return to hear him again. They insist that this generation is too intelligent to be frightened into religion. They insist on a soft gospel, which is really another gospel.

The man with criminal instinct is not afraid now. He is not afraid of the law. He is not afraid of sin. He has heard nothing about the deadly nature of sin for a long time. He has heard that sin is merely a stage in human development. He has no fear of God before his eyes.

A Call to Repentance.

Is there a way out? Increase the police force, call in the soldiers to aid them, break up the mob by military force, and the wave may be slightly reduced for a day. It will soon break out again in some other form or some other place. It is like a deadly epidemic and cannot be put down by superficial treatment. Epidemics run their courses and die out; but this whirlwind will not die out. It must be uprooted. The only cure is that proclaimed by John the Baptist and our Lord: "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Let public men repent. Let officers of the law who have helped to create an unwholesome sentiment against law repent. Let every preacher who has neglected his whole duty to his Master repent. Let the church of God repent and "bring forth fruits meet for repentance."

The recent crusade which has raised $112,000,000 in pledges for the Centenary is a notable triumph of faith and zeal, but it is nothing compared with a crusade we might wage which should raise a tide of repentance throughout the land, resulting in a keener sense of sin, a quickened sense of duty and a higher standard of righteousness, and save the country from this whirlwind of sin and ruin. AS THY DAY, SO THY STRENGTH SHALL BE.

Spiritual victories are won more steadily by those habits of mind and heart which have a tendency to render the inner life immune. The promise of old was, "As thy day so shall thy strength be." The word "day" stands for the whole set of outward circumstances in a man's environment. When we say, "This has been a hard day," we mean that the pressure brought by the special demands of that day was unusually heavy. "The day" denotes the whole list of duties and responsibilities, temptations and trials, disappointments and sorrows. Every one has his own "day" to face and to put through. In the precise way in which it presses upon him at this point and at that, his day is not just like any other man's day. The "day" stands for the entire demand made upon the inner life.

And the word "strength" denotes that measure of personal efficiency which one can bring into the field where his particular day is to be met. Physical endurance, mental insight, sound judgment, moral stamina, spiritual adequacy are all to be considered in appraising a man's ability to measure up to the demands of his particular situation. The word "strength" is used to designate all that enters into the make-up of what is called "personality."

Now the promise means that by a right life a certain equilibrium will be maintained between the inner and the outer. The personal efficiency of the individual will be made adequate to the demands of his own particular situation in life. In meeting a given situation he will not be thrown down nor beaten back nor sidetracked in his main purpose. He will be empowered from within to show himself master of the situation.—Chas. R. Brown, D.D.

WHAT IS THE CHURCH GOING TO SAY?

[illegible]

[illegible] criticism [illegible] Young Men's Christian Association more than he [illegible] or done what may happen [illegible] organization [illegible] work [illegible] Y. M. C. A. [illegible] the Association as always considered itself a child of the Church [illegible] has been pretty generally recognized [illegible] International Conventions [illegible] Washington in 1[illegible] and Toronto in 1[illegible] and Cincinnati in 19[illegible] when the Y. M. C. A. was ever ready to give [illegible] allegiance to the Church and religious work [illegible] answered by reaffirming and strengthening its evangelical basis. It remains to be seen whether in this time of need the Church will [illegible] and help [illegible] present is with child. [illegible] does or does not come, or because [illegible] later.

This statement is made [illegible] more intelligent [illegible] of the fact that there has already arisen another organization which proposes to do many things in parallel to the work of the Y. M. C. A. [illegible] announcement has already been made of plans to take over the work formerly done by the Y. M. C. A. without the handicap of religion. This is a rare chance for naturalists and those out of sympathy with religious tests and aims of the Young Men's Christian Association. Will the Church sit idly by and see what it shall see, or will it not? We shall see what we shall see.

The situation is not made any more comfortable by the fact that the bulk of the criticism is known to be the result of a feminine propaganda which some day will be understood and proclaimed to the world. One of the saddest facts in connection with the whole business is that our splendid organizations that must and do know better with late years and held their peace. Whatever profit may have come or his or program must in the end prove very costly.

It would certainly not be out of place for the Church in convention and conference and assembly to undertake to find out the truth, and then when all the evidence is in to act accordingly. Some day when the whole truth is known some people will be ashamed of themselves, and it will not be the Young Men's Christian Association which has sought to represent the united churches of Christ in a special mission to the soldiers and sailors of the American Expeditionary Forces.

13 Rue d'Agnesseau, Paris, France

The success of every life as well as its happiness depends very largely on its friendships. Take time to make friends, take time to keep them. There are a great many unnecessary things which can be omitted from our daily activities and no harm done, but for the making and for the keeping of our friendships in repair one must find time whatever else is neglected.—Selected.

WITH THANKS.

Helen M. Wilson.

Glad little Jane with the dancing eyes,
Viewing life in a sweet surprise;
Eager smile on your small, round face,
Clippity feet that scarce keep pace

With the sparkle and rush of your busy words:
Wing of butterfly, song of birds;
Wonderful pebble, or tassled grass;
Naught of pleasure do you let pass.

Appreciation!—that tells it all,
Glad little Jane, I will heed your call.

THE MIX-UP.

Dot lay wide awake in the trundle-bed, and could not sleep. She had been in this wide-awakeness for many hours, for Dolly, who lay beside her, would start at dawn on a great trip.

It would seem, this being the case, that Dolly should be the one awake and Dot the sleeper, but Dolly had a naturally drowsy brain, and Dot a restless, eager one that had been ten times more restless and eager than usual since Uncle Henry's telegram at dinner: "Have your eldest girl waiting at the door at five-thirty to-morrow, sharp. Am swooping by on my way to the city; will return in a day or two."

It had seemed wonderful. Uncle Henry, who lived in another State, would "swoop" by in a big touring car; he would treat you like a princess in town, for years ago the two had gone down with him, and had never forgotten the delightful experience. To think that the eldest girl was to be waiting on the doorstep at dawn for such a time again! The eldest girl herself went to sleep smiling widely.

The youngest sighed now, and wriggled under the counterpane. She did not grudge anybody such a great happiness, but she wished, and wished hard, that there might have been another "teenty" seat in the automobile; and she simply could not go to sleep. After a while, however, she dozed, to wake with her heart thumping. Daylight, faint and pale, was in the room. She gave Dolly a swift punch that brought forth a sleepy "Ouch!"

"It's morning, morning!" she whispered. "Get up and dress!"

She had slipped into her own clothes before sleepy Dolly, blinking and groping in the gloom, had found one stocking. "I'll go down and listen, and when I hear a honk, I'll rush back and let you know." She was off like a nimble little rabbit.

Downstairs, the front porch was still and gray, and in the east a beautiful pink and pearl dawn grew each moment. Uncle Henry would come from the southeast, and Dot turned her eager face in that direction. "I'll walk the porch," she decided presently, "and pretend that I am waiting to motor into town."

It came suddenly when it did come—a joyous blast of a horn, loud and clear, and then, plunging out of the pink sunrise, appeared the car itself, like a swift bird, big and blue.

Dot stood spellbound. She tried to move, but her feet stuck fast; she tried to call, but her heart beat so hard that it choked her. The flying car, coming nearer and nearer, slowed down; somebody waved a hand. An instant more and Uncle Henry was running up the steps.

"Hey, there, Curly Top! Right on the spot!" With one lunge he caught her up in his long arm and, dashing back down the steps, dropped her into a niche on the front seat. Before anybody could say Jack Robinson the wheels were whirring and they were up and away!

Again Dot opened her mouth and could not speak. The wild wind was in her throat and sang. Ah, how they were going swiftly, and skimmingly, like a bird always, down hills, up hills along levels, flying, flying! The road had turned now, and they seemed rushing back into the pink and pearl, only it had turned to pink and gold now.

"I—Uncle Henry, Uncle Henry!" Dot stirred and struggled, but again her words were blown queerly away. She could not help laughing for sheer delight, and yet how dreadful this was! A vision of Dolly—poor, puzzled Dolly—rose before her, and she stopped laughing. Uncle Henry must be made to hear.

Then a terrible temptation beset little Dot. Why must he? It was not her fault that she was in the machine, but here she was, and they had gone several miles, and were doubtless in a great hurry. Besides, she had tried hard to make them hear. Besides, again—it was so splendid, so glorious!

The next moment she gave herself an angry shake. "Why, Dot Taylor!" she breathed, and began to struggle to her feet, determined now.

"Eh?" said Uncle Henry, bending down. "Not the right one? Upon my word; then you must be as alike as two peas. Tut, tut, tut—what's to be done about this?" He slowed the car and turned to the ladies behind.

"Why didn't you say something, dearie?" one of them asked Dot.

Dot gulped. "The wind choked me at first," she answered, "and after that— oh, it was all so lovely!"

The ladies looked at Uncle Henry, and he looked at the ladies.

"I never rode in such a wonderful car before," Dot went on. "It's like flying. But poor Dolly; let's get back to her, quick."

"I don't mind catching another train," somebody said, and the machine began to turn slowly, making a great racket, as though annoyed at being interrupted.

Dot shut her eyes. The flight back would be short, but she was going to enjoy it with all her heart and soul. Away they went, and away! It seemed little more than a second before they were stopping again, and there on the porch steps Dolly was standing, red and perplexed.

"They mixed us up," Dot cried. "They mixed us up, but you haven't lost your ride, Doll. My, but it's fine!" She got to her feet, oh, so reluctantly!

But just then Uncle Henry made another sudden dive. With one arm he held Dot down, and with the other he scooped Dolly up. Then, before either could speak, while they were still gasping, his hands were on the wheel again, the wind was in their faces, and the automobile took them flying straight toward the laughing yellow sun. LITTLE BOYS AND LITTLE SHEEP.

Joe came home with his clothes, and even his curly hair, all wringing wet. "Just knew the ice wasn't strong enough!" he grumbled.

"Then why did you slide?" asked Auntie.

"'Cause all the other boys did," said Joe; "so I had to, or they'd laugh."

His aunt gave him dry clothes, set him down by the fire, and made him drink hot ginger tea. Then she told him a story.

"When I was a little girl, Joe, my father had a great flock of sheep. They were queer things—where one went, all the rest followed.

"One day the big ram found a gap in the fence, and he thought it would be fun to see what was in the other field. So in he jumped, without looking where he was going. And down he tumbled to the bottom of an old, dry well, where father used to throw stones and rubbish.

"The next sheep never stopped to see what had become of him, but just jumped right after, and the next, and the next, although father tried to drive them back; and Watch, the sheep dog, barked his loudest. But they just kept on jumping till the well was full. Then father had to pull them out as best he could, and the sheep at the bottom of the well were almost smothered to death."

"My, what silly fellows," exclaimed Joe. Then he looked up at his aunt and laughed.—Sunday School Times.

To love abundantly is to live abundantly, and to love forever is to live forever. Hence, eternal life is inextricably bound up with love - Henry Drummond.

"The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." The passive virtues of the Christian martyrs were stronger than the active energies of their heathen persecutors; stronger—that is, in the end. They had before them a new ideal the image of an Immaculate Sufferer, "who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, threatened not."—H. P. Liddon.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

Editorial

A PRAYING CHURCH.

We cannot fail to be in hearty sympathy with any movement that has as its end the intensifying of the spirit of prayer among our people. We do not think it needs to be said in this day that prayer is an essential in the development and maintenance of religious character. A man may be moral without prayer, but he cannot be spiritually-minded. And true religion is a matter of spirituality rather than of morality.

Emphasis has been laid upon the value of prayer from the beginning of the history of the Christian church. Unless we have made the study already, we shall be surprised, when we look into the matter, to find how large a place prayer had in the life of Christ and the early disciples. It was not looked upon as a desirable accompaniment of a consecrated life, but as the inevitable condition of that life.

Intercessory prayer is the purest expression of unselfish devotion to high spiritual ideals. It is practically the elimination of self for the sake of others. It is possible only to those who have been led to see that the need of others cannot be neglected by those who have been satisfied as to their own wants. In fact, the satisfaction of personal needs of a religious kind invariably creates a desire to see the needs of others supplied.

A great movement for the enlistment of intercessors is being carried forward in our church at this time. It means infinitely more than the signing of a pledge to utter certain petitions at specified times. It means the mobilization of the spiritual resources of the church in carrying forward its work of evangelizing the world. It means that the church is beginning to realize that spiritual tasks require spiritual forces for their accomplishment, and that these spiritual forces are now being called into action. The signing of cards is, in itself, a small matter; but the emphasizing of the necessity of intercessory prayer to thousands of congregations is a thing of tremendous significance. A new Pentecost will come when we learn to pray as we ought to pray.

GO-TO-COLLEGE TIME.

Our colleges for boys and girls will soon begin their fall sessions. The indications now are that they will have an unusually large attendance; but it is altogether likely that many young people have not given serious consideration to the question of adequate educational preparation for life, and that many parents are not especially concerned about what their sons and daughters are planning to make of themselves.

We wish we could deal with this matter of education as forcefully as its importance deserves. If we could, no reader of these lines could maintain a quiescent attitude toward the fact that tens of thousands of our young people are going out into life heavily handicapped because they are not prepared to realize its opportunities or to shoulder its responsibilities.

We do not believe that a college education of itself is a guarantee of success in any undertaking. We are willing to admit that in many cases it has semed to accomplish very little good. But experience and observation combine to make us believe that there is nothing else in the world that will come nearer making a life realize all its possibilities than the opportunity of coming into contact with the inspiring influences that center in a Christian college. We covet for every young man and young woman the privilege of beginning life with the enlargement of vision and the ennobling of purpose that come normally with a college course.

Difficulties give way in the face of steadfast determination. There may be some who would like to go to college this fall, but "there is a lion in the way." That "lion" will slink off before a determined attack. It takes money, or its equivalent, to go to college; but the "wherewithal" can be secured by those who are willing to work and make sacrifices. And if an education is not worth working for and making sacrifices for, then we might as well begin to sing, "Let us eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow we die," and give up hope of helping ourselves and the world in the onward and upward struggle.

THE OBSERVANCE OF SUNDAY SCHOOL DAY.

Although the Discipline specifically provides that Sunday School Day shall be observed by every Sunday school "on the last Sunday in April, or as near thereto as practicable," we learn from the reports of our Conference Sunday School Field Secretaries that many schools have failed thus far to make any report concerning its observance.

As we see it, this is a serious matter from two points of view. In the first place, a law of the church is of binding force. The provision for the observance of Sunday School Day was not enacted merely by way of suggestion—it is mandatory, and it is in full force until modified or repealed. We cannot afford utterly to neglect a clear and specific provision of our Discipline unless we are willing to bear the reproach of disregarding our law.

In the second place, a great part of our Conference Sunday school work is projected on the basis of the funds to be collected on Sunday School Day, and the work inevitably suffers if those funds are not forthcoming. The Sunday School Boards supply programs to all schools requesting them, and there seems to us to be no good reason why the Day should not be observed in practically all our schools.

It is not too late to have Sunday School Day yet. In many instances, the month of September will be an unusually favorable time for those schools which have put off the observance thus far. Renewed interest will be taken in the work of the church with the beginning of the fall, and a well prepared and interesting program early in the month would give the Sunday school work a good start. We hope every school in our three Conferences will observe Sunday School Day before the year has ended.

A DAY OF PRAYER FOR KOREA.

We received a few days ago the following telegram from Rev. S. A. Neblett, Intercession Secretary: "Japanese persecution of church in Korea menacing lives of missionaries and native Christians, and hindering work. Tuesday, September 2, appointed as day of prayer for Korean ministry and church. Please give same emphatic editorial announcement. Prayer and publicity are great companion agencies of God's kingdom."

The printing of this telegram is, of itself, an urgent call to our people to remember at a throne of grace their persecuted fellow-Christians in a foreign land. We are sure all of us will be glad to heed the call, not waiting until the day designated to ask God to strengthen our Korean brethren in their time of trial, but using that day especially for intercession in their behalf. We have already seen indications in the press dispatches of a changed attitude for the better on the part of the Japanese Government toward the Korean people. Prayer is a wonderful power.

HERE AND THERE.

III.

Mammoth Cave, Birmingham, And Home.

We have not seen it so referred to, but in our opinion Mammoth Cave is the greatest gold mine in America. The Cave is about nine miles from Glasgow Junction, on the L. & N. Railroad. A branch road, owned by the Mammoth Cave proprietors, runs from the Junction to the Cave—fare, $2.20 for the round trip. If one would see all of the Cave, one must make four trips—$2 for the first one, and $1 each for the other three. A suit of overalls is to be rented from the management—25 cents. The visitor is advised to buy a cap—20 cents. Meals are furnished for 65 cents each—reasonable enough. Souvenirs will be bought, of course, and the guide will be "tipped." The number of daily visitors runs from 50 to 1600. Figure it out for yourself—it is a gold mine.

However, the Cave is worth going a long way to see. The story is, that a hunter following a wounded bear discovered the Cave. We are not told how far the hunter followed the bear—but it was a brave bear that would venture alone into the cavernous depths of that black opening on the hillside. A member of our party ventured the assertion that the first man to explore the cave had a head about the size of a small peanut—otherwise he would have had more sense. We are free to confess that we felt greatly reassured when we learned that the guide who escorted our party through the Cave had been in the guiding business for fourteen years.

Not having time to make a complete exploration of the Cave, we took Trip No. 1, which, we were told, would give us a better idea of the magnitude and grandeur of this subterranean cavern than any of the others. We do not know as to that; but we are satisfied with what we saw. Some travelers we have met, after finding out that we did not see some things that they saw, have dilated upon the wonders of what we missed. But we struggled through "Fat Man's Misery," took a boat ride on Echo River, peered up "Rubberneck Dome," gyrated through the "Corkscrew," and saw various and sundry other interesting and suggestive sights, all of which are enumerated in the guidebook, to which we respectfully refer those who would know more of this eighth or ninth or tenth or whatever wonder of the world it is. We stayed underground for three and a half hours, which satisfies us for the present.

We left Glasgow Junction late in the afternoon, changed trains at Nashville, Tenn., about 10 o'clock p. m., and arrived at Birmingham about 4:30 a. m., Tuesday. By a surprising consideration of the railroad authorities, we were allowed to stay on the Pullman at Birmingham until a reasonable hour for arising. Such arrangement is doubtless as profitable to the porter on the Pullman as the location of railroad stations in different parts of a city is to hackmen and taxicab drivers. A traveler is much more likely to be generous with his tips after a good night's rest than he is after being pulled out of bed before daylight.

We took advantage of our few hours' stay in Birmingham to call on Dr. L. C. Branscomb, the versatile and accomplished editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate. We found him in his office on the seventeenth floor of a great bank building. We could see that he was a busy man, as soon as we peeped in at the door; but he professed to be glad to see a visitor from afar. And that visitor will not soon forget his brotherliness of greeting and treatment while with him. After awhile, he took us to the roof of the building—we forget how high it is—and showed us Greater Birmingham in all its glory. It is a magnificent city in extent of territory and in the evidences of material prosperity and increasing growth. Birmingham is a progressive city—Dr. Branscomb told us that he had just received notice that his office rent would be increased by about 150 per cent. if we recall correctly, in the very near future.

We left Birmingham, by way of the Southern Ry., at 11:25 a. m., bound for New Orleans. But when we came to Ellisville, Miss., we had to stop. Father and mother and sister live there, and the grandmother, long since past her eightieth year, and the tug on our heart-strings was strong enough to pull us off the train for a stay overnight. We took them by surprise as they sat at the supper table—but fathers and mothers have a way of always being on the lookout for their children, and perhaps the surprise was not as great as we thought it was. We had a joyous time together.

We completed the circle at New Orleans about 1:30 p. m., on Wednesday. We had enjoyed the trip—every hour of it—but what traveler is not glad to get back home? We had been separated from loved ones for longer periods of time, but we had never before been quite so far away. But distance makes no difference—there is no other place under the shining sun like home. Getting back home must be a foretaste of getting to Heaven—the happy ending of a long journey.

Since then, the office has kept us pretty busy.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Campbell, of Benton, Miss., announce the birth of a daughter on August 22. The Advocate extends congratulations.

The Mississippi Conference Training School, at Montrose, Miss., will open its fall session on September 8. Rev. L. E. Alford is the principal of the school.

Rev. W. F. Henderson, Jr., of Bonita, La., reports that he has had some splendid revivals on his charge, and that his work is making good progress.

Rev. R. E. Rutledge closed a good meeting at Eureka, on the Lake charge, Mississippi Conference, on August 7. There were three accessions to the church

Rev. F. N. Sweeney, pastor of Franklinton circuit, recently held a successful revival at Fitzgerald church. He was assisted by Rev. A. Inman Townsley, of Felicity Church, this city.

The Christian Advocate (Nashville) states that Rev. Isaac D. Borders, well known in Mississippi, has returned to his home in Kansas City, Mo., after nineteen months of service overseas.

We regret exceedingly to learn that Mrs. B. E. Meigs, wife of our pastor at Monticello, Miss., is critically ill. Many readers of the Advocate will offer a prayer in behalf of the afflicted one.

We learn from the St. Helena Echo that Rev. L. E. Crooks, of the Greensburg charge, Louisiana Conference, was assisted in a good meeting at Pine Hill by Rev. J. L. Cady, of Natalbany.

Friday, August 29, is the day set apart for fasting and prayer for the coming of a great revival throughout our church. Its general observance will hasten the coming of the day we all long for.

The Kentucky Conference will meet at Shelbyville, Ky., on September 3, and the Louisville Conference will meet at Elkton, Ky., on September 24. Bishop Collins Denny will preside over both sessions.

Rev. A. Floyd Vaughan, field agent for the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, filled the pulpit at Lake Arthur last Sunday and presented the orphanage cause. He is meeting with much encouragement.

Rev. Hugh W. Jamieson, Y. M. C. A. Personnel Secretary for the Southern States, is spending his vacation with relatives in New Orleans and will fill the pulpit at Felicity Street Church next Sunday, August 31.

Dr. James W. Lee, chaplain of Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, is in Roosevelt Hospital, New York City, suffering with a fractured hip received in a fall at Rye, N. Y., recently. The sympathy of the whole church will go out to Dr. Lee.

Dr. J. W. Hill, better known as "Gulliver," who is an occasional contributor to the pages of the Advocate, had the misfortune to break a leg in a recent accident. We extend to him our sincere sympathy. He is pastor at Denton, Texas.

Dr. W. B. Beauchamp was elected associate secretary of the Foreign Department, and Dr. R. L. Russell, of St. Louis, associate secretary of the Home Department of the Board of Missions at a called meeting of the Board at Nashville on August 19.

The Minutes of the Annual Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, a compact volume of 346 pages, is just from the press. It is a complete record of the work of our church for 1918. The price is $1.00. It may be had of the Publishing House

Felicity Church will hold a "Home Coming Week" the second week in October, which all former pastors and members are invited to attend. This historic church was founded by the late Bishop Holland N. McTyeire, in October, 1850, and has only one living charter member.

Rev. J. Tillery Lewis, of Charleston, Miss., reports that the attendance at his evening services, which are being held on the courthouse lawn during the summer, has ranged from four to six hundred people. We do not know of another preacher in our territory who is preaching to such large congregations.

Mr. T. L. Boswell, son of Dr. Jno. W. Boswell, of Nashville, Tenn., made the Advocate office an appreciated call on Thursday of last week. Mr. Boswell has recently been bereaved by the death of his wife. His many friends in Louisiana and Mississippi will sympathize deeply with him in his great sorrow.

Rev. J. W. Ramsey recently closed a meeting at Soule's Chapel, on the Daleville charge, resulting in three accessions to the church and a general reviving of the church membership. The pastor did the preaching, and the people expressed themselves as well satisfied with the results of the meeting.

The Port Gibson District Epworth League held an interesting two-days' session at Gibson Memorial Church, Vicksburg, Miss., last week. Several of the State officers were in attendance, and various phases of the League's work were profitably discussed. The Daily Herald, of Vicksburg, gave full reports of the proceedings.

Rev. W. W. Lantrip, of the Eros charge, Louisiana Conference, reports that he has had good meetings at Douglass, Oak Ridge, and Indian Village. The church membership was revived, backsliders were reclaimed, and penitents were converted. There were thirteen accessions to the church, and sixteen children were baptized.

Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, of Fernwood, Miss., favored the Advocate office with a short call on Tuesday of last week. He was in the city with the Fernwood troop of Boy Scouts, en route for the Seashore Camp Grounds, where they were to spend a week as the guests of Mr. P. H. Enochs, of Fernwood, one of Mississippi Methodism's loyal laymen.

Rev. Albert S. Lutz, presiding elder of the Monroe District, Louisiana Conference, has been very busy of late, helping the brethren in their revival meetings. There have been many conversions and additions to the church as a result of these meetings. Brother Lutz left on Monday of this week to attend the Centenary conservation group meeting at Lake Junaluska, N. C.

Second Church of this city, of which Rev. J. A. Alford is pastor, has begun the publication of Church Notes. The first number contains many interesting items of news to the members of the congregation. The necessary financial support of the Notes has been assumed by the members of the K. B. C., an interesting class of boys in the Sunday school between the ages of fourteen and eighteen.

Some men are rich and do not know it—rich in health, rich in a large and happy family, rich in friends, rich in influence and standing in their communities, rich in the spirit of charity and brotherly love. These same men may be poor in this world's goods; but they are rich, just the same.—Crosman.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. W. F. Henderson, Jr. Bonita, La., 5; John Franklin, Anacoco, La., 2; Rev. B. E. Meigs, Monticello, Miss., 2; Rev. W. H. Huntley, Shubuta, Miss., 5; Miss E. L. Hunter, Boyce, La., 2; Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, Fernwood, Miss., 3.

Freckles
The fairer the skin the more ugly it is when marred by freckles, and they are really unnecessary. As soon as the warm sunshine or the hot winds bring them out, causing the natural embarrassment that every woman feels, get from your druggist a package of Kintho Beauty Cream. This is usually an easy and effective way to remove them, and quickly have a soft, clear, youthful and beautiful complexion, which of course, should have no freckles.
Use Kintho at the first sign of freckles, applying night and morning, and you should be delighted to see how rapidly these ugly spots begin to disappear. It is also well to use Kintho Soap as this helps to keep the skin clear and youthful.

On the morning of July 19, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Harrison and carried their little daughter, CHRISTEEN, to her eternal home. Christeen was a bright and cheerful child of only eight years and seven months. How heartrending it was to her parents, brother, and four sisters to have to part with her! Little Christeen suffered much with a complication of diseases during her three weeks' illness, but abscessed lungs caused her death. She bore her suffering with little complaint and talked of getting well. How pathetic the scene just before she passed away, when she called her mother to her bedside and said, "I just wanted to love you around the neck!" And in trying to put her arms around her mother's neck, she said, "I can't hug you like I want to," and her little arms fell and she said no more, but quietly passed away. All that willing hands could do was done, but God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to carry her to a brighter and better land. Grieve not, father, mother, and children dear, for your loss is her eternal gain; and when you start to cross death's chilling tide, she, with her baby brother, who had gone before, will stand with outstretched arms to greet you. The little body was laid to rest in the Mt. Vernon cemetery, Rev. E. A. Philips conducting the funeral.

FOND MEMORIES OF RELATIVES.

Hickory, Miss., Aug. 18.

W. E. MURRAY, son of S. L. and Nancy Eubanks Murray, was born on September 13, 1853, near Brandon, Miss. He was married to Miss Fannie Cawthorn on December 17, 1873. To them were born four boys and nine girls. Three of the girls preceded him to the other shore. He died suddenly at Soso, Miss., May 16, 1919. He often expressed a desire to live as long as he could make his own living and then pass away suddenly; and so his wish was fulfilled. He was converted under the preaching of A. M. McBride, a Cumberland Presbyterian minister, and joined Lime Prairie church of that faith in 1869. In a few years he united with the Methodist Church and was one of the members who organized New Providence church, near Pelahatchie, in 1874. He served as steward the greater part of the time until death claimed him. He was also Sunday school superintendent a great deal of the time. When he moved to Soso, Miss., in December, 1908, he found no Methodist Church there, and in August, 1909, he got his son, W. W. Murray, to hold a meeting and organize a church. He was a man of high ethical standards and had the courage of his convictions. He knew and loved the doctrines of his church. In his early days he felt that he was called to preach, but God had a higher position for him, that of steward in the church. He leaves behind his aged mother, who is 93, three brothers, his wife and nine children: W. W. Murray, of the Mississippi Conference; Mrs. A. C. Hinton, and Mrs. W. B. McKay, of Pelahatchie; Mrs. T. B. Watkins, and Mrs. S. E. Odom, Miss Ila Murray and H. L. Murray, of Soso; Paul and Alex Murray, of the U. S. Navy. He is gone; his pastor and family will miss him; earth is poorer but heaven richer. ONE WHO LOVED HIM.

WILLIAM THOMAS WAX, son of Geo. E. and Elnora Wax, was born at old Millville (now Detroit), Ala., on June 5, 1846. At twenty years of age he moved with his parents to Smithville, Monroe County, Mississippi, where he spent the remainder of his life. While a mere youth he volunteered as a Confederate soldier and served faithfully under the stars and bars until that glorious symbol of a sovereignty fell to rise no more. In 1871 he was married to Miss Lou Harkey, daughter of Rev. David Harkey. To them five children were born, two sons and three daughters. In the same year that he married he joined the Methodist Church, and shortly thereafter was called to official place in the church, and so served his church at Smithville to the end of his life. He was a subscriber and reader of the Nashville Christian Advocate for fifty years. He was a recognized leader in all moral and religious movements, having written and, with others, circulated the first petition for local option in Monroe County, Miss. He never let up in his fight against the saloon and intemperance until the victory was won. Clean of speech, he was never heard to use profane language, or even a slang phrase. He believed in and walked the ways of old Methodist circumspection. Always kind and courteous, even when conducting his campaigns against entrenched and organized vice, he commanded the respect of those whom he fought. Loving his church as his own life, he never faltered in any of the duties it imposed upon him, and rarely ever missed its stated services. Whoever else might fail to be at church on time, the preacher knew that Brother Billy Wax would be there. His home was the preacher's home, and it is not surprising that one of his daughters, Mrs. W. A. Bowlin, is now the wife of an itinerant preacher. Only a few days before his death he received from the United States Department of Agriculture a letter commending him for faithfully reporting for 20 years, without a break in the monthly statements, the crop and live stock condition of his township. This letter, which lies before me, says, "Your work has been particularly valuable to the Government," and many other similar phrases of appreciation. He died on May 12, 1919, and was buried at Smithville. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. B. F. Owen and Rev. E. R. Smoot. Brother Wax was one of the best men I ever knew. He was one of those quiet, unobtrusive, but resolute men, who stood unfalteringly for what was right. No one ever had a moment's doubt as to what was his position on an issue wherein the church of Christ was a factor. His reading of the church press kept him fairly well informed as to its high ideals, and he always stood for what the church espoused. His faith in God and his Son, Jesus Christ, was a clear faith, and by it he daily lived. In addition to the reading of good books, he was a constant student of the Word of God, and for a long time was a teacher of the Bible class in the Smithville Sunday school. He served his generation faithfully and well, until at last God gave him rest.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas God in His infinite wisdom and love has seen fit to claim for His own our beloved member and coworker, Oiyer Baucum, be it resolved:

That we, members of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church, South, of Haynesville, La., with sorrowing hearts bow in submission to the will of the loving Father, knowing that he knoweth best and doeth all things well.

That this faithful member, loving son and brother, constant friend and unselfish helper, may prove as a guardian angel and a daily inspiration to his loved ones and to the members of our League.

That we desire to express to the bereaved father, mother, and sisters our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy be spread on our minutes, a copy sent to the Epworth Era and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed by: Mrs. J. R. Bevill, Miss Norine Sale, Miss Meda Taylor, Dr. F. J. Hearne, Robert Winn.

A FLOWER SERVICE AT EUPORA, MISS.

It was a glad, sad day. Many hearts were happy over the good things that had come to pass. Many were sad because larger numbers had not been saved. Business had suspended for an hour throughout the town. Under the leadership of Mrs. DuBerry, special music had been prepared—violins, piano, mixed voices, solo. The pastor was happily smiling. The helper was giving general directions. Two of the old songs were sung by the congregation. Then came the program proper. The visiting pastor spoke for nine minutes on "The Message of the Flowers." A hush came over the congregation. A few words of instruction were given, and the heart of the service was on. "A Little Bit of Love" was beautifully rendered. A strange harmony followed as the soft strains of a violin reached the ear and heart. The spell of the service came like a dream. Slowly, quietly, reverently came the people, first by twos and fours—then an endless stream circled about the altar on which rested a rich profusion of fresh flowers. Seeking some friend, one of those buds went from God's altar in a living hand to find resting-place on a living bosom. Whispered "God bless you's" were heard; falling tears were noted; an embrace, a smile, nearly hidden by falling tears, brought myriad rainbows of peace. The friction of life was forgotten. Only good was remembered. Strong men, unaccustomed to tears, silently wept. A victory note was heard occasionally, almost as soft as the strains of the violin. Scarcely controlled emotion pervaded the whole assembly. Nothing evil could live in that atmosphere. The flowers were fast disappearing. They were speaking the language of heaven on heaving bosoms, over healed hearts. Children were hushed to a strange silence under the mystic majesty of unseen forces. Matured people were awed to as strange a silence. Wave on wave of emotion passed through that moving throng; never an outburst; never an expression that lessened the tension. As gently as God rocks a world to sleep on a cloudless night, the work was done—then perfect quiet. Faces turned again towards the minister. Smiles as refreshing as the dawn were in evidence. Happiness had found a home. We scarcely knew why or how—WE JUST KNEW. Every breast bore the mark of love. Every heart felt the thrill of peace, "the peace that passeth all understanding." It was helpful to an unusual degree, and beautiful beyond expression. It was a holy hour.

Thus ended one of the happiest occasions this writer has enjoyed in many seasons. It was the closing service of a ten days' meeting at Eupora. It was good to be there. It was an occasion that none who were present are likely to forget. Brother Young, the pastor, is respected and loved. The church has many splendid men and women who stand for the best things. They are progressing. The congregation has a notably large number of young people in it. There should be a great future for them. Whatever my ministry may have meant to them, they were a blessing to me. My home with the Eudys was all that one could ask or desire.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Sunday School Day can be made to serve a double purpose when observed in the month of September: you can make it your Rally Day as well. By doing this you can enlist all your people that have been away for the summer and take advantage of the good weather we usually have in the autumn months. Brother Superintendent, get the programs you have laid aside, read them over carefully, assign each teacher in the school the part that is intended for her department, and you will render a great service to your school and to the church at large. Do not let the devil hinder you.

Through the kindness of Presiding Elder Holder, I had the opportunity of rendering some service to the Toccopola and Randolph circuits last week. We held four services at Toccopola. Brother W. C. Ferrell is superintendent and Rev. R. M. Papasan is pastor. The school ordered the graded lessons for beginners, and all the teachers in the elementary department ordered books for their study. This school agreed to observe Sunday School Day and put on a campaign for new members. Brother Holder preached a sermon shot through and through with the evangelistic spirit Saturday night and received three girls into the church.

The quarterly conference was held at Salem, Friday. Brother M. L. Riley is the superintendent of this school. For some reason the school had gone into "summer quarters." The forces were rallied and the teachers ordered a sufficient number of books for each officer and teacher in the school. This school ordered graded lessons for beginners and agreed to observe Sunday School Day and give the Missionary program monthly. Sister Patsy Wells has been a member of this church for seventy years. She could not hear the sermon, but said she enjoyed feeling what the preacher had to say.

We spent Saturday at Thaxton, on the Randolph circuit, holding a quarterly meeting and giving instruction in the work of the Sunday school. Brother Brodie, the pastor, every superintendent and some of the teachers ordered books to learn more about the task of giving religious education to all the people.

Sunday was a great day at Lafayette Springs. We held three services, preached to about three hundred people, ordered books for all the teachers, and graded lessons for the beginners. At all these places we met as fine young people as live anywhere, good looking, well dressed and courteous in their manners. But they need religious instruction in a more definite way than they have been receiving it. The church ought to erect a modern and properly equipped building, a comfortable parsonage, and put a strong man in charge and let him stay long enough to give the people what they need.

Mr. M. W. Brabham at the last meeting of the General Sunday School Board, was elected as Superintendent of Rural Work in the church. Mr. Brabham has promised to give the North Mississippi Conference his services from September 8 to 14. The places where he is to help hold Institutes will be published next week.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

We are ready for the busy time of closing up a good year. Every pastor has his head and heart set on making a good report to Conference. Let us make the Sunday school report accurately and in full. Your report to my office should be made soon. Dear pastors and superintendents of schools, be prompt and fill in every blank when you make this report. Blanks have not been mailed out yet, but will be soon. We have been very derelict about reports in the past. Please answer every blank with a full statement.

It will not be possible for me to make many new dates during the balance of the year. I will have to make long trips and hold efficiency conferences with the district officers. Let every district officer be making preparation for such a meeting. The object of this meeting is to tell each officer in the district how he can best do his work. Then we want to divide each district into sub-districts, so we can easily do our work next year. Please, brother pastor, help me hold these Efficiency Conferences before November 19. Do not feel I have failed you and turned away from you when I write you of another date. I will be in every district in the Conference this year with an Officers' Training School.

Many thanks to all for loyal support.

Field Secretary.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

We had the pleasure of being with Rev. T. B. Winstead at Burns for a few days the past week. He has a fine people and they are doing a fine work. Two Wesley Bible Classes were organized, one Intermediate and one Young Peoples'.

So far as I know, Galloway Memorial is away in the lead for the banner observance of Sunday School Day in the Conference. They now report $95, and hope to make it one hundred. Shall they have the Conference banner? Who will beat them?

Some most encouraging reports are coming in. I am anxious that we do better than we did last year, for it is necessary, if we are to maintain our Standard, to do more work than ever before, and we are anxious that every Sunday school have a part in this great work. This they may do by observing Sunday School Day.

Pray for the work and the workers.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"I went over to Bunktown to the county fair las' week an' saw some fine up-to-date farm machin'ry runnin' beautifully, but it wasn't doin' anything but run—wasn't makin' no crops at all. Demonstratin', they called it. When it takes a hull year's work of a hundred Methodists to gain one new member, it's pretty near like that farm machin'ry a-runnin' at the fair."

"One time the' was a farmer who ridiculed the idee of having' a surveyor survey off his land—'lowed he c'd measure it well 'nough by guess. So he did, an' laid off his fields an' worked 'em for fifteen years, when the county surveyor tol' him he'd been missin' sixteen acres that was his. It's also a good idee for a church to make a real survey once'n awhile t'see if it's cultivatin' all its territory."

"Mebbe you won't b'lieve it, but I was a Sunday school superintendent once for quite a spell. I've thought lots of time since how much help it'd a been to me if one of my pastors had took me into his study an' told me what the Discipline says 'bout Sunday schools, an' 'specially the superintendent's part in 'em."

Eat Less and Take Bitro-Phosphate To Put on Flesh

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

Frederick S. Kolle, M. D., Editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says that weak, nervous people who want increased weight, strength and nerve-force, should take a 5-grain tablet of Bitro-Phosphate just before or during each meal.

This particular phosphate is the discovery of a famous French scientist, and reports of remarkable results from its use have recently appeared in many medical journals.

If you do not feel well; if you tire easily; do not sleep well, or are too thin; go to any good druggist and get enough Bitro-Phosphate for a two weeks' supply—it costs only fifty cents a week.

Eat less; chew your food thoroughly, and if at the end of a few weeks you do not feel stronger and better than you have for months; if your nerves are not steadier; if you do not sleep better and have more vim, endurance and vitality, your money will be returned, and the Bitro-Phosphate will cost you nothing. —Adv.

Centenary College of Louisiana

SHREVEPORT, LA.

1. A standard College for Men. Under the auspices of Louisiana Conference of the M. E. Church, South.

2. A new era of improvement and growth has been inaugurated. A New Main Building is being erected.

3. A larger Faculty has been employed.

4. Thirty-six acres of splendid campus in Gladstone Heights.

5. Located in a progressive city of fifty thousand with citizenship unexcelled and church facilities unsurpassed.

6. Controlled by a body of Christian business men who believe that education can create Christian citizenship.

The patronage of Centenary College is composed of people who believe that education must be secured under force of Christian ideals; who think that personality, ambition and force of moral character are the outstanding elements of manhood; and who insist that teachers must be men of ability and character and furnish an environment of ethical action.

The discipline of young manhood is given under conditions that are most nearly ideal, since home life is extended under the guidance of a strong faculty.

Only the work leading to the degrees of A. B. and B. S. is attempted.

In connection with the college, Centenary Academy is maintained, which offers regular high school work of College preparatory type.

REVIVALS ON THE COCKRUM CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: I am now in my revival campaign on the Cockrum Circuit, North Mississippi Conference. Beginning at Cockrum on the first Sunday in August, I was assisted by Rev. E. G. Mohler, of Sardis, Miss., who rendered us fine service. Mohler is a strong preacher, and a good man. Rev. J. B. Randolph, of Winona, Miss., came to us for the second Sunday at Old Greenleaf, where he preached for us through the week, to the delight of all the people, resulting in 22 accessions to Methodism.

I am now at Independence where we began yesterday (third Sunday). We were delighted to have with us for the opening service Rev. J. J. Brooks, who is here visiting his father's old home. Rev. Carrol Varner, of Hernando, came to us for the evening service, and will be with us for the week. Praise God from whom all blessings flow! W. A. BOWLIN, P. C.

BLUFF CREEK CAMP MEETING.

This old camp ground has been doing business for the Lord for about 30 years. You know that was in the days when camp meetings were in great favor. The people at this session, which has just closed, often spoke of the meeting "Joe Jones" held. I suppose it was suggested by the interest and good work which was going on.

The circuits of Olive Branch, Greensburg and Natalbany and the station of Clinton are the churches from which the Camp Meeting Association gets its officers. Mr. E. O. Townsend is President and Mr. H. C. Lipscomb is Secretary, both of Oaknolla, La., a little post office near the camp ground.

The Association two years ago asked the presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, Rev. H. W. May, to take charge of the services and provide preachers. He made a good record, leading the camp meeting last year, and the Association officers were directed to give him supervision again this year. He assumed this responsibility with some hesitancy, but threw himself into the work with all his might. All people who enter the camp ground are supposed to purchase tickets for the small amount of 25 cents for the season. The gatekeeper reported twelve hundred season tickets sold and reported that many times it was impossible for some to secure tickets on account of the crowds at the gate. This great assembly of people, perhaps reaching twelve hundred, gave Brother May the impression that offered too great an opportunity for good for him to do anything else during the ten days than to spend it at the camp meeting. He had Rev. Thomas H. Mills, of Wilson, La., and Rev. Ellis Smith, of Amite, preach at the 11 o'clock service and at the night service. The services of these two brethren were supplemented by each other and made it an excellent combination. I presume about fifty people made profession of religion during the meeting.

Every morning at the 9 o'clock hour a lecture was given on the Life of Jesus by Rev. Alonzo Early, Sunday School Field Secretary of the Louisiana Conference. These lectures were based on Rall's "Life of Jesus." The 3 o'clock hour was occupied by the Woman's Missionary Society, under the leadership of Mrs. C. S. Stewart, of Amite. This was a profitable hour and added much to the success of the educational feature of the camp meeting.

A model Sunday school was held Sunday morning under the leadership of the Sunday School Field Secretary. With the assistance of the Sunday school workers on the ground, we were able to hold a most valuable session. All the classes were graded and the sexes were separated. At the closing of the school we had two hundred and fifty pupils to join in its worship.

The Bluff Creek Camp Meeting is over for another year and everybody is pleased with what it has accomplished. It is predicted by its friends that it will continue to grow from year to year. The grounds are being improved, and the people are building or repairing the tents. New cement walks have been laid.

Many of the people in the Baton Rouge District should take advantage of the religious instruction offered by this great camp meeting. Keep it in mind next year.

ALONZO EARLY,
Sunday School Field Sec'y.

"I Want No More Substitutes For Nuxated Iron" Says Woman Who Threatens To Sue Druggist

Because of Injurious Effects She Claims Resulted From the Use of Spurious Article.

Physicians Warn Public—Say That Ordinary Metallic Preparations Cannot Possibly Give The Same Strength, Power and Endurance As Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron.

With the threat to sue her druggist because he sold her a substitute for genuine Nuxated Iron, the tonic, strength and blood-builder, one woman has set in motion a wave of indignation over the country against a practice which offers such countless dangers to the health and welfare of the public. This woman claims that instead of obtaining increased strength and improved health as she had with the true Nuxated Iron, she was seriously upset and in fact became ill as a result of using the substitute. Such instances as these have led physicians mentioned below to emphasize that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron.

Those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder should go to their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron and present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then they should be sure to look on the label and see that the words NUXATED IRON are printed thereon. There are thousands of people taking iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron and such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note. The widespread publication of the above information has been suggested by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Department) New York and the Westchester County Hospital, Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, Dr. George H. Baker late city physician and surgeon of Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly physician in the Baltimore Hospital and Medical Examiner, and others so that the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the delusion that it is Nuxated Iron, or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee satisfactory and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Meeting of Executive Board.

The Executive Board of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference held an important business meeting in the parlors of Galloway Memorial Church, Jackson, Miss., Aug. 6, when several important matters were decided upon.

The President, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, presided. The meeting was opened by singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds." The Scripture reading by the President emphasized the importance of being armed with the Word and prayer.

Mrs. Lewis then read a letter from our missionary, Mrs. Edwards, which very much impressed us with the work being done by our Bible women.

Mrs. McCleskey then led in a special prayer for our Bible women and for Mrs. George H. Thompson, who is quite ill.

Reports of officers were then called for. The First Vice President reported the work of the Young People getting along fairly well, though not as well as she wishes it might. The salient need in this work is for the Adults to take more interest in the Young People, and for more efficient leaders for the Young People.

The Superintendent of Supplies, Mrs. McQueen, then gave her report. She suggested that we do more for our superannuate preachers. Mrs. McQueen also suggested that each auxiliary in the Conference should do something for Miss Sarah Brinkley, one of our own girls, who is soon to go to Africa as a missionary. Each auxiliary should count it a privilege to have a part in showing appreciation of this splendid young woman, who has done so much for the Cause. She gave herself and all she had.

The condition of the Wesley Houses was next discussed. Mrs. McCleskey reported the Biloxi Wesley House in good condition. Some improvements are anticipated soon.

Mrs. Ormond reported the Meridian Wesley House in need of supplies, old clothes, etc. It was decided that a day he set apart for the auxiliaries to give a shower to the Wesley Houses.

The Corresponding Secretary gave her report. She reported that she was instructed by the Conference in Natchez to pledge $6500, hut at Council she and the President decided the Mississippi Conference could do a little more, so they pledged $7000.

The Treasurer, Mrs. Hemingway, then gave her report. Finances for the first quarter came up fine, second quarter not so good. but have not fallen behind last year.

The reports of District Secretaries were called for. Mrs. Gaddis, Secretary of the Jackson District, reported her district well organized, and the work progressing nicely.

Miss Ormond, Secretary of the Meridian District, reported seven new auxiliaries in her district, which was very gratifying.

Miss Kearney, Secretary of the Brookhaven District, reported four new auxiliaries, and the work getting along nicely.

At this point a motion was carried to send Mrs. Thompson a telegram of appreciation.

The first Monday in Octoher was the day set aside for the Wesley House drive. Money, canned goods, household linens, old clothes, etc., are to he sent.

The Mississippi Conference was urged to send items of interest to the New Orleans Advocate. This will be attended to in the future.

Papers. which had already been passed upon, regarding the application of Miss Willie G. Hall for entrance to Scarritt, were read and endorsed by the body, and funds for her support provided for.

There being no further business to come before the body, the meeting adjourned.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Z. D. CLARK.
Secretary Pro Tem.

YOU WILL WRITE A LETTER LIKE THIS.

I wish I knew which one of the thousands of letters I receive would have the most weight with you, my friend. I can't quote all of them here, hut I am going to ask you to read these carefully and then give me a chance to renew your health and make you write me one very much like them:

Barnard St., Savannah, Ga.
Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.

Dear Sir: I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft-boiled eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantity as possible for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

A. L. R. AVANT, M.D.
Leeds, S. C.

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time it will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter. C. A. CROSBY, M.D.

These are not selected cases, nor are the results unusual. I receive thousands like them from physicians, ministers, lawyers, merchants, farmers, manufacturers and every conceivable profession. I want the satisfaction of receiving such a letter from you. No matter what your complaint may he, dyspepsia, indigestion, nervous headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, or any curahle ailment that has not responded to drugs. I invite you to match your faith in the Spring against my pockethook. If the water fails to benefit you simply say so, return the empty demijohns, and I will promptly and willingly refund your money—every cent. Sign helow:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17 C, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial in accordance with instructions contained in bookle you will send and if it fails to henefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

GOOD MEETING AT NOXAPATER, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: On the fourth Sunday night in last month we closed a two weeks' meeting at Noxapater. Brother W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka, Miss., did the preaching, and R. L. Cooper, of Aherdeen, Miss., conducted the singing. Sister McIntosh rendered valuable help in the meeting. About 25 years ago, Brother McIntosh conducted a meeting for us at Coffeeville, Miss., which was a great meeting. The meeting here was great, and we are sure the effects of it will abide. Our prayers go with him and his efficient helpers.

We are winding up our fourth year on this charge and expect to go elsewhere another year, but have not yet decided where we will land. Have three more meetings to hold before we complete our summer campaign.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Dear Mr. Editor: When Rev. W. J. Porter asked me to contribute to the Centenary fund, I was the widow of the late Mr. Henry Good, with six dependent children and a deht of six hundred dollars on my home, and one hundred and eighty dollars' doctor bill. I did not see how I could aid in the matter, but after prayerful consideration decided to contribute my war savings stamps to the amount of one hundred dollars. Being informed that the stamps could not he used by the Mission Board, and not heing able to collect them unless I made an affidavit that I was in great need, I deposited the same in hank and paid fifty dollars, and will pay the remaining fifty in two annual installments.

On July 24, Brother Porter hrought me two letters, one from Mr. T. W. Holloman of Alexandria, La., and one from Rev. A. S. Lutz, of Monroe, La., relative to an appeal in my behalf, together with six $10 checks with the following signatures: Alhert S. Lutz, James Atkins, N. E. Joyner, F. E. Gunter, T. W. Holloman, and W. J. Porter. At first I did not know what to do, as I was no longer a widow, hut decided to accept them and deposit in favor of the Centenary Cause, which I have this day done.

I wish to express my appreciation for the interest thus manifested for my welfare. Yours very truly,

MRS. R. E. DUMONT.

A SPLENDID MEETING AT MARS HILL CHURCH.

Dear Brother Carley: We have just closed a good meeting at the Mars Hill church in Wilkinson County. This is an afternoon appointment on my circuit and, by reason of being somewhat inaccessihle, it has never had very much pastoral attention and of course its possihilities are by no means developed. Yet the people are kind and hospitahle and attend church in goodly numbers at every service. Brother J. O. Ware, my neighbor at Fayette, hegan the services on Sunday morning and preached twice a day until Thursday night. The people were pleased and helped hy his preaching. He combines the qualities of force, clearness of thought, and evangelical earnestness in such a way as to make his preaching the most consistent and effective I have heard for a long time. We were all impressed by his kindly manner, genial spirit, and high moral character. I enjoy being with him and having him among my people.

If any reader of the Advocate has a copy of the General Minutes for the years 1831-44, I should like very much to get some facts from it, without which it will be impossible to complete the sketch I have attempted of the Washington Circuit.

Scientific Treatment For Rheumatism.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a salt combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis of the Nashville Railway and Light Company says: "I must say that Renwar far surpassed my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief; too much can not be spoken in behalf of 'Renwar' for rheumatism." A REPORT FROM HOLLANDALE, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: As you are well aware, my communications to the Advocate have been few and far between, for reasons which would take quite a lengthy epistle to explain; I will only say that possibly the fundamental reason, is lethargy, or, in every day terms, laziness. But for fear some of my good friends may think that I have been located, I will ask your indulgence for a short time to tell you and the readers of the Advocate some of the news of the Hollandale and Arcola charge.

We will not give a review of the whole Conference year, but will only go back as far as the date of the Greenville District Conference, which convened here April 8, because it was truly a season of refreshing showers, not only of blessings, but of rain.

We had anticipated the entertaining of our good friends of the Greenville District, as well as all others who would attend, with so much pleasure, and had planned so many little outside details of entertainment, which of course we were unable to do, that we felt just a little perturbed over the weather at the time; but of course it was the Lord's rain, and we should be satisfied to adjust ourselves to His plans, even if we are preachers, and some of us feel that if we had the running of the universe in hand we could be more successful with it.

However, we thoroughly enjoyed the fellowship of the brethren, for the rain prevented the "sisteren" from attending. In fact, some of the visiting brethren preferred to have their hostesses entertain them with the sweet melodies of the Victrola than to listen to the inspiring and sometimes soothing discourses and discussions of the brethren. But with all, these interferences and late arrivals and early departures, we really had an altogether inspiring and helpful conference.

Our faithful and efficient presiding elder, V. C. Curtis, of course presided with the grace and ability of a bishop, and although he is not the best looking elder in the Conference, we defy any other district to produce one more faithful and zealous for the church, people and preachers, than V. C. Curtis.

A. S. (Bud) Raper, of Friars Point, handled the duties of secretary like an old hand, although his heart, mind, and I liked to have said soul, were back in Friars Point, because it had happened only a very short time before.

The reports of the pastors were all at high-water mark, and of course all reported that the Centenary would go over the top in their respective charges, except one, and he said, "If I can organize an Epworth League, our work will go over." I was never able fully to understand just what his position was, but suppose he had something up his sleeve.

Following immediately the conference, we commenced our revival at Hollandale, with Chaplain Wm. B. Hogg assisting us. It was truly a revival, and our only regret was our inability to provide seats for the crowds that thronged every service. People came from all over this section of the country, from Greenville, Leland, Arcola, Estill, Murphy, Percy, Anguilla, Delta City and Rolling Fork, and our one great mistake was not having a tent to accommodate the crowds.

Chaplain Hogg is a safe, sane, inspiring and convincing preacher, with a wonderful personality and a power to grip the hearts of men not surpassed by any man of my limited acquaintance.

As a token of love and appreciation, our big-hearted and generous people of all denominations gave him a purse of $500, as well as numerous personal gifts to his family. They also remembered the pastor in a nice substantial way, but that which was most appreciated was the service of appreciation given to your humble servant, when he was literally buried in flowers, each bud and blossom representing love and appreciation of his services. Surely God will never forget this service, if He hears and answers my prayers.

Hollandale will long remember and feel the influence of Hogg's preaching. May God bless him and his, is our prayer.

The following week, we started our meeting at Arcola, with the pastor doing the preaching and Miss Lottie Wisdom, of the much-beloved Wisdom sisters, conducting the singing and personal work.

May I modestly say that this also was a great spiritual treat? And even though our good people at Hollandale, as well as at Arcola, had just gone through the great meeting at Hollandale, we were pleased to see a good many of them at each service. We appreciate the good people of Arcola, and the work there is on the up-grade. We attribute the success there, to a great degree, to the faithful personal work and prayers of Miss Lottie, for truly she is one of the Lord's anointed.

We also had the privilege and pleasure of entertaining the Woman's Missionary Conference, of Greenville District, at Hollandale, and our new district secretary, Mrs. Walter Parks, of Merigold, won the hearts of all, in her new capacity, and promises to be an efficient leader for the district. Miss Corrine Rogers, of New Albany, First Vice President of the North Mississippi Conference, delivered several helpful and inspiring addresses from the Council. Our good women of Hollandale, of course, in their usual way, made the conference as a whole a delightful occasion.

We have not held our meeting at Murphy, up to this time, but are anticipating a great time out there on the river. It is an afternoon appointment, but the people are faithful though few, and are loyal to the church and their preacher. Miss Aileen Mallatte secured the allotment of the Murphy Church for the Centenary, and collected the cash for the entire first year's assessment in one week. Have any of you one who can beat her?

Now, I know you wonder if I have anything else to do; I will explain that my good folks have granted me a month's vacation, to spend as I see fit, and I know of no other occupation that suits a preacher better than blowing his horn—hence the tooting.

Our work is up to date in all financial matters, and as far as we are individually concerned, we are ready for the Annual Conference, even though we have been sick practically the entire year, which I failed to mention; of course you could understand that something was vitally wrong, or I would have written more.

As one writer says, "Good folks, good crops, but poor preaching" explains our work. If I have missed anything, I will mention it later.

Thanks for your patience.

JNO. W. ROBERTSON, P. C.
Hollandale, Miss., August 9.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood. 3

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

Sleeping Sickness Fly of Africa

How Method of Fighting This Pest Inspired Manufacture of Sweet Dreams Mosquito Remedy.

A traveler in relating his various experiences in Africa, casually mentioned how the natives protected themselves against the ravages of the Tsetse fly. As is generally known, the bite of this fly results in "sleeping sickness," a malady from which no unfortunate ever recovers.

It was reasoned that a remedy capable of keeping off these flies would also keep mosquitoes off. So, in America this remedy was reproduced as nearly as possible. Having been found exceptionally satisfactory as a mosquito remedy, this mixture has since been offered in commerce under the trade name of Sweet Dreams. The efficiency of the preparation has caused its immediate acceptance everywhere. And the traveler doesn't yet know that his entertaining story resulted in the birth of an industry. When mosquitoes are troublesome, try Sweet Dreams.—Adv.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, the hand of death has entered the home of our much esteemed and greatly beloved Mrs. R. M. Short, efficient secretary of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Sardis District, and so ruthlessly taken her loving and devoted companion from her; therefore be it resolved:

That the members of the Woman's Missionary Society at Cockrum, Miss., do hereby extend to Mrs. Short our deepest sympathy and love in this awful hour of sorrow.

That while we must bow to the will of our Heavenly Father, at all times acknowledging His supreme power and wisdom, our hearts bleed at the tragic end of her dear husband.

That we pray that this grief and sorrow may only sweeten and mellow her great heart of love, and life of service, and may the Heavenly Father, in whom she so implicitly trusts, guard, guide and keep in sweet peace this lonely companion and wife.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Mrs. Short and family, to the "Panolian" and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication, and a copy be entered on the minutes of our society.

Signed by: Mrs. V. C. Langton, Mrs. C. J. Langton, Mrs. L. S. Clayton, Committee.

Sometimes a light surprises
The Christian while he sings;
It is the Lord who rises
With healing in his wings.

When comforts are declining
He grants the soul again
A season of clear shining
To cheer it after rain.

UNUSED TREASURE.

An old man died in a Chicago hospital the other day. He was clothed in rags, and nothing was known of his history. When his clothing was removed, bonds to the value, approximately, of $10,000 were found encased in the rags. This incident is a little out of the ordinary, perhaps, but the truth it illustrates is discernible all about us. Many a man goes to his grave, poor in life and poor in achievement, who had that with which he might have made his own life happy and with which he might have ministered helpfully to his fellow-man. Great treasure was in his possession, but it was unused. His talents had lain for many years wrapped in a napkin. He might have been a benefactor to his community—but he died "unhonored and unsung." It may not be too late for some of us to learn that we are poor only because we do not use the treasure that has been committed to our keeping.

STRICTLY BUSINESS.

A great World Cotton Congress will be held in New Orleans, October 13-16. Distinguished visitors from abroad will be present, and will take part in the program. Many set addresses will be delivered by men who are recognized throughout the world as authorities on the subjects they will discuss, but—all addresses will be restricted to fifteen minutes! In general discussions, each speaker will be allowed ten minutes, unless his time is extended by a majority vote of the meeting; no one will be permitted to speak twice on the same subject without unanimous consent, and all speeches are to be confined to the subject under discussion. Such restrictions would work a great hardship upon some of us who are accustomed to express ourselves at length in ecclesiastical gatherings. But this is a meeting strictly for business.

WITHOUT COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING.

A new army reorganization bill has been introduced into Congress without any provision for universal military training. We believe that a bill of this kind is in keeping with the desires of the American people. If the one great nation of earth that has hitherto been able to maintain itself without compulsory military training and without a great military establishment is to be forced into a militaristic policy as a result of the world war, we cannot see that we have made very much progress toward the world peace for which the war was fought. We believe in such preparedness as comes from the inculcation of patriotic sentiments, the development of national resources, the conservation of national energies, and the strengthening of moral principles. If we ever need a "big stick" in our dealings with other nations—which God forbid—we believe a suitable one can be found when occasion arises for its use.

A STRANGE REQUEST.

The American National Association Masters of Dancing, at its recent meeting in New York, according to press reports, adopted the following resolution: "Resolved, that we stand unitedly for dancing that is decent and beyond any possible censure of church and municipal authorities. We pledge ourselves to improve, where possible, the standard of our profession. We decry all efforts made to introduce jazz or other music that tends to degrade or sensualize dancing. We believe in dancing as an art, a social accomplishment, as relaxation, and as exercise. We request the Methodist Episcopal Church, assembled next May in Des Moines, to have the General Conference remove the Methodist ban on dancing. We urge our own members, and the dancing profession generally, to co-operate with progressive Methodists to alter the amusement paragraph of the church's book of discipline. We believe that with prohibition an accomplished fact the greatest evil to good dancing has been removed." We are glad to see that the dancing masters have come, at last, to realize that the Methodist Church is a force to be reckoned with in the social and recreational life of the people. And we cannot find fault with them for declaring that they stand for dancing "that is decent and beyond any possible censure of church and municipal authorities." That is the kind of dancing we have always stood for—though we never expect to see it. In the words of the rustic who was looking at a giraffe for the first time, "There ain't any sich animal." We are willing to admit that some people who dance are irreproachable in their personal morals, but they are so in spite of their dancing. It is a strange thing that the church should be asked to countenance a practice that, through all its history, has been the prolific source of sin, shame, and degradation.

GOOD FOR EVERYBODY.

We saw recently the rules the coach of a football team has laid down for observance by those students of the great university where he is employed who expect to be candidates for the team this fall. Among other things, he tells them to abstain absolutely from the use of tobacco and liquor of all kinds; to avoid dissipation in any way, shape or form, to eat regularly, and to take plenty of vigorous exercise. We commend these suggestions to all young men, whether they expect to play football or not, especially the ones dealing with the use of tobacco and liquor. Prohibition has done away largely with the temptation to drink; but unfortunately smoking seems to be on the increase. There are still some boys who think it is manly to puff away at a cigarette. Their thinking so is due, of course, to ignorance, but the evil results follow just the same. Playing football requires a high degree of physical and mental efficiency, and long experience has taught the trainers of teams that this efficiency cannot be reached by those who smoke. Making good in life is infinitely more than making good on a football team; all the more, therefore, should we avoid everything that lessens our chances of success.

THE MAN MAKES THE JOB.

A report is going the rounds that the young scion of a wealthy American family—one of the millionaire class—has secured a position as a reporter on a New York newspaper at a salary of $25 a week. In explanation of his action he said: "I wanted to be a reporter because I have always found newspaper men to be the brightest and most alert people I know. When in France with the Twenty-seventh Division I always noticed that the duty calling for resource and initiative was nearly always given to a former newspaper man." We wish the young man much success in his new calling—but he will need to remember that success is dependent upon the individual himself, and not upon the accident of his occupation. This is a lesson that all young men should learn. It is everlastingly true that the man makes the job, and not the job the man.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

According to press dispatches, a member of the French Chamber of Deputies has introduced a bill providing for a lottery loan for 60,000,000,000 francs. Every day for two years a prize of 1,250,000 francs will be drawn, and after that weekly lotteries will be held until the termination of the issue. We sincerely hope the bill will be defeated. It is simply an appeal to what seems to be a fundamental weakness of human nature—the desire to obtain something for nothing. Being essentially wrong in itself, it inevitably produces demoralization wherever it is encouraged or allowed. The Louisiana Lottery is a case in point. The evil effects of that nefarious institution are too well known to need discussion. During the war, lotteries were carried on unblushingly in many communities in behalf of most worthy causes, the excuse being the old-time fallacy that the end justifies the means. The seeds sown then are bearing fruit now in various schemes for promoting all sorts of enterprises. The church needs to be thoroughly alive to the devices that are being used to weaken the moral sense of the people. Little children are allowed to "take a chance," whose parents would indignantly deny that they were being encouraged to gamble. But, in the end, it amounts to the same thing. It still holds true that "a pearl of great price is not to be had for the asking."

SUCH HONOR!

We understand that a bill has been introduced into Congress to give Sergeant Yorke, "the greatest individual hero of the war," the rank of second lieutenant on the retired list as an expression of a grateful country's appreciation of his marvelous achievement! We should like to suggest as an amendment that the bill be made to include an appropriation sufficient to buy him a bag of peanuts about once in two weeks. We cannot be too grateful to our heroes.

THE PLACE OF THE PREACHER.

We have a thousand faults to find with him. We criticize everything about him, from his sermon to his necktie, and we think his wife and family are just as much public property as he is. We insist that he attend ninety-nine different committees and be there without fail, and then we quietly remark that if he would only spend a little more time in his study it would be easier to listen to him. We tell him how he ought to preach and what he ought to preach. We insist that he keep out of debt, and we pay him so little that it can't be done without painful economy, and then we wonder if the dear brother isn't just a trifle "close." As the leader of the church we expect him and his family to mingle with the "best" society, and we keep his salary at the point where to do so makes them feel like paupers. We want him to preach the "old-fashioned" gospel, and when he does so we go off to listen to Bro. Up-to-date, who is much more interesting. While he is alive we riddle him with our criticisms, but after he is dead we canonize him.

We complain that the church isn't holding its own, and we blame it largely on the preacher, and we publish columns of close reasoning to show that the day of the pulpit is passed, and that the preacher must now take a back seat; but, despite everything, we are compelled to recognize that the preacher is still easily one of the most important men in the community. He occupies a unique position, and if he occupies it worthily his influence for good is almost incalculable. Other men may be wealthier than he, but to none is greater deference paid. The pulpit is a throne and the preacher is a king, and his words carry a weight which is not easily measured.

The preacher gets very close to the lives of his people. If there is sickness, the preacher must come. If there is trouble, we want to see him. If there is a marriage, he is there to give the church's benediction. If there is a death, he is there to perform the last sad rites. We each have our personal friends, but the preacher is the friend of the whole congregation, and they seldom call upon him in vain. Other professional men enter our homes because they are called, and we pay them for their services, but the man of God enters because he is the shepherd of the flock, and it is his duty and pleasure to care for their need.

In some churches the preacher is held to be a different being from the man in the pew, and it is certain that this gives him a unique position in society, which some think esseutial to his influence. But with the evangelical churches the preacher is simply the spiritual leader, whose leadership depends much more upon his identification of himself with his people than upon his isolation from them. And in this case the preacher cannot speak with authority and declare "Thus sald the church," and hurl the threat of excommunication agalnst all who disobey;" but he can speak with a power that is all the greater because his message is the result of his own thinking and expresses his own deep conviction.

The cry has sometimes been raised that our preachers were "dumb dogs" who were afraid to preach anything but soft things which would offend no one. But this cry has very little behind it, as the history of Methodism will show, and it is usually raised by men who are disappointed that the preacher does not say what they would like him to say. There is no doubt that there is a danger at this point—a danger that the preacher will be afraid to speak the truth as he sees it, and a danger that influential and strong-willed men will atempt to prevent the utterance of unwelcome truths. But we do not think this danger in our church has ever been very great. It is true, probably, that every year we have men, well-to-do and influential men, who leave the church, either temporarily or permanently, because the preacher has said something which they did not like; hut this has been going on for years, and will go on just so long as human nature remains what it is. But it has not silenced our preachers, and we do not think it ever will.

And, more than that, we do not believe in the theology which damns a man merely because he is rich. We believe that the rich men in our church are just as anxious to know the truth as the poor men, and they have more respect for the man who fearlessly tells them the truth than for the man who is an obsequious time-server, and afraid to speak his mind. Of course it is natural that a rich man should expect his opinion to carry greater weight than it really deserves, and it is natural, probably, for him to flourish his purse at any one who disagrees with him; but the rich man who is really a Christian cannot well be an unreasonable man or a tyrant, and he will in the end thank God for the prophet who, without fear and with Christian earnestness, tries to show him his duty. We cannot browbeat rich men any more than we can poor men, and the wise preacher will not try; but we can convince rich men just as we can poor men, and we can reach their hearts just as we can the hearts of the poor; and this the preacher should do, and does.

And then the preacher's personal influence counts to an extraordinary extent. We have been struck, as we studied civic and national life, to find out how often great national benefactions might be traced back to the personal influence of some preacher, possibly himself an obscure man. And we have been encouraged to learn often that the genesis of some great reform and the awakening of some great reformer could be traced back to the quiet, personal influence of some heaven-inspired preacher. No brethren! the preacher isn't nobody, unless he is so by his own deliberate act. The preacher of to-day, if he keeps close to his Lord and close to his people, will be still a power for righteousness in the land.—Christian Guardian.

THE CONSERVATION PROGRAM OF THE CENTENARY.

W. B. Beauchamp, Director-General.

The Program of the Centenary Movement has three periods quite definitely outlined: first, the time of preparation for the financial drive; second, the period of the intensive drive; and, third, the follow-up or Conservation Program.

We have passed the first two periods of the Centenary Movement. We are now distinctly entering upon the Conservation Program. This conception involves not only the most efficient method of securing payment of the pledges made during the intensive drive or the collection of the millions of dollars that have been subscribed by the membership of the church, but it involves also the conservation and enlargement of those cultural principles which brought Methodism to see the need of this vastly increased financial income for the missionary enterprise.

Careful Planning Needed.

The Conservation years demand the same careful planning, the most definite organization, the most complete team work and the same passionate interest in the Kingdom of God as was found needful in the two preceding periods. To make permanent in the most remarkable movement in the history of Methodism, to learn how to use efficiently the forces and men developed in this world-wide program demands even larger development of spiritual resources and the wisest leadership of man, and, at last, can only be done by the guidance of God who has vouchsafed in a wonderful way his presence and leadership in all the Centenary plans.

Collection of the Pledges.

The result of the Eight-Day Drive in our church was an astounding success financially. Encouraged by this result, we enter upon the collection period of these pledges with this slogan, "NO SHRINKAGE but an INCREASE."

We are sending to all treasurers of the Centenary fund, to pastors and others involved in the program of collection, a "Standard Plan" which, if carefully followed, will make real the slogan which has been adopted for theso collections. We are certain that the "Standard Plan" will bring as good results in the matter of collections as the Standard Plan for the Eight-Day Drive brought in the pledge. We, therefore, urge the cabinets, Conference, district and local church, to follow in letter as well as in spirit the program of the "Standard Plan for Collection of Pledges." We realize at the same time that no mechanical plan for collection is adequate for the largest results, for at last we are dependent upon the same spirit in preachers and people which brought to such a glorious success the Centenary up to this time. We, therefore, for this year have wrought out a "Standard Plan" for Conservation covering all departments for developing and enlarging the Centenary ideal.

Spiritual Resources and Intercession.

In the Conservation Program, therefore, first of all we are emphasizing Intercession, a pledge of a still greater number of Methodists who will definitely and daily give themselves to intercession to God. Throughout the Centenary Movement the realization came to us that the things accomplished could not have been done except many were bearing this Program to the throne of grace and guidance. Underneath every department of the Conservation Program and fundamental to every plan now, as from the beginning, our motto is "FIRST OF ALL, PRAY."

Stewardship and Tithing.

The pledge and comprehensive declaration of Christian Stewardship by thousands of speakers, preachers and laymen, during the two previous periods of the Centenary drive has been the greatest single lifting force in all the Centenary Program. The realization of responsibility of stewardship to God of time and property and life has come to Methodism in a remarkable degree and yet we know that we are only at the beginning of the application of this great fundamental truth in the life of the individual member and church. The purpose, therefore, of the Centenary leaders is to proclaim with even an increased faith this doctrine of Christian Stewardship in all its relations to life. We definitely stress tithing as the minimum financial expression of stewardship of property. We do not believe it is the measure of responsibility, but that it is both a rational and scriptural rule for giving. In the Conservation Program, therefore, for this year Christian Stewardship will hold a central place.

Life Service.

The survey of the world field, at home and abroad, revealed more impressively and definitely the need for a vastly increased number of men and women who would give themselves to the Kingdom of God for life service. The enlarged program of the missionary enterprise as we face the world's need to-day cannot be met except with an increased number of men and women who will heed the call of God in this hour in even greater proportion than the increased giving of the church in this hour. We must, therefore, in the Conservation Program give forth the call for life service. We must also bring to the churches the call for enlistment of the membership of the church for a definite tithing of time for service in the Kingdom of God. More fundamental than money is the need of men who, in the spirit of Christ, shall go forth with the message of life to the ends of the earth.

Church-Wide Evangelistic Program.

The Centenary Program has brought to the church a great revival spirit. Many men and women have been brought into the Kingdom of God in the ongoing of the Centenary Program. The Movement has so quickened the life of the church, has so awakened the membership, has so called into service multitudes of men and women who have been idle in the Kingdom before that on every hand there is a faith and feeling that we are on the edge of a still greater revival and that, at the very heart of the Centenary Conservation Program of this year, there must be a church-wide evangelistic program. We must call into action definitely every agency in our church for this supreme objective this year—the pastor, the presiding elder, the layman and the evangelist. For this task Methodism should be prepared with the keynote of the life of the church from the beginning, which has been a burning passion for the redemption of the world.

Other Items in the Program.

The plans of the Conservation Program contemplate utilizing the agencies which have been most effective in bringing this thing to the surprising success to date.

Every legitimate method of publicity, secular press and church press, speech, stereopticon, pamphlet, literature of all sorts, must play their part just as effectively in this financial follow-up program.

The Minute Man.

Standing out in a prominent way for carrying the message of the Conservation to the last church of Methodism is the well developed Minute Man plan by which thousands and thousands of speeches were made in country church and city church and to groups of people from one end of the nation to the other. The re-discovery of the layman as a great factor and force in the church program, is one phase of a revival of the highest order. The purpose, therefore, of the Centenary Movement in this Conservation Program is to use and enlarge every force and factor which has made for so complete success in the whole Centenary Movement.

THE PRAYER SPECIAL.

By Rev. S. A. Neblett, Intercession Secretary.

It is true, as one writer has said, that no church is doing its full duty to its chosen representatives on the mission field that lavishly provides for their sustenance and equipment and does not support them in their arduous work by prayer. Thus every missionary, foreign and home, and every native worker, should be a "Prayer Special." No missionary worker is fully supported who has not the spiritual support by intercessory prayer of the individual or church which provides his material support. Those who are taking on a special should do so with the understanding that the person or institution assigned to them becomes also their "Prayer Special."

Missionaries regard daily constant prayer for them as a very real part of their support. They are constantly writing to the missionary secretaries, requesting that some district or congregation take them as a "Prayer Special." Many cases are of record where missionaries have been enabled to overcome obstacles that were humanly speaking insurmountable and accomplished the impossible through the prayers of the folks back in the homeland.

The "Prayer Special" has been established by this Department of the Centenary in co-operation with the Bureau of Specials for the purpose of securing for every missionary, native worker and missionary institution the spiritual support of some group of Methodists in the homeland, who pledge themselves to pray regularly for their "Special."

Any group of earnest Christians may have their "Prayer Special," because it carries with it no financial obligation. Every group of Christians should carry a "Prayer Special," because of the obligation that rests upon them to give forth spiritual aid to their representatives who labor in a Christless environment, and for the reflex blessing that will come to them as a result of helping others in this manner.

More spectacular than marvelous and practical was the achievement of the Germans in building a gun that would throw a shell into Paris from a point seventy-five miles distant. It is a marvelous and practical fact, if lacking in the spectacular, that a Christian from his closet in the United States can by prayer throw a shell into Satan's hosts in Africa, Brazil, Korea, or any remote spot, and actively share with the missionary in the winning of men and women for Christ. Are we excusable if we continue to fire into the air when we might, by having a "Prayer Special," shoot to hit?

MEANING OF THE SPECIAL TO THE MISSIONARY.

The SPECIAL means much to the missionary, both directly and indirectly. Directly it helps him to do work that he could never do were it not for the Special coming at the opportune time. It ties him to the contributor or contributors, and links the lives of all closer together, making it possible for prayer for each other to be made with a clearer conception of the other's need. In other words, all can pray more intelligently. It gets the people at home and those abroad interested in each other and the tie of friendship is strengthened. I have known young Chinese to get in touch with Sunday school classes at home, correspondence taken up, pictures exchanged, Christmas presents given, and an interest developed that would not have been otherwise.

Personally, one of the great helps to me has been when I have met contributors here at home I have found that they have not only been contributing but they have been praying for me and for the work to which they were giving. Nothing helps one so much as to know that the people at home, strangers even, have been remembering, one before the Father's throne. To have made a sweater for a soldier who stood on the Argonne front means much to the heart which prompted the hands. But to have a part in a work that is breaking down the strongholds of the enemy in one of his oldest and most strongly fortified centers will mean more to the heart that cries out in the secret place and then goes with the cry with some of God's money.

China JOHN C. HAWK.

A WORD TO PASTORS CONCERNING THE STEWARDSHIP CAMPAIGN.

By J. J. Stowe

Under God the Centenary Movement has been a wonderful success. It was conceived in prayer and wrought out in faith and made possible by the response of the church to the providential leadings of the hour. It has developed through the passing months far beyond our first plans or even our highest hopes.

Among the main causes of the contributions made we must place the new emphasis that was laid during the campaign upon Christian Stewardship and Tithing, the spiritual and financial sides alike, for indeed these cannot be separated. The progress and permanency of this movement will be largely determined by the character of work done on Stewardship and Tithing. Too often in the past our methods have been defective, lacking in fundamental qualities and the results have been both inadequate and transient. The acceptance by the church of the principles of Christian Stewardship and Tithing will make our processes Scriptural and will insure progress and permanency as a result. We have been drawing water from a well with a bucket; if we lead the church to practice Christian Stewardship and Tithing, it will be the sinking of an artesian well whose abundant waters shall perennially overflow.

The week of December 7-14, has been named as the time when the whole church will set itself to the task of securing at least twenty per cent of the membership signed up as Tithing Stewards. Certain suggestions or plans to be followed and methods to be employed will later be offered. But this campaign for Tithing Stewards will not succeed unless a very earnest and intelligent and persistent effort is made to educate the membership of the church in these matters. Before people can be brought to practice tithing as an acknowledgment of God's sovereign ownership, and as an act of worship, very many of them will have to be instructed. The attitude of the average man towards the property he controls is the attitude of an owner. This position is diametrically opposed to Christ's teachings of Stewardship and Tithing.

To bring even good men to accept Christian Stewardship in theory and in practice, is not always easy. Many will object to becoming tithers, some from one motive—some from another. The pastors of Southern Methodism of course accept the principles of Christian Stewardship—God's ownership of all things, our position as stewards holding and handling in trust what comes to us. Most of us accept tithing as a divine moral obligation and many have heroically practiced tithing on salaries utterly inadequate to meet their actual needs; but many of us in the past failed to present these things to the people with the urgency and emphasis the vast issues involved demand.

Twenty per cent of our membership signed up as Tithing Stewards is not the ultimate, but only the immediate goal. If any should practice tithing, then all should. If Stewardship is the law of God, it is binding equally upon ministers and members, upon saints and sinners.

If we are to reach the first milestone, December 7-14, wide-spread and thorough cultivation of the field must precede that date. The Methodist preacher, the key-man and the one who, after all, determines more than any other what his people will be and do—upon him falls most largely the responsibility for this campaign of education. Any attempt to sign members as Tithing Stewards without proper preparation will prove a failure, both as to numbers pledged and the depth and permanence of impression made upon those who are pledged.

This educational campaign must be carried on through the intervening months or the Eight-Day Drive for Tithers will be a failure. Each pastor must decide for himself in a large measure just what and when and how he can best do this work. It is not merely a matter of finding and following a wise financial plan; it is a question most vitally related to the spiritual life of the church, with all that term connotes.

Let Christian Stewardship, and Tithing not as a substitute for, but as an expression of Christian Stewardship be one of the dominant notes in revival services, one phase of the manifold message that we bring the people in the weeks ahead.

In addition, every pastor should see that the Tithing cards already signed are sent at once to the Stewardship Department, Box 38, Nashville, Tennessee. Please see that the name and address of each signer, with the name of his Conference, district, charge and church is plainly written on the card. This is important in order that each signer may receive the Certificate of Membership in the Methodist Million and the follow-up literature. Some sixty thousand signed cards have been received by this office, but thousands of cards are still being held in local churches. A list should be made and retained by the pastor of all in his church who have signed the tithing card.

Nature is the raw material which grace molds for God: and a strong nature does not lose its strength because it has been made holy and pure. Such is the range and power of grace that we can despair of no man. Out of the very stones of pride and of unbelief it can raise up children to the Father of the faithful.—H. P. Liddon.

REV. V. D. SKIPPER—A MEMOIR.

Rev. Virgil D. Skipper was born in Clarke County, Ala., December 9, 1853. His parents, John W. Skipper and Martha J. Skipper (nee Stanford), moved to Stewart County, Ga., when he was an infant. In his boyhood days he attended the common country school during the summer months and worked on the farm the balance of the year.

When he was nineteen years of age his father sent him to a good school where he learned rapidly because he applied himself diligently. When attending this school he was converted. He had joined the M. E. Church, South, six months previously. Soon after his conversion he felt a call to preach, which he kept to himself; but it grew on him clearer and clearer for eight years. During this time he was a class-leader, would pray in public and occasionally make little talks in the prayer meetings and class meetings. He was a school teacher and taught both public and private, or subscription, schools. In the year of 1881, he taught eleven months.

On the 27th of July, 1881, he was licensed to preach. At this time, he was living near old Spring Church, within the bounds of the De Kalb Circuit in the Mississippi Conference. After two years as a local preacher, he was admitted on trial in the Mississippi Conference, at Crystal Springs, Miss., in December, 1882.

His appointments have been as follows: Brandywine Circuit, 1883 and 1884; Meadville Circuit, 1885, 1886 and 1887; Mayersville Circuit, 1888 and 1889; Rocky Springs Circuit, 1890; Walnut Grove Circuit, 1891; Sharon Circuit, 1892 and 1893; Clinton Station, La., 1894; Homer Station, La., 1895; presiding elder of the Alexandria District, 1896, 1897 and 1898; Louisiana Avenue Church, in New Orleans, 1899; New Iberia Station, 1900.

In August of 1900, Bishop Galloway transferred him back to the Mississippi Conference and stationed him at Edwards, Miss., where he spent the balance of 1900 and all of 1901, 1902 and 1903. He was stationed at Morton in 1904, West End, in Meridian, in 1905, Hazlehurst in 1906 and Wesson Station in 1907.

In 1908, Bishop Key transferred him to the Missouri Conference and appointed him to Canton Station in Northeast Missouri. The climate was too cold for him; so in 1909, he was transferred to the Louisiana Conference and was stationed at Mer Rouge. He was stationed at Leesville in 1910, 1911 and 1912; at Tallulah in 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916; then back to Leesville in 1917 and 1918.

After thirty-six years of continuous service, finding himself afflicted and his strength failing, he was granted a superannuate relationship at the last Conference. Brother Skipper was a most remarkable preacher. Some of his sermons were masterpieces and people would ask to have them repeated time and again. He assisted in a great many revivals and a large number joined the church under his ministry.

On the Sunday night prior to his death, he had a glorious vision of Heaven. It was during the hour of evening worship and the song "More Like the Master" was being sung across the street at the Presbyterian Church. He heard the music and in his feeble voice took up the strain and sang two verses. He said he saw the glories of God, the pearly gate wide open, and his loved ones calling him to come. He said: "Help me up and let me go; it is enough. I have suffered long enough." Thus he lingered as a patient sufferer until Friday, July 11, 1919, when he passed away and entered into the rest that remaineth for the people of God. He was buried at Hazlehurst, Miss., on Saturday, July 12, 1919. He leaves a widow and three children to mourn their loss.

REPENTANCE.

By Rev. J. Tillerry Lewis.

One of the fundamental doctrines taught in both the Old and the New Testament is the doctrine of "Repentance." In order that we may get a clear knowledge of repentance, I shall discuss it under two heads: I. Who are commanded to repent? II. What constitutes repentance?

I.

Who are commanded to repent? Of course I am not herein speaking dogmatically, but my study of the Bible leads me to the conclusion that only those who knew the moral law of God, and who had been living in disobedience to that law, were commanded to repent. The Apostles preached repentance only to the Jews. When they went among the heathen to proclaim the gospel, they preached Jesus Christ and belief in him as the only condition of salvation. But to the Jew they preached REPENT and BELIEVE. Since the heathen knew not the law, therefore was ignorant of the fact that he was living in violation of the law of God, he did not have to repent of having turned away from God in the violation of the laws of God. With the Jew it was different. The Jew had the laws of God and had turned from God in the violation of those laws; therefore, before the gospel of salvation could become efficacious in his behalf, he was under the necessity of returning to God through repentance before he could reap the benefits of salvation prepared for him in Christ Jesus.

In our day the same law applies. With the citizenship of Bible lands, it is as it was with the Jew. Those citizens of our country who have heard God's Word preached all their lives, yet who are knowingly and willfully living in sin, must repent of their sins before they can believe in Christ for salvation. Of course we do not need to preach repentance to a sweet child who has just reached the years of accountability, said child having been brought up in a religious home. All we need to preach to such a child is, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." The church needs only to lead such a child in the exercise of faith, belief and trust in Jesus. The wise preacher does not deal with the child as he does with the hardened sinner. The method of approach to the innocent child to get him to become a Christian is altogether different from the approach made to the sinner-man. With the sinner-man it is REPENT and BELIEVE: With the innocent child we just take his little hand and teach him from childhood to walk with Jesus. Then when we come to present the claims of the gospel to the heathen it is Jesus Christ, alone, that we preach as mankind's Redeemer and Savior.

II.

What constitutes "Repentance?" In repentance the sinner-man assumes a three-fold new attitude: 1. He assumes a new attitude toward God; 2. He assumes a new attitude toward sin; 3. He assumes a new attitude toward those against whom he has sinned. In other words, repentance is: 1. Godly sorrow for sin; 2. Turning away from sin, and 3. Restitution for sin.

1. Godly sorrow for sin. "Godly sorrow worketh repentance unto salvation that needeth not to be repented of; the sorrow of the world worketh death." The difference between godly and worldly sorrow is this: godly sorrow is looking upon the Cross and weeping because of hurt done to God in Christ upon the Cross, while worldly sorrow is looking at the consequence into which sin is about to lead the sinner, and he cries out in fear because he is caught. The one is repentance toward God, while the other is repentance toward hell. The one is sorry because "His sins have helped to nail Him there;" while the other is sorry because he is about to be paid the legitimate wages of sin, which is death. While yet in the vigor of life the one thinks on his ways and weeps before the Father because of the hurt done to the heart of God by his sins; while the other, with stiff neck, goes on in his sins until he sees hell yawning before him, then, like the cowardly cur that he is, he whines and cries for mercy from God only that he might be saved from the eternal consequences of his sins. God said to the Jews on one occasion: "Ye sorrow like the thief; you are sorry because you are caught." John Newton has given us a beautifully poetic expression of the mind and heart of him who exercises godly repentance:

In evil long I took delight,
Unawed by shame or fear,
Till a new object struck my sight,
And changed my wild career.

I saw one hanging on a tree,
In agonies and blood,
Who fixed his languid eyes on me,
As near the cross I stood.

Sure, never to my latest breath,
Can I forget that look;
It seemed to charge me with his death,
Though not a word he spoke.

My conscience felt and owned the guilt,
And plunged me in despair;
I saw my sins his blood had spilt,
And helped to nail him there.

Another look he gave, which said,
"I freely all forgive;
This blood is for thy ransom paid,
I die that thou mayest live."

Death-bed repentance, on the part of one who with hard neck has persisted in sin till the hour of death, is a practical impossibility. Such a sinner is too frightened over his contemplation of spending eternity in hell for him to exercise godly repentance.

2. Turning away from sin. "Let the wicked man forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let them return unto me, saith the Lord, and I will have mercy upon them and will abundantly pardon them." God requires that the sinner-man forsake both his wicked ways and his unrighteous thoughts before saving faith in Jesus can be exercised by him. That is, he must have the purpose in his heart—God helping him—to turn his back forever upon every known sin both of thought and deed. However strongly a man may believe in the power of God to save a sinner unto everlasting life, through faith in Jesus Christ, he can not himself become the recipient of that salvation till he has made up his mind—God helping him—that he will turn from sin unto God. God does not save man IN HIS SINS. God saves man FROM THE POWER, DOMINION AND CONSEQUENCES OF SIN; therefore man must be not only willing to forsake sin, but it must be the purpose of his life to be forever done with sin.

3. Restitution for sin. In the sixth chapter of Leviticus, the first to the seventh verses, you will find God's law to the Jews on restitution. When Zaccheus had entertained Jesus at his home, and had heard Jesus explain "THE WAY," Zaccheus stood up before all the people and said: "Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to feed the poor; and if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, behold I restore him four-fold." What was required of the Jew under the restraining mandates of the moral law can not possibly be a higher ideal of life than what God teaches us through the constraining law of LOVE; therefore all, and more, that was required of the Jew under the moral law is required under the law of LOVE, relative to men in Bible lands who would repent.

In the foregoing I have attempted to set forth BIBLE REPENTANCE. In the study of the history of Israel we find that Israel frequently turned from God into sin and was compelled to REPENT before God would come to the rescue. In the history of the Christian church it has happened, time and again, that the church has sinned and turned from following after God. When the church has thus done, God has attempted through his goodness, to lead the church back to Himself through repentance. When God has failed to get the church to repent, He has always led some one of his children in the organization of another branch of the church of God, that through this new branch

He might have the opportunity of leading in the redemption of humanity through and by the power of the Holy Spirit. We note another fact in our study of the history of Israel and in the study of the history of the Christian church; it was the leaders, chiefly, with whom God had trouble. I think a careful study of the history of humanity, in every phase of life, will reveal the fact that humanity's leaders are responsible for the sin and degradation into which nations have been sunk. Some men adorn themselves with the garb of leaders, not knowing the tremendous responsibility that attaches to leadership. Satan is wise. For centuries upon top of centuries he has been in the business of tempting, deluding and damning human souls. He reaches men through their lower nature—through selfishness. Even into the holy sanctuary of God he goes with his temptations. Yea, into a heart that has been washed in the blood of the Lamb he insinuates his slimy self with a temptation that is alluring, sometimes, to the point of completely bewitching one of God's faithful children. Brethren, we are all weak, without Him. When He is not dominating our lives by the power of the Holy Spirit, then it is that Satan worms himself into our souls and subtlely leads us astray.

Gentle reader, might not all of us profit by a little INTROSPECTION? May our Heavenly Father help us who are the leaders of His people to examine our own souls in the light of the fullest meaning of repentance; then, if sin be found there, may the Holy Spirit help us that we shall repent! Only thus are we safe leaders of God's people.

THE UNDERPAID PREACHER AND THE CENTENARY.

By R. B. Eleazer.

A recent press report from Rome says that the priests of Loreto, a celebrated religious center, have gone on a strike asking for amelioration of their financial condition, owing to the high cost of living. This is something new in ecclesiastical circles, but perhaps not so inexplicable as it seems.

I know nothing about the financial provision made for the Roman Catholic clergy, but I do know that there are a thousand or two preachers of our own denomination who could make a strong case for similar course of action. According to the records of 1917, there were more than 2700 of these men, nearly one-half of our active preachers, who were receiving less than a living wage according to present day standards.

Apart from the injustice involved in paying such insufficient salaries, depending upon the preacher's sacred calling to make them submit, this policy is also suicidal from the standpoint of the pew. We cannot hope to continue getting efficient men for the ministry unless we can guarantee them at least a decent measure of support. Consequently the pew, at last, and not the preacher, will be the greater sufferer.

The Centenary, among its many fine objectives, set out to remedy this deplorable condition by means of Conference Mission funds to supplement these salaries, the lowest to receive a minimum of $600, and those now above that figure, to a minimum of $1000. This is a timely and worthy objective, and ought to be realized.

The subsidy idea, however, is attended with grave peril, and should be employed with care. It must not be made a means by which stingy congregations may shift their honest obligations to other shoulders. Rather should the Centenary result in a stewardship education of the whole church that will lift to liberal self-support thousands of charges now depending on Conference funds. This would release for actual home mission work in destitute fields hundreds of thousands of dollars that now go to the relief of charges that are fully competent to care for themselves.

I do not mean to suggest that Conference Mission subsides should in every case be withdrawn. In many instances, doubtless, they are worthily applied. It is a well known fact, and universally acknowledged, that the Conference Mission fund is often dreadfully abused. With larger means available because of the Centenary, the greatest care must be taken to make this fund a stimulus for the weak, and not a crutch for the able-bodied.

The Centenary impetus should by all means have that result—doubtless it will, but not unless the leaders of the church, connectional and local, clerical and lay, bring it to bear vigorously upon this problem. As a beginning, let every layman determine that henceforth his charge shall pay his preacher a living wage, if it is not already doing so, a wage that will enable him to care for his family in decency and comfort, to read and study and theorize, and fit himself for leadership, and for the highest degree of spiritual service.

RESOLUTIONS CONCERNING CHAPLAINS IN THE U. S. ARMY.

Adopted by the Bible and Evangelistic Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Junaluska, N. C., Aug. 10-17, 1919.

Whereas the World War has demonstrated more fully the importance of the work of our Army Chaplains, and the necessity for removing all legal discriminations against them, and the offering of such inducements as will attract to this field of service the best men of the churches to the end that our sons and brothers in the service of our country and our youth in camps of military instruction may have competent religious guidance and oversight:

Therefore be it resolved by the Bible and Evangelistic Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session at Lake Junaluska, N. C., August 10-17,

1. That we urge our Senators and Representatives in Congress to support by all honorable means the Section of the Army Reorganization Bill now before Congress which provides for the promotion of chaplains upon the same terms that other officers are promoted;

2. That the provision be made for at least one chaplain for every twelve hundred officers and men in our army;

3. That sufficient appropriation be made to furnish our chaplains with ample equipment for efficient performance of their duties;

4. That we urge the formation of a Corps of Chaplains, that the work of the chaplains in the army may at all times be under the direction of a man who understands and is in sympathy with their work.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR LOCAL CENTENARY TREASURERS.

All Local Treasurers of the Louisiana Conference are to remit Centenary funds directly to C. F. Niebergall, 311 Camp Street, New Orleans, La. Three methods may be used in remitting:

New Orleans exchange, bought at local bank; postoffice money order; the money may be deposited in the local bank subject to draft of J. E. Edgerton, Treasurer, per C. F. Niebergall.

In any case, a monthly report should be sent to 311 Camp Street on the regular report blank furnished. If any of the local treasurers have not received these blanks or other supplies, a letter to C. F. Niebergall, 311 Camp Street, New Orleans, will bring prompt results.

Please state the name of your charge, church, and district, also your own name and address carefully.

CALVIN N. JOYNER,
Secretary to C. F. Niebergall

THE INSPIRATION OF BRAVE SOULS.

How admirable are those brave souls who in the presence of trial and temptation, disappointment and sorrow, maintain their equilibrium! They do not become hysterical in the face of trial. They do not sink into despondency nor go to pieces. They are not upset nor thrown off their foundations. There may come a more serious expression in the eye, a firmer drawing of the lines about the mouth, a new thoughtfulness of demeanor replacing the bubble of earlier years, but they go straight ahead, bearing it all as part of the day's work.

How is that moral poise which does not suffer defeat in the presence of temptation to be attained? By maintaining an open relation between the soul with the Source of all strength. Here are two glass tubes in the laboratory, one of them ten feet high and as many inches in diameter, the other slender as a straw. When water is poured into the larger tube in any amount the height of the water in the smaller tube will be the same because the tubes are connected at the base. The God of things as they are is also the Author and Giver of moral strength. Let any man in that section of his nature which is fundamental to all feeling and action maintain an open relation with the Source of all strength and the same adjustment will be witnessed in him. His personal strength will rise to the same level with the demand made upon him by the facts of his environment. Charles R. Brown, D. D.

HELP THE ADVOCATE!

READ THE FOLLOWING PROPOSITION.

To the Pastors of Mississippi and Louisiana:

Dear Brethren: We will give you or any member of your congregation a Teacher's Bible if you will send us 10 new or renewal subscriptions to the New Orleans Christian Advocate by November 10. This Bible is one of the best made, and retails at $3.50. It is bound in genuine leather and has a concordance and all the usual helps in a Teacher's Bible; it is printed with large leaded type, and is fit for a queen. In asking persons to subscribe, just tell them that you are trying to get a club of ten subscriptions for the Advocate for the express purpose of getting one of these nice Bibles, and this will help you persuade them to subscribe. If you will not yourself undertake the job, please get some winsome lady or tactful layman to work up the club. The subscription price is $1.50 a year. Ten subscriptions at $1.50 each will earn the Bible.

If you fail to get 10 subscriptions, we will give you a $2.00 Bible for seven subscriptions. This Bible is bound in genuine leather also, and is a nice book.

If you fail to get seven subscriptions, but secure five, we will give you a copy of "Alpheus W. Wilson—A Prince in Israel," by Rev. Carlton D. Harris. This book contains the life and labors of the late Bishop Wilson. It is bound in cloth and has 210 pages.

The Advocate has always been supported by the efforts of the preachers in Louisiana and Mississippi. We are about to lose nearly 1000 subscriptions, most of them in arrears to the amount of $1.50 each, and consequently we are compelled to devise some way of stimulating interest.

If you will take this matter up for us, and work this plan, or find some one to work it with your assistance and encouragement, we will be greatly helped.

This offer will hold good until November 1, after which date it will be withdrawn.

SPECIALS

Are now ready for assignment. Every Methodist who made a gift to the Centenary should take a Special and thereby have a definite share in the work of the kingdom.

THE WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 21-28 has been set as the time for intensive work in the campaign for Centenary Specials. Specials Day, September 28.
Don't let this day pass without having assumed your Special.

YOU DENIED YOURSELF
to give to the Centenary, then you should experience the full joy of sacrifice by directing your money and keeping in touch with your representative on the home or foreign field.

THE CENTENARY BUREAU OF SPECIALS
will help you do this by assigning you a missionary Special to the amount of your Centenary subscription. In this way you can

GO WITH YOUR MONEY
on its errand of love and mercy. Through headquarters you can hear from the missionary or native evangelist, the deaconess or home mission worker whose support you undertake. Maps and pictures will also be furnished. If you invest in a scholarship or endow a hospital, you can know at first hand of the aid and comfort your money provides.

NO MATTER HOW LARGE OR HOW SMALL
the amount of your Centenary pledge, you can secure a Special and thereby have a close personal touch with the work your money makes possible. Write to-day for your Special.

The Home Circle

THE BOY THAT STAYED AT HOME.

"Oh, mother, please let me go."

The tears that he was bravely holding back made Robin's voice sound husky. A boy of ten ought not to cry just because he couldn't go to help put out the fire. That was what Robin would have done a week ago, when he had been nine, but a boy of ten was supposed to have self-control enough to choke back a few tears, even if it did sting his throat a little to do it.

"Mother, why can't I go?" he pleaded. Zenas Parsons passed the window on a run, waving a beckoning hand.

"I have told why, Robin," his mother answered in a firm tone.

"Luther always gets the best of everything! He doesn't have to ask, either, he just pitches in and goes," the boy passionately burst forth.

"Why didn't Robin 'pitch in and go?'" the mother asked, with a tender note in her voice.

"Because—because, well, because I knew you didn't want me to. Luther just went, as he always does, without asking," Robin stammered, as if almost ashamed to confess his loyalty to his mother's wishes.

"Luther is nearly four years older than you are, my son, and will be of great assistance to the men who have gone to the rescue of lives that are in danger. Besides, the fire may spread; should it do so and reach our wood lot I should be alone but for you. Do you care to listen to a story?"

Robin's brown eyes answered by their sudden look of interest.

"Once, very long ago," began the mother, "there was a great war. Young men were enlisting by the thousands. The son of a village blacksmith felt his young heart burn to join the little company that was forming in his own village; but the father had already joined, and the shop must be kept open. Horses must be shod to be of service; and this little lad, by a little practice, had learned his father's trade well enough to keep the business going during the latter's absence. So, smothering his own longing, this brave youth donned the blacksmith's apron and presented a cheerful countenance to the customers who daily brought their horses to be fitted with new shoes.

"One morning, in great haste a man in a splendid uniform dashed up to the door of this humble blacksmith's shop and begged this young boy to use all possible speed in shoeing the animal that he rode. A great battle was to be fought, and he a general, must be on duty to lead his troops.

"You can imagine the feeling of pride with which this lad took in his hand the hoof of this restive charger and went immediately to work. Perhaps his father might be in this very battle—who could tell? He put forth his best efforts, and in a very short time the horse was made ready to continue his onward hurried flight.

"Had this little village shop been closed, the battle that ended so victoriously would have been lost, for a limping horse could not have covered the distance required to carry this brave general to his post of duty. So the boy who stayed at home that day and kept his father's shop open, in a way served his country better than did the father who had left his work to join the ranks."

As the last words were spoken, from the window near which he was standing Robin's eyes caught sight of a lurid flame that suddenly shot up into the sky, and discovered that the fire had already reached a wood lot very near their home.

Rushing to the door, the boy was met by sparks that at first caused him to shrink back, but only for a moment. Springing across the threshold, he shouted back to the mother who was watching him. "Mr. Hanson and Mr. Rhodes both have cows out in that wood lot," and he was dashing down the road before her answer could reach his ears.

The timely warning and the aid of Robin in helping to get the cows home in all probability was the means of saving their lives, for nothing so terrifies animals as fire.

Hard and prompt service on the part of the citizens prevented the fire from gaining further headway.

When Luther returned, several hours later, to relate his thrilling experience, brave little Robin lined up beside him and told of his own.

The story that his mother had told him remained in his mind, however, and at night he said to her, "I suppose I was something like the blacksmith's son who stayed at home."

Robin's mother's only reply was a fond kiss upon his uplifted forbead.—Morning Star

"SECOND FIDDLE."

By H. A. Dettmars.

A clothesline reaches across our back yard. It is a stout wire with good strong fasteners at each end. A number of birds sit on the line every day and try to get acquainted. The other morning when we got up we saw a little gray bird seated very importantly puffing up his feathers as though wishing to look very wise and solemn. Then he began to sing. It wasn't a pleasant song but the ugliest—shrillest—loudest cry that you ever heard. Wondering what he could be saying we got very near. Then we heard:

"Listen to me. Listen to me."

Very soon another bird came along. It was one of the most beautiful singers that live in our garden. It took a seat on the wire and sang a lilting song that rose clearly from its throat in perfect notes that grew sweeter and sweeter. But the more beautifully it sang the more loudly cried the other bird:

"Listen to me. Listen to me."

Finally, the lovely singer asked:

"What are you trying to do?"

"I am singing," replied the little gray bird. "You are disturbing me and I wish you would go away."

Then he began to cry again:

"Listen to me. Listen to me."

The little gray bird is like some boys and girls. They try to think themselves very important. They like to look down on another who hasn't so many pennies and to walk about as though they were "somebody." If they can get to the piano, they like to sit and make just as much noise as they can, and if some one that can really play comes, they just make more noise and cry:

"Listen to me. Listen to me."

And there are a great many older people who are just as foolish as the little boy or girl. They are the people that believe that they must always do something and that there is no one that can possibly do it better.

We boys and girls must learn that what we are to do is to be kind and good to the one that can do just a little bit better. We cannot always be the first fiddle and keep the first place, for after all, the only way to learn how to do better ourselves, is to listen to the one that can do better. For that little bird is just a selfish little fellow that always wants to be heard, and nobody likes to have him anywhere around.—Exchange.

Loving God is but letting God love us; giving welcome that is, to God's love, knowing and believing the love God hath to us. Horace Bushnell

A man can gain much profit every day, if he refer all actions not in themselves praiseworthy or blameworthy, such as eating, drinking, walking, sleeping, etc., to the divine Will; and, therefore, he neither eats nor drinks, hungers nor thirsts, but because it has pleased God that he should do so.—Selected.

DIRECTIONS.

All checks and money orders should be made payable to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications pertaining to subscriptions and other business matters should be addressed to the Manager, or to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Communications intended for the Editor should be directed to him at 512 Camp Street. Correspondents will observe the following rules: 1. Write on only one side of the paper. 2. If you have a typewriter, by all means use it; otherwise, use a good quality of black ink. 3. Leave a space of at least two inches at the top of the first page; leave a margin of at least an inch on the left-hand side of the page; do not crowd the words and the lines together. 4. Take special pains to write proper names correctly and legibly. 5. Use letter paper if you can get it—not note paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right.

DATE OF LOUISIANA CONFERENCE CHANGED.

We have just received the following communication from Rev. Briscoe Carter, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference:

"Please announce in the Advocate, upon the authority of Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo, that the time of holding the Louisiana Conference has been changed from November 19 to November 12."

This change of date, making the Louisiana Conference meet one week earlier than the time originally set, emphasizes the fact that the Conference year is rapidly drawing to a close. We still have time, however, to wind up a good year's work.

MISSIONARY SPECIALS.

One of the great problems in the development and maintenace of interest in the missionary work of the church, is to get the individual contributor to the cause to realize that he has a definite part in the work of evangelizing the world. He feels, in a general way, that his money is helping, but oftentimes the feeling is more or less vague and indefinite.

As the solution of this problem, the Board of Missions has developed the plan of "missionary specials." A "special" is simply some definite object which is assumed by an individual, toward the support of which his contributions are to be applied. It may be the support of a Bible woman, or a native evangelist, or a missionary, or some other specific work undertaken by the direction of the Board. By this means, a close personal connection is established between the contributor and the mission field, and he comes to feel that he has a vital part in carrying forward the great work.

The missionary secretaries are authority for the statement that it is only by means of these specials that the work of the Board has been maintained and extended for a good many years past. If these specials had been dropped, if no church had done more for missions than was required by the annual assessment, not only would all extension have been impossible, but it would have been necessary also to withdraw at least one-third of our force from the foreign field.

In view of these facts, the Centenary Commission is making a special campaign for the placing of specials among those who contributed during the Eight Day Drive, and others who may become interested. These specials may be taken by individuals, Epworth Leagues, Sunday schools, or any other organization in the church, or the church as a whole. The Commission has issued a catalogue of missionary specials which are available for the direction of pledges made during the Eight Day Drive. These specials range in value all the way from a $50 folding organ for a kindergarten to the erection and maintenance of a great university involving nearly a million dollars. All the information desired concerning these specials may be had by writing to the Centenary Commission at Nashville, Tenn. We heartily commend the campaign for missionary specials.

"A VOTE ON UNIFICATION."

Under the above caption, Dr. Alfred F. Smith, editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, in his issue of August 27, gives an account of an action at the Illinois Conference concerning unification that, doubtless, will be of great interest to our readers. We have no other information concerning the matter, but we presume that the same procedure will be followed at the approaching sessions of all our Conferences. The Illinois Conference and the Denver Conference were the first to hold their fall meetings, both having convened on August 21. We have seen no account of the proceedings of the Denver Conference.

In order that an intelligent expression of opinion may be had if the matter should be brought to the attention of our Conferences, we suggest that all our preachers acquaint themselves with the plans mentioned in the ballot as submitted to the Illinois Conference. The account in the St. Louis Advocate follows:

"Bishop Denny stated to the Conference that the chairman of the joint commission of our church had requested that the church be sounded on the matter of unification and the minds of the members of our Conferences on the several plans proposed be learned. A session of the Conference for Friday afternoon was therefore held in order that the bishop might give the members an opportunity of expressing themselves. At this special session the bishop stated that the principal differences between the commissioners of the two churches were three: 1. The regional conferences; 2. the judicial conferences; 3. the relation of the Negro. He made a clear statement of these differences and of the work of the joint commission at its various sessions. His knowledge of the entire history of the efforts of the churches to arrange a plan of unification is accurate and full. He has been on the commission all the while, and no man has taken a larger interest in it than he. After he had gone over the plans that have been suggested and had explained them, he caused printed slips of paper to be distributed to the members of the Conference and asked them to express their minds by filling in the blanks or by checking the plans they would be willing to vote for, if the proposition ever reached the Annual Conferences, the blanks being worded thus:

In the Matter of Unification.

1. I will.....vote for the plan suggested by our Oklahoma Conference.
2. I will.....vote for the Savannah plan.
3. I will.....vote for the plan offered at Cleveland by our commissioners.
4. I will.....vote for the plan offered at Cleveland by the commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

"We did not learn the result of this test vote, though we hope to be able later to give the information to our readers."

THE CONFERENCE COLLECTIONS AND THE CENTENARY FUND.

A misunderstanding seems to have arisen in some places concerning the relation of the Conference collections to the Centenary fund. In spite of the fact that it was specifically stated in the beginning, and emphasized throughout the campaign, and so stated on the pledge cards that the Centenary pledge was IN ADDITION TO THE REGULAR CONTRIBUTIONS for the support of our missionary work, certain churches which exceeded their quotas in the Eight Day Drive have declared it to be their understanding that the regular collections will be taken care of out of the excess.

We do not believe that this misunderstanding is widespread, but it is important that everybody understand clearly, before the meeting of our Annual Conferences, that the Conference collections are to be taken as usual. It is these regular collections which furnish the basis for the appropriations for the established work of the Board of Missions. If they are not forthcoming as usual, the work will inevitably suffer. We must pay our Centenary pledges, of course; but we must not fail to raise our regular Conference collections also.

LABOR DAY.

On Monday of this week, the labor organizations of the country observed what has come to be one of the most notable holidays on the calendar—Labor Day. The usual form of celebration is a great parade, in which all branches of organized industrial activity take part. Business is practically suspended for the day.

The laboring men of the world have acquired unusual influence as a result of the war. They have come to realize more fully than ever before the fact that material prosperity is dependent upon their toil, and they have resolutely set themselves to the task of securing such recognition as will guarantee them the rewards of industrial independence and political and social consideration. Only those who are inseparably wedded to the old idea of the masses versus the classes would have it otherwise. It is a growing sign of universal democracy that the men who produce the wealth of the world are beginning to stand side by side on terms of equality with the men who administer the results of their labor.

It is inevitable that there should be misunderstandings and disagreement in this great readjustment that is taking place. Newly gained power is not always wisely used, and old privileges are not usually quietly given up. But we may well hope that gradually capital and labor will come to see eye to eye, and that the period of antagonism will give place to one of mutual sympathy and co-operation. In the long run, the sound common sense of the average man will overcome the difficulties that arise in the adjustment of conflicting interests.

The church cannot afford to be indifferent to the profound changes that are taking place in our industrial and social order. As an institution, it should be representative of the best interests of all classes of people. For some reason or other, it has failed to gain the hearty sympathy of the great mass of laboring men. We do not know where the fault lies, but we do know that the church is under obligation to minister to all men alike. When it becomes the representative of a particular class of men, or of a distinct industrial or social order, it has departed from its mission and lost its power. One of the greatest opportunities of the church to-day lies in the field of human need as it is represented in the organized labor movement.

A CORRECTION.

In the announcement two weeks ago concerning the special offer for securing subscriptions to the Advocate, we stated that the offer would expire on November 10. Since that announcement appeared, we have found it necessary to change the date of expiration to November 1.

We earnestly request our friends to take advantage of the special offer to secure as many new and renewal subscriptions as possible to the Advocate before November 1. The time is short, but it will be possible in most cases for the preachers, who have always shown their willingness to help the Conference organ to present the matter themselves or through some one appointed by them, to all their people. It is of very great importance to the Advocate to secure the renewals of those who are in arrears with their subscriptions, but we believe it is of equal importance to the church itself that the paper have as large circulation as possible. There never was a time in the history of our work when it was more necessary to have our membership fully informed as to the activities of the church than the present. If we are to accomplish what we ought to accomplish as a great denomination, our people must be kept informed as to the needs and plans of the work. An Advocate in every Methodist home ought to be the goal in every pastoral charge, and we ought not to rest until that goal is reached.

Please remember that the special offer will expire on November 1. In order to secure a Bible or the Life of Bishop Wilson all clubs must be sent in by that date.

OPENING DATE OF CENTENARY COLLEGE.

On account of extended repairs which are being made, and the installation of new equipment, and the completion of the details for the plan of the new building, the opening date of Centenary College, Shreveport, La., has been postponed to September 25. This announcement is made on the authority of Dr. Wm. R Bourne, president of the college.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Several of our churches in New Orleans held services on Friday, August 29, the day appointed for fasting and prayer in behalf of a great revival movement throughout the church.

In a personal note to the editor, Rev. W. W. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Durant District, North Mississippi Conference, states that the prospects for the fourth quarter are good.

A note from Sister T. S. Randle, now at Beaumont, Texas, informs us that she may visit Louisiana in the near future. She has many friends in this State who are always delighted to see her.

Rev. Walt Holcomb, one of our general evangelists, recently closed a fine union tabernacle tent meeting at Adairville, Ky. Brother Holcomb is now in the midst of a union tent meeting at Kingston, Ga

We greatly enjoyed a call from Mr. J. W. Dean, of Mansfield, La., one day last week. Mr. Dean is greatly interested in the work of the church, and is a delegate to the approaching session of the Louisiana Annual Conference.

During the absence of Dr. Rawlings in the Orient and of Dr. Beauchamp in Europe, Rev. S. A. Neblett will serve as Staff Secretary and will be in charge of the home office of the Foreign Department of the Board of Missions.

Rev. C. A. Allday, of Cartersville, Ga., has invested $9000 in an Emory University Annuity Bond. By doing this, he has insured for himself a satisfactory rate of interest and, in addition, has helped the great cause of Christian education.

Dr. W. R. Bourne, president of Centenary College, Shreveport, La., is actively engaged in preparations for the opening of the fall session. He was scheduled to speak at the First Methodist Church, of Lake Charles, La., last Sunday morning.

We take the following from the Texas Christian Advocate of Aug. 28: "Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon and Mrs. Mary Pearl Langdon were united in marriage at Grace Methodist Church, Thursday, August 21, at 6 p.m., Dr. W. D. Bradfield officiating." We extend all good wishes.

Rev. R. B. Craig, of the Fulton charge, North Mississippi Conference, reports the holding of a great meeting at Van Buren, one of his appointments. There were twenty accessions to the church Rev. B. F. M. Bullard, of the Tremont charge, did the preaching.

Rev. W. J. Dawson, of Woodville, Miss., gives an encouraging report of his work. Congregations are growing all the time, and progress is being made along all lines. He speaks in very high terms of the services of Rev J. L. Decell, of McComb, Miss., in a meeting which he held at Woodville in July.

The third quarterly conefrence of the Daleville charge, Mississippi Conference, has just been held. In the absence of the presiding elder, the pastor, Rev. John W. Ramsey, presided. The reports from the churches were better than those for the first and second quarters, although in those quarters the charge broke all previous records in finances.

We hope our readers will act in accordance with the suggestion in the advertisement, which appears on another page, of our new Sunday school publication, THE CHURCH SCHOOL, and send for a sample copy if they are not already familiar with it. We need to keep abreast of every forward movement in this great department of our church's work.

Rev. C. E. Downer, of the Petal charge, Mississippi Conference, has recently held two good meetings—one at Batson, where he was assisted by Rev. J. M. Corley, of Wiggins, Miss., and another at Rawls Springs, where he was assisted by Rev. F. B. Ormond, of Richton, Miss. He will hold a meeting at Petal, beginning on September 11, in which he will be assisted by Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of Columbia, Miss.

A church social was announced for the evening of September 3, at the First Methodist Church of Lake Charles, La., in recognition of the one hundred new members received into the church this year, in honor of the boys and girls who are going off to school, and as a get-together meeting in the interest of the revival services which are to begin on September 11. Rev. F. M. Freeman, of New Orleans, will assist the pastor, Rev. W. W. Holmes, in the revival meeting.

Rev. T. J. Embree, who was serving his fourth year as pastor of our church at Slidell, La., has been transferred to the Kentucky Conference, and has left for his new field of labor. The third quarterly conference of the Slidell charge, held on Aug. 24, unanimously adopted resolutions commending Brother Embree for his faithful and efficient labors as preacher and pastor. Brother Embree has made many warm friends in Louisiana, whose best wishes will go with him as he returns to his native State.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

Ever since that bishop suggested that I write in the interest of the superannuate preachers, I've been on the alert for something to say, and now that I have found a real, live suggestion, I am calling attention to the same; and, by the way, Brother Carley, if all the other Advocates are giving as much space and prominence to that cause as the New Orleans, it won't be very long until our people will realize the justice of the claims of these old worthies upon the church.

The Nashville Advocate has made frequent reference to the "forgotten man" in our Centenary budget, and has suggested that it might and should be corrected in some way. When it was announced that our great church would make a drive for $35,000,000 for missionary work, many of us shook our heads in doubt of its accomplishment; but when the returns were all in, our fears were abated and our blood ran with a tingle, to be told that we had not only "gone over the top," but had almost doubled the amount. In the Nashville Advocate of last issue, we have the solution of the dilemma in the action of the Rome District Conference, of the North Georgia Conference, in a resolution that of this surplus there be set aside $5,000,000 for the Superannuate Endowment fund. In a pastorate of forty-five years, I do not recall a single objection to contributions to the fund for the "worn-out preachers," and I am certain if the church had been consulted as to including his cause in the great Centenary fund, there would have been only a hearty approval.

Instead of deferring this cause to a future date, it, like the King's business, demands haste. On the plea of high cost of living, a board of trustees of one of our colleges, at their last meeting, increased the pay of the professors $400—their salaries were already around the $2,000 mark.

And yet, within rifle-shot of that institution there was living one of our early Methodist heroes beyond the four-score years, with his faithful wife, receiving the pitiful sum of $400 annually The plea for increase of $400 in salaries was made that the younger men might live more comfortably: then, what about the comforts of these aged servants of the church with only yearly stipend of $400? A young lady school teacher with whom I was talking a few days ago expressed unwillingness to consider $85 per month for 8 months as sufficient compensation, after paying board and meeting other expenses, and yet her salary would be more than three times as much as the average paid the superannuates in the great Southern Methodist Church—$200.

A few days since, I applied to a negro man to help in some manual labor such as necessitated more brawn and muscle than I possess to be told that at the present high cost of everything he must have $1.50 per day—the work remains undone. The washerwoman calls for higher wages (steam laundry prices are forbidding), but we must have this adjunct to the housekeeping or the superannuate's wife must do the work. The superannuate goes to the nearby mill for his peck of meal to be told that corn has gone out of sight, but "being he's a preacher" he can get the peck for 70 cents. But why add items? The same high cost of living reaches the humble cottage of the superannuate just as other homes. He does not complain, for that would be construed as begging, and to do that his church pride and love for his church forbid; to dig he tries, but to beg he will not. What about the Rome, Georgia, resolutions? Why can they not find response in other church bodies? Why not form Conference Claimants Clubs in every church and report to Dr. Todd the results? Without apology, because that bishop said do it, I have written what I have written

On April 9, 1919, God in his mercy called unto himself the sweet spirit of AUNT JANIE ANDERSON. Sarah Jane Ingram was born on April 23, 1835, in Anson County, N. C. Her husband and daughter passed to their reward several years ago. Aunt Janie was a devout member of the Methodist Church from girlhood. She was always ready to welcome her friends with a cheerful word and bright smile. To be in her presence was an inspiration. She was a charter member of our Missionary Society and as long as health permitted was present at every meeting. She is now in the home land, but her example and influence abide with us to bless each member of our Society. May we live so that we will greet Aunt Janie some day!

The community of Stony Point, La., has suffered a great loss in the death of Mrs. N. J. STOCKWELL, who departed this life on the 14th of August, 1919, at the ripe old age of 86 years. Hers was a life, the sweet aroma of which will be with all who knew her for many years. She was a faithful wife, mother and grandmother, and a loving sister. She joined the Methodist Church during her early years, and was always ready in the service of her Lord. Through all her great suffering she was submissive to His will and sang praises to Him with almost the last feeble breath. Death had lost its sting in the sweet assurance that her blessed Savior was near. Interment was made in the family cemetery, Rev. Mr. Akin officiating, assisted by Rev. Ed Craig, who is an old friend of the family.

It sooths his sorrows, heals his wounds,
And drives away his fear."

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas God saw fit on July 5, 1919, to call to her eternal rest our friend, Annie Bolton, member of our church, Sunday school, and Junior Missionary Auxiliary, therefore be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well.
2. That in her death the community and our work have lost an earnest Christian character.
3. That we hold in grateful memory her gentle, unobstrusive life, her patience in suffering and her desire to please the Master.
4. That we commend her unselfish life, her love for Christ and her faith in Him to those who mourn for her.
5. That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of our Auxiliary, a copy sent to the family and to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Dorls Ferguson and Alma Lee Blackson.

A NOTE FROM REV. W. D. BASS.

Dear Brother Carley: I recently assisted Rev. W. M. Williams in a good meeting in Collins, Miss. Next I came to this town, Washington, Ark., which is the county site of Hemstead County. We are in the midst of a great meeting. I have an open date for September, also one in October, that I could place with our pastors at such places where there are many sinners outside of the church to be converted, either in station or circuit charges.

FROM GIBSON MEMORIAL, VICKSBURG, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: I have time only for a short report from Gibson Memorial, Vicksburg. This is my third year here, and, so far, the most satisfactory. All departments of the church have made better progress this year. We are especially blessed with a fine body of young people in the church. The League has taken on new life and more young people are working through this channel. According to reports, the Young People's Missionary Society of Gibson Memorial is the best in the Conference. These young ladies are always busy.

We are working to pay off an old parsonage debt that has been a heavy burden for many years. The amount has been provided for in cash and subscriptions. We went over the top on the Centenary, but not without credits. We are willing to compare with any other church in the Conference when we consider the financial resources and the allotment of $8200.

During the first sixteen days of June we were blessed with one of the greatest revivals ever held in Vicksburg. Rev. Dan Kelly did the preaching. I have been associated with Brother Kelly in several other meetings, but he was better this time than I have ever seen him before. The Lord wonderfully used him both in and out of the pulpit, in the railroad shops and on street cars. He loves God and men, preaches with great spiritual power, is sensitive to the leadership of the Spirit, and then does a great deal of personal work. The preaching of the old-time gospel with the old-time power resulted in tremendous conviction, a great spiritual uplift to the church and the conversion of many souls. About fifty or more joined the church, 44 of whom united with Gibson Memorial, 30 being by profession of faith. Most all are grown people, most of the children of the Sunday school having already joined. The ages of those taken in the church ranged from seven to nearly seventy.

The revival spirit abides and we are looking for more victories. Many of the new members are entering into active work for the church with great zeal and earnestness. We feel confident that a new and better day has dawned for Gibson Memorial. We need the prayers of the brethren.

GIRLS! MAKE A BEAUTY LOTION WITH LEMONS
At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.
Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough,

MAKING ALIENS ALLIES.

By Mrs. J. H. McCoy.

"He does most to Christianize the world and hasten the coming of the kingdom, who does most to make thoroughly Christian the United States."

In 1917, because of war conditions, a bad year, numerically considered, for immigration to the United States, three hundred thousand aliens landed on American soil, avowing their purpose to the immigration officials to make the United States their permanent future home. Of this number more than one hundred and five thousand were of the laboring or servant class. Nearly one hundred and twenty thousand of the number had less than fifty dollars in money in their possession; nearly sixty thousand had no friend or relative in America to whom they could go for counsel, protection or relief. About thirty thousand of this number, or one in ten, indicated their purpose to settle in the Southern States. It is reasonable to assume that of the number coming South about twelve thousand had less money than it would take to live for six weeks, and that between six and seven thousand had no friend or relative to whom to apply in time of distress.

In view of pre-war conditions, it seems likely that with the close of hostilities and the completion of the mighty task of bringing our soldiers home, many ships will be released for the passenger service, and the old tides of immigration will again set in towards America. The new immigration laws, and the new literacy tests are not likely to hold back to any great degree the home-seekers of devastated Europe. That the tides may turn southward in increasing ratio is not unlikely.

America has made friends with the nations more rapidly in the last four years than in any similar period of her history. Foreigners are in our midst, and the foreigners who are coming to us are more nearly our allies, in sentiment and intent, than they have ever been before. Let America beware of exploiting or neglecting these people who come seeking the hospitality of our shores.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is endeavoring, through its Home Mission Department, to measure up to its responsibilities.

Along the Texas border, where vast numbers of Mexicans are temporarily established, the Christian minister, the deaconess, the doctor and the teacher are rendering concerted help, seeking to unfetter the imprisoned intelligence of illiterate people, to heal their diseased and suffering bodies, and to illumine their superstitious and benighted souls with the glory of the living Christ. More than a million Mexicans are now finding harborage on our borders. For work among the Mexicans, $181,000 will be set aside by the women of Southern Methodism from Centenary offerings.

Along our Gulf Coast, at Biloxi, Miss., New Orleans, La., and Galveston, Texas, the church is reaching out a friendly hand to the foreigners in our midst, and to those who shall come to us.

The disadvantaged French people of Louisiana, held in bondage by Roman Catholicism, are not being overlooked. Too strong a bond exists between the French and the American for the American to undervalue our French citizens or neglect them. From the Centenary askings the women of Methodism will set aside $82,500 for work on the Gulf Coast.

A larger program is being prepared for reaching the foreigner of our inland cities, and Southern Methodists have reason to believe that God's power will be released to supply the workers and money in proportion to the high conception of the church of the needs of the hour.

"Let no man suppose that progress can be divorced from religion, or that there is any platform written for the minister of reform, other than the platform written in the utterances of our Lord and Savior."

Calomel Dynamites A Sluggish Liver

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The Aberdeen District Sunday School Institute will be held at Okolona, Tuesday, September 9. Mr. M. W. Brabham, recently elected as Superintendent of Rural Work in the church, will be with us. Mrs. L. G. Fant, Conference Elementary Superintendent, will hold a conference for the elementary workers. The superintendents of the different departments in the district will present the work they represent.

On September 11 the same program will be carried out at Sardis for the Sardis District; at Itta Bena, September 12, for the Winona District; and Red Banks, September 16, for the Holly Springs District. The presiding elder of each district will be present to lead and direct in the services.

These Institutes will be religious, they will be practical, they will deal with soul-winning and soul nurture, they will give examples of correct teaching, they will endeavor to give something of the highest education. There are worldly, sensual people who do not hesitate to go around and get up a car full of young people and drive from fifty to a hundred miles to attend a vile dance. Will not the leaders of the church do more to save our youth than the worldly are doing to ruin them? Get together and fill your car with the teachers and attend your institute. Write to the pastor a few days before the institute and let him know that you are planning to attend.

Do not overlook the article in the September number of the Magazine by Dr. Barclay on "Methods of Teaching the Training Class." The articles in the Adult Student on "Women and Moral Standards," "The Moral Quality of Dress," and "The Modern Dance" are worthy of careful notice. Read them and call attention to them as you have opportunity. Look over the School Standard—every article is valuable. Do not fail to read the last article, "A Monthly Program for the Sunday School."

How can a man get it into his head that he has had a "great year," "everything in full," "salary overpaid," when he has failed to have each Sunday school observe Sunday School Day? The Centenary Drive is no excuse for neglecting this duty—that is only a pretext. A few men have observed the day under the same conditions that exist in your charge. There is time yet to do the square thing by the children, young people, and the adults of your congregation.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"The child comes into the world without ideas or ideals, but with the ability to acquire both. Folks an' things 'round him form 'em. Seems to me we ough'to be very careful of our speech an' actions in the presence of children."

"If us older folks don't give the youth of to-day a larger hope, a wider vision, an' a stronger faith than we had as youths, have we done our duty by 'em?"

"In selectin' a name for our Wesley Bible Class, le's get one we can live up to. I don't want to be called a 'Willin' Worker,' an' then refuse ev'ry time we're asked to do somethin'; or be a 'Big Brother' an' take the best room in the church-house for the class, while the infant class has to meet in the cubby-hole back of the pulpit."

SUNDAY SCHOOL SPECIALS.

By J. L. Neill.

The Centenary Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, through the Department of Missionary Education of the General Sunday School Board, has presented to the Sunday schools of our church the most attractive list of Specials which, in all probability, has ever been offered by any church to its Sunday schools. Each item was carefully selected with the Sunday school needs in view.

The Specials have been arranged in sections for the various classes or departments of Sunday school work. The sections are as follows: those for Teacher-training classes; those for Home Departments; those for Young People's and Adult Departments; those for Intermediate and Senior Departments; and those for the Elementary Department. This has been done because it is much better from an educational standpoint for each class or department to carry its own Special than for the entire school to carry one large Special. In order to make it easy for classes or departments to assume separate Specials, arrangement has been made whereby any item in the entire list can be assigned in shares of $25 each. That is, a class or department can ask for one or more $25 shares in any item listed, regardless of the total cost of the item. This arrangement will also allow any class or department to assume more than one form of Special, which plan will have its added educational value.

The most noticeable and immediate result of carrying a Special will be found in an increased enrollment, a higher average attendance and much finer class and Sunday school spirit.

Sunday schools carrying definite Specials have, without exception, become more interested in efficient and effective teaching methods and better equipment for the school.

By far the greatest advantage attached to the carrying of a Special will be found in its educational value. The pupils begin to know personally the nature of the work done and the results attained; their sympathies will be broadened; they will become more interested in personal work at home; many will be inspired to volunteer for definite missionary work; and, above all, they will give to the church a generation of Methodists who are missionary to the core. There is no better way to enlist the interest and to make a permanent missionary impression on the minds and hearts of Sunday-school pupils than the support of a Special.

A peaceable man doth more good than he that is well learned.—Thomas a Kempis.

This is the high enterprise of the new day: To lift everything that concerns our life as a nation to the light that shines from the hearth fire of every man's conscience and vision of the right.—Woodrow Wilson.

Of the merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla as the standard blood purifier, appetizer and tonic. Originated in a famous physician's prescription more than 50 years ago. Adopted as the regular family medicine in thousands of American homes. Has met the tests of a half-century with universal success. Made from the best known roots, herbs, barks and berries named in the Dispensatory. Will prove its merit to you if you will give it a trial.

As a good cathartic, Hood's Pills.

SPECIALS—INDIAN WORK.

By O. E. Goddard.

The Muskogee District, East Oklahoma Conference, took the regular Indian Work among the Five Tribes as a Special. (1) We have three pastors in the West Circuit, among what was formerly called "Wild Indians." These pastors are not yet provided for as Specials. Two pastors receive three hundred each per year. Any church or individual desiring to assume the support of any or all of these may do so.

(2) We have an itinerating school for preachers and their families. A course of study has been provided and quarterly conferences are turned into schools. We have the male members of the faculty provided for, but the two women members, salaries $800 per annum, are not taken. This offers two attractive specials for churches or individuals.

(3) It is planned to form a school in McCurtain County for Indian and Mountain Whites. Salary of superintendent, $1800, and teachers, $1500, are not yet taken. The building fund has not been taken yet. Any person or church may choose this school in buildings or maintenance as a special. The school is to be called "Willis Fulsom Academy" in honor of the greatest Choctaw preacher our church ever had.

Particulars concerning any of these specials may be had on application to the Home Department, Nashville, Tenn.

GOOD MEETING AT FITZGERALD, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: Just closed another good meeting at Fitzgerald, which makes my fifth meeting. Brother A. I. Townsley did the preaching. Large congregations attended both day and night. Six united with our church, and hundreds promised to lead better lives. I appointed a building committee to see to finishing the church, and they are enthusiastic and the work will begin right away. I have received 48 members, and baptized 30 infants. There is a good meeting in progress here. Rev. J. A. Smith, of Meridian, Miss., is doing the preaching. Considerable interest is being manifested. To God be all the praise.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE BATON ROUGE DISTRICT.

My Dear Brother Carley: This will inform you that we are having great revivals in the Baton Rouge District. The Bluff Creek Camp Meeting was pronounced by some as being the best in its history. We have had revivals on the following named charges since the District Conference: Greensburg, at the Tabernacle and Pine Hill; Zachary; Olive Branch, at Clear Creek and Gilead; Denham Springs, at Denham Springs and Live Oak; Springfield, at James' Chapel; Red Oak, at Huff's Chapel; Baker, at Black Water; Kentwood, at Mount Hermon. The meting at Ethel begins to-day. Ponchatoula and the Baton Rouge churches had splendid revivals during the spring. The outlook for the greatest year in the history of our district is promising.

My plan to attend the meeting of the elders at Junaluska was disturbed by personal indisposition. My physician has prescribed a few days' rest and treatment for my throat.

Blessings upon you in your good work.

Cordially,

HARRY W. MAY.

Worthy of the Name.

Have you seen the new Sunday school periodical? It is the best publication of its kind that has ever come from any press.

Walk a mile, if necessary, and borrow your neighbor's October number, or write Smith and Lamar for a sample copy.

Read it from cover to cover and get your Sunday school to supply every officer and teacher.

Sunday school workers will be quick to see the importance of securing for this new periodical a large circulation, because it carries monthly vital messages of outstanding leaders in the realm of Christian education to our constituency.

Its name? It was first called "The Workers' Council;" afterwards it was known as "The School Standard." It is now THE CHURCH SCHOOL, and it is worthy of the name.

In clubs of five or more to one address, one dollar per annum.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE,

September, 1919.

"Every Woman in the Church a Member of the Missionary Society."

At the last meeting of our Missionary Conference in Mansfield the membership for the entire State was reported at about twenty-seven hundred. I am sure you will agree with me that this is considerably smaller than it should be, particularly at this time, when the Centenary has kindled the flame of missionary zeal in tbe heart of many a hitherto indifferent woman. Upon the women of the church already in the Missionary Society rests the responsibility, to a great extent, for keeping this flame burning. Undoubtedly, therefore, this is the time for a drive for membership in the Missionary Society tbat shall reach every woman in the church. And to this end, at the first meeting in September every president should be prepared to lay before her auxiliary a definite plan for such a campaign. Tbe work may be much more easily planned if every president will secure from her pastor a complete list of church members, and then check off those who are already members of the Missionary Society. I might also state, by way of suggestion, that one society be divided into teams, each team being made responsible for a certain list of names, another society divided into two sides, the Red and the Blue. Whatever plan is adopted, the campaign should be begun with prayer; there should also be frequent called meetings, and end with a rally of old and new members planned for the first meeting in October.

MRS. C. F. NIEBERGALL.

CONSERVATION PROGRAM

As Outlined by Mrs. M. L. Hargrove.

At the Ruston District Conference of the Woman's Missionary Society, Mrs. M. L. Hargrove presented the plans that our church has formulated, which will be called a "Carry-On" or Conservation program. She spoke as follows:

"There are six phases of the work we propose, which may last one year or four. The first is world-vision, giving a picture of this old world and its needs. This has been the plan adopted preparatory to the Centenary Drive and will be continued with greater zeal and earnestness than ever before. Dr. E. H. Rawlings said that a certain recent happening at Columbus may be God's way of helping us in this matter. Mr. D. W. Griffith was there a great deal of the time and did all the staging for "The Wayfarer." When asked for his bill he said, 'I charge nothing; my mother was a Methodist in Kentucky and I give my services as a memorial to her!' He has filmed all the high points of the Centenary Celebration and the "Wayfarer" Pageant, as well as the one setting forth the "India Mass Movement," and is offering half a million dollars to show them all over the country in our large cities; so we may have the Columbus Celebration to come to us and may get our world vision largely in this way.

"II. Intercession. Our goal for next year is to get the names of all the preachers and all the official members of the church signed up and 40 per cent of the membership and to call on those 200,000 who have signed, to rally and truly pray. Only 53 per cent of the preachers of Southern Methodism have signed to date.

"III. The establishing of 100,000 family altars. I fear some of our boys and girls will hardly know what it means when we say family altar. That boy or girl, child of Christian parents, who has not seen his father every day call the family together and read a portion of God's Word and offer to Him petitions and thanks, has been defrauded of what belongs to him. When we fail, God is going to ask of us why we did not follow the example of Abraham, who would command his household after him and teach them the way of the Lord.

"IV. To bring to every missionary society, Sunday school and home a prayer special.

"V. Evangelism. When Methodism loses the revival spirit, God will not have any more use for it; He will have to sidetrack it and take the Salvation Army or some other organization to carry on His plans. Fifty-nine per cent of the people of America are non-Christian. How are they going to be saved, the foreigner, the unsaved child in your home, in the town, who walks our streets continually? Nothing but evangelism will do it. Dr. O. E. Goddard is going to give himself wholly this year, and maybe for other years to come, to the propagation of the spirit of evangelism. It is more than likely that I shall give the greater part of my time this fall at least in visiting our colleges, in an endeavor to get our young women to consecrate their lives fully to their Heavenly Father.

"VI. Life-Service and Stewardship. Seven hundred and thirty-five new missionaries will be required in the next five years at home and in the foreign field to carry on the work which the church is enterprising. We are robbing God of His time when we violate the sanctity of the Sabbath. The war taught us that we do not own our business or our time, but that the U. S. Government could claim either or both whenever it saw fit to do so. When Uncle Sam sent you word that you had been appointed District Director of this or that Liberty Loan, you responded without a word and gave your time, no matter how valuable or how greatly in demand for other responsibilities. If they could just learn this lesson for their Lord! Whole time for many, part time for all, will be our slogan. May the time soon come when every Methodist will feel it is just as religious to give money as to testify in class-meeting. Every one who contributes should send his gift forth with a prayer. If we could get 40 per cent of our church to tithe, every financial difficulty would be settled. If you would make a definite transaction with God, you would count it an era in your spiritual life. With the farmer's wife, it may be the tenth egg or the tenth pound of butter, but whatever it is, God recognizes the love and devotion and honors the tither."

Quoting John R. Mott, who crossed the ocean six times during the late war and was in every country of Europe except Germany, Austria and Russia, she said: "We are looking upon a shaken world, upon an impoverished and over-burdened world, a worn and exhausted world, upon a torn and embittered world, upon a suffering world, physically, mentally and spiritually, but we look also upon a plastic world that can now be easily molded, upon a teachable world, humble in the very dust, but expectant, with its eyes turned to the United States of America, expecting justice, stability, betterment—Christ! God never forgets his world, though He may allow it to suffer because of unholy ambitions and self-sufficiency, but He never yet has failed to have a remedy ready and that remedy is Jesus Christ, His sacrifice and His teachings. If to the world in this crucial hour of its history we can bring these two together, its crisis, its cry of agony, its gloom, shall be changed to brightness and joy."

RHEUMATISM AND INDIGESTION.

Practically all physicians and medical writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between Indigestion and Rheumatism. This view is substantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for Dyspepsia and Indigestion, relieves Rheumatism and the Rheumatoid diseases, such as Gout, Sciatica, Neuralgia and Nervous Headache. All of these diseases are probably related and all are probably due in whole or in part to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

The following letters are interesting in this connection:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician, writes: "I have tested your Spring water in several cases of Rheumatism, Chronic Indigestion, Kidney and Bladder troubles and in Nervous and Sick headaches and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the Liver and Kidneys and Bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant of Savannah writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians, went to Baltimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living when I began using Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time I was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes of Virginia writes: "Please send me ten gallons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for Rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of Rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for Rheumatism. Am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam of South Carolina writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from Rheumatism and after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter of Virginia writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints on her hands, caused by Rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any curable disease accept the guarantee offer below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the

THE BLUFF CREEK CAMP MEETING, AND OTHER MEETINGS.

The Bluff Creek Camp Meeting has just closed out one of the best revivals in its history. We had a good program and it took well. During the Bible hour, many took the course and great interest was shown. The Missionary program was splendid and many took part in it. The preaching was excellent. Many were converted and there were several accessions to the church.

We have recently closed two good church revivals. One was at Gilead. Brother G. D. Anders did the preaching. Good interest was shown from the beginning. The church was spiritually helped, and many were reclaimed and converted. We commend Brother Anders as splendid help in revivals.

The other meeting was held at Clear Creek. Brother J. F. Waltman did the preaching. We had splendid interest all the while. The church was generally revived. There were twelve accessions to the Methodist Church, and one applicant for membership to the Baptist Church. We commend Brother Waltman as being splendid help in revivals. Both churches made liberal offerings for the meetings. Our work is doing splendidly, and we feel hopeful that we can meet our Annual Conference with a full report. We pray that the Lord will bless us with everything in full. Fraternally,

B. D. WATSON.

Clinton, La., August 19.

FROM PIONEER, LA.

Dear Brother Carley: We have just closed a grand revival meeting at Midway church on our charge. My father helped me in the meeting all the way through. He did as good preaching as I ever heard in my life. We began on Saturday night with a revival. This revival began back in May in the prayer meeting. The church caught a new spirit during the Centenary campaign, which has grown until it caught on fire during the meeting. We were hindered some on account of sickness, but the church went to work and relieved the preachers of all the burden they could in visiting the sick, administering to the wants of the needy and in carrying the work right on. The Baptist people went to work with us and all worked together for one purpose, and that the salvation of souls. The Christian people went from house to house holding prayer services and talking to the people, begging them to come to church, and to live for God. I never saw such interest for the building up of the church in my life. The preaching services were to the church mostly and had their effect.

We took fourteen into the church, ten upon profession of faith and baptism, four by letter and order of church conference from other churches—all adults but one. The people say that this was the best meeting that has been in this church since they could remember, and I am praising God for the victory in Jesus' name.

We went from Midway to Bayou Macon and held our meeting, but did not have such a spiritual outbreak; but I believe there was quite a deal of good accomplished. The people were certainly serious.

We hope that things have been accomplished that will last forever. Praise God from whom all blessings flow! Yours in His service,

L. W. SMART, Pastor.

August 10, 1919.

With all this outward success, however, I am not satisfied. There does not seem to be that deep spiritual piety among the members that there should be and must be, if we are to hold the young converts and increase in spiritual power.

People cry for the "good old days" and bewail the fact that the church has permitted worldliness to overrun her. Some of the "mourners" say, with a sad note in their voice, "We'll never see it again as it was when your papa used to preach in this country." No! They never will. Conditions have changed.

I have'nt the time in this article to develop those "conditions." Suffice it to say now, those grand preachers of 50 years ago had great laymen who were mighty in prayer and character to back them up in their preaching, and to assist in the great revivals. Wherever those great revivals were held, the people were in love with God and their fellow-man. And let me say here, wherever those same conditions are met, as they were met in those olden days by the church, we still have great revivals, and the mighty outpouring of God's Spirit is manifest.

Yours truly,

JAS. M. LEWIS.

YOU DO MORE WORK,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength - Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. —Adv.

Thin People Should Take Phosphate

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric feed elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION:—While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.—Adv.

FROM PRENTISS, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: The revival season for the Prentiss charge closed the week following the first Sunday in August, with the Mt. Zion meeting. We have four churches on this charge, and the revival campaign began with the Carson meeting. Brother Bennett, our Conference Evangelist, was with us at Carson and Prentiss. He did some of the best preaching I ever heard him do, and this was the third year I have had him. He has the true evangelical note in his preaching and he always brings results when the church meets her part of the obligation.

Brother W. A. Terry, of Hattiesburg, assisted us in the meeting at Bassfield, and the Lord blessed us with a great meeting.

Brother W. W. Graves, of Hazlehurst, came to our assistance at Mt. Zion and we had the best meeting there of any we have held at that place in the four years we have been on this "dear little circuit."

We have received 49 members into the church through the meetings and otherwise, and we feel that, from the standpoint of material growth, our labors have not been in vain.

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

All we want in Christ we shall find in Christ. If we want little, we shall find little; if we want much, we shall find much; and if, in utter helplessness, we cast our all on Christ, he will be to us the whole treasury of God.—Bishop Whipple.

If we would indeed have knowledge thrive and flourish, we must water the tender plants of it with holiness.—Selected.

A MESSAGE TO PARENTS.

A thorough and intensive education is offered your boy at Starke's University Home School, where he will receive intensive individual instruction from a corps of competent teachers. He will receive military training, the care of a house mother who will provide for his welfare in a modern, steam-heated dormitory. His mental power will be developed by a course of night study under supervision of a teacher. We prepare your boy for college by giving him that training which comes from study and discipline. Athletic field and playground. Cigarettes and tobacco prohibited. Small classes. School highly commended by patrons and colleges. Write for catalogue.

Centenary College of Louisiana

SHREVEPORT, LA.

1. A standard College for Men. Under the auspices of Louisiana Conference of the M. E. Church, South.

2. A new era of improvement and growth has been inaugurated. A New Main Building is being erected.

3. A larger Faculty has been employed.

4. Thirty-six acres of splendid campus in Gladstone Heights.

5. Located in a progressive city of fifty thousand with citizenship unexcelled and church facilities unsurpassed.

6. Controlled by a body of Christian business men who believe that education can create Christian citizenship.

The patronage of Centenary College is composed of people who believe that education must be secured under force of Christian ideals; who think that personality, ambition and force of moral character are the outstanding elements of manhood; and who insist that teachers must be men of ability and character and furnish an environment of ethical action.

The discipline of young manhood is given under conditions that are most nearly ideal, since home life is extended under the guidance of a strong faculty.

Only the work leading to the degrees of A. B. and B. S. is attempted. In connection with the college, Centenary Academy is maintained, which offers regular high school work of College preparatory type.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

CHARACTER AS AN ASSET.

A man with good character is richer than a Croesus without it. He has the respect and confidence of his fellow-man, which are treasures that money cannot buy. He is not immune to errors of judgment, and his personality may be altogether unattractive; but men know the motives that control his life, and they give him credit for trying to do right. His word does not have to be re-enforced by a bond, and his friends do not sleep uneasily when they have interests in his keeping. His self-consciousness of rectitude fortifies him against the fear of being misunderstood, and he follows the path of duty unflinchingly. His position on moral questions is known without his having to declare himself, though he does not hesitate to take a stand, because moral consistency has made him what he is. He does not debate the question, "What is best?" but he does ask, "What is right?" and his loyalty to the right is not conditioned by his personal well-being. The community in which he lives honors him for what he is, and weak men are strengthened by his example and influence. How true it is that "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold!"

HOW TO PREVENT PROFITEERING.

Thus far, Congress does not seem to have been able to enact any legislation that will effectually curb the profiteer. All kinds of suggestions have been made, and various remedies have been suggested, but the mad money-maker goes on his merry way. If anything is done, the people themselves will have to take action. This is not a suggestion that violence of any kind should be used, but that a grim determination not to be fleeced by the robber barons of trade will produce results that are likely to be highly satisfactory. The Savings Division of the Treasury Department is making a campaign for more careful spending on the part of the people. We commend the campaign unreservedly. If all of us would make up our minds absolutely to do without the things for which exorbitant prices are charged, until a new level of prices had been established, the hoarders and extortioners would, in self-defense, have some consideration for public opinion. We should like to have a new pair of shoes, even if they do cost $15—but we can have our old ones half-soled and patched and wear them awhile longer; a new suit of clothes would make us rather more presentable on public occasions—but the old suit might be repaired and used for another season, leaving the new $40-$60 suit in the dealer's hands. It might be embarrassing and humiliating in some cases to act thus, but we had to make a good many sacrifices during the war for the sake of the cause, and we survived. We can do it again if we will. There is a good deal of truth in the statement that the people themselves are responsible for the high cost of living because of their readiness to pay whatever prices may be demanded.

A HUNDRED YEARS OF METHODISM.

Methodism has grown from a personal experience into a world power. Its influence is measured, not by the individuals who yield allegiance to it, but by the institutions it has produced. It is no longer an incident in the course of events—it is a part of the life of the world. The old law that development is from within, out, is illustrated in the growth of Methodism. It had a personal center, as all great movements have, and at first its circumference was only an arm's length from that center; now, however, its reach can be measured only by the sweep of the eye—and even vision falls as its borders extend into the uttermost parts of the earth. What began as the passion of one man, has become the possession of millions. God has manifestly used Methodism as a means of propagating the Kingdom. Through it, he revived the spiritual life of the world at a time when other agencies were powerless. It was the satisfying answer to the passionate demand, "Show us any good!" Its power has increased with the passing of the years. To-day it is speaking to the souls of men a compelling message of faith and hope and love, and in answer to that message, myriad souls are saying, "Here am I—send me." Methodism has fulfilled its mission in the past, and it is meeting its obligations to-day. A new baptism of power has come upon it that makes it one of the strongest and surest hopes for the future.

KEEPING UP STEAM.

We have been watching that piledriver across the street some more. The fireman whose business it is to see that the engine has plenty of steam all the time, is a busy man. He watches the gauge closely, and when the pressure seems to be falling, he opens the furnace door and shovels in coal. Sometimes he takes a long-handled rake and pulls out cinders, which, though blazing, have lost their power to produce the necessary amount of heat. He watches the water barrels all the while, to be sure that the raw material of steam does not get too low. He evidently does the right thing at the right time, for not once, so far as we have observed, has the engine failed to deliver the power necessary for the operation of the big machine. Keeping up steam is a very important thing in life. It is a tragedy to be face to face with work that needs to be done without the power to do it. It is easy for us to allow our faith to grow cold, or our hope to become faint, or our love for our fellow-man to die out—and then we lose the power to do the good we ought to do. Our lives may become choked with the dying embers of disappointments and discouragements, and we find it impossible to renew our strength for the tasks that come with each day. We ought to be working machines in a working world; but if we fail to keep up steam, we cannot but fail of our mission.

DISAPPOINTED HOPES.

Local newspapers recently had a good deal to say about the discovery that an immense fortune in Europe was awaiting the claims of American heirs, several of whom are in Louisiana. Full details were given and the account had every mark of the truth. But recent revelations show that the story was a fabrication—and now eager hope has given place to bitter disappointment. It is worth something, perhaps, to indulge in the fascinating sport of building air castles; most of us, though, gain our fortunes by hard work.

ARE THERE ANY VACANCIES?

We read a news item from London the other day to the effect that waiters in London restaurants and hotels are earning from $3000 to $5000 a year. We read, also, that common laborers in Wales are making from $40 to $90 a week. We are wondering if there are any vacancies in those highly remunerative occupations—we understand that some of our university professors make as much as $1500 a year. It will be a sad day for the world when brawn comes to be worth more than brains.

MAKE WORSHIP ATTRACTIVE.

There is no good reason why the church should not be the most attractive place in the community. It frequently is not—and a great many people, therefore, do not especially care to go to it. A dilapidated fence, a littered-up yard, doors awry on their hinges, weather-beaten roof and walls, broken window panes do not appeal very strongly to beauty-loving and happy-hearted young people. An unswept floor, uncomfortable seats, a rusty stove, a smoke-stained ceiling with cobwebs festooning the corners are not particularly conducive to a devotional spirit. A "clean-up and paint-up" campaign would be a pretty good thing to start in some communities this fall.

THE ETHICS OF ADVERTISING.

We do a good deal of reading, of one sort and another. Among other things we read a good many advertisements (how can we keep from it when the newspapers and magazines are full of them?) Many of these advertisements, we are glad to say, are altogether unobjectionable. But we cannot escape the feeling that some of them, especially those of great mercantile establishments appearing in the daily newspapers, are at least unethical if not positively wrong, in a time like this. They make every appeal that skillful salesmanship can conceive of to the prospective purchaser to spend his money freely, an almost invariable suggestion being that higher prices are almost sure to come later, and that present prices are far below what the value of the goods would justify. This may be doing the public a good turn—though we doubt it—and it is evidently good business; but there is not much evidence of a desire to bring about a speedy return to normal business conditions.

A LETTER FROM BISHOP KILGO.

My Dear Brethren: It is now the closing period of the Conference year and heavy pressure is on all of us to bring our work to a successful end. Our minds have been totally, or at least absorbingly, occupied with a single subject and a single effort during the year which is closing, and virtually nothing else has been undertaken. Perhaps as preachers we have preached on a narrower line of subjects during the past year than we ever did before, and our people have not been spiritually edified with the usual diversity of thought and expansion of faith. All this seemed necessary, but it was recognized as a special requirement, and all our preachers joined heartily in the plan, and it was duly brought to a wonderful success. But there are equally important tasks which demand our attention and we must now return to them—the Sunday schools, the colleges and academies, the orphanages, and most sacred of them all, if there is a difference, the care of our veteran preachers of the gospel, and a multitude of other matters. I doubt not that this has been a year of the most unsatisfactory pastoral work many of our most faithful pastors have accomplished, not because they were indifferent to this work, but because they were too engaged with the missionary drive to give their accustomed ministry to their people, and in other respects they feel that their regular work has been largely put aside.

I must now ask you to join me in devoting our attention and labors to these pressing matters. There is always danger of giving such intense thought to one idea that it utterly usurps consideration and diminishes all other duties. This is the temptation against which all specialisms and expert programs must be vigorously guarded, lest we all become one-minded men, warped and congested in our thoughts, sympathies, convictions, and labors. The zeal which proclaims any one Christian virtue or work as the one supreme mission of the church in comparison with the other appointed duties of it, may be easily explained, but can never be justified. All our work is of infinite meaning, but it is never Christian to starve one interest in our zeal for another interest. That would not only be an immoral narrowness, but a sinful inequality. We can do all our work and should not allow a greed for one cause to be filled while another sorely lacks. There is no Christian reason why we should not be as profoundly interested in every work of the gospel as we are in any one work of it. God is neither a respecter of men nor of virtues. We have but one speciality and that is holiness unto God. We must now turn our thoughts to the tasks which have, during the year, been set aside for the missionary drive, and all of us must devote our efforts to their accomplishment.

LOVE.

By Wm. C. Allen.

I have met many people of many races in many parts of the world. I have learned that if you scowl at men, they generally return the scowl. If you smile on them, they respond in kind. If you are impatient with them, they will resent it. If you fear them, they will fear you. If you meet them with genuine frankness, they will reply with open hearts. I have seen that as we do unto others so they do unto us. I have witnessed the wonderful rewards accruing to Christians when they obey the law of love that Jesus taught.

Love is the fulcrum supporting the hope of the world. Love is the one great untried factor in human relationships. Love is in the song of the birds and the thunders of the sea. Love is at the center of the heart of God. Love proclaims kinship with Jesus Christ.

There are millions of homes in civilization today where lightness of heart and the joy of life would reign if husbands, in the midst of their anxiety, would use the old-time gentleness with their wives, if the wives would speak forgivingly to their husbands, if the parents sympathized with their children and the children with their parents. If any of my readers doubt this, let them, with infinite patience, try to the very full the beautiful and satisfying power of domestic love.

When love shall become more generously the motive of our lives, conservatives and radicals alike will find that the mutual forbearance and justice which it creates will constitute the only solvent of the hard problems which we are all compelled to face. Love does away with exploitation and oppression—love is the cure for envy and strife. Love is not softness—it is strength—it often takes supreme courage to love.

There are hundreds of thousands of offices and stores, there are gigantic mills and humble shops where the use of the perfectly practical sentiment of love will neutralize the restlessness and greed that so cruelly threaten the foundations of human relationships to-day. As a one-time active business man, I know that such sentiments are far more serviceable in affairs even among men of the largest business calibre than many think. Human interests will clash, disputes will arise, irritations will unnerve, but those who have faith to look beyond the present stress are able to meet opponents with courtesy and poise and exemplify the healing and tremendously winning power of love. It pays!

The international situation appeals to every loyal follower of the Prince of Peace. How shamefully and sometimes shamelessly—even with good intent—we have failed in the application of the gospel of love! Church unity will come when church people really love one another. When the Church Universal in all lands, with her prestige and influence, shall be federated in the bonds of Christ and when she shall absolutely yield allegiance to the service of love before all earthly powers—then shall wars cease. Apprehension with respect to non-Christian peoples shall be appeased when the heathen heart of an all too-grabbing Christendom shall itself be altered, for then only will the Asiatic races cease to fear, and cease to prepare for, the coercion of battleships and guns. Then will be exercised the loftier patriotism that shall make national life secure, because words and acts of love applied to foreigners at home create friends, not enemies, abroad. Then shall apply the test of discipleship from the lips of the Master: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." Then shall the angels once more rejoice in the hymnody of peace. Then shall the blood-stained earth blossom with the lily and the rose.

The delightful possibility of participating in the joy of the practice of love rests with every one of us. The most needed potentiality in the world to-day is love. I ask my readers to indulge in sentiments of love—to preach the glad tidings of love. I ask them to mount above the things of earth and search for the balm of contact with Christ—then will they discover the richness and fullness of love. I ask them to pray for changed hearts that their thoughts may be made beautiful and strong in the translucent atmosphere of love. I ask them to trust in the hope of the world—the spiritual and material defenses of love. I ask them with courage to tread the shining ways of love.

SAYING GOOD-BYE.

By E. H. Rawlings.

The little good-bye prayer meeting held in the assembly room of the publishing house was trying to at least one person present. I do not like to say good-bye. His colleagues and associates in the Mission Rooms were holding this meeting to speed away the Foreign Secretary on the eve of his departure to be gone for many months and through many countries. At its last session, the Board of Missions voted that I should visit the three Oriental fields, China, Japan, and Korea; and with the lady who for many years has been the better half of me, I was to leave Nashville going via Chicago and thence over the Canadian Pacific Railroad to Vancouver, where I was to meet Bishop Lambuth and Rev. G. C. Emmons, who is to be our secretary, and sail for Yokohama, Japan, going thence immediately to Kariozawa, where the annual meeting of the Japan Mission will be held.

Not that I was not glad to go. Since coming to the office of Foreign Secretary, I have struggled with the problem of doing difficult work at long range, and of helping to accomplish delicate and pressing tasks half the distance round the world from the scene of their transpiring. I have not a good architectural imagination, and helping to build a church, far from its base in non-Christian lands, was a most tantalizing and unsatisfactory thing. Last year I felt the need of going, but the Centenary was on. The big debt on the Board was barely paid, and the Secretary naturally felt that he had no sure "purchase" for the big plans for advance proposed in that movement. Let him stay at home for a year, lend the best hand he can in the great campaign, and if it is a success, then sail away with confidence, to help as a Secretary might in such an hour.

A Bishop's Estimate of the Centenary.

And such a campaign! I heard Bishop Atkins say that he would give up any year of his life rather than the year of the Centenary, and I suppose in all his busy and useful life no year was so full or counted for so much for the church and the Kingdom as the one in which he did so nobly his part as President of the Centenary Commission. From the beginning, when it was not popular, on through the triumphant climax at Columbus, he has been a "good scout," a "regular fellow." There are crucial and mountain-top experiences that come in one's life, high and solitary, as when one is born again with a conscious assurance of acceptance into the Invisible Kingdom, or he decides to preach, or he comes to the church's altar and the best of good women stands by his side, and taking a great risk, promises "for better, for worse," to go with him life's way. But barring a few of these great experiences and the years that lift all others, I am sure that no year of my life has been as busy, as full of the joy of service, as the year I was privileged to work so close to the heart of the church when she was straining muscle and sinew and soul as never in her history to meet loyally and faithfully a great providential call. How much better I know the heart of the church, and know its deep loyalty to the Master's will, and how much more confident I feel for the Kingdom because of the experiences of this wonderful year! I would not have missed it for anything.

But the drive is over, the goal achieved and more. Think of it! We started out to raise thirty-five million dollars fearful—with the recollection of other campaigns of the church, none reaching in its goal a single million, and those daring a hundred thousand dragging heavily along, and coming out with a few thousand—fearful, I say in our secret soul that we might not reach half of thirty-five million, we came to the end of the greatest drive any church has ever known on this continent or any other, to find that we have reached, credits and all, an amount between fifty and fifty-five million dollars.

Certainly at that the work of the Centenary has only begun, and the plastic days for moulding the best are still ahead of us. The big business of finishing up and of following up is on; the year of conservation, in strong and skillful hands, is well advanced; and except for saying good-bye and getting out of the middle of the fray of Centenary promotion, the Foreign Secretary can hold up his bead, and if perchance he can help a little, go forth with joy on the still greater business of Centenary administration. "The end of the exploration is the beginning of the enterprise."

A Quiver Full of Problems.

It is an unusual time even for a trip to the Orient, and we shall find ourselves battling with a "quiver full" of problems. There is, first of all, the Independence movement in Korea. Gradually there is sifting through to us authoritative information as to that uprising, and there is enough already through at our office to make us sure that when all the facts come to light the world will be shocked to find out that at the very time a Peace League of the nations is being made, such cruelties as have been perpetrated in Korea in the last six months could be possible in any country of the civilized world. I must believe that the Japanese Government at Tokyo will punish and restrain its imperialistic representatives and gendarmerie and bring relief to Chosen. But for the time the work of the Christian church in Korea is most seriously handicapped and hindered.

Then there is the student movement in China. In the high schools of the country, including many of the Mission schools, students have gone on strike in protest against what they feel to be the unpatriotic policies of the present government. To sympathize with the best in these movements and at the same time avoid political entanglements, requires on the part of our missionaries courage and discretion far beyond the ordinary.

The Lure of a Great Opportunity.

But our problems are for the moment almost forgotten in the bright light and lure of the opportunity that calls us. For one thing, our fields abroad are in the midst of their Centenary Campaigns. We have been so busy at home that we have said little about the movement abroad. But a plan as carefully wrought out as "the Standard Plan" is being projected in each of the fields, and, according to reports that are coming to us, enthusiasm is running at white heat. As chairman for the field I have kept in touch with the movement abroad and esteem it a great privilege to be in these countries when I may lift a little at the height of their campaigns.

Then we are proposing to spend five million dollars over and above what we are now spending in the East, multiplying by three and a half the work we are now doing in these fields. Pleas many and touching, far beyond their earlier schedules, have poured in to us in the surveys. But the big "askings" do not dismay us any more. I know we must "walk carefully," "hold the reins firmly," and do all the other things so often admonished that make up a wise business administration. But I can not forget how the old debt pressed, how persistently and almost hopelessly through the years we had to deny our missionaries when they wanted to go forward. But now the debt is paid, the big war has been fought, and the big world is wide open, and I do not doubt, "the stage is set, the destiny is revealed. It was by no plan of our own devising, but the hand of God has led us up into this way. There is only one thing to do and that is to move forward with uplifted eyes and freshened spirit to follow where the vision leads." So said our president concerning the present world situation, and so it is proper for a Secretary to say concerning the church's part in it, and which for us means that the Centenary calls, the hour for advance has struck, and so, by night and by day, in the months I am to be in those countries it will be my joyful privilege to sit unafraid with our missionaries in their conferences, see their plans for advance in the making, share their vision, catch the contagion of their courage and faith, and, hearing first hand their proposals, bring them back in faithful and sympathetic report to the Board and the church in America.

Great Expectations and a Great Resolve.

And it is to be advance, very real and very large. In the little meeting in the assembly room the friends who said good-bye and other things that embarrassed me more, but pleased me better, reminded me that the time was unusual, the opportunity such as had never come before, and the church would expect great things of the men who represented her on the frontiers now. Yes, that is the significant thing. The great Head of the church has put into her heart a great expectation —nay, rather, a great determination to cross the frontiers and push the battle as never before against the world's sin and suffering. Five million in five years—the work three and one-half times multiplied—well, no human calculation can meet or compass the expectation of the church. Mathematics fails when we come to the realm of miracle, and nothing less than miracle can meet the church's responsibility in the present world situation. That is what Jesus means when he says, "Greater things than these shall ye do." And he gives the secret in the next verse when he says, "If ye ask anything in my name I will do it." That is why the friends, when saying good-bye, took time to pray, why their pledge to remember me again and again and again in their noon-day prayer meetings, I am carrying in my heart as a precious treasure, and why I am venturing to ask that thoughtful, earnest friends, good workers in the Centenary, patient, prayerful watchers for this better day and hour, reading in the papers these words, will breathe back the pledge to pray that Bishop Lambuth may be led as he goes forth to lead, and that the Secretary who goes with him may be given the heart and courage to meet the responsibility that comes to his shoulders in the East during this unusual hour.

But, Mr. Editor, my pen is slipping away into unpardonable length. Put it in this time and I will shorten up the next.

THE READY RESPONSE.

By Rev. S. J. Davies.

Men are trained in the divine school for great purposes. The discipline of difficulties seemingly against them are the birth throes of a larger, fuller life. No moral hero ever gained the goal, only by the pathway strewn with thorns and flints. Ad astra per aspera is as old as Rome, yet its truth will hold good so long as the stars shed their light. By the rough ways men are fitted to hold princely places of honor. God's roll-call is sounding every day; only the chosen and trained few answer "Here am I, send me." Jacob was ready for Gosben, after Bethel, twenty years of service, desperate fear of avenging Esau, answered prayer of deliverance, and deepest sorrow.

The scene by Jabbok's ford was a crisis, a culmination of his life's experience, as well as a testimony of triumphant faith and invincible courage which cried "I will not let thee go except thou bless me." An old meaning of the patriarch's name, "God follows," reveals the deep meaning and problem of his varied and checkered career. When the famine came upon Egypt and Canaan, and all the marvelous journeys from the tents to Pharaoh's palace, Jacob's loneliness brought him nearer to God. For when Joseph's wagons came for that emigration which was the divine movement in the beginning of Israel's history as a nation, another vision came to the aged father. This time when his name was called the response was ready, "Here am I."

A man must study God and his ways for years and enter into all that life holds of joy and sorrow before he learns truth's greatest lessons. The richest service springs from the lowliest heart and only God knows its real worth.

A soldier was bent over the microscope in a laboratory, intent upon his work. His major leaned forward and addressed him. One glance upward and the chemist caught sight of the maple leaf. Instantly, automatically, he sprang to attention and snapped his salute. The officer kindly reassured him for the seeming lack of etiquette. But months of training in the ranks brought the ready response.

When the Master of Life calls for some duty, some service, some sacrifice, or to take the long, long journey, have you and I that faith which worketh obedience? And is this willing, ready, even quick and joyous? Isaiah must needs have the touch of the living, burning coal from off the altar before his response to become the great messenger of righteousness to a recreant nation was given. By this his soul was lighted and he became not only a prince in Israel but prince of all the prophets—God's approved messenger of truth for all time.

"Here am I, send me," let us pray.

"HERE AND THERE."

By Rev. W. H. Saunders.

Dear Brother Carley: After a severe tussle with the situation caused by the "flu" during the winter and spring, the Centenary drive, and a fifteen days' meeting during the first part of June, my congregation gave me a month's vacation and means to pay the way. The preacher that serves the Jefferson Street Church in Natchez is in good bands and they will see to it that he has some consideration more than the actual necessary means of living.

The latter part of June, I went to the coast and attended the Divinity School, enjoyed the breezes, the bathing, the rest and the fellowship of those excellent spirits that gather there every summer.

How can any one fail to enjoy and profit by these sessions of a school that is the equal of any summer school in the church? Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana should see to it that this is made the one great center in the coast section for a summer gathering. There is not the least reason why it should not bo the equal of Winona Lake, Stony Brook and other great resorts of a high social and moral nature.

After the session of the Divinity School was over, in company with the pastor of Galloway Memorial Church, at Jackson, and Brother S. B. Watkins, of Moscow charge, I left Biloxi and landed at Columbus, Ohio, at about noon on the fourth day of July to attend the great Centenary Celebration of Methodism's hundred years of missionary work.

On our way we found that on the same train was that fine Christian gentleman and leader of the laymen of Louisiana Methodism, and a member of the Unification Commission, Judge White, of Alexandria, La. In his capable hands, the interests of our church are in a safe condition, and he is an ideal Southerner without the spirit of sectionalism, and will deal with the facts as they are. On our way, at Nashville, Tenn., Dr. Lamar joined our party and went as far up as Cincinnati. There he and Judge White left our party and went by another route to Cleveland, Ohio, to be at the meeting of the Commission on Unification.

Let me say here, that it was fortunate that the Commission met at the time it did. From what I saw and heard at Columbus, it is clear that the other branch of the church is going to contend for such conditions as will do vastly more harm than good if a union is accomplished on their terms. Until they can see the facts as they are, we had best remain as we are, two great churches doing the work of the Lord.

I shall not attempt to tell my impressions of the Celebration, as it would require more space and time than would be well to put in one letter. Will say just one thing: as a whole, it was the greatest religious gathering that has ever taken place on the American continent, and it will do more to impress on the American mind the aim and purpose of Protestant Christianity than any other meeting ever held.

When a high dignitary of a great church stands in a pulpit, condemns divorce and vice and pleads for whiskey and other drunk-producing drinks, it is so inconsistent and unreasonable that it makes one wonder how such things can be. Yet this is the actual case.

Drunkenness is the cause of more vice than any other one thing. Nine-tenths of the divorces granted in the country were due to it, and the cities where there is white slavery are the ones ruled hy the saloon. To condemn the fruit and defend the tree is a little peculiar moral view and conscience. This is actually done by one great bishop of a great church. The celebration of the death of John Barleycorn at Columhus shows where Methodism stands.

At Columbus we were joined by the pastor of Capitol Street Church, at Jackson, Miss., and the genial and complacent presiding elder of the Jackson District, Mississippi Conference. Of course we had the pleasure of heing with others as we moved around in the grounds, but these constituted our party that stuck to each other day and night.

There was so much to see, so much that one wanted to see, that it was a difficult matter to teil the best way to go. It was a real feast all the time and everywhere. The great pageant was the wonder of the occasion and filled one with delight that he belonged to a cause that stood for so much in the lifting of the human race to such moral levels.

On our way back home, we stopped off in Kentucky and spent a day looking at the great cave—Mammoth Cave. To be three hundred and sixty or eighty feet under the ground, in boat crossing a river, is a little experience that one may be glad that he has had, but not anxious to take again. Our big elder from the Jackson District had a little trouble pushing his big body through the "Misery of a Fat man." He, with the rest of the party, has been in one tight place. I would not have missed it, that is the trip, for twice the amount it cost.

Landed home, I spent two weeks and then finished up my vacation hy going to my old home community in the very north end of Clay County. During the week at that place I mixed with my kinsfolk, and preached for the pastor, Rev. R. M. Evans, of the Buena Vista charge. His fellowship was delightful and revived the associations of former years, and the touch with those with whom I was reared helped me to live over again some of the most precious hours a hoy ever spends on earth. At this old church, father and mother took me to church; there I heard for the first time the songs of Zion, heard the word by such men as walked with God; there my heart burned as the Word was expounded, and there I felt the first touch of God's Spirit on my heart; and there I was recommended to preach the gospel by those among whom I was reared. Many familiar faces are gone and those who fill the places in the community and church life are worthy sons and daughters of as good a set of parents as any boys and girls ever had. I was glad to find some of the most substantial men and women with whom it has been my pleasure to work, are there—those I left thirty years ago when I entered into the work.

After spending the week with these good people, I had the very great pleasure of spending four days at Ebenezer, on the same charge, five miles from my old home. It was here that I was licensed to preach, under the pastorate of Rev. J. T. Cunningham, of precious memory, and one of the most refined and cultured Christian gentlemen I have ever known. A sweeter spirit and a better life I will hardly ever know than this friend of the young people.

The presiding elder was that matchless preacher, Gilderoy Porter, a man whose heart was as good as his head was large. Men like Dr. J. M. Ford, Dr. J. T. Harrington, James Westbrook, J. S. Henley, William Boyce, Brother Medlock, Brother Bar and Brother Spragins, were among those who composed the quarterly conference. At this same church, Hal Spragins, of the Memphis Conference, and Chas. Spragins, of Texas, were also authorized to preach, and sent into the work. The week at this place was a continuation of the same delightful associations as at the former place. The men and women who constitute the leaders were my young friends more than thirty years ago. They are still my friends. They have as fine and promising a set of young people as any community I know, and they, with the Pleasant Grove community, will make as good a pastoral charge as can be found in the future. When they come to what they should and will, they will take all the time of a pastor. Some of the older ones still linger on the way, not anxious to go, but ready when the Bridegroom comes.

I got to see Mitchell, Lewis, the pastor of Durant, and that pretty little new church they have built since I left there, and that saintly man, J. E. Thomas, of Aberdeen, and also Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District. The new church at Aberdeen is a beauty and reflects great credit on our people there. In fact, the building would do honor to a town of twice the size. It will not be long till West Point will begin the building of a much-needed new house, and I am sure they will build a good one when they do begin. When a board composed of such officials as compose that one undertake a job, they will be satisfied with nothing less than the best.

At home and waiting for the hot season to end.

Natchez, Miss.

THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON EVANGELISM ANNOUNCES ITS PROGRAM FOR CHURCH-WIDE REVIVAL.

The Joint Committee on Evangelism met in Junaluska, August 26, and adopted the following plan for a church-wide revival campaign. The Committee is the composite committee made up of representatives from the Committee on Evangelism, the Centenary Commission and three others: Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, J. W. Perry, H. K. Boyer, J. J. Stowe, E. B. Chappell, W. B. Beauchamp, C. G. Hounshell, H. A. Boaz, J. L. Neill, W. E. Brock, W. H. Stockholm, Mrs. Kirkwood, W. G. Cram and O. E. Goddard.

Bishop Darlington is President, C. G. Hounshell, vice-president, O. E. Goddard, Secretary. The Executive Committee is composed of the above mentioned officers and W. G. Cram and W. E. Brock.

Standard Plan for Evangelistic Campaign.

Statement.

The Centenary propaganda has produced a revival. It is clearly the duty of the Centenary Commission to conserve its own product. The Centenary Commission has no disposition to usurp the work delegated to the Committee on Evangelism created by the General Conference. Hence, after a thorough conference, the Committee on Evangelism and the Centenary Commission agreed to combine and promote a church-wide revival.

Organization.

The following is the plan of organization:

Joint Committee.

The Joint Committee on Evangelism shall be composed of three members from the Committee on Evangelism, three members from the Centenary Commission and three members who are members of both committees, and three others who have no membership in either, the Associate Director of the Missionary Centenary, and the secretaries of the Department of Home Missions. This Joint Committee shall carry out the policy of the Centenary Commission and the Board of Missions for a church-wide revival.

Annual Conference Committee on Evangelism.

The Annual Conference Committee on Evangelism shall be composed of the Annual Conference Cabinet, the Committee on Evangelism, and the Chairman of the Annual Conference Centenary Commission.

It shall be the duty of this committee (1) to promote evangelism within the bounds of the Conference; (2) to nominate to the Joint Commission one of their number for the Evangelistic Campaign Director of that Conference.

District Committee on Evangelism.

The District Committee on Evangelism shall be composed of the District Cabinet, District Secretary of the Epworth League, the District Secretary of the Woman's Missionary Society, and one pastor elected by the other members.

It shall be the duty of this committee (1) to promote evangelism within the bounds of the District; (2) to nominate some one as District Evangelistic Director to the Conference Evangelistic Director.

Committee on Evangelism in the Local Church.

The Local Church Evangelistic Committee shall be composed of the Local Church Cabinet, the Evangelistic Committee of the Local Church, and such others as these may desire to add.

The duties of this committee shall be (1) to promote evangelism within the local church; (2) to nominate a church evangelistic director to the District Evangelistic Director; (3) to see that a survey of the local church is made according to the Standard Plan.

Plan.

1. The Joint Evangelistic Committee shall assist pastors, presiding elders and evangelists in every way possible in promoting revivals throughout the connection during the summer, autumn and winter. The committee is creating a good supply of evangelistic literature in the way of leaflets, pamphlets and posters, which it will be glad to distribute throughout the church gratuitously.

2. The Joint Committee is planning a great simultaneous campaign culminating on Easter Sunday. Prior to the time for this simultaneous campaign it is desired we shall have accurate surveys in every local church, to determine each church's evangelistic responsibility.

In order that this survey may be accurately made, the Centenary has employed an expert who is now making a survey of one dozen typical churches in rural, city, suburban and mountain districts.

Based on the survey of these typical churches, a book will be prepared giving minute instructions as to how to put on a survey in the churches of each of these classes throughout the connection.

The Easter Campaign.

Two weeks prior to Easter Sunday, or as near thereto as may be satisfactory to the local church, the revival campaign shall begin. Let there be public services in the churches every night. (See "Simultaneous Revival Campaign for Rural Work," page 21.)

Survey.

1. The Local Church Evangelistic Committee shall make a survey of all its contiguous territory, according to the Standard Plan set forth in the standard book on surveys. This survey must be completed at least three weeks before Easter Sunday.

2. They shall classify prospective members as follows:

(a) Placing the names of unidentified Methodists on blue cards.

(b) The unconverted who express a preference for the Methodist Church on brown cards.

(c And those that have no church preference on white cards.

Local Church Organization.

At least one week before the public services of this campaign begin, the Evangelistic Committee of the Local Church shall perfect an organization by which every prospective member shall he interviewed personally, as frequently as necessary, to secure definite decision for Christ.

Teams.

1. The Local Church Director shall appoint one captain for each group of ten prospective members.

2. On Wednesday night, eighteen days before Easter, the team captains and local campaign director, with the pastor, shall meet and make up the teams for the several captains.

3. Each captain shall select from five to ten members from the church roll to compose his team of personal workers.

4. The following night, or as near thereto as the teams for the several captains.

captains, and their teams shall meet and divide the lists of prospective members among the teams as their judgment may dictate.

5. On the following night the pastor shall meet all the teams and instruct them how to do personal work.

6. On Sunday, March 21st, immediately after the eleven o'clock service, the evangelistic committee, local church director, captains and teams, and the pastor, shall meet for conference and for luncheon, wherever practicable, preparatory to the visitation that afternoon.

7. The team captains are urged to confine themselves to visit the names on the blue cards the first Sunday afternoon and every day thereafter until the list shall have been properly worked.

8. On Sunday night, fifteen minutes before the public service, each captain will meet his team and hear reports. All names for church membership and letters received that afternoon shall be handed to the pastor for announcement at the services that night.

9. At the close of the service on Sunday night, and on all subsequent nights during the campaign there shall be a meeting of all the team captains and team members with the pastor and director for conference. Where necessary, at these conferences, there may be an exchange of names from one team member to another, also any other matter of vital importance may be considered.

10. After the blue cards shall have been exhausted, work shall begin simultaneously on the brown and white cards.

11. It is suggested that all the preaching the first week of the meeting be on the line of personal evangelism. The pastor shall give brief instructions to the teams in the after-conferences each evening.

Reports.

Each pastor will be furnished with blanks on which to make reports to his presiding elder on the following items:

1. As to the survey, showing the liability of his church.

2. As to the campaign, showing the number interviewed and the number added to the church from May, 1919, to May, 1920.

Simultaneous Revival Campaign for Rural Work.

A vast majority of our churches are in the rural districts. Our country churches have been the base of supply whence have come our preachers and leadership among the laity. The Joint Evangelistic Centenary Commission is anxious that the revial campaign be put on in the most effective way possible on all circuits.

The Survey.

This should begin on all of the circuits immediately after the preacher returns from the Annual Conference. Weather conditions will likely be more favorable during the autumn than in February or March. The pastor should organize his forces and make the surveys in all his churches according to the "Standard Plan," making such modifications only as are necessary for his particular field. This work should be completed before Christmas. The cards should be carefully filed, if possible, in a fire-proof vault for use next spring. The pastor in all his visitations during the fall and winter should be gathering data for the revival campaign.

The Simultaneous Campaign.

There is great advantage in having the whole church engaged in a revival campaign at the same time. It is quite as important that the circuits join in this campaign as the stations. The "Standard Plan" can be substantially carried out on the circuit.

The circuit pastor should begin his revival campaign as many weeks before Easter as will be needed to complete the work on Easter Sunday. By beginning several weeks in advance of Easter he can probably secure the services of some station preachers. The "Standard Plan," set forth in the previous paragraph, should be followed as far as is practicable. The Centenary Commission is expecting great results from the campaign in the rural districts.

Church School Evangelistic Campaign.

Statement.

1. The Conservation Program includes the plan for a church-wide revival of religion.

2. The church school or college is the strategic center of the denomination. No adequate plans for the revival can leave out the college.

3. We are seeking to reach the college life in this campaign and are earnestly seeking the co-operation of the college authorities that this may be done in the most effective way.

Plans.

1. Rev. R. S. Stewart is the Secretary for the Joint Committee on Evangelism for Church Schools.

2. The Life Service Department will co-operate with the evangelistic program in the colleges, and every evangelistic campaign will include a presentation of and enlistment for life service.

3. The services of some of the best qualified men and women in the church are being obtained to carry this message to the colleges.

4. The organization in the college for the evangelistic campaign shall be a cabinet composed of the college president, one member of the faculty, the president of the Christian Associations and two other representative students.

In case of co-educational institutions, the president of the Y. W. C. A. shall be added to this cabinet.

5. All correspondence shall be with this cabinet through the director of the evangelistic campaign, whom the cabinet shall elect. The school cabinet shall plan, with the assigned evangelistic leader, all matters that concern the program of this evangelistic campaign. The cabinet also shall elect a chairman of minute men. The minute men will be furnished with a definite outline of speeches.

AN APPEAL.

My Dear Brother Carley: Please allow me the privilege of appealing to the readers of the Advocate for assistance. We have a church building under construction here at Roxie. The few Methodists of the community have been struggling for about three years to complete the building. We have been holding our services in it since March of this year. It is yet to be ceiled, painted and furnished with a stove. Unless this work is done within the next two months, we shall be forced to hold our services elsewhere, which would, of course, be embarrassing.

So, I beg you who are able to do so to send us a subscription at once. For this church to stand as it is, is hurtful to the cause of Christ and to the cause of Methodism. May our hearts be made glad on account of your coming to our assistance in this worthy cause.

Assuring you of our appreciation of any subscription you may give us, I am, sincerely,

W. P. BAILEY, Pastor.

Roxie, Miss.

P. S. Send subscriptions to the above address.

CHURCH EXTENSION NOTES.

Misses Ella M. Julian, Ida M. Julian, and Emma J. Julian, of Hamilton, Maryland, have contributed $600 to the Board of Church Extension, in establishing The Julian Memorial Loan Fund.

Rev. John W. Parrish, of Clearwater, Fla., a superannuated member of the Virginia Conference, recently sent in his check for $1000, establishing a Memorial Loan Fund with the Board of Church Extension.

A very warm friend of Church Extension has made additional contributions of $2000 to the "V. V." Loan Fund. This makes a total of $5000 on this Loan Fund.

Miss Sarah Elizabeth Scarbrough, of Mt. Gilead, N. C., recently made a cash contribution to the Board of Church Extension, in establishing The Sarah Elizabeth Scarbrough Loan Fund. This contribution is on the annuity plan.

Rev. R. H. Barnett, of Clearwater, Fla., has sent in his check for $1000, establishing a Memorial Loan Fund in honor of his deceased son. Brother Barnett has named the fund The Robert Vivian Barnett Memorial Loan Fund.

One of our good preachers in Oklahoma recently made a contribution of $1000 to the Board of Church Extension, and established a loan fund in honor of a deceased child.

A good woman from California has made another contribution of $500 to the Loan Fund Capital, which amount has been added to a loan fund already established.

Miss Lelis Steger, of Milan, Tenn., recently sent in her check for $1500, and established The Gus F. Steger Loan Fund. This contribution is on the annuity plan.

The Church Extension Hand Book for 1919, the thirty-seventh annual report of the Board of Church Extension, has recently been mailed to every preacher in Southern Methodism. It is a book of 264 pages, attractively bound and full of valuable information. Copies will be mailed on request.

"The Department of Architecture," is the title of an attractive little eight page folder recently issued by Rev. J. A. Baylor, Secretary of this Department, setting forth the advantages of securing church and parsonage plans from the Board of Church Extension.

WHY I AM NOT A BAPTIST.

A setting forth of Methodist democracy versus Baptist bigotry. Makes Methodists loyal and the way of the proselyter hard. Price 10 cents; three for 25 cents.

HELP THE ADVOCATE!

READ THE FOLLOWING PROPOSITION.

To the Pastors of Mississippi and Louisiana:

Dear Brethren: We will give you or any member of your congregation a Teacher's Bible if you will send us 10 new or renewal subscriptions to the New Orleans Christian Advocate by November 10. This Bible is one of the best made, and retails at $3.50. It is bound in genuine leather and has a concordance and all the usual helps in a Teacher's Bible; it is printed with large leaded type, and is fit for a queen. In asking persons to subscribe, just tell them that you are trying to get a club of ten subscriptions for the Advocate for the express purpose of getting one of these nice Bibles, and this will help you persuade them to subscribe. If you will not yourself undertake the job, please get some winsome lady or tactful layman to work up the club. The subscription price is $1.50 a year. Ten subscriptions at $1.50 each will earn the Bible.

If you fail to get 10 subscriptions, we will give you a $2.00 Bible for seven subscriptions. This Bible is bound in genuine leather also, and is a nice book.

If you fail to get seven subscriptions, but secure five, we will give you a copy of "Alpheus W. Wilson—A Prince in Israel," by Rev. Carlton D. Harris. This book contains the life and labors of the late Bishop Wilson. It is bound in cloth and has 210 pages.

The Advocate has always been supported by the efforts of the preachers in Louisiana and Mississippi. We are about to lose nearly 1000 subscriptions, most of them in arrears to the amount of $1.50 each, and consequently we are compelled to devise some way of stimulating interest.

If you will take this matter up for us, and work this plan, or find some one to work it with your assistance and encouragement, we will be greatly helped.

This offer will hold good until November 1, after which date it will be withdrawn.

FROM THE PELICAN PINES.

By S. A. Steel.

To use a sportsman's phrase, Unification is "a dead cock in the pit." His legs may jerk awhile, but it is all over. For one I thank you for reprinting Bishop Kilgo's admirable article on "Unavailing Discussion." He expresses what nine out of ten Southern Methodists think and feel about the union of the two Methodisms, North and South. Our friends who have favored it are just as loyal to Southern Methodism as those of us who have opposed it; but they did not realize as some of us have done all along, that the Methodist Episcopal Church stands for social equality with the negro, a matter that is so completely settled with us that we do not even discuss it.

If anybody had any doubts on that point, they would all be removed by recent utterances of the Northern Methodist press on the race troubles in Washington City and Chicago. So eminent a man as Dr. Warren, President of Boston University, attributed the trouble in Washington City to the failure of Mr. McAdoo to revoke the separate coach law, the very thing that prevents race trouble, such as they had in Chicago, here in the South. They all take the same position. The Methodist Church, North, demands that all laws separating the whites and blacks shall be abrogated, and negroes be admitted to hotels, cafes, cars, public parks and places of resort, churches and schools, on an equality with the white people. As soon as our people understand that, they see the impossibility of union. An honorable effort has been made to get together, and it is found to be impossible; now let it drop, and let us try to restore the fine spirit of fraternity that we had before the attempt to unite us almost spoiled it. I wish you would publish Dr. Spencer's editorials on the race riots in Washington City and Chicago. They alone would settle the matter. However, it is settled for good anyhow.

All seems to be going well up here in this "neck 'o the woods." Old Centenary College seems to be entering on a new and larger life. The title to the fine property has been perfected, cleared of all limitations now, and the way made safe for our men of means to endow it. The new President, Dr. Bourne, starts off with excellent prospects. We ought to have 500 students in Centenary, and I hope to see that many there before long. Methodist boys of Louisiana, come to Centenary College. Carley, Shreveport is going to be a big city. In ten years it will have a hundred thousand population. It is going to keep us moving to keep the church abreast of the growth of the city. It is up to old Sex to see that we do it. He is the king bee in the hive over there, and his bunch has millions and making more. Mansfield College here is going to be full to the brim and running over. President Bobbitt is wide awake, and if the Methodist people of Louisiana will stand by him, and co-operate with his wise plans, he will make this old institution a still greater blessing to the country than it has been. If he could take care of them, he could easily double his attendance. The college building, the grounds, all about the place, look spick and span, ready for the merry maidens who are expected in a few days.

I had a card from our "Sliding Elder" the other day, from "The Land of the Sky." What do you think of that! Presiding Elders taking vacation, and cavorting around a thousand miles from home! Atkinson is a mighty fine presiding elder. We have to give him up this year; or does the removal of the time limit apply to the office of P. E. too? I know that once an elder, always an elder, seems to be the rule; but I am not sure that we can keep the energetic little scamp with us here. He is a good one.

The boll weevil has about got the cotton and the excessive rains killed off the watermelon crop; but everybody seems to be in a good humor in spite of H. C. L. We've had a good year, taken in over fifty new members on profession of faith, made improvements on the parsonage, and are planning others for the church. The millennium is not in sight, though there are a lot of folks here who think that "Jesus is coming any day." I think they are chiefly among our Baptist friends, and that not many of our Methodist people are entangled in the illusion. We are expecting to hold a meeting beginning the last Sunday in September, and the preaching will be done by Rev. E. B. Ramsey, of the Memphis Conference. The object of the meeting will be, not so much to reach the unconverted, as to develop and deepen the spiritual life of the church. Our Baptist brethren recently held a good revival meeting, and whoever goes to hell from Mansfield cannot blame the preachers or the churches; for we have given them abundant opportunity to repent, and escape the wrath to come. But our church people need spiritual culture, need to be led to the high places of Christian experience, and quickened by the Holy Spirit.

Can't you make Tom Holloman write oftener? The rascal is loose now, and has nothing else to do, and wields a racy pen. And that live skeleton up about Nashville, yclept Jno. W. Boswell, has a mind full of animating reminiscences, as rich as a jar of Mac Nabor's Jersey cream. Can't you tickle him into telling these youngsters of to-day something of how the pioneers did it?

Carley, what are spiders made for? There is a world of them out at my health resort, Camp Idlewild. They hide in the legs of my pantaloons, and weave webs across the top of my shoes, and spin invisible cords across my walks, and work the most dainty, delicate patterns on the bushes all around me. What "function" in the scheme of nature do they fulfill, if "nothing walks with aimless feet?" If you know, tell me; if you don't, let some bright boy or girl, who reads the Advocate, write me a letter, and tell me what spiders are good for anyhow.

A NEW SYSTEM OF TRAINING SCHOOLS.

By John W. Shackford,
Superintendent of the Department of Teacher-Training.

One of the most promising movements in the church in behalf of the training of our lay workers and the advancement of thorough-going religious education is the new series of Standard Training Schools which have come into prominence during the last year. Standard Training Schools are high-grade schools for Sunday school leaders and teachers conducted by the Annual Conference boards and city or district boards under a plan of general supervision by the Department of Teacher Training. They are schools in which the General Sunday School Board renders more or less assistance both in planning the schools and in supplying some of the instructors to do the work. They are called "Standard Training Schools" because they measure up to the requirements of the General Sunday School Board for schools of this class in the character of their courses of study, instructors, conditions of work, organization, administration, etc., and because on the ground of this standardization they issue the credits of the Department of Teacher Training.

Standard Training Schools are offering the same courses of study that are given in the two Summer Schools of the General Sunday School Board, the one at Lake Junaluska, and the other at Southern Methodist University, these schools of the General Board being demonstration schools in which certain ideals and principles are worked out for the Conference Board Schools, the latter being co-ordinated with the former in a general system of training schools for the church.

Through this system of schools in which Conference Sunday School Boards and the General Sunday School Board co-operate, there seems to be promise of carrying this new and more thorough-going form of training work into all our Conferences and into all the great centers of Sunday school membership. A unique thing about these schools is that they are based upon a plan of enlistment of the most gifted college and university professors and expert teachers in the church. The plan is to put one such school at the center of each Annual Conference, and one in each of our great cities, and to use in these schools our foremost college professors and other teachers who are especially equipped to teach the various subjects required.

Among these well-known instructors who have assisted in these schools during the last six months are the following: Dr. Andrew Sledd, Dr. H. H. Harris and Dr. W. A. Smart, of Emory University; Dr. P. B. Kern and Dr. J. L. Cunninggim, of Southern Methodist University; Dr. Ivan Lee Holt; Dr. John A. Rice; President William R. Bourne of Centenary College, Louisiana; Prof. H. E. Spence, of the Department of Religious Education, Trinity College; Rev. J. C. Robertson, Lynchburg, Va.; Miss Nannie Lee Frayser, of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Clay E. Smith; Mrs. W. B. Ferguson; Miss M. Anne Moore, of Texas State Normal College, at Denton, and a number of other well known teachers and specialists in religious education, in addition to the regularly employed officers of Conference and General Sunday School Boards.

During the first six months of the year Standard Training Schools were held in Knoxville, Tenn., Lynchburg, Va., Little Rock, Ark., Durham, N. C., Columbia, S. C., Richmond, Va., Jackson, Tenn., Lander College, S. C., Bamberg, S. C., Myrtle Beach, S. C., Ovoca, Tenn., and Port O'Connor, Texas. There are requests now on the desk of the Superintendent of Teacher Training for assistance in more than thirty schools during the coming Sunday school year. Every Conference in the connection in which the Sunday school work is well organized is planning for one or for several Standard Training Schools and the effort will be made to keep all of these schools up to the highest grade of thorough-going work, and to supply them with the strongest and best equipped teachers of Bible and religious education in the church.

At the heart of this system of schools, as their inspiration and model, and as the means through which leaders for these schools are to be developed, there will stand the Summer School at Lake Junaluska and the like School of the West at Southern Methodist University. These schools have already taken rank among the foremost of their kind on the continent and each year our instructors for these schools will be selected from the best known and best equipped teachers in America, so that the leaders who are to carry forward regular work in our Conferences and in the great centers of the church may, in these Summer Schools of the General Board, come into contact with the most vital and representative leaders in religious education of their time.

During the first seven months of this year, more than eleven hundred persons completed credit courses in these schools and have gone out both to continue their studies, and to carry the gospel of an enlarged Sunday school vision and of efficient Sunday school service to the church. Those who have some acquaintance with what has been done in these training schools since the beginning of the year are not only deeply gratified at what has been accomplished, but see in these first fruits the promise of better things and a demonstration of a very practical means through which we are still further to solve what has been one of the most perplexing problems in the work of the church in the training of our lay religious workers.

THE MAGIC WORD.

Bennie was cross. In the first place it rained when he wanted the sun to shine. Then he had cut his finger, and now he was angry and Jane wouldn't give him anything to eat. "You've got to give me some bread and butter," he said.

"You go along and stop your noise," replied Jane.

So Bennie wandered out in the garden and found George playing with his ball.

"Give me my ball," he said, crossly. "You've had it all the morning."

"Don't bother me," replied George; "I have not finished with it."

Bennie turned away half crying. Annie was sweeping the parlor. "I want you to put some salve on my finger and tie it up," he said. "It hurts."

"Wait a little," replied Annie. "I'm so busy now."

The tears in Bennie's eyes got bigger, and soon began to fall fast. He lay down on the sitting-room couch and sobbed, and there mamma found him a little later.

"Why what's the matter, Bennie, boy?" she asked.

"Any one won't do a thing for me," he cried. "They just send me off instead of doing what I ask them to do."

"Perhaps you haven't used the magic word."

Bennie brushed away the tears and looked up. "Magic word?" he said.

"Why, yes. Didn't you know there was a magic word that would make people do just what you wanted?"

"What is it, mamma?" cried Bennie.

Mamma whispered in his ear. Bennie wiped his eyes, grinned, and then jumped down and ran to the kitchen. "Oh, Jane," he cried, smiling, "please give me some bread and butter."

"Of course I will," said Jane, and she put jam on it, too.

Bennie sat on the doorstep to eat it, while he watched the clouds break away and let the sunlight through. Then he went out in the garden.

"Please, George, may I have the ball now?" he asked, smiling.

"Catch it," said George, tossing it to him. "I'd have let you have it long ago if you hadn't been so cross."

When he had grown tired of playing, he went and stood beside his mother where she sat sewing. "Well, Bennie boy, how does the magic word work?" she asked.

But before he could answer, little May came in with a frown on her face. "You promised you'd make me a dollie, and you didn't do it," she complained.

Bennie laughed. "I think I'd better teach May the magic word, too," he said to mamma.—Exchange.

MR. TOAD, POLICEMAN.

"There's a big, ugly, brown toad out in our garden, mother," said Milly. "He's sitting under a leaf, and I want him to go away."

Her mother's eyes met Steve's with a smile. She was busy canning berries for pies next winter, so she could not stop just then. But Milly's big brother, Steve, took his sister's hand and, to her surprise, said quietly, "Come on out and get acquainted with the toad."

"Oh, my!" Milly looked up at him and her blue eyes said, "Get acquainted with that horrid, brown toad? I should say not!"

As she ran ahead towards the cabbages she picked up a stick. "You chase him off," she coaxed, thinking surely her brother was joking.

But he replied, "When you know Mr. Toad, you'll invite him to stay all summer right in this garden." And she saw that he was not in fun this time.

She wore a tiny frown as she peeped under the green roof where Mr. Toad had moved in secretly. Steve stooped down, too, whispering, "Don't get after him yet. Just watch a minute."

"Watch him! Ugh!" Simply looking at him made cold shivers wiggle up Milly's back. She would almost as soon touch a cold, slippery fishing worm as to touch that warty-looking toad.

Just then Mr. Toad seemed to wake up. Before, his eyes were half shut, Milly thought, as if he had a right to take his nap in the shade of their cabbage. Now his slender red tongue shot out, and in went a fat cabbage worm for dinner. Mr. Toad's dinner, I mean.

"Dear me!" gasped Milly.

"Watch him," said Steve softly. The next second a big hairy worm strolled along, not knowing a thing about Mr. Toad. Snap! Milly shivered to see that worm vanish inside of Mr. Toad.

"It must tickle him awfully," she told Steve.

"It tickles me," chuckled Steve. "Now do you see why we want him to spend the vacation in our cabbage patch?" And he drew Milly away, for fear they might frighten Mr. Toad. "He's a regular little policeman. He keeps the vegetables safe by getting right after their enemes. I wish he had brought his folks and all his neighbors in Toadville! Bugs and worms come here to eat the tender young vines and plant leaves. Mr. Toad comes to eat the bugs and worms, you see."

"I see," nodded Milly at last. She bubbled over in a laugh. "What a funny policeman!" Then, waving her hand toward his cabbage home, she called, "Glad to have you, Mr. Policeman Toad! Don't go away, please."

And, in the shade of the broad green leaf, wise Mr. Toad swallowed another bug and winked his eye.—The Sunbeam.

A CURE FOR SLANG.

The boy, a lad of ten, was quick to learn, and particularly good in "language," as his report card showed. His vocabulary was not so choice as varied, and the slang of the street was irresistible.

"By heck, I'm cold!" he would exclaim as he came in, and at a request from his mother would inquire, "Who do you think I am?"

She explained to him that these phrases were not used by well-educated people; but he was unconvinced.

"All the fellows talk that way; but I can cut it out if you say so."

But he continued to use the expressions; and, while his mother did not wish to "nag," she felt that she ought to show in some way that she disapproved and that the language was undesirable, even though it was not profane.

One evening, as she was reading aloud from "Swiss Family Robinson," and noting its formal, precise sentences, a sudden thought came to her. She acted on it instantly, and continued to read

"'It seems absolutely necessary, my dear wife,' I began, 'to return at once to the wreck while it is yet calm, that we may save the poor animals left there and bring on shore many articles of infinite value to us, which, if we do not now recover, by heck, we may finally lose entirely. On the other hand, I feel there is an immense deal to be done on shore, and that I ought not to leave you in such an insecure shelter as this tent.'"

The boy raised his eyes in startled surprise; but the mother continued her reading:

"'Cut it out. Return to the wreck by all means,' replied my wife cheerfully. 'Who do you think I am? Patience, order and perseverance will help us through all our work, by heck; and I agree with you that a visit to the wreck is without doubt our first duty. Come, let us wake the children and set to work without delay.'"

The boy's face was red with embarrassment, which changed to anger as his sister giggled.

"That isn't there," he declared rather impatiently, but the mother continued her reading, with no comment at all; but she inserted no more slang. She had shown him for once just how the words sounded to her.

He sulked a little during the evening, but was himself at breakfast. And, when his mother asked whether he wished another dish of oatmeal, he cried, "Yes, it's good, by —; yes, mother." He did not overcome the habit at once, but he had become conscious of how the words sounded, and in time he succeeded. His mother saw he was trying, and they never spoke of that peculiar page in "Swiss Family Robinson."—Christian Endeavor World.

ONLY THE SMALL BIRDS SING.

Have you thought of it?, It is only the small birds that sing. You never heard a note of a song from the eagle, or from the turkey, or from the ostrich; but you have heard it from the robin and the lark and the song sparrow and the canary; and how they can sing!

So it is from the little folks that we expect the best and sweetest things, the most cheerful and most loving work. So, too, we expect to hear them sing as they go.—Our Dumb Animals.

DATE OF NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE CHANGED.

On Monday morning of this week, we received a telegram from Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo authorizing us to announce that the date of the North Mississippi Conference has been changed to November 19. This is a week later than the time originally set. We are sure that the additional week can be used to advantage in winding up what has been, according to reports, a fine year's work in this great Conference.

HAS THE BIBLE LOST ITS AUTHORITY?

We were talking with an unusually intelligent and successful professional man the other day, when he ventured the opinion that one great lack in the preaching of to-day is the note of authority. There are expositions of the truth aplenty, and interesting and helpful discourses concerning many of the subjects that are occupying the public mind, but there is a noticeable absence of the imperative "Thus saith the Lord" in many of our sermons.

We wonder if people, preachers most of all, have come to look upon the Bible as a book of dissertations concerning religious truth rather than as an authoritative statement concerning the requirements of divine law. We have heard it said a great many times that the world is tired of being told what it must or must not do in order to be saved; that men are intelligent beings who are able to decide for themselves what constitutes righteousness, and that the function of the preacher is to explain and illustrate rather than to declare and apply. There is much justification for the feeling indicated by such statement, we confess; but it is altogether possible for us to go to a dangerous extreme in our failure to declare the stern requirements of the gospel.

We cannot agree with those who say that it is the easiest thing in the world to be religious. When a man enters upon the Way, he may as well understand that he has assumed obligations that will tax his best powers to discharge faithfully. Being a Christian is infinitely more than entertaining pious reflections concerning the moral life here and hereafter: it is a continuous warfare against the world, the flesh and the devil. And it is a warfare that cannot be concluded successfully unless we are willing to fight as good soldiers. For this reason, we need not expect the Bible, which is our "manual of arms," to be merely a book of friendly suggestions concerning the things it will be advisable for us to do; it is an authoritative statement of what we MUST do if we expect to be saved. If we are not willing to give it this place of authority, we might as well place alongside of it the moral reflections of the sages of all ages and give them equal importance in determining our course of action.

We do not, of course, advocate an offensive presentation of the divine imperatives. All of God's laws are permeated by the spirit of love, and his will must be declared in keeping with that spirit. But the point is, it must be declared forcibly and unmistakably. In a very real sense, the preacher is speaking for Another when he stands in the pulpit. His commission is from on high, and by divine guidance he is impelled to speak as an ambassador to men. The words are his, and the form of the message is his, but the message itself is given to him of God. If he has no such message, or if he does not consider it of supreme authority, he cannot preach.

We believe that the era of evangelism upon which we are now entering will be marked by a new appreciation of the Bible as the Word of God.

AS A MATTER OF EXPEDIENCY.

Everybody is rejoicing over the magnificent success of the Centenary Movement, both as to its spiritual results and its financial outcome. It was a great idea, splendidly conceived, efficiently managed, and enthusiastically carried out. And the conservation program has been as carefully outlined and organized.

Now we are getting ready for a great campaign in behalf of the educational interests of the church. Nobody can doubt the urgent necessity of making better provision for our educational institutions, or the wisdom of a movement to enlist the interest of the whole church in the support of this extremely important part of our work.

But the carrying out of the Centenary plan, and the inauguration of the educational campaign have involved a stressing of financial matters such as the church has never known before. The Eight Day Drive was the most strenuous financial campaign our church has ever passed through. Preachers and minute men spoke to our congregations Sunday after Sunday concerning it; committees were thoroughly organized and actively at work for weeks; hundreds of thousands of pieces of literature were distributed among the people. The plan of "reaching the last man in the last church" of Methodism was pretty thoroughly carried out.

As we have had occasion to say before, we do not believe that the financial resources of the church were at all exhausted by the pledges that were made to the Centenary cause. We are satisfied that many of our people did not give beyond their ability to give, and that many of them did not contribute as liberally as they should have done. But some of our most loyal, intelligent, and generous people assumed obligations that will heavily tax their resources for five years to meet.

In view of these facts, we believe that, as a matter of expediency, we should be very careful for some months to come about harping upon the large amounts of money that are necessary for carrying out the plans of our various departments of work. Our people have shown that they are willing to give when they are shown the necessity of giving, and we doubt not that they will be as liberal in the future as they have been in the past. But, to express the idea in familiar phrase, we believe they "need a rest" for the present. A sound psychological principle is involved here: attention too long concentrated upon one subject becomes wearied, and there is danger of a reaction that will offset much of the good that has been accomplished. We do not mean to suggest that any such reaction has yet set in, but we would avoid even the possibility of its coming. Perhaps we have been "driving" long enough; it may be time to "dig in" for awhile, that we may hold what we have gained.

We are more than ever convinced that we need a thoroughgoing, concerted evangelistic movement in our church, without the stimulation of mechanical methods and manipulations. We need an era of good preaching upon gospel themes that have to do with the fundamentals of the personal religious life. We need to emphasize for a whole year at least the distinctively spiritual elements of our faith. We have every confidence that we are going to do what needs to be done in the way of making provision for the material support of the work we have undertaken; but we are tremendously concerned that we make equal provision for the building up of a generation of Methodists who shall know in their hearts the truth and the power of the gospel we preach, and who shall be equipped, by reason of their personal experience, to carry forward, through the years to come, the work that has been so gloriously begun in this day.

WHY THOSE RENEWALS SHOULD BE SECURED.

The Advocate is not published for the benefit of any individual or group of individuals—it is published for the benefit of the church we all love. No intelligent Methodist nowadays will question the necessity of the church's maintaining religious newspapers if it would accomplish its work in the best way possible. Even in cases where the paper is not self-supporting, it has been found advisable to make provision for the publication just the same.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate is self-supporting. It has had back of it the loyal co-operation of scores of preachers and friends among the laity in our three Conferences, and this co-operation, along with careful business management in the office, has enabled the Advocate to weather all financial storms thus far. Of course, if our friends should lose interest in maintaining our subscription list at a creditable number, the financial burden would become increasingly heavy, and it would not be difficult to foresee the outcome.

But our plea for the renewal of subscriptions that are expiring is not based upon the financial needs of the paper so much as it is upon the need of the church for the general circulation of the church organ among its members. Such statistics as are available show that every forward movement of the church has been most easily and most successfully carried out in those communities where the church paper was most generally circulated and read. We presume that every Conference organ in the connection receives scores of testimonials every year as to its value in helping forward the work of the church. We have every reason to believe that the New Orleans Advocate is a real help to our work throughout its territory.

Hundreds of subscriptions are now in arrears, and many more will soon fall behind unless the renewals are sent in. This will be a severe loss to the Advocate at a time when we need to conserve every possible resource in order that we maintain our efficiency in the face of the high cost of everything that goes into the making of a newspaper. Our friends must remember that the price of the Advocate has remained the same, in spite of increase in the price of practically everything else on the market. Measured in terms of the buying power of the dollar, our subscription price is actually lower now than it has ever been before. Those who have to face the high cost of living—and that means everybody—can understand what all this means to us.

But, as we have said before, those renewals should be secured for the sake of the church and its constantly enlarging program of service. The Advocate is one of the best friends the pastor can have to help him in the multitudinous tasks that fall to his lot. It goes into the home every week with information and, we trust, with messages of inspiration, that prepare the minds of the people for the preacher's work and message and that insure him their intelligent and hearty co-operation in the plans he puts forward. In spite of bad weather, sickness, or any of the many other hindrances that interfere with personal visits, the Advocate goes on its mission each week without fail. We repeat the statement—it is one of the pastor's best friends. And in saying that, we mean that it is a great instrument of good on every pastoral charge where it is circulated.

For the sake of the cause, therefore, we hope that our preachers, busy though they are, will do all they can to secure the renewal of all subscriptions in their charges.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. H. E. Carter, of Tunica, Miss., writes that he is ready for Conference. This has been a good year with him, in spite of a good deal of sickness.

Rev. and Mrs. H. Wade Cudd, of Greenwood, La., announce the birth of a son, Colweil Lambeth, on September 1. The Advocate extends congratulations.

According to the Nashviiie Christian Advocate, Rev. J. D. McAliister, pastor of McKendree Church, in Nashviiie has resigned his charge to give his time to the work of the Anti-Saloon League.

Rev. R. E. Simpson has been appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Rev. A. B. Barry at South and East McComb, Mississippi Conference. He is at his post and has entered energeticaliy upon his work.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate of Sept. 3 carries a striking likeness of Bishop W. B. Murrah on its front page. Bishop Murrah was presiding over the Missouri Annual Conference, in session at Mexico, Mo.

Rev. A. B. Barry, who was recently transferred from the Mississippi to the Northwest Conference, has been stationed at Coquilie, Oregon. A note from Sister Barry informs us that the appopintment is a most delightful one.

Rev. C. D. McGehee, of Indianola, Miss., accompanied by his familiy, is visiting relatives in New Orieans. We had the pleasure of meeting him at the services at Carrollton Avenue Methodist Church on last Sunday morning.

Rev. S. A. Arnold, a nephew of the Editor of the Central Methodist, Dr. W. E. Arnold, has become business manager of that splendid organ of the Louisville and Kentucky Conferences. He is a member of the Kentucky Conference.

According to the statement of the Louisiana Conference Missionary Secretary, Rev. N. E. Joyner, the Baton Rouge District, of which Rev. H. W. May is presiding elder, is leading the Conference in payment of piedges on the Centenary subscription.

Rev. E. M. Alien, our pastor at Harleston, Miss., requests us to announce that the Salem Camp Meeting wiil begin on Sunday, October 5, and run through the following Sunday. Rev. D. E. Kelley wiii do most of the preaching. All the preachers of the Seashore District are invited to be present.

Rev. W. A. Mangum, of Bernice, La., reports that he has recently held good meetings at Aiabama Church, where he was assisted by Rev. Henry T. Young, and at Summerfieid, where he was assisted by Rev. J. Lambuth Evans. He speaks very highly of the services of these brethren.

According to press reports, Dr. Beverly Carradine is seriously iil in Wesiey Hospitai, Chicago. He has never recovered from the shock of a severe accident in Tacoma, Washington, more than a year ago. This wiil be distressing news to the many friends of Dr. Carradine in Louisiana and Mississippi.

We iearn from the Lincoln County Times that Rev. Robert Selby, Commissioner of Emory University in Mississippi, preached two fine sermons recently at the Methodist church in Brookhaven. Brother Selby has been eminently successful in promoting the cause of education in the Mississippi Conference.

Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Griffin, of Summit, Miss., have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Heien Wiihoft, to Mr. Carl Peter Noite, on Wednesday evening, September 17, at 8:30 o'ciock, at the Methodist church in Summit. We take the priviiege of extending best wishes in advance of the happy event.

Rev. J. L. Cady, of the Natalbany charge, Louisiana Conference, has heid three good revival meetings recently. He was assisted at Nataibany by Rev. J. W. Booth, at Killian's Chapei, by Rev. L. E. Crooks, and at Montpelier, by Rev. J. S. Rutledge. All these brethren rendered efficient service, and lasting good was accomplished.

The officiai board of our church at Como, Miss., the Young Men's Bible class, and the Woman's Missionary Society have all passed suitable resoiutions in connection with the recent tragic death of Mr. R. M. Short, who had long been identified with the church at Como, although he heid his membership at Sardis at the time of his death.

Brother J. R. Ables, a prominent layman of our church at Ponchatoula, La., suffered a broken ankle by being run over by an automobile truck in New Orleans on Tuesday of last week. His injuries were attended to at a local hospital and he was able to return home the next day. His many friends will sympathize with him in his misfortune.

We congratuiate Mr. W. T. Holland, of the St. Helena Echo, upon the successful completion of the twenty-seventh year of his connection with the interesting newspaper which he conducts. We commend Mr. Holland's fixed policy of giving due prominence in the columns of the Echo to the religious happenings in his community. We wish for him many more years of prosperity and usefulness.

The Sunday school of Central Church, Meridian, Miss., made a vigorous campaign for an attendance of 1000 on September 7. We have not heard the results of the campaign, but we trust the number was more than reached. The goal has been set at 1200 for next Sunday, and at 1500 for September 21. This great church, with its unexcelled equipment in its magnificent new building, is enterprising great things for the advancement of the Kingdom. Mr. T. K. Barefield is superintendent of the Sunday school, and Rev. H. B. Watkins is pastor.

OPENING OF PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Dear Brother Cariey: We had a delightful opening at Port Gibson Female College the 3d inst. The superior quality of our giris and young women excites general comment. In addition to literary courses, we are offering special inducements in piano, voice, brass instruments, stringed instruments, art, expression, domestic science, bookkeeping, typewriting and stenography.

Had you been present at the reception tendered the faculty and students in the coiiege parlors last Friday, you would have enjoyed such an inspiring occasion as to elicit gratitude. There was a large and enthusiastic company present to assure us of their appreciation and co-operation. One lady present said that the fourth generation of her familiy was now represented by a fine young woman in the student-body. Another present said three generations of her connection had attended. These incidents reminded me that a recent letter from Mrs. Ventress, of the renowned Galloway family, stated that both she and her mother had attended here.

We invite the co-operation of the friends in making this institution a worthy monument of the past and a practical benefit to the future.

ROLFE HUNT, President.

Port Gibson, Miss., Sept. 6.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE CONSERVATION GROUP MEETINGS.

Dear Brother Cariey: Picase announce the foiiowing dates and piaces for the Conservation Group Meetings to be heid in the Mississippi Conference. The Conservation Group Meeting is composed of the District Cabinet, members of the District Committee on Evangelism, the District President of the Woman's Missionary Society, the Church Lay Leaders, the Church Directors, the Minute Men, representatives from the Sunday school, Epworth League, and Woman's Missionary Society, the pastors of the District, and the local Church Treasurers. It is earnestly urged that every pastor and every local church treasurer arrange to be present.

NATCHITOCHES CHURCH DEDICATION.

Dear Brother Carley: Please give me a little space in the Advocate to announce the dedication of our church on Sunday, September 28, at 11 a.m. Brother R. H. Harper, who built the church, will preach the dedicatory sermon. A cordial invitation is hereby extended all former pastors to be with us on this happy occasion.

We were to have dedicated the church last fall and so announced through the columns of the Advocate, but the "flu" butted in at the wrong time and upset our plans. Fraternally,

J. W. LEE.

Natchitoches, La.

Mrs. JENNIE CLINKSCALES, the subject of this sketch, was born at Sedalia, Mo., and came to Mississippi with her parents when a child. She departed this life on April 16, 1919. She was a devout Christian, a loving mother and a kind friend. She was twice married—first to Mr. Marshall, of Marks, Miss., to whom four children were born, and second, to Mr. Clinkscales, of Sardis. She leaves two sons, one brother, and a host of other relatives to mourn her death.

A daughter-in-law,
Mrs. WILL MARSHALL.
Batesville, Miss.

Mrs. FRANCIS CAROLINE EASTERLING (nee Watkins) was born in Simpson County, Miss., in the year 1854, and died at her home near Mt. Olive, Miss., on July 1, 1919. She was married to H. D. Easterling in 1871. This union was blessed with twelve children, six of whom, with her husband, survive to mourn their loss. For a long time she had been a member of the Methodist Church, and while she lived well as a Christian, in her case it is still true that "Methodists die well." She was patient during a long illness, and left the evidence that she was ready to go. Her last utterances were that she was going to heaven, requesting those about her to meet her there. She has laid down the cross, borne so long, and gone to receive the crown, and has heard that welcome: "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord." This should encourage her loved ones not to mourn as those who have no hope, but to live so as to meet again.

Her pastor, R. T. PICKETT.
Collins, Miss., Sept. 1, 1919.

Mrs. LOUISA ANN LINDSEY THORN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsey, was born in Sumpter County, Alabama, in August, 1844. She moved with her parents to Scott County, Mississippi, when a small child. Here she lived till March 17, 1892, when she married Mr. J. N. Thorn, of Rankin County, Mississippi. She was a dutiful and faithful wife and step-mother to the end. She joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life and was a loyal Christian member to the day of her death. She endured the hardships of the Civil War and the World War and was the last of a large family to die. She had no children, but gave her love and service freely to the children of her husband and relatives. She died at the home of her stepson, Mr. Toliver Thorn, at Morton, Miss., May 15, 1919, and was buried in the Morton cemetery. She leaves a husband, seven step-children, a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She was an intellectual, modest, and refined woman. "She is gone but not forgotten." A long, useful life like hers can never be. Her earthly body is dead, but her influence can never die, and her soul will live forever with Christ above. HER NIECE.
Crowville, La.

ELLENGER ELIJAH MARBLE, son of Livingston and Mary Susan (Gray) Marble, was born on October 13, 1867, and died on August 2, 1919, at the age of 51 years, 9 months and 20 days. Brother Livingston Marble married quite young, and entered the war at the age of 21. There were born to him and his wife four children, two boys and two girls. The girls have been dead some time, and now there is left only one brother—John Gray Marble—of the original family. Ellenger Elijah was born near Utica, Miss. He moved to Louisiana at the age of twelve, spent two years there, then moved back to Utica, where he lived until 1904. He then moved with his brother near Carpenter, where he lived as farmer and mechanic until his death. He was never married. He was received into the M. E. Church, South, July 20, 1919. Though realizing death was near, he was calm and prayed to the Lord for strength. Several hours before he died he was happy and told his brother that all was well, and died with a smile on his face. The friends, accompanied by their pastor, gave the body back to mother earth in the Bear Creek cemetery, the old family burying place near Utica. May God comfort the bereaved in this their great sorrow, is the prayer of their pastor.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas God, in His infinite wisdom and love, has seen fit to remove from our midst one of our most devoted and beloved members, coworkers and friends, Mrs. M. B. Larguier, be it resolved:

1. That we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society, of Keener Memorial M. E. Church, South, of Baton Rouge, La., with sorrowing hearts bow in submission to the will of the loving Father, feeling that He knoweth best and doeth all things well.

2. That this faithful and substantial member, loving daughter and sister, constant friend and unselfish helper, may prove to be as a guardian angel and a daily inspiration to her loved ones and to the members of our society.

3. That we desire to express to the aged mother, faithful brother and family our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy; and while we know that our loss is her gain, may we truly realize that God and heaven are nearer because of this treasure that is now over there.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon our minutes and a copy be sent to the local press and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. O. H. Cline, Mrs. J. D. Doyle, Miss Stella Murphy, Committee.

Cuts and Bruises,

burns, stings, sores, boils and the numerous other mishaps amount to little. If left alone, however, and if aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand, an ugly sore will result and frequently blood poison. It is dangerous. Don't trifle. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately. It will instantly soothe the wound, cleanse the sore, kill the germs and put it on a steady road to recovery. Keep it on your shelf for every emergency. Its constant use for a hundred years has made it a family word in every household. Ask your druggist. If he can't supply you send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 800 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., and you will receive a liberal sample free.

BITRO-PHOSPHATE IS GOOD FOR THIN NERVOUS PEOPLE

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

Frederick S. Kolb, M. D. Editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who" says that weak nervous people who want increased weight, strength and nerve-force should take a 5-grain tablet of Bitro-Phosphate just before or during each meal.

This particular phosphate is the discovery of a famous French scientist, and reports of remarkable results from its use have recently appeared in many medical journals.

If you do not feel well; if you tire easily, do not sleep well, or are too thin, go to any good druggist and get enough Bitro Phosphate for a two weeks' supply. It costs only fifty cents a week.

Eat less; chew your food thoroughly, and if at the end of a few weeks you do not feel stronger and better than you have for months; if your nerves are not steadier; if you do not sleep better and have more vim, endurance and vitality, your money will be returned and the Bitro-Phosphate will cost you nothing.

"BAYER CROSS" ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Always buy an unbroken Bayer package which contains proper directions to safely relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Colds and pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents at drug stores—larger packages also. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Try This For Your Health

For diseases which do not readily yield to drug treatment, such as chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, uric acid poisoning, and diseases of the kidneys, bladder, and liver, the best physicians send their wealthy patients to the famous mineral springs. Some even spent months at the Spas of Europe and were almost invariably benefited, or permanently relieved.

I believe that the Shivar Spring is the greatest mineral spring ever discovered, and I believe it so firmly that I offer to send you enough water for a three week's treatment (two five gallon demijohns) on my guarantee that if it falls to benefit your case I will refund the price. You would hardly believe me if I told you that only about two out of a hundred, on the average, say that they have received no benefit. The water is restoring thousands. It restored my health when my friends and physicians thought my case was incurable and I am willing and anxious for you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If I win you become a life-friend of the Spring. If I lose I will be sorry for you but I will appreciate your courtesy in giving the water a trial and will gladly refund your money on request. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring,

Box 17-E, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your offer and enclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return within a month.

Sunday School

NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The Sunday School Institute for the Greenville District will be held at Cleveland, Thursday, Sept. 18; the Columbus District Institute, at Brooksville, Tuesday, Sept. 23; the Durant District Institute at Mathiston, Thursday, September 25. Mrs. L. G. Fant, Conference Elementary Superintendent, and the superintendents of the different departments in each district are expected to take part in the program. One object of these meetings is to strengthen our district organization by bringing the workers in direct contact with the work they are to do. These institutes are intended to deepen your spiritual life, inspire your soul, and inform your mind that you may be better qualified for the task of giving real religious education.

The following has been suggested by the General Sunday School Board: "We urge that the last Sunday in September of this year be observed as Teacher-training Day." This is the same day that has been recommended for Promotion Day, and the idea is that this feature shall be a part of Promotion Day exercises and the day observed as Promotion and Teacher-training Day.

Let it be understood once and for all that no real progress can be made in giving religious education to the rising generation only as we train teachers for this work. The teachers must be made out of the material we have at hand. The preacher and superintendent are at the head of this business. The man of vision will surely undertake this important task. The best book to use for training young people to become leaders is "Life in the Making." price 65 cents. Order of Smith & Lamar.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The "Officers' Training Camp" for the district Sunday school officers will be held for the purpose of giving information and direction to those who are to lead the several districts in school activities. The presiding elders are asked to write the date for their districts into their fourth rounds, and the pastor of the local church is asked to do his best to get his members out to the meeting, especially the night meeting, while the afternoon meeting will be valuable for all school workers.

All interested will clip the following:

New Orleans	Oct. 7
Baton Rouge	Oct. 8
Alexandria	Oct. 9
Ruston	Oct. 10
Rayville	Oct. 11
Sunday not decided	Oct. 12
Shreveport	Oct. 13
Not decided	Oct. 14
Crowley	Oct. 15
New Iberia	Oct. 16

The Conference Sunday School Board has sent out this week through its Field Secretary a full set of report blanks covering all the school. Will every pastor see that every school in his charge makes report at once? If there is any question about where to send report, mail to me. We are going to work for a perfect record of our Methodist Sunday schools. If any school did not get blanks, write the office. Your secretary has not written you many letters, but tried to see you. Now for a good report from every school. Pastors, help me get this report and keep it in duplicate for Conference report.

ALONZO EARLY,
Sunday School Field Secretary.
306-15th St., Alexandria, La.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

The fourth Sunday in August and a few days were spent with Rev. M. L. White at Pulaski in a meeting. Brother White is a great soul. God has blessed and is blessing his labors. It was such a pleasure to be with him and his good people.

The fifth Sunday was spent at Pleasant Grove. There were representatives from all the charge there and it was a most profitable meeting. These people have a fine opportunity of doing a great work. May the Spirit give them the vision. Brother Yeager is in great favor.

Have you held Sunday School Day? Have you sent your offering to Mr. D. S. Harmon, Poplarville, Miss.?

Are you praying for the Sunday School work?

The fourth Sunday in September is set apart by the General Sunday School Board as Teacher-training Day. It is the Annual Promotion Day and the Board is asking that as the classes are promoted that the Sunday school consider the claims of Teacher-training. Won't you consider this most important subject and give it a place on your Promotion Day program?

September 28, the Teacher-training School at Jackson begins. All pastors and Sunday school workers who can, are urged to come and profit by this opportunity. We hope to make a Conference Training School out of this effort.

To each rural school in the Conference: I am anxious to have an exhibit at Annual Conference of the rural Sunday schools. Will you take a kodak picture of your classes or school and get your secretary to write up a report of this year's work and send it to me that I may have it by Conference? Pray for the work.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS,
Field Secretary.

The center of the center, the real heart of Christianity, is the resurrection of Jesus.—Selected.

TREMENDOUS VALUE FOR 15c.

The Pathfinder, Leading Weekly Magazine of Nation's Capitol, Makes Remarkable Attractive Offer.

Washington, D. C. (Special).—People in every section of the country are hurrying to take advantage of the Pathfinder's wonderful offer to send that splendid illustrated review of the whole world thirteen weeks for 15 cents. It costs the editor a lot of money to do this, but he says it pays to invest in new friends, and that he will keep the offer open until the Pathfinder passes the 300,000 circulation mark, which will be in a few weeks. Fifteen cents mailed at once with your application to Pathfinder, 120 Douglas St., Washington, D. C., will keep the whole family informed, entertained, helped and inspired for the next three months. —Advertisement.

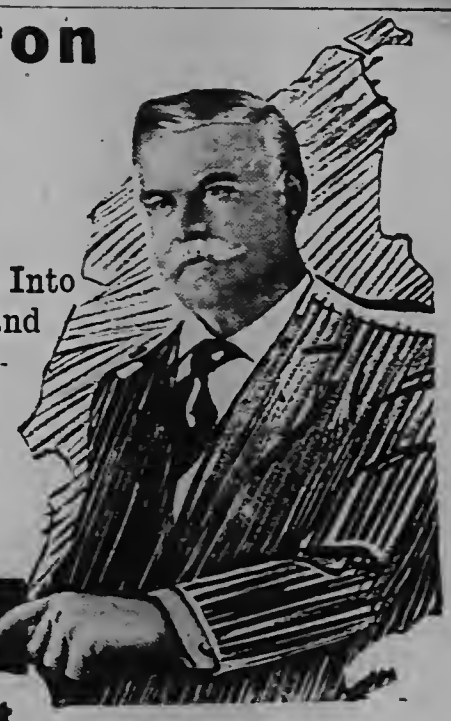
Nuxated Iron Helps Make Red Blood

The Kind That Puts Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Force, Strength, and Courage Into the Veins of Men

Watch the People You Meet On the Street—You Can Tell Those Who Have Plenty of Iron In Their Blood—Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Folks



Cut this Out

Sworn Statement of the Composition of the FORMULA of Nuxated Iron

It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over three million people annually. Among those who have used and strongly endorse it are many physicians who have been connected with the best hospitals and medical societies, former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential nominee, Chas. A. Towne, of Minnesota; U. S. Commissioner of Immigration, Hon. Anthony Caminetti; Judge Atkinson of the United States Court of Claims at Washington; Wm. L. Chambers, Commissioner of the United States Board of Mediation and Conciliation at Washington, and former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to anyone who desires such. It is as follows: Iron Peptonate (Special Specific Standard) Quantity given below. Sodium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto). Calcium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto). P. E. Nux Vomica U. S. P. Cascarine Bitter, Magnesium Carbonate Po. Ginger U. S. P. Oil Cassia Cinnamon Precip. U. S. P. Calcium Carbonate Precip. U. S. P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate, of a special specific standard, which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in that particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of men.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron" by the Due Health Laboratories, Paris, London and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you.

Manufacturers' Note—Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Nuxated Iron is not recommended for use in cases of acute illness, but only as a tonic, strength and blood builder. (In case of illness always consult your family physician and be guided by his advice.) If in doubt as to whether or not you need a tonic, ask your doctor, as we do not wish to sell you Nuxated Iron if you do not require it. If you should use it and it does not help you, notify us and we will return your money. It is sold by all druggists.

AT THIS SEASON LOSS OF APPETITE

Is very common. In many cases it is due to impure blood, which cannot give the digestive organs the stimulus necessary for the proper performance of their functions.

Thousands know by experience that Hood's Sarsaparilla restores appetite and would advise you to give it a trial this season. It originated in the successful prescription of a famous physician. Get it today.

Take Hood's Pills if you happen to need a laxative—they don't gripe.

All Need Treatment.

The blood, the nerves and the liver—there are cases in which they all need treatment at the same time, the blood being impure and deficient in iron, the nerves weak and unsteady, and the liver torpid and sluggish. In these cases such a combination of medicines as Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, Peptiron, a real iron blood and nerve tonic, and Hood's Pills, the gentle yet thorough cathartic, is of signal service.

The many effective and highly approved ingredients of these three successful medicines cannot all be included in one medicine because of incompatibility, but they are practically combined by taking the medicines in conjunction — Hood's Sersaparilla before eating, Peptiron after eating, and Hood's Pills as needed. It was a happy thought of Mr. Hood's to suggest that they be so combined in the treatment of such cases as are referred to here, which nowadays seem to become much more common.—Adv.

WORK IN THE FRENCH MISSION FIELD.

The following letter from our workers in the French Field should be of much interest:

Our women have said that they like to read of interesting, or unusual, meetings of the Missionary Society, so we ask the privilege of telling of an auxiliary recently organized in our district. Point au Chien is a community twenty-five miles from Houma, and to reach it one must travel over very bad roads. The people there are consequently cut off from nearly all advantages and have grown up in ignorance and poverty. Nevertheless, some time ago a Methodist church was organized, and about a year ago a Sunday school was started. The women, however, needed more particular help, and, as there is no organization so helpful to them as a Woman's Missionary Society, we decided to start one.

The date set for the first meeting was August 7. Two earnest French-speaking members of the Houma Auxiliary went with us, and, as the revival meeting was going on at that time, we found a good crowd and had the two preachers to help explain the work. A good program in French was presented. We organized with five members, including two officers, a president and a treasurer. The payment of dues seemed to present a real obstacle to some, but it was explained that these could be met by bringing eggs, chickens, and other farm products, which they have in abundance, and we expect generous contributions and interesting times when it comes to paying the dues.

A discussion of the local work to be undertaken followed, and it was decided to establish a library. As few of the people can read, and that few only in the first and second grades, the books must needs be very simple, but we were prepared for that. We had on hand four picture scrap books, sent by the Juniors of Oak Ridge, and a dozen readers and story books for beginners. So a librarian was appointed and the books placed in her charge. Those members of the Alexandria District who gave us twenty-five subscriptions to the Young Christian Worker will be glad to know that three of them go to members of this new auxiliary, and that the materials for the programs will be drawn almost entirely from this paper.

After further discussion, it was decided that in order to have a successful missionary society, our members must learn to read and write, so a study department was organized; and after each meeting the different classes will separate and spend an hour in the study of the English language. This is along the line of the social service program mapped out for us, but it works backwards in this case. Besides the five members, five or six other women will join the study classes and eventually become members of the auxiliary.

I am sure our women will be interested in this new "Junior-Adult" Missionary Auxiliary, and that they will not forget to pray for its growth and development, and for our two splendid volunteer workers, without whom it could not be carried on.

Summer is a busy time in the French Field, as the children are out of school, the crops are laid by, and the mothers and wives have more leisure. It is the opportune time for intensive educational and evangelistic work.

In the early part of the summer, we both had the wonderful privilege of spending ten days at the great Centenary Celebration in Columbus. Aside from the enlarged vision and great inspiration that came to us there, we received many practical suggestions for the working out of problems in our own field. This fact with the one above mentioned, stirred us up to put forth our very best efforts during the eight weeks from the time of our return till the opening of school. The results have, indeed, been gratifying and encourage us to plan for even larger things for next summer.

One of the most delightful "events" was the house party of little girls. We had planned to have ten spend the week with us, but heavy rains the week before prevented our going after those who lived farthest away, and so only five came. Housework, singing periods, Bible study, sewing, and plays filled the morning hours, and every afternoon we met at the church with the town girls of their own age and had a story hour and a sewing school. It was a busy, happy week for them and for us.

Later, we were able to try out a long cherished plan for some intensive local work at Bayou Blue. Armed with school books, Bibles, song books and whatever kindergarten material we could invent on short notice, a change of raiment, umbrellas, and overshoes, we boarded the faithful "Tin Lizzie" and started out. The welcome we received was very cordial, the choicest accommodations to be had were given us, and our "creature comforts" were affectionately looked after.

The program included regular day school work in the mornings from 8 to 12. There were two sessions, the first for kindergarten pupils and beginners in the art of English and school work, and the second included the grades from the third to the sixth. The enrollment was thirty-two. Each session was opened with songs, a Bible lesson and prayer. The eagerness and earnestness of the pupils were an inspiration to the teachers and we all had a busy time.

The afternoons and evenings were given to visiting in the homes, getting acquainted with the inner life of our people, helping and encouraging the young folk with their church work, especially with their music and the work of the missionary societies, and holding services in homes too far from the church center for the folk to attend regularly. This is a work that has long been on our hearts. We were greatly blessed in it this summer and hope next summer to have a longer session at Bayou Blue and short ones at other points in the field.

During the fall and winter, we plan to continue the special work with girls that has been so helpful in the past. Two little fatherless girls have been in the home with us all summer and we want to keep them. We are also eager to have the two splendid daughters of our French pastor, Rev. A. D. Martin. These girls have completed the course of the little country school near their home, and the parents, though eager for them to continue their education, are unable to send them off to school. The girls are in the sixth grade and if we can keep them in our home they can attend the public school here in town. We have no funds for their support, but I am sure the Methodists of Louisiana will welcome the opportunity to help these daughters of their faithful representative who labors in the most difficult place in the French Field.

Statistics for August.

The work in the French Field is so varied and irregular that one of the most complicated and difficult things we have to do is to keep statistics. During the month of August, however, we have succeeded so well in this art that we are glad to give the results for publication.

Visits made in homes, 200; auto guests, 89; guests in the home, 25; business letters, 42; telephone calls, 40; religious services attended, 69; Bible classes taught, 32; enrollment in Bible class, 44; classes taught, school, 80; enrollment, 33; books lent or given, 86; number of garments distributed, 135; number of miles traveled, 522; new families reached, 22; singing periods conducted, 18.

Two boxes of supplies were received during August: a box of books from the Franklin Auxiliary, and a box of clothing and other supplies from Homer. To the members of these auxiliaries, as well as to the many others who have helped us from time to time, we extend our grateful appreciation.

THE GREAT NEED.

By Mrs. S. C. Newman.

The great need of the church and of the world to-day is love; not love for our relatives and friends—all of us have that—but the great love for humanity that Christ had.

The great commandment that overshadows all other commands, because, if we obey it, we cannot violate the others, is a command to love. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself."

The keynote of the ministry of Paul, the first and greatest missionary, was love. The keynote of the ministry of our Savior was love.

Let's make that a part of our intercessory prayer, that the Lord will fill our hearts and the hearts of all Christians with love for Him and for our fellowman. He has promised us that whatever we ask in his name we shall receive. With all Christians, or even all Methodist Christians, asking and receiving a heart overflowing with love for God and for our fellowman, how soon his kingdom would come, when the knowledge of Him would cover the earth as the waters cover the sea!

FOOT TROUBLES

No Need of Them, Says Brooklyn Man, Who Has Evidently Solved a Big Problem.

According to the testimony of hundreds of people living in the southland and elsewhere, J. R. Simon of 1589 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has successfully developed a system of shoe building having for its prime object the conquering of foot and shoe troubles. It appears that Mr. Simon's establishment has become national headquarters for people whose feet require his remarkable comfort shoe, known as the EzWear, but obtainable only of the inventor. Mr. Simon's new catalogue shows several hundred shoes that combine comfort with style at amazingly low prices and is now ready for free distribution.

REVIVALS ON ROCKY SPRINGS CHARGE.

Dear Brother Carley: As the other boys are making reports of revivals and wondering why they cannot hear from me through the columns of the Advocate, I will say a word. I had thought that I would complete my meetings, then write them up. I have had five, thus far and have three more to hold.

On the second Sunday of July I opened fire at Hickory Ridge. Brother T. A. Ferguson, of Hermanville, did the preaching. We had a hard fight there. The devil had strong fortifications, though the earnest and good sermons of Brother Ferguson caused him to flee. There were no accessions, though the members were greatly revived and seemingly lasting good was done. We closed on the following Thursday night with the majority of the members pledging themselves to stand by the church and the right.

The third Sunday I put on a drive at Willows. Brother J. O. Ware, of Fayette, did the preaching. Brother Ware's messages were such that Satan soon beat a retreat. We had three accessions there to the church. The people were strengthened and all feel that it was good to be there. His work will never be forgotten. We closed there on Thursday night with a crowded house.

Then on the fourth Sunday the campaign was launched at the Wayside Sunday school hall, in Warren County. Brother Charles Wesley, of Foxworth, Miss., doing the preaching, and Miss Clara Faulk, of Baton Rouge, La., leading the singing. It was a treat to hear Miss Faulk's solos; and then Brother Wesley's messages were stirring and helpful. We had two accessions to the church there. The last day, Thursday, we had fast day; the ladies conducted a prayer service and the real old-time revival spirit was felt.

On the first Sunday of August I started work at Carpenter. On Monday, Brother M. L. Burton, of Port Gibson, came to me and did the preaching. Though politics was raging, there was no way around Brother Burton's messages. All denominations enjoyed them. We had five accessions there—two by baptism, three by letter. We closed on Thursday evening, but the revival work is still going on.

The second Sunday we started work at Rocky Springs, Brother M. L. Burton preaching and Miss Emmette Currie, of Utica, Miss., furnishing the music. The crowds grew daily; people came to church who had not been for several years. Though we had no accessions, the work is going on. We feel that Brother Burton did us much good, he being such a great and good man, full of the Spirit and truth.

"Where do I go from here?" From Burtonton to Shiloh and Cedars. Though often tired in the work, not of the work. I am indeed in a great work on a great circuit. Pray for me while I keep busy.

FROM LAKE CHARGE.

I have just closed our revival services at Lake. Had a fine meeting. Eleven were received into the church by baptism and one by vows. Two infants were baptized. Brother J. M. Morse, of the Jackson District, did the preaching. This makes fifty-eight we have added to the churches of this charge this year.

R. E. RUTLEDGE.

FROM ESCATAWPA, MISS.

Dear Brother Carley: May I have space in the Advocate for a message from Escatawpa? We began the year by the entire family's having the "flu," which was followed by a "pounding" that filled the pantry with good things to eat, and the preacher's memory with the "poundings" he received in childhood days when he was almost empty of good things, such as words, deeds, etc. And they didn't stop at one, but have given us several, besides different kinds of showers.

Escatawpa church gave the pastor a new suit of clothes and the other three churches paid his expenses to the Seashore Divinity School.

We doubled our Centenary allotment. Orange Grove church came within a few dollars of the entire charge's quota.

Our revivals have been fine. Rev. W. G. Forsythe did the preaching at Orange Grove, and it was of the highest and most attractive sort. Brother R. A. Allums was at Big Point and Escatawpa and preached clear, scriptual, sermons which caused many to get nearer to God.

At Caswell Springs I had Rev. L. Fayard, famous as the "Baby baptizer," who drew crowds from miles around and brought messages of inspiration and hope to all who heard him. Each meeting was fine and there was an increase in membership; but time only can tell of the souls that will be in the glory-world on account of the faithful service of these three brethren.

We have just held our third quarterly conference, with finances in a good condition despite the increase in pastor's salary and other higher assessments. We are looking forward with sorrow to the last quarterly conference because it will be the fourth one of the fourth year of Rev. J. R. Jones as presiding elder, whom every one has learned to love.

Our campaign in behalf of the Fellowship of Intercession is beginning to grow warm and we hope to wind up the year at a higher tide of Christian experience than ever before.

Your brother in Christ,

VAN R. LANDRUM, P. C.

Escatawpa, Miss., August 19.

SECRET OF CONCENTRATION.

One reason for the remarkable powers of concentration possessed by some is the intense love of their work, into which they throw themselves with such ardor as to forget everything else about them; and this, after all, is the secret of all success—to forget oneself in one's work and to become a part of that work itself, and so achieve, "forgetting and forgot" of all about except the one task to which force, physical and mental, has been brought.—Exchange.

The great lack of our life is that we do not pray enough. And there is no failure so disastrous or criminal as this. It is very difficult to account for it. If in all times of discouragement and vicissitude we could have access to one of the wisest and noblest of our fellow-creatures, or to some venerated departed saint or to the guardian angel deputed to attend our steps or to the archangel that presides as vicegerent over [illegible] worlds, how strong and brave we should become. Whatever our need we could at once seek his aid, gain access, and obtain his counsel and assistance. How extraordinary is our behavior, then, with respect to prayer, that we make so little of our opportunities of access into the presence of our Father, in whom wisdom, love and power dwell perfectly, and who is always willing to hear us—nay, is perpetually urging us to come! F. B. Meyer.

A LIVE CHURCH.

Dear Brother Carley: Our church here in Homer is showing the effect of missionary cultivation. Last year the Sunday school supported three afternoon Sunday schools in Japan at a cost of twenty-five dollars each. We also supported a scholarship in the Hiroshima Girls' School last year. This year the Sunday school is again supporting these same specials and has also recently taken the support of a scholarship for the training of a Chinese student in preparation for the ministry in the Sunkiang Bible Training School in Sunkiang, China. This is at a cost of fifty dollars. Thus our Sunday school is helping to train a young woman for service in Japan, is supporting three Sunday schools in Japan that are having a telling effect on the communities in which they are located, and is also making it possible for a young man in China to be prepared to preach the Gospel in his own language to his own people.

The Missionary Society has increased its pledge this year by fifty per cent over what was raised on pledge last year. This is an increase that is of real importance to the ladies of the Missionary Society.

In the campaign for funds for the Centenary last spring, we were asked for $7490 and our people subscribed in pledges $10,500. This was considerably over what we were asked for. When the credits are counted, we have gone on the Centenary allotment to something like one hundred and ninety per cent. In harmony with the policy of the Board of Missions and the Centenary Commission, we have taken a special that will be about equal to our annual payment to the Centenary cause. This special will be for the support of Dr. J. W. Tarboux, of Brazil. Thus the Homer Church comes to have its own missionary on the foreign field.

Beside all these things, we are accustomed to pay our regular assessments to the cause of missions and expect to do the same thing again this year.

We have some fine people in Homer and some people who are true to the cause of God. They are always to be depended upon for the support of the work of the church. However, there are many of our peole who are somewhat cold and lax in their devotion to the church. This pastor longs for the time to come when the large number of our people who are so little interested may be brought to a greater interest in the affairs and the work of the church as are these who are so greatly interested.

You are giving us a good paper. It does me good to see how good you are making it. Go ahead with your good work. With best wishes, I am,

Yours faithfully,

W. L. DOSS, Jr.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A REAL HOME.

A genuine home is not merely a place where the body can stay and find physical comforts, but it is a place where personal affection, intellectual companionship, and spiritual enjoyment predominate over material conditions. We work at our places of business—but we LIVE at home. Any disturbing influence in the home affects adversely the character of our living. Making a home is, therefore, a large part of the most important work we have to do in this world. If we give our earnest attention to it, we shall find greater joy in thinking of "the home over there."

WHAT NEXT?

According to press dispatches, the National Funeral Directors' Association has determined to demand of the United States Government that the bodies of all the soldiers buried in France be brought to the United States for burial. We have no fault to find with the perfectly natural desire of the families of these deceased soldiers to have their bodies repose in their native soil; but we think it is in very poor taste for the undertakers to prefer such a request. It is impossible to escape the feeling that mercenary motives are back of this action of the Funeral Directors' Association, and it does not reflect credit upon them as an organization. We know that many conscienceless profiteers have taken advantage of the war to enrich themselves, but this is the baldest attempt to coin the tears and heartaches of bereaved fathers and mothers that we have come across. We have known all along that "business is business" is the ruling motive in many a life; but we were not prepared for anything like this. We wonder what is coming next.

WHERE IT HAS ALWAYS BEEN.

The Association Opposed To National Prohibition has announced that it will go into politics in the November elections, devoting its attention to electing anti-prohibitionists as Governors and members of State Legislatures. This announcement is of little interest apart from the fact that it is a confirmation of the charge brought against the saloon throughout its history. It always was in politics. So much of political corruption in this country has been traced to barrooms that they came to be looked upon as the natural gathering place of those who would prey upon the rights and liberties of the people generally. So powerful had their influence become that otherwise reputable politicians seemed to think that their sole chance of success was in catering to the wishes of those who engaged in the iniquitous traffic. The people became tired of this debauching of public servants, and put the saloon out of politics and out of business at the same time. It is going back "into politics!" Well, we shall see. Thus far, the American people seem to be very well satisfied with the elimination of the saloon altogether; we do not imagine they will change their minds by next November.

THE HURT IS HEALED—BUT THE SCAR REMAINS.

Travelers through France and Belgium bring reports of the marvellous way in which Nature is healing over the war-scarred bosoms of those heroic countries. We quote the words of one of these travelers: "No Man's Land everywhere is covered with a mass of scarlet poppies, and the disappearance of the rusty barbed wire makes one almost forget that the place was ever the most desolate prospect one ever saw. But the trenches still are there, and so is much of the timber, both startling reminders of the days when we did not know just what was going to happen next." So it is in life. We pass through experiences that try our souls; sorrows overwhelm us; temptations assail us sorely; sin commits its ravages and leaves the life in wreck and ruin. But Time comes with the balm of passing years. Those soul-harrowing experiences become sources of help and strength; those sorrows teach us the lessons of humility and patience; those temptations are set up as milestones to guide us on the way; even our sins, having been blotted out by grace divine, warn us of ever-present dangers to be avoided. But the scars remain. No "scarlet poppies" can ever make us altogether what we might have been if war had not wrought its ruin. The hurt is healed, yes—but the scar remains.

ALL IN A NAME.

The purchaser of some paintings reputed to be by distinguished Flemish masters has brought suit against the seller for the return of the purchase price on the ground that the pictures are not authentic. We cannot, of course, apply the principles of commercial transactions to matters of art; but we wonder if it is the name of the artist, rather than the intrinsic value of the work itself, that gives worth to the things we want. "A rose by any one name would smell as sweet"—but it may not be the perfume that we are interested in.

INDUSTRIAL EQUALITY.

The Polish Congress has recently unanimously passed a land-owning bill which is tremendously significant of the present world-wide movement toward the democratization of industry. The bill in question provides that no man, prince or peasant, shall own more than 750 acres of land. The present large owners, who possess thousands of acres, must sell to the peasants and demobilized soldiers, who have first claim upon the land. The law goes into effect immediately, though it will take years for all the lands now in the hands of the large proprietors to pass into the possession of the agrarian proletariat. Recent happenings in this country show that there is a strong tendency toward a new industrial order that would revolutionize the present system. We have entered upon a new order of things, the outcome of which no man can tell. It behooves us to think clearly and act wisely in these momentous times.

A VOICE FROM AFAR.

Recent dispatches announce that the government wireless station at Bergen, Norway, has heard distinctly, over the wireless telephone, a voice from the shores of America. This is an almost unbelievable triumph of modern scientific development. But we should not wonder overmuch. Long before the wireless telephone system was thought of, those whose ears were spiritually attuned were hearing voices from a sphere far beyond the stars. And to-day, out of the limitless spaces of the infinite, comes a voice, clear as a bugle call and straight as a beam of light, having the accents of One "who spake as never man spake." We do well to listen to this Voice.

HONORING THE MAN.

A movement is under way to raise a fund of $5,000,000 throughout the country for the purpose of providing a suitable memorial in Washington of the late Theodore Roosevelt. Whatever we may think of some of the personal views of Colonel Roosevelt, we cannot escape the fact that he was the most virile exponent of true Americanism this generation has known. The man who inspires a deeper feeling of patriotism in the hearts of his fellow-citizens deserves all the honor they can bestow upon him. It is interesting to note that this movement is being furthered by prominent men of all creeds and political parties in the United States. It is especially gratifying that many Southern Democrats, including Governors of States, Congressmen and Senators, and others prominent in our political life, are lending their efforts to make the movement a success. "A man's a man, for a' that," is a most wholesome doctrine in these days of turmoil and unrest.

LIVING IS BIG BUSINESS.

Most of us, perhaps, have felt that if we had plenty of money, we would work when we felt like it, and take a vacation the rest of the time. But the possession of money does not release a man from the obligations he owes to the world in which he lives. We saw a statement not long ago to the effect that several of the well known millionaires of this country had not taken a vacation in four or five years. It is not a question of money with them, of course, but one of exacting business cares. We do not commend the wisdom of their course in not seeking relaxation, and we do not vouch for their unselfishness in giving such unremitting attention to business affairs, though we presume they will average up pretty well with poorer men; but we are struck by the fact that the possession of a fortune does not always enable a man to do as he pleases. In fact, this thing of living is big business. It involves the establishment of relationships that cannot be lightly regarded; it imposes obligations that cannot be carelessly thrown aside; it brings responsibilities that outweigh personal preferences and desire. "He that saveth his life shall lose it"—what a wonderful commentary upon the wonderful thing of life!

began. Since that time, I have gone occasionally to help him a little, and the preacher from 28th Township goes often. But most of his growth has come through his own study of the Bible and his own prayer."

There's the whole story. A simple one, yet to me it reads like another chapter from the Acts of the Apostles. What will be the end of it? I don't have the slightest idea. With this start, he may become one of the great religious leaders of South China. Or he may lose out spiritually! So far his life is wonderful. His character is compelling. His faith is almost sublime. Personally, I am sorry that he lives in our neighboring conference (Yenping). I wish he were close so that frequently I might go and learn of him. To me he spoke and speaks now as a man of God, speaks by the power of a life that has had something happen to it. It was not a case with him of a change of mental allegiance. God came to him through Christ and he was born again.

Since the above article was put into type we have received another letter from Mr. Cartwright, from which we quote as follows.—(Editor).

"There is a sad P. S. to add to my story of Mr. Ling of the Yenping region, which it grieves me to write. The "Tu-pis" (bandits) got him just a few days ago, capturing that seemingly impregnable fortress, carrying off his wife and some of his children and killing him. His eldest son was away at our school in Yuki, so was safe. The preacher with whom we had such good times on that journey, Rev. Mr. Chai, is also missing. Surely that is a tragic ending to the story.—F. T. C."—China Christian Advocate.

IN MEMORIAM—MRS. R. B. DOWNER.

By Mrs. A. F. Watkins.

One of the choicest spirits "among our elect women" passed away from us when, on November 25, 1918, Mrs. R. B. Downer entered into the rest that remaineth for the people of God.

Mrs. Downer was born in Baltimore, August 16, 1839. Her parents, Captain and Mrs. Jonnte Equen, came to New Orleans when she was ten years of age. Here she spent her girlhood and acquired her education. Early in life she joined the church and was always devout and consecrated.

She was married to Rev. R. B. Downer, an honored member of the Mississippi Annual Conference, on November 20, 1866, and became an important factor in his great work for the church.

As a wife and mother she upheld all the traditional ideals of Christian womanhood and through the long years of unwearying activity showed boundless devotion to her family—expressed more by action than by words. Her whole life proved her love.

Her parsonage home was a charming one to enter, and one never came under its sheltering roof without being refreshed with its sacred influence. The preachers, especially, delighted to share the genuine hospitality and good cheer of this consecrated home, and the memory of the days spent there will linger long as a blessed benediction.

The most salient trait of Mrs. Downer's character was her childlike faith in God, which met even the final test of fire and suffering unwaveringly. Her last words were an attestation of her trust in Him.

At eleven o'clock on Sunday morning she stood before the fire with her Book of Proverbs in her hands. In some way her clothing was ignited and she was fatally burned before the flames could be extinguished. After six long hours of excruciating suffering she died. Such a tragedy we cannot understand. If her faith did not falter, surely ours must not question.

Mrs. Downer is survived by a twin sister, Mrs. A. E. Barnes, of Monticello, Miss., and four children: Mrs. K. L. Barlow, Mrs. Gus Cooley, R. E. Downer, and Rev. C. E. Downer, pastor of the Hattiesburg circuit. These sons and daughters after the manner of the children of Solomon's perfect woman, "Rise up and call her blessed."

AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER?

By Richard H. Edmonds,
Editor Manufacturers Record.

Above all else this country needs a nation-wide revival of old-fashioned prayer-meeting religion—

A religion that makes men realize that if there is a Heaven, there must also of necessity be a Hell—

A religion that makes a man realize that every act is recorded on his own conscience, and that though that may slumber, it can never die—

A religion that makes an employer understand that if he is unfair to his employes and pays them less than fair wages, measured by his ability and their efficiency and zeal, he is a robber—

A religion that makes an employe know that if he does not give full and efficient service, he too is a robber—

A religion that makes a farmer who packs bad fruit at the bottom and deceives the buyer by the good fruit on the top, realize that he is a thief just as much as the one who robs a hen roost at night—

A religion that makes a man who robs a railroad of its fare, or its freight bill, know that he robs himself of all right to feel that he is an honest man—

A religion that makes a man realize that by driving too hard a bargain with his servant, his employe, or his merchant, he can be just as much a profiteer as the seller or producer who swindles by false weight, false packing or false charges—

A religion that will teach church members who fail to contribute to the extent of their ability to the support of religion, and that compels them to recognize that if they are paying their pastor less than a living salary, they are robbing God and man alike—

A religion that will make the laboring man, who by threats or by actual violence against the non-union man, strives to keep him out of employment, realize that he is at heart a murderer and is murdering the individuality, and the liberty of his fellow-man, and is displaying a hatred which, if it has the opportunity, will commit physical murder—

A religion that will make the politician who yields principle for the sake of party, who worships at the feet of any class and sells his soul for political preferment, know that he is not only a coward and a poltroon, and unworthy of the respect of any decent man, but which will also make him see that he is helping to murder human liberty, as great a crime as murdering the individual man—

In short, we need a revival of that religion which will make every man and woman strive in every act of life to do that which, on the great Judgment Day, they will wish they had done, as with soul uncovered they stand before the Judgment Seat of the Eternal.

Until the people of this nation accept and live this religion, there will be strife where there should be peace; there will be strikes and lockouts and murder where there should be co-operation and harmony; there will be hatred where there should be friendship and love.

In the Golden Rule, followed in the fullness of the spirit of this kind of religion, there would be found a solution for every business trouble; there would be created friendship between employer and employe; capital and labor would work in harmony and with efficiency, efficiency for the capital and efficiency for the labor, with profit to both.

Religion of this kind is not measured by the hope of a Heaven hereafter, but by the full fruition now of "Peace on earth to men of good will."

It is not merely the chanting of hymns here or in the world to come, but it is in the recognition and full application by rich and by poor, by learned and unlearned, that each one is indeed his brother's keeper, that we can bring this country and the world back to safety.

A nation-wide acceptance of this, the only true religion in action, would bring business peace and world peace where there is now turmoil, and men would then cease to seek to gain their aims by lawless acts of immorality, but would in spirit and in deed follow the Divine command, "All things whatsoever ye would that men do to you, do ye even so to them."

DURANT DISTRICT CENTENARY REPORT.

(We have the privilege of publishing the following report, made by a District Director to the Conference Director. We give it as an example of the faithful and efficient work done by our laymen throughout the church.—Editor.)

Mr. D. H. Hall, Conference Director,
North Mississippi Conference.

I beg to hand you my final report, which shows the name of each church, its quota, its pledge, its credit for connectionals, and the total for five years, with the following observations:

Number of churches on working list, 101; number actually filing written reports, 69; total quota, $110,000; total pledged, including all connectional credits, $102,140.96, missing the quota by about eight thousand.

Just before the close of the Drive, a "report-from-every-church" contest was started, and the following charges made a report from every church: Ackerman, Acona, Durant, Eupora and Maben, Kilmichael, Kosciusko Station, Lexington, Louisville, Mathiston, Pickens, Sidon and Cruger, Tchula Station, and Sallis circuit, all reporting (about) $86,000.

The following lacked one church: Black Hawk, Ebenezer, McCool, Vaiden and West circuits.

Acona more than doubled her quota within two hours after the Drive began at 12 noon, May 18, and reported it first, and is easily the banner station in point of promptness and pledge combined. Lexington pledges the largest quota, with $11,660.50.

The banner rural circuit is Sallis, presided over by Tom Oakes, with seven churches, all of which made a written report and promptly.

The next banner rural circuit is presided over by the other Oakes at Ebenezer. This Oakes got in his Ford and, rain or no rain, acted as Minute Man and as a general stimulant to his local directors. They met him half the way.

Circuits making no report whatever are: Colla (no preacher), Poplar Creek (no preacher) Hesterville, and High Point. 'Tis mighty sad to say it. New Hope church in High Point Circuit did make a report, but this is a church at which the Louisville pastor preaches.

Taking the reports and the work of the Centenary as a whole, it is easily observed that the district in many places is suffering from passiveness, disorganization and the lack of much needed religious repairs.

On the other hand, notwithstanding the district failed to reach its quota as stated, those churches and organizations that did work in accordance with the Standard Plan, and spent much time in prayer, came very near exploding into a positive revival on Monday, May 19, about 6 o'clock, including also your director, while the reports were being made.

Total expense incurred by the District Director, including all postage, help, traveling, etc., $106.80.

Number of New Orleans Christian Advocates sent out, 1000, being 10 for each church.

The preachers, with few exceptions, have done all they could do, and it is to them the District is indebted for the splendid results shown. The preachers had to lead the local directors in many cases.

Your servant,
J. W. CONGER,
Durant District Director.

UNIFICATION NOT A DEAD ISSUE.

Dear Mr. Editor: I have just read with much interest Dr. S. A. Steel's communication, entitled "From the Pelican Pines," which appeared in your issue of September 11, as I do everything that comes from his brilliant pen. As those who have read the Advocate within recent years doubtless know, Dr Steel and I are pretty much in accord concerning the great issue of Unification, in that neither of us desires to see it come along the lines of the tentative plan which for some time has monopolized consideration; but I cannot concur in the Doctor's view that we may now regard "Unification as a dead cock in the pit," along with the inference that might be drawn from such a conclusion—that we do not henceforth need to give the matter any very serious concern. On the contrary, in my opinion, "Unification," considering the form it has taken, is now a graver menace to the Church, South, than it has been at any time since the negotiations were begun. In substantiation of my position, I will quote from two letters received from members of our Commission on Unification since the occurrences upon which Dr. Steel lays so much stress took place.

One of our Commissioners, a man of great sagacity and ability, writes as follows: "It was clear to every member of our Commission at Cleveland that a majority of our Commission, in order to accomplish unification, was willing to accept what they called the "ultimatum" of our Northern brethren. That ultimatum was that we were to consent to a seventh Regional Conference to be composed of the colored membership of the M. E. Church, with proportionate representation in the General Conference and all the functions of a Regional Conference. A joint committee of fourteen—seven from each side—is to meet in Richmond, Va., on Novemher 3 to go over the whole matter of unification. The full Commission is to meet at some place yet to be determined on January 15, 1920, to receive the report of the committee of fourteen. In my judgment, our church was never in so critical a position."

Another Commissioner says: "The situation is most critical with referenee to the Unification question. The people who are for union at any price are aggressive, determined, and uncompromising. The people who are opposed to surrendering everything dear to the South are not standing up, and are evading and compromising. I look to see an effort made to convene our General Conference in a special session next February or March, and the greatest propaganda ever hurled at a people instituted."

These quotations speak for themselves. It is no time for those who are opposed to union, with the Northern Methodist Negroes represented in the General Conference and on all the judicial tribunals of the proposed new church, to take anything for granted. The plan of unification that now holds the stage contemplates this, as well as a chopping up of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the very heart of its territory, and if we are not to have union along these lines, those opposed to it need to get busy and make themselves heard. Even if such a scheme of union should be submitted and defeated in our Annual Conferences, the heated controversy that would follow would do Southern Methodism incalculable harm. It is certainly to be hoped that no such storm of contention will be precipitated upon us.

Sardis, Miss. R. A. MEEK.

HATS OFF TO DR. BOSWELL!

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

Thanks to you, my good Doctor, for the honor you would confer, as suggested in your communication to the New Orleans Advocate of August 21, to make me vice president of a new organization, and for associating me so intimately with Drs. Lovett and Steel. Like yourself, I have not been much of a "jiner" and have refused every office proffered me in the few organizations to which I may have been joined; I have eschewed everything that migbt interfere with any appointment that the bishops might give, or that might embarrass me in my ministerial work. I am perfectly satisfied to spend the remaining years in qulet and leave the honors to others. I joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when about ten years old, and, while I knew very little difference between churches (or denominations), and of course nothing of the causes of the divlsion of the Methodist Church in 1844, the more I have read of that affair and learned of the spirit of those north of the Mason and Dixon's line, the better I have been satisfied with my choice; and my visit of ten days at the great Methodist Centenary at Columbus has confirmed me the more with my associations and connectlons. When I recall some of the flings at the South, the failure to give the South credit where it could have been easily done without offense to any; and the very evident disposition to magnify the Methodist Episcopal Church and utterly ignore the Southern branch, I want no union in mine. Unification? Yes, if that means fair treatment, courteous recognition and less assumption of superiority. And right here I diverge long enough to say that Bishop Atkins should stand higher and higher in the estimation of every member of the Church, South, for his defense of our section and church, though under very embarrassing circumstances. So much has been written about the plan of separation, and other agreements which have been treated by the Church, North, as "scraps of paper" that it would be wearying to rehearse them here. Better let well enough alone. Our great old dreadnaught has landed many a thousand and she'll land as many more.

Much of this talk of union reminds me of an incident, in my own yard, where several boys had gathered for a game. One of the smaller ones was being urged for choice, but was objected to by the chooser on account of his size, to which reply was made "It's not the big but the good that counts;" and so it proved, for the little boy under discussion won the game. Figures, we are told, "don't lie," and on that score Southern Methodism need not be ashamed by comparison.

Right here I am handed the latest issue of the New Orleans Advocate, which has a timely and most suggestive communication from Bishop Kilgo on this vexing question. I believe the Bishop is correct in his statement, if put to the test, that there are multitudes of members of the Church, South, whom he calls "silent" who would not endorse the proposed union. I am not so sure that Dr. Werlein, in his article in the Nashville Advocate of July 4, is so safe when he says, "We of the majority appeal to the Southern commissioners to face this problem and act in accordance with the expressed wishes of the several Annual Conferences as indicated by resolutions passed." In his first proposition, the good Bishop suggests that it may not be so certain that it is the will of the church at large because of actions and resolutions by either Annual or General Conferences. I have met many members, both male and female, since this agitation was begun who have said, "Better let well enough alone," and not a few who have expressed purpose to seek church affiliations with other peoples.

No, thank you, Doctor, I am not a candidate for even the vice presidency of anything; but as the old Confederate soldiers used to say, let me remain a "high private in the rear ranks." How does it go?—"With malice toward none and charity toward all?". I am, yours for peace.

A LETTER TO THE EPWORTH LEAGUERS AND PASTORS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Dear Co-workers: Word comes to me every week from the district secretaries of our State, showing a marked increase of interest in our League work, and especially in our African Special. This year, we as a State, Junior, Intermediate, and Senior Chapters, must raise $1600. And we will raise it, provided every chapter and every pastor gets in touch with the district secretary and helps. We will not try to raise this amount in the old way; this year we expect every chapter to make a pledge to the State, then every member, Junior, Intermediate, and Senior, to make a one-year pledge to his local chapter.

The total, $1600, has been divided into district quotas, as follows:

Alexandria District, $100; Miss Inez Manchester, district secretary, Jena.

Baton Rouge District, $200; Miss Myrtle Piper, district secretary, Amite, Lafayette District, $100; Miss Mabel Dobbertine, district secretary, Lake Charles.

Monroe District, $100; Homer Foster, district secretary, Gilbert.

New Orleans District, $400; (accepted $500), Miss Robina Vaught, district secretary, New Orleans.

Ruston District, $200; Miss Pauline Wynn, district secretary, Ruston.

Shreveport District, $500; Miss Edith Pierce, district secretary, Marthaville.

These district quotas are being divided by the district secretaries and handed down to the local chapters; but if, by chance, any chapter has failed to receive its quota, and a supply of individual pledge cards, please do not delay writing your district secretary or this office, and we will supply you with cards.

The New Orleans District reported on August 12 that they have, to date, received ten chapter pledge cards, amounting to $435. Now, that's the way to do it. Do not delay sending in your chapter pledge cards.

Sunday, September 28, is African Rally Day, and on that day we will complete our canvass, and every chapter is expected to have a pledge in to the district secretary, and every member, Junior, Intermediate, and Senior, to have a one-year pledge in to the local chapter.

The slogan throughout the entire Southern church must be our slogan: 1. A pledge from every chapter; 2. A pledge from every member; 3. All chapters pledging by September 28 (pledging only for year June, 1919, to June, 1920); 4. Every member subscribing by September 28 (one year); 5. Every chapter treasurer remitting monthly to our treasurer, Miss Grace Cook, Grammont Street, Monroe, La., using the chapter treasurer's remittance book.

If this plan is carried out, we shall go over the top early.

Now, do not wait, but let's get this lined up. Write me if you need help. I am at your service.

Why not 100 per cent of our members giving monthly to Africa, at home and abroad?

All together! Pray, work, and give and we'll go over.

Yours in our Master's service,
JAS. B. GRAMBLING, President,
La. Conf. Epworth League.

Shreveport, La.

SEND THE WORD.

Shall we, whose souls are lighted
By wisdom from on high—
Shall we, to men benighted,
The lamp of truth deny?

Salvation! O Salvation!
The joyful sound proclaim,
Till earth's remotest nation
Has learned Messiah's name.

THE TREASURES AROUND HOME.

We read a story the other day which greatly impressed us. A good Methodist brother in England was an enthusiastic botanist, and his speciality was a certain genus of plants of which his herbarium contained every species save one, which was known to grow only in Syria. For years he sought that species unavailingly. Twice he visited the Holy Land to find it, and he had commissioned other collectors to procure it for him; but, after spending hundreds of pounds in the search, its place in the herbarium was still vacant. Then one day, as he walked along a railway embankment in England to take a week-night appointment, he spied the long-sought plant growing beside the rails. He had no idea how it came there, but there it was. "And," he said, "do you know, the very week before I found it I had written to Prof. Henslow and told him that it never grew outside of Syria. If I hadn't been so sure it was not here, I might have found it years ago."

One of the unceasing marvels of life is the discovery of unsuspected treasures in our backyard. The glamor of distance makes Palestine, or England, or California, or the Yukon seem wonderfully fair, but when we visit them we find that much of their beauty could have been seen from our own doorstep, and we spend hundreds and thousands of dollars in the search for something we could have had for the plucking. To see what others do not see, to find what others do not believe exists, to bring Syria to Ontario and the glory of the East to our own doorstep, is one of the miracles of life; and yet this miracle is possible to us all. If our eyes are open, we shall see strange things and behold modern marvels.

We read the other day of a man who went bird-hunting in a certain locality, and who succeeded in identifying nearly one hundred different varieties of birds, and we venture to say that many a man would have passed over the same ground and not have seen a dozen. Even the telescope and the microscope are useless without eyes, but with wide-open eyes we can see clear to the throne of the Eternal. Heaven itself is always visible from our own window, and Canada has just as many saints and just as many angels as ever walked Judaen roads or sang in Syrian skies. Your own neighborhood is full of God and His works, if only you have eyes to see.—Christian Guardian.

ESTABLISHMENT THROUGH TESTIMONY.

The evidence produced by reliable witness is of the greatest value in establishing a "case." Mere hearsay evidence is practically valueless, but first-hand evidence is what is wanted and needed if the case is to be on its merits. For it is in the mouth of witnesses that the truth is established. This is true with reference to the kingdom of God as well as with reference to matters pending in a court of justice, for instance. Christian testimony that is based upon experience, and not the stringing together of mere idle words, lies at the foundation of the faith. It is one of the things that give faith vitality and that help mightily in its maintenance in the earth.

There will be no question as to the fact that everyone who has come into vital relations with Jesus Christ ought to be ready and willing to give a reason for the hope that has fastened itself upon his very soul. This is in a measure a test of the reality of the Christian experience. The follower of Jesus is required by the conditions of his discipleship to be a witness for Jesus. And while there are many ways in which one may bear successful and efficient witness, yet there is none more useful to the cause of Jesus Christ and more helpful to the individual soul than the utterance of the sure word of Christian testimony.

One of the worst conditions of religious life is that of spiritual apathy. All the great work achieved for God and humanity has been accomplished through the faithful and intelligent application of the exhortation of the apostle to stir up the gift of God that is in thee—especially when this gift has direct relation to the matter of Christian testimony. If one does not care for the salvation of others it is a fair assumption that he does not care very much for his own salvation. The kingdom of God is dependent upon the testimony of the life—the life that is hid with Christ in God. —Selected.

FLOWERS AND FRIENDS.

One of the very prettiest stories I have heard for a long time is found in St. Nicholas. It tells how a little girl found everything all made over, including herself, through her determination to make the most of such happiness as was hers, and which came to her through a little flower garden. This little girl longed for beauty, and so she went to work to find it, and in the right way, too. She faithfully cared for her little garden. From one small step to another, the flowers that grew therein were her messengers—messengers that carried her friendly words to others. Little by little, these won for her many friends who filled her life with many of the very things she had ofttimes wished to have. Moreover, these friends even changed her so that instead of being a forlorn-looking little maiden in a dull, brown gown, with hair all dragged tightly back from her face, she was a daintily dressed girl in blue, with soft, fluffy locks and a laughing face. And all this came about by cultivating beauty and love—making the most of what little loveliness she had.

Now this tale of friendship for, and through, and by flowers is a thing quite full of pleasant thoughts. Many people have sought the same method ever since the world began. The great and good poets, the teachers of all time, have loved flowers and used them as messengers to proclaim their ideas to mankind. Certainly no little girl can have a happier way to express herself than in owning (if it be possible) a little flower garden, making it as lovely and as fragrant as she can with her own hands, and then sharing its lovely blossoms with her playmates and school fellows. Rest assured, my dears, that flowers make friends. —The Presbyterian.

HELP THE ADVOCATE!

READ THE FOLLOWING PROPOSITION.

To the Pastors of Mississippi and Louisiana:

Dear Brethren: We will give you or any member of your congregation a Teacher's Bible if you will send us 10 new or renewal subscriptions to the New Orleans Christian Advocate by November 10. This Bible is one of the best made, and retails at $3.50. It is bound in genuine leather and has a concordance and all the usual helps in a Teacher's Bible; it is printed with large leaded type, and is fit for a queen. In asking persons to subscribe, just tell them that you are trying to get a club of ten subscriptions for the Advocate for the express purpose of getting one of these nice Bibles, and this will help you persuade them to subscribe. If you will not yourself undertake the job, please get some winsome lady or tactful layman to work up the club. The subscription price is $1.50 a year. Ten subscriptions at $1.50 each will earn the Bible.

If you fail to get 10 subscriptions, we will give you a $2.00 Bible for seven subscriptions. This Bible is bound in genuine leather also, and is a nice book.

If you fail to get seven subscriptions, but secure five, we will give you a copy of "Alpheus W. Wilson—A Prince in Israel," by Rev. Carlton D. Harris. This book contains the life and labors of the late Bishop Wilson. It is bound in cloth and has 210 pages.

The Advocate has always been supported by the efforts of the preachers in Louisiana and Mississippi. We are about to lose nearly 1000 subscriptions, most of them in arrears to the amount of $1.50 each, and consequently we are compelled to devise some way of stimulating interest.

If you will take this matter up for us, and work this plan, or find some one to work it with your assistance and encouragement, we will be greatly helped.

This offer will hold good until November 1, after which date it will be withdrawn.

ATTENTION, PASTORS AND SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS!

Dear Brethren: About nine thousand Sunday schools have made a definite pledge to the Centenary to date, totaling around sixty thousand dollars per month. THANK YOU.

The Sunday school contribution is to be made monthly on Missionary Sunday and mailed at once, direct to the General Centenary Treasurer, Box 38, Nashville, Tenn. To September 1, a total of $65,000 had been received. While this amount is fine, it shows that many schools have made no payments and others are behind with their payments.

Please give immediate heed to the personal letter that has just gone out to each superintendent from the Centenary Treasurer's office urging prompt remittances. It is exceedingly important. A Treasurer's Record Book for Sunday School Missionary offering with remittance blanks will be mailed you free on request to J. L. Neill, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

The Sunday school has the privilege of directing its Missionary contribution to some one or more of the Centenary objects. Write to the above address for copy of Centenary Specials for the Sunday schools, if you have no copy, and direct your offering. You will find that it will pay in every respect.

Yours sincerely,

J. L. NEILL, Superintendent,
Department of Missionary Education, General Sunday School Board.
810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

LITTLE BEGINNINGS.

A little girl on a little bench
By a little window stood,
And a little trouble was in her heart—
"Ah! if I were but good!"

"Not very, very good," she thought,
"Like Cousin Jane who died;
But only patient, true and kind,
And free from wicked pride."

"I'll pray for that at first," she said,
"Our Father will help me try,
And then, perhaps, he will show the way,
To be very good by and by."

Then upward rose the little prayer—
So earnestly it went,
That the little heart of the little maid
Was filled with a sweet content.

And standing there on a little bench,
She looked up to the sky;
"I'll try to be good right off," she said,
"And better yet, by and by."

NEAL'S MOVING DAY.

"If I could live in a tent or the barn," grumbled Neal, "it would suit me lots better than here in the house." Neal had been sent from the table to wash his hands and came back pouting. "I just wish I was an Indian."

"It would be very nice in some ways to be an Indian or a tramp," remarked papa pleasantly. "I always enjoyed camping out when I was a boy."

"I wish I could do that now," said Neal, letting a little of the frown fade away. "The new corn-crib would be a dandy place."

"Why don't you try it?" asked papa, as if living in a corn-crib were an everyday affair with small boys. "We won't put any corn in it till cold weather comes."

"Mamma wouldn't let me," said Neal. "Please, please let me do it, mamma. It would be such fun."

"Well, you might try it," said the mother easily. "When do you want to begin?"

"This very day," cried Neal hurrying down his food. "I'll have this for my moving day."

No one seemed to notice that he hurried through with his dinner or that he left without saying "Excuse me." He hurried to the play-room, and began selecting things to move to his new home. It took only a little while to get all the things out that Neal wanted. By one o'clock all were in the corn-crib.

"I—I guess I'm hungry," said Neal to himself after he had tried the blanket in which he was to sleep, and had arranged his playthings to his liking. "I'll go and see if Mary has some cookies."

"So you are a tramp, are you?" asked Mary, looking him over as he rapped at the back door. "I never feed tramps unless they earn what they get. You carry in all those kindlings and I'll see about something to eat."

Neal had seen the real tramps splitting wood for Mary many times before she gave them bread and meat and coffee, but he did not know how they felt doing the work before eating. Long before the wood-box was filled he thought he must take one of the nice fresh cookies, but when the last stick was neatly piled in the box, Mary was ready with tin of milk and some bread and butter.

"Sit on the step," she said.

"Please, Mary, I'd like to have a cooky," said Neal timidly. "I'll wash my hands before I take it, if you'll only let me."

"Beggars mus'nt be choosers," said Mary grimly. "If I fed cookies to every tramp that comes this way, I wouldn't have any for my folks."

Neal was very glad for the bread and milk, but he could not forget the smell of the warm cakes. Mary always saved the big corner cakes for him when he washed his hands particularly clean, but to-day he scrubbed and soaped to no purpose. After the little lunch he wandered forlornly to the new corn-crib and wrapped himself in his blanket to cry. It was twilight when he awoke, and he went to the house to find the family eating supper, just as if they had forgotten all about him. He could stand it no longer, but rushed in and sobbed out his troubles.

"I want to move back," he wept. "I don't like the new corn-crib a bit."

"All right!" said papa and mamma together. "Come right up to the table now." But Neal would not come until he had washed his hands and brushed his hair, and from that very day there was no more pouting about being clean. Two movings in one day have been all Neal has ever wanted.—Exchange.

THE FARMER'S IDLE WIFE.

The farmer's wife is now so occupied with social affairs that she has lost the art of making butter and jam and doing the work of the farm that her grandmother did. This results in a great economic loss to the country! The substance of a government report issued from the Agricultural Department:

The farmer's wife, in early days, got up at half-past two,
And shined the plows and milked the cows and put the prunes to stew;
The breakfast for the hands she'd set upon the stroke of four,
And then she'd bake her bread and cake and scrub the kitchen floor;
But nowadays the farmer's wife has time to call her own.
"Good gracious!" says the Government, "how idle she has grown!"

The farmer's wife, in times gone by, brought up the sows and lambs,
And sacked the oats and fed the shoats and smoked the hickory hams.
And when she'd cooked three great big meals she cheerfully arose,
And with her churn sat down to earn the money for her clothes.
But now she often visits 'round and gossips like as not,
"My goodness," says the Government, how worthless she has got!"

The farmer's wife, some years ago, was wholly free from nerves;
Twelve hours a day she'd slave away at putting up preserves;
Six children dangling at her skirts, a seventh on her arm,
She'd gamely set herself to get the mortgage off the farm.
But now she sometimes takes a rest, like city women do,
"Great heavens!" cries the Government, "What is she coming to?"

The farmer's wife departed from this vale of toil and tears,
For happier climes in those old times, when under thirty years,
The farmer got another mate, he somehow always found
The ideal wife who toiled through life and rested—under ground.
But now sometimes her years add up their full alloted sum,
"Great Scott!" exclaims the Government, "how shiftless she's become!"

AN INTELLIGENT CAT.

Buster was a fine cat. His master said he could do everything but talk. The two of them, master and cat, were close friends and spent many evenings together. They had spent so much time together that there was a complete understanding between them.

One evening, Buster's master was sitting with his back to the light reading, when he felt something touch his foot. He shuffled his foot over the carpet, thinking the cat wanted to play. But Buster did not jump at his ankle as he had expected. Instead, in a moment, the soft little tap came again. He did not look up but said, "Buster, what do you want?" and went on reading. For the third time, the cat touched his fool. This time he looked down and said:

"Why, Buster! What's the matter?"

The cat touched him again, and he noted that the cat's eyes were directed past his face at something behind him. When he turned, he saw the lamp blazing high out of the chimney and threatening to set fire to a lace curtain which was blowing out into the room in the breeze from an open window.

He turned down the flame and stooped to stroke the cat, who rubbed, purring, against his hand with every indication of gratification. That man will never be convinced that Buster did not apprehend the danger and deliberately attract his attention and so save his house, if not his life.—Our Dumb Animals.

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation. They do not take in anything for their own use, but merely to pass it to another.—Steele.

To love playthings well as a child, to lead an adventurous and honorable youth, and to settle when the time comes into a green and smiling age is to be a good artist in life and deserve well of yourself and your neighbor.—Stevenson.

MEETING OF THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

The Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate is hereby called to meet in regular annual session on Thursday, October 9, at 11 o'clock, a. m., at the Advocate office, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La. A full attendance is desired. JNO. F. FOSTER, Chairman.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 18, 1919.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE SOUTH TOWARD THE NEGRO.

In spite of the hope that the race problem in the United States, especially in the South, would solve itself by the gradual process of racial adjustment, we are face to face with the fact that the situation appears to be more acute now than it has been for years past. Serious race riots have occurred in various parts of the country, and many individuals and organizations are devoting much attention to the causes leading up to these riots, and to the best ways of preventing their recurrence. We have to deal with a more or less inflamed state of the public mind.

We are not presumptuous enough, of course, to undertake to speak for the South, or for any group of individuals in any section of the country. The most we hope to do is to give a fair interpretation of the attitude of the South toward the Negro as it appears to one who has spent his whole life in the section where the Negro is at home, and who has had, therefore, the opportunity, as well as the inclination, to study the problem at first-hand. The views of individuals who are radical in their attitude and expression are not taken into account; we have in mind what we believe to be the attitude of the great majority of intelligent, prosperous, thinking, Southern-born men and women.

The Moral Attitude.

There is no disposition in the South to deny that the Negro possesses the moral attributes of mankind gencrally, or to deprive him of the means of developing those attributes in the highest possible degree. The fact that he has not, thus far, made much progress in the attainment of a high moral standard is not counted against him except as a reason for not entrusting him generally with commissions that involve a high degree of moral responsibility. As a matter of fact, however, even the menial colored laborer, in the every-day conduct of business, is given privileges that would never be extended to one who was suspected of incorrigible moral delinquency. Both in private homes and in business establishments the Negro employe has the confidence of his employers, and he is allowed to work under conditions that should not at all react harmfully upon his self-respect.

There is a ready willingness on the part of the South to give the Negro opportunity for religious development, and to assist him in every way possible in making provision for his religious needs. Very few Negro churches are built without financial assistance from white people. White preachers and other influential citizens are always glad to accept invitations to speak to colored audiences. This attitude on the part of individuals is showing itself in various kinds of organized activites for rendering assistance to the Negro in cultivating his religious life.

This same attitude is shown by the provision the South has made, and is constantly enlarging, for the maintenance of public school facilities for the Negro race. We do not claim that all has been done that ought to be done in this direction; but when we remember the difficulties under which the South has labored in providing the money necessary for the development of an adequate educational system of any kind, we cannot say that the Negro has been treated with indifference.

The Industrial Attitude.

The Negro is recognized as an important factor in the industrial development of the South, and, in general, he is given opportunity to work in such industries as he is qualified for, with wages that are in keeping with the value of his services as measured by the scale of wages in the community where he works and in the labor in which he is engaged. There is no prejudice against him as a laborer. As a rule, he can get all the work he is willing to do.

The Political Attitude.

The Negro is denied participation in politics in the South on account of his unfitness as a race, in its present stage of development, to have a part in the administration of governmental affairs. It is not a theory, but a fact, that we have to face here. On the face of it, it is not a reasonable supposition that a race so recently removed from a state of complete ignorance of even the elementary principles of representative government would be fitted to take part in our highly intricate and complex form of democracy. Those who hold any other view may very easily discover the error into which they have fallen by putting themselves in position to observe the racial life of the Negro as it exhibits itself in any typical Southern community where he lives under normal conditions. It would be as wise to extend the franchise to ten-year-old children as it would be to extend it to the Negro race in its present state.

There is no disposition to deny the Negro the protection of the law, both in his person and his property, on the part of the great majority of the Southern white people. We do not claim that our courts are perfect in their administration of justice, but we do maintain that sincere effort is made, on the part of the courts and officers of the law, to see that the ends of justice are attained in cases brought to trial. whether white or black.

There is no defense of mob law on the part of the leaders of Southern thought. Its evil is recognized, and it is unsparingly condemned by the pulpit and press in all Southern States. The difficulty of bringing members of a mob to trial is just as great where the victim is a white man as it is where he is a Negro. In every community, North or South, there is always a certain element of the population that wants to take the law into its own hands in cases of unusual provocation.

The Social Attitude.

The social attitude of the South toward the Negro is one of uncompromising, irrevocable, and determined aloofness. This attitude is based, not upon color as such, hut upon racial instinct. The white and the black races are socially incompatible. Oil and water will not mix chemically, though a mechanical process may be carried out that may make them seem, for a time, to be one. They eventually return to themselves, even when contained in the same vessel.

This attitude is not based upon racial prejudice, as some who occupy detached points of view would have us believe. It is not the result merely of heredity and a favoring environment. It is the result of an ineradicable feeling that the races are different. It is not in violation of the great doctrine of the brotherhood of man, because social separation does not involve the neglect of any of the duties connected with social ministry.

This social attitude necessarily affects the relationship of the races in all respects, though it does not involve injustice or unbrotherliness in any way. We do not believe that the leaderrs of the Negro race have it in mind to insist upon any course of action leading to what is commonly spoken of as social equality. We doubt if any large number of Negroes of any class scriously think of the matter at all. We believe present signs point to a spirit of co-operation between the influcntial members of both races that will make it possible to work for the right settlement of the problems involved on the unequivocal understanding that social equality is not a point at issue. Of one thing we feel perfectly sure: No influence of any kind whatsoever, from any source whatsoever, will ever break down the social barriers that exist between these two races in the South—barriers not erected by the races themselves, but placed there by the Power that has made human nature what it is.

A LETTER FROM BISHOP MOUZON.

In the Advocate of September 4, under the caption, "A Vote On Unification," we reprinted from the St. Louis Christian Advocate an account of the action of Bishop Denny in submitting to the Illinois Conference a form of ballot concerning unification, with the statement that he did so at the requcst of the chairman of the Joint Commission of our church. We think it fair, therefore, that we give the following letter from Bishop Mouzon, which appeared in the St. Louis Christian Advocate of September 10.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 5, 1919.

Rev. Alfred F. Smith, Editor, St. Louis Christian Advocate, St. Louis, Mo.

My Dear Doctor: I note that in your report of the Illinois Conference you say: "Bishop Denny stated to the Conference that the chairman of the joint commission of our church had requested that the church be sounded on the matter of unification," etc.

I think it very important that our bishops and all others should know just what the mind of the church is on the matter of unification. I believe that the General Conference meeting in Atlanta clearly indicated what the church desired in this matter. I have myself often sounded groups of preachers and laymen with interesting results. If all our leaders could come to discover just what the mass of our people think at this time, that would be wonderfully helpful.

But I write this note to say that you evidently misunderstood the Bishop at the Illinois Conference. I am myself chairman of the commission representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. I have not requested that our bishops present the matter of unification at the Annual Conferences with a view to having the preachers and laymen vote on pending matters; and I capitally doubt the wisdom of such procedure. Possibly the request came from Bishop Cannon, who is chairman of our ad interim committee. But I myself have received no such request.

I am writing this note because I am unwilling for the church to think that as chairman of the commission for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, I have requested that our bishops discuss the matter of unification at their conferences, and then call on brethren to express their views by vote.

Fraternally,

EDWIN D. MOUZON.

Dr. Smith, the Editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, added the following comment on the above letter:

"The above letter is published, with Bishop Mouzon's consent, in order that he may be set right before the church. This editor cannot think he misunderstood Bishop Denny in the statement above quoted in part, and he is all the more confident of his accuracy since the editor of the Arkansas Methodist was also present and in writing of the event made practically the same report of it."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

A new parsonage, costing $6,000, is nearing completion at Rosedale, Miss., where Rev. J. R. Bright is pastor.

Rev. J. E. Selfe, our pastor at Covington, La., paid the Advocate office an appreciated call on Wednesday of last week.

Mr. A. B. Kling, a prominent Methodist layman of Satartia, Miss., was a visitor to New Orleans last week. Of course he called at the Advocate office.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, of Cockrum, Miss., reports that he has finished his round of revival services. The spiritual life of the people was quickened, and there were 27 additions to the church.

Rev. C. Wesley Baley, of Shuqualak, Miss., reports that his work is moving along well, and that he is meeting with encouraging success in his efforts to forward the interests of the church.

Announcement has been made that Dr. E. O. Watson, secretary of the War Work Commission of our church, will return to South Carolina on October 1, to take work in his Conference for the coming year.

Rev. T. J. Embree, who was recently transferred from the Louisiana Conference to the Kentucky Conference, was appointed to the Tilton circuit, in the Maysville District, at the recent session of that Conference.

Dr. G. E. Cameron, who served two of the leading pastorates in the Louisiana Conference some years ago, was appointed presiding elder of the Lexington District at the recent session of the Kentucky Conference.

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, Louisiana Conference, reports that the revival spirit is aflame in his district. This has been a great year for spritual quickening in the pastoral charges under his care.

Mrs. J. K. Dunn, of McComb, Miss., as a girl, read the Advocate in her father's home; when she was married, 24 years ago, she subscribed for it, and has taken it regularly since. We are helped by her kind words of appreciation.

So far as the records show, Sunday School Day has been observed at every church on the Daleville charge, Mississippi Conference this year for the first time in its history. The results, of course, were splendid. Rev. John W. Ramsey is the pastor.

The cover-page of last week's Nashville Christian Advocate is of special interest to members of the Mississippi Conferences and to Mississippi Methodists generally. It contains pictures of the late Rev. H. P. Lewis, his five preacher sons, and his preacher son-in-law.

Edwin Day Roberts is a new member of the family of Rev. L. L. Roberts, pastor of First Church, Laurel, Miss. He took his place in the home on September 5 and has already assumed an important position therein. The Advocate extends congratulations.

Rev. W. W. Perry, our pastor at Glenmora, La., has had a successful year's work on that charge. Bishop Jno. C. Kilgo is expected to dedicate the church at Glenmora in the near future. A $2000 parsonage is nearing completion, and there are other marks of progress.

We learn from a press dispatch that Rev. J. O. Hanes, of Birmingham, Ala., will assist Rev. K. W. Dodson in a revival meeting at Minden, La., beginning on Sunday, September 21. The singing will be under the direction of Mr. J. B. Stalnaker, and the Minden Male Chorus will assist with the music.

A note from Rev. C. T. Barton, of Glen Allen, Miss., informs us that he has been transferred to the Western Virginia Conference, and stationed at Long Branch, W. Va. He will keep in touch with his Mississippi friends through the Advocate, which he instructs us to send to him at his new address.

We learn from the Wesleyan Christian Advocate of September 12 that Mrs. Candler, wife of Bishop W. A. Candler, was inured in an automobile accident on September 6. The extent of her injuries was not stated. We sincerely trust that it was not serious. The sympathy of the church will go out to her in her misfortune.

Mrs. W. O. Rawls, wife of Maj. W. O. Rawls, of the U. S. Army, with her infant son will leave this week for Fort Amador, Panama Canal Zone, where Maj. Rawls has recently been stationed. Mrs. Rawls is the daughter of Dr. Felix R. Hill, Jr., who served some of the leading pastorates of the Mississippi and the Louisiana Conferences.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, the pastor of our church at Lake Charles, La., A. M. Mayo, the superintendent of the Sunday school, and J. Bryant Horne, the president of the Epworth League, united in addressing a cordial welcome to the public school teachers as they took up their work for the new session in that progressive Louisiana city. It was a thoughtful and courteous thing to do.

Miss Clara Chalmers, daughter of the Publisher of the Advocate, left last week for Brookhaven, Miss., to begin her work as a teacher in Whitworth College. Miss Chalmers is a graduate of the Scarritt Bible and Training School, and of Athens Female College, of Athens, Ala. Whitworth College is to be congratulated upon securing the services of such a well qualified instructor.

Rev. Charlie Tillman, the noted evangelist and singer, will be with Rev. E. G. Mohler in his meeting at Sardis, Miss., which will begin on September 28. A number of excellent meetings have already been held in the Sardis District, and all the pastors are energetically at work and are hopeful of making good reports at Conference. Dr. R. A. Meek is the efficient presiding elder of the District.

We learn from the proceedings of the Kentucky Conference, as printed in the Central Methodist, that Rev. Roy H. Kleiser has been transferred from the Mississippi Conference to the Kentucky and stationed at Scott Street, Covington. Brother Kleiser rendered most efficient service in the Mississippi Conference, where he has many friends who will follow him with their interest and prayers in his new field of labor.

Bishop W. F. McMurry honored the Advocate office with a call on Monday morning of this week. He was passing through New Orleans on his way from Pensacola, Fla., where he had just dedicated the First Methodist Church of that city, to Dallas, Texas, to attend a meeting of the Texas presiding elders. The work of the church is on his heart, and he is not sparing himself in his labors for the advancement of the Kingdom.

We regret to learn that Rev. Isaac L. Peebles, one of the best known members of the Mississippi Conference, has been confined to his bed for more than two weeks as the result of a fall from a scaffold. His condition is improving, however, and he hopes soon to be well. As is usual with him, Brother Peebles has done much studying and writing in spite of physical ailments. He is "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed."

Mrs. F. R. Hill, the widow of the late distinguished Dr. F. R. Hill, visited her granddaughter, Mrs. W. O. Rawls, at Jackson Barracks, New Orleans, last week. It was a benediction to spend a little while in the company of this devoted Christian woman who loves with all her heart the church in which her husband rendered such notable service. She went from New Orleans to be with her son, Dr. F. R. Hill, Jr., presiding elder of the San Antonio District, San Antonio, Texas.

We learn from a note from Rev. J. H. Holder, presiding elder of the Holly Springs District, North Mississippi Conference, that the district will have a great report this year. The third quartor was better than the second, and the second was better than the first. There have been revivals of deep and abiding results. The emphasis placed upon the collection of the Centenary pledges has delayed somewhat the regular Conference collections, but the indications are that these funds will be well in hand by the time Conferenco meets.

There are souls in this world which have the gift of finding joy everywhere and of leaving it behind them when they go.—Faber.

LOCK THE DOOR IN TIME.

By Robt. B. Eleazer.

There is an old proverb about the uselessness of "locking the stable door after the horse is stolen." That has too often been the policy of good people with regard to other things than horses. An apt illustration is to be found in the race antagonism which has recently broken out, in Washington, Chicago, and other cities, and which, unless promptly checked, may conceivably swell into a tide that will sweep the country.

It can be checked, without doubt. THE AMERICAN PULPIT IS THE POWER THAT CAN DO IT, AND NOW IS THE TIME. The two hundred and fifty thousand preachers in this country are irresistible when they unite for the accomplishment of any righteous task. In a few months' time they can do what they will with public sentiment. The power of the press, however great, is a pigmy as compared to that of the pulpit. If the preachers of America, realizing the gravity of the situation, will set themselves to the creation of an attitude of Christian forbearance between the white and colored races, the danger can be obviated speedily.

This is an appeal to the ministers of our own church to wield the vast influence of their pulpits unitedly and persistently toward that end. Let us lock the door before the horse is stolen. Realizing the danger, we shall be inexcusable before God and man unless we do our utmost to avert it. Sermons and resolutions will amount to little after the damage has been done. Now is the time for speech and action on the part of every man, preacher, or layman, who desires to see our difficult racial problems settled on a Christian basis.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our thanks to the following friends who have sent us two or more subscriptions recently: Rev. J. B. Cain, Washington, Miss., 10; Rev. A. S. Brisco, Duck Hill, Miss., 5; Rev. M. A Treat for the Skin
Freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema, all can be easily and delightfully vanished with the use of Palmer's Skin Success Ointment. Used for over 80 years. Rev. A. E. Ballard, D. D., President Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, Ocean Grove, N. J., writes: "Your Skin Success Ointment completely cured me of an irritative itching eczema and I cheerfully recommend it to all who may be similarly afflicted." It is not only delightfully antiseptic and cleansing, soothing and softening to the skin, but also immediately effective in bleaching the complexion and in vanishing blackheads, freckles and all skin eruptions. Ask your druggist or send for free sample to The Morgan Drug Co., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over 200 words in length will be published free of charge. All over 200 words must be paid for at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and be sure to send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around. We cannot make discriminations. Memorial resolutions are subject to the same rule as obituaries.

Miss GEORGIA ECHOLS, daughter of the late Hannibal and Mattie Mimms Echols, of Marshall County, Miss., was born on May 30, 1882, and died on June 16, 1919. She joined the Methodist Church in childhood and lived a devout Christian to the end. She had a partial stroke of paralysis at the age of nine years, from which she never recovered, and for the rest of her life she was a great sufferer. But she bore her sufferings with Christian fortitude. Her cheerful disposition and her implicit trust in God were an inspiration to all who knew her. She contributed cheerfully of her means to the church and other charitable institutions. After the death of her parents, she made her home with her aunt, Mrs. John R. Cochran, of Mahon, Miss., who ministered to her as affectionately and tenderly as her own mother would have done. Her death was a full triumph of the Christian's faith. For while she was dying, she requested them to play "Nearer, my God, to Thee," and, with the strains of this grand old hymn floating in the air, she raised both hands as high as she could towards heaven and passed away.

Her pastor, T. H. PORTER.
August 26, 1919.

REV. SAMPSON E. BALL was born in Marion County, Miss., in 1844. In his boyhood he was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South. He was licensed to preach in the M. P. Church. For many years he has served well, leading in singing, teaching singing schools, and devoting his life to making the world better. Years of his life were spent near Tylertown, Miss., where he had many relatives and friends. His last home was at Thompson, Miss. He died, after long illness, at his son's, Joe Ball, in Summit. There are left his wife, three sons and four daughters, to await a final home-coming. His last days were peaceful, and his faith triumphant. He enjoyed his experience in grace, and let others know what the Lord had done for him. His body rests at Thompson, near the old home. Many will rise up and call him blessed—he helped many. "Mark the perfect man—his end is peace."

EDWARD HERBERT CUTRER, one of God's noblemen, died at Osyka, Miss., Feb. 17, 1919. He was born at Covington, La., in August, 1858. His life had been spent on the I. C. R. R., living at Wesson, Magnolia, and Osyka, where he had many relatives and a host of friends. "Brother Ed" was of a cheerful, hopeful disposition, and everybody's friend. He was never happier than when helping others. He was one of the truest stewards with which the church was ever honored. As Sunday school superintendent, every child loved him. In his home he was idolized—there was never a happier home, and never one more bereaved. He was taken so suddenly and unexpectedly. He leaves his wife, Lucy Wellman, and six children to mourn. There was never a shadow of a doubt about his salvation, as his faith was abiding and his devotion to the church constant. He lived for the coming of the kingdom, and made any sacrifice to make possible the coming of our Lord, often doing the most menial service "as unto Him." It seems no one can just take his place. The church at Osyka misses him so much. Brothers Decell and Gray assisted the pastor in the last service we could render him. The Masons, in large numbers, took charge at the cemetery. He still lives and his works follow him. W. T. GRIFFIN.
Summit, Miss., Sept. 6.

JULIA DAVIE was born on June 28, 1881; professed religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, when young; was married to Geo. W. Vaughn, of Caledonia, Miss., on March 5, 1903; and passed to her reward on May 13, 1919. Mrs. Vaughn was the mother of two sons and one daughter. She loved her church and rejoiced to serve it in every possible way. She was a noble wife, making glad the heart of her husband, and a devoted mother. "traveling home to God" and leading her children, "in the way our fathers trod." In every relation of life she played well her part. Her religion was a possession, a source of wealth from which she drew in time of need. She knew God, walked with him, communed with him continually, and departed in the Christian faith for "a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." "Like a lily her life did close; angels uncurtained that repose, and the next waking dawned in heaven."

W. W. HARTSFIELD, Pastor.
Caledonia, Miss., Sept. 2, 1919.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas God, in His infinite wisdom and love, has seen fit to claim for His own, our beloved member and co-worker, Mrs. Mary Faulk, be it resolved:

That we, the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of West Monroe, La., with sorrowing hearts bow in submission to the will of the loving Father in taking from our midst this faithful member, devoted mother and unselfish friend.

That we desire to extend to the bereaved children and grandchildren our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy be spread on our minutes, a copy sent to the News Star and New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. W. A. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. M. M. Roy, Mrs. W. A. Strong.

Lemons Whiten and Beautify the Skin! Make Cheap Lotion
The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most romarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softenor, smoothener and beautifier.
Just try it! Make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen, and bring out the hidden roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful for rough, red hands.
Your druggist will sell three ounces of orchard white at little cost, and any grocer will supply the lemons.

Better Than Pills — For Liver Ills

The reason

Act on 25¢ Box

NR Tonight — Tomorrow Alright

Try It! Substitute For Nasty Calomel

Starts your liver without making you sick and can not salivate.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

Ambition

TIRED MEN and WOMEN who "feel old before their time," who are languid, have no energy and lack ambition—these are often sufferers from kidney trouble.

Weak, overworked or diseased kidneys are indicated by ambitionless, always tired, nervous condition, by sallowness of skin and puffiness under eyes, backache, stiff joints, sore muscles, or rheumatic pains.

Foley Kidney Pills

get right at the cause of suffering and misery, regulate the kidneys and bladder and restore to sound and healthy condition.

N. R. Reese, Dublin, Ga., writes: "I want to say I am better. Before I started to take Foley Kidney Pills I could not turn over in the bed I had such severe pain in my back and hips. I was so stiff I could not bend over and I had to get up at night five to six times. By taking Foley Kidney Pills I am up and able to go to work.

Sunday School

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

I wish to thank every Sunday school superintendent who has sent his school report to me; we can do it if we will. I will report from time to time the number reporting, and will report by districts.

Two things for superintendents and pastors: remember your report of Wesley Bible Classes to Conference must be the registered classes only, but your report to me is every class above the Juniors, and you will note that I ask for registration number of your classes. I can tell from your report to me just what classes you have, whether or not they are registered; the second is for you to report every school that has held any sessions during the year. We cannot lose sight of them because they do not operate all year round. Report them and give superintendent and his address. Report them both to me and to Conference. Any information you will write concerning them will be appreciated. Report to me the union schools where we have a share in them; they are partly ours and should be numbered.

Our Efficiency Conferences for Louisiana Conference are promising to be well attended. Three of the presiding elders have not promised to be present. We are counting on each elder for his district.

Any school that has not received blank reports, please write me for them.

Yours cordially,
ALONZO EARLY,
La. Conf. S. S. Field Secretary.

SOME THINGS UNCLE BILLY SAID AT THE TEACHERS' MEETING.

"Our collection las' Sunday mornin' averaged just four cents aplece. Now, if nobody gives more than that average next Sunday, the average that day will be less. Some of us has got to be above the average to offset those who are below it."

"Mr. Superintendent, while we was amakin' the Cent'nary Drive we made a great fuss to get our school 'over the top,' an' since then we've blowed consider'ble 'bout what we done. Now I move we adopt the Cent'nary slogan, 'No shrinkage, but a surplus in our Cent'nary collections,' an' proceed to live up to the fussin' an' blowin'."

"Some Christians is so thin-skinned that their pastors has to be sort of perambulatin' bottles of salve—so to speak—all the time bindin' up wounded feelin's."

FROM IDA CHARGE.

On the fourth Sunday in August, the pastor, Rev. G. D. Purcell, began a series of revival services in our church here. From the first he had the prayers and co-operation of the membership, an enthusiastic choir, and indications of success. On Monday afternoon, Rev. F. R. Power, P. C., of Texas Avenue, Shreveport, came to us and did most of the preaching. He delivered clear, logical, earnest, gospel sermons which brought results. He is highly esteemed by our people.

In the absence of Brother Power for a few services, the pulpit was filled by Rev. C. E. McLean, of Centenary College. He brought us two messages of unusual excellence. We anticipate great usefuness to the church in the future from this consecrated young man. August 29 came during our revival, and was observed by fasting and an especial prayer service in the afternoon. The members of the church continued their prayers and faithful work throughout the nearly two weeks' meeting, renewed their vows and consecration, and of course were blessed. We can not tell how many were really born again. There were some testimonies to this and various other blessings. Thirty-four were received into the church, a large number of whom were on profession of faith and many of them adults. During the last eighteen months our membership here has been about doubled.

A MEMBER.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, God in his infinite mercy has seen fit to call into eternal rest our beloved friend, Mrs. Rosabella McSwain, who was a faithful member of the Aid Society of New Augusta, Miss., since its organization, a devoted member of the Methodist Church, and a consecrated Christian, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father who doeth all things well.

2. That in her death the church and our society have lost one of their most useful members, the community a neighbor whose place will be hard to fill.

3. That we will ever hold in grateful remembrance her faithful service and her devotion to her church and her God.

4. That we commend her faithfulness to duty, her cheerfulness in the face of trials, her purity of heart and life, and point her sorrowing family to Him who is the source of all comfort and help.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, and the local paper, and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. J. F. Ruffin, Miss Lizzie Dearman, Mrs. W. H. Robinson, Committee for Ladies' Aid Society.

Coffeeville, at Gray Rock, Nov. 15, 16.

Remember, all officers are elected at this conference for the new year. Four important reports, beside the report on the General state of the church, are due, viz., Closing of Year's Financial Report, Centenary Report, Woman's Missionary Society Report, and Report of Trustees of Church Property. All matters are of exceeding great importance. Please have all well in hand and handle with dispatch.

31 HENS—467 EGGS

Mrs. Laura Higgins writes, "I fed 'TWO for ONE' to my hens this winter and was truly surprised at the way they laid, in the coldest weather I was getting eggs every day, December I got 467 eggs from 31 hens." All poultry keepers can do as well. Now is the time to insure yourself an ample egg supply for the coming winter. Give your hens "TWO for ONE" the scientific tonic composed of every beneficial ingredient known to poultry experts, it increases your egg supply and doubles your profits. Produces fertile eggs which will insure you 100% hatchings. It has yielded more eggs and healthier chickens for others than anything known and it will do the same for you.

Send $1.00 to the Kinsella Co., 2916 Le Moyne Bldg., Chicago, for a trial box of this wonderful tonic or send $2.00 for a full supply which will last you an entire season. Make every chicken that you hatch a greater money-maker, and at the same time your order will entitle you to a free entry in our big $5,000.00 egg-laying contest which starts September 1, which is open only to users of "TWO for ONE." Remember, if you have 10 hens you have as good a chance of winning a prize as the owner of 1000. Send in your order to-day and get full particulars of prize contest which are enclosed in every box of "TWO for ONE."—Adv.

CHILLS, COLDS, FEVERISHNESS

Black-Draught Is Used by Virginia Lady for Colds, Fever and Other Troubles With Fine Results.

Rocky Mount, Va.—Miss Mae Chitwood, of this place, recently stated: "I have used Black-Draught for colds and stomach trouble and certainly have found it very satisfactory.

"When I would feel bad and feverish, as though I was taking a fresh cold, I would make a good cup of Black-Draught tea and it would soon set me all right.

"I can recommend it as a splendid laxative and gladly do so. You may publish my statement."

When you feel chilly, tired, feverish, headachy and fear that you are taking cold, take a good dose of the old, reliable, liver medicine you have heard so much about — Thedford's Black-Draught. It is made from purely vegetable ingredients, acts in a gentle, natural way, and by helping to drive out poisonous waste matter from your system, it will often, if taken in time, prevent a chill from developing into a cold.

Thousands of people, during the past 70 years, have found Black-Draught of benefit in such cases.

Try it, the next time you chill or sneeze.—Adv.
